The west campus library will be located in the room adjoining the student lounge in Building 2. Besides having more than one thousand books to be lent out in the usual manner, the library will feature periodicals and such reference books as needed by political science and history students. The latter material will be available to the students for two hours at a time.

THE SLEEPING RAM WHICH is scheduled to arise Monday, March 3, weather permitting, is shown here listening in on a conversation of coeds Clare Warner and Jackie Faxon. The two young ladies are discussing the rude awakening which is in store for the Ram, who is the symbol of the college. The Ram will be placed on a pedestal made especially for him.—Photo by Lustig.

XGI's Meet Tonight At First Spring Informal

Highlighting the initial meeting of the XGI Society tonight at 8 p.m. at the War Memorial Building in Room 1 will be an informal dance and technicolor pictures of the atom bomb experiment at Bikini Atoll, declared John Tolly, president.

Veterans, whether they are members of the society or not, are invited to attend with their dates, Tolly emphasized.

The XGI Society is composed of Army and Navy veterans in attendance at this college.

Vet Counsel Service Gives Military Units

All veterans, former members of the Merchant Marines, Marine Cadets, or California Maritime Academy Cadets, who desire to obtain college credit for schooling while in the service should report to Veteran Counselling in Building 3, west campus, at the earliest possible time, according to William Ogle, Veteran Counsellor.

Credits for training are not automatic but must be petitioned, Ogle added.

Ex-soldiers, Coast Guardsmen, and Marines should report to Alva McMillan, Waddington Blair, Alden Olsen, or Ogle.

Former Maritime School enrollees, Navy Cadets, ASTP, V-12, and California Maritime Academy should report to Ogle.

More On Finance

provement were mapped out last semester. Then as now, lack of funds prevented a majority of these proposed measures from developing.

This financial shortage, Burger pointed out, and the resultant curtailing effect on student activities, prompted the student council last semester to vote unanimously a $1 boost on the tariff for Associated Student cards, raising the fee from $4 to $5.

The increase led student officers to believe that the program planned for the spring semester could accomplish all the features proposed last fall that did not pass the blue print stage.

Despite the hoost in cost, the college still maintains one of the lowest student fees in the state. Other state colleges enforce fees ranging up to and over $15.

Finance Committee members urge students who were doubtful or confused by the distractions of registration and were not fully cognizant of the importance and advantages akin to holding a student card, those who failed to purchase or signify their intent to purchase their membership cards, to see about getting their cards as soon as possible.

"The first major step in developing the college's out-of-classroom advantages and activities is to have all students enrolled here in the organization and each student completes that enrollment by purchasing his card immediately," Burger concluded.

Brady Designates New Rooms For Old Organizations

Disclosing that clubs no longer have claims to the rooms used last semester, Assistant Dean John Brady yesterday urged presidents of clubs whose club does not appear on the list below to see him immediately.

Brady also emphasized that any clubs who desire the use of the student lounge must get clearance from his office one week before the scheduled meeting.

"There will be another meeting of club presidents on Tuesday, March 4, at 7 o'clock in the student lounge. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss ways to increase student funds," Brady said.

Hasty Patrons Can Grab And Run

Congestion during the morning hours at the west campus cafeteria has been eased by a new arrangement, Hilda Watson, head of the Hotel and Restaurant Division, announced last week.

This arrangement is a separate quick-order-line, hours 7:30 a.m. to 8 a.m., where hurrying students may purchase coffee, snails and juices.

Sweet And Smooth Sets Theme For Dance

Using the romantic theme of Sweet and Smooth, the initial Associated Student dance of the spring semester will be held this Friday, March 7, in the Ball and Concert Rooms of the Palace Hotel, Nancy Stookey, vice-president of Associated Students, disclosed yesterday.

Admission will be one couple per Associated Student card, with dancing from 9 until midnight.

Dress will be informal, and the no corsage rule will be in effect.

"To materialize the theme, 'Sweet and Smooth,' Miss Stookey added, "we've obtained the services of Sal Vance and his orchestra, who has a reputation for playing sweet and smooth music in the bay area."

Friday Is Last Day To Add Course

Last day to add a course to a semester program is this Friday, March 7, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, warned students yesterday.

Courses may be added, provided approval is given, until Monday, April 9.

Petitions for graduation this June, and for removal of incompletes incurred last semester are also due by March 7, Miss Learnard said.

Associated Students

Paid Membership Hits 2765 Mark

Associated Student card sales hit the 2765 mark early yesterday as The Guardsman went to press.

This figure represents an increase of 123 since Friday, when the number of cards sold was quoted at 2642.

Council

AVC Approved, Jim Mann Named Rally Commissioner — But Student Card Action Waits Further Developments

With the approval of the Student Council, President Trev Burrows named Jim Mann Rally Commissioner at its meeting Thursday.

Important on the agenda of the council was the approval of the charter of the American Veterans Committee chapter here, an affiliate of the National American Veterans Committee.

The charter was approved by the Club Advisory Board last semester, but because of the absence of a copy of the national constitution, the approval of the council was withheld at that time. The chapter has been functioning on the campus probationally until such time as the charter could be approved by the council.

At last Thursday's meeting, Dan Golden, former AVC chairman, was present to answer all questions pertaining to the views and aims of the organization, and after a 30 minute discussion the charter was approved by a majority.

Last semester's Associated Student President, Dean Haug, who, at the previous meeting of the council was appointed as a representative of the college to the Northern California Junior College Conference, of which he is vice-president, announced his resignation from the conference.

President Burrow announced that the college hour will continue on Fridays. The only change between this and the previous procedure is that there will now be a ten minute "recess" between classes. College hour will take place from 10:40 to 11:20 a.m.

The council has postponed all further action on the question of Associated Student cards, pending further developments.

Editorial

Student Card Sales Progress Slowly; Reasons For Financial Need Explained

PURCHASE of Associated Student Cards not having increased much, it has become necessary to attempt to impress on the students the need for more money in the students' fund.

Most students don't realize the extent of the budgets submitted by the college's departments.

As examples of the larger accounts, the sports department has requested more than $6,000 for equipment. Track, intra-mural, tennis, baseball, basketball, football, boxing, golf, and swimming, of interest to all men physical education students, profit from this expenditure.

The social committee which finances all dances and social functions is asking $1,047 to conduct activities this semester.

Graduation from the college, which does not involve any fee from the students, is paid for by the student fund. This budget of $1,120 will include rental of the opera house for the graduation exercises, music, scenery, printing of programs, and miscellaneous expenses such as cleaning of gowns.

The Guardsman, second largest expense of the activities, will require between $5,000 and $6,000 to finance publication of the paper in a manner satisfactory to the students. By this it is meant that a smaller budget would prohibit the cost of any new pictures and limit the number of copies to about 2,500.

Other conspicuous expenses are the Dean's Fund, $150; drama department, $300; Alpha Gamma Sigma, $400; music department, $635; AWS, $405; Controller's Fund, $300; Administration, $250, and publicity, $969.

VETS ALSO BENEFIT

Some veterans find quarrel with the purchase of student cards because they take no part in the obvious student activities. However, many vets profit from the dean's and controller's fund, through loans made to needy vets by these departments.

The budget requested by the administration covers telephone calls. The results of these calls benefit all students.

Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, has asked for money to purchase temporary and permanent membership pins, to finance attendance at statewide conventions, and a reception for high school students.

SOME NOT YET SUBMITTED

There are still a few who have not as yet turned in their budgets, notably the student council.

Of the $20,000 to $25,000 necessary to cover adequately all student activities this semester, only $13,500 is in the fund at this time.

It is obvious that something must be done immediately to make up this deficit.

Talent

First Tryouts For Gifted Students Scheduled Friday

Students who feel that they have some sort of talent are urged by Flossita Badger, choral director, to come to Room 200 during the college hour on Friday, when auditions will be held to determine eligibility for the city-wide college talent pool.

Miss Badger again reiterated the need for all types of entertainment. Candidates will be judged by Assistant Dean Jack Brady; members of the music and drama departments, Ruth Somers, Lloyd Sisler, Gertrude Norgard, Madison Devlin; and Freshmen President Jim Edwards, and Rally Commissioner Jim Mann. Miss Badger warned that those desiring accompanists should contact a member of the music department or provide their own.

One of the most promising and interesting programs to be planned is the semi-weekly appearance by entertainers from the talent pool at Letterman General Hospital to provide entertainment for the patients in the wards and recreation hall.

Tea To Welcome All Fair Frosh Thursday

A Freshman tea, scheduled Thursday, March 13, in the student lounge on the west campus, will be held from 2 to 4, Claire Levesque, president of the Associated Women Students, announced yesterday.

All women on the campus are invited to attend, but primarily the tea will honor Freshmen women students new to the campus.

Official hostesses for the occasion have not been announced, but women students from various clubs and organizations in the college will be selected.

The tea is a traditional social event on the college's calendar, and is held at the beginning of each semester.

New Weed Spray Kills "Anything"

Guaranteed to kill anything, that is everything except lawns, is a new weed killing spray developed by the Du Pont Company and used for the first time by the landscaping class at the college.

The spray harmless to lawns is being tested by the class to observe its effectiveness on weeds growing in the various types of lawns planted between buildings three and four on the west campus.

The plot is being used to give students an idea what grasses will grow most effectively on certain soils. Also being planted on the plot are gladioli, roses and other plants.

Strong arm work, tilling the land and building cold frames, is done by the males in the class. They include Karl Sagimori, James Law, Norman Hansen, Gus Pappas, Delbert Scott, Jim Laque, Bill Davis, George Brocismann, and Don Brinkmann, with Edward Hetzer, president of the Horticulture Society, in charge of the activities.

Dean Dougherty Notes Progress

College Women Invade The Professions In Increasing Numbers

By Hank Weiss

Buried deep in a maze of administrative and counselling problems is the college's outstanding Dean of Women, Margaret Dougherty.

Miss Dougherty's experience as a member of the faculty trails back 11 years. The major portion of her career at the college has been spent in her present position of Dean, which she took over in 1940.

During this time she has seen the enrollment of women soar from a few hundred to its present four digit figure.

"It's not so," declares the Dean. "The ancient conception of women belonging only in the home has been proven a gross misconception. The college has given San Francisco women professionals of all sorts — lawyers such as Doris Schaneke, former Guardsman columnist, and Pat Lane."

Three faculty members, Antoinette Willson, editor of Forum while a student here; Gloria Swiecgood, and Doris Hernreid, were students here not long ago.

Emma Ravazzano is now a buyer with the White House; Marie Kirk is with the City of Paris; Mrs. Rina Brosio Rumneis and Aloyse Christian are buyers with the Emporium; Lillian Nielson and Fedora Romiti are both with R. C. Capwell Co. in Oakland; Anne De Lucchi is now a manager at Hale Bros.; Nancy Pliygrim is a manager with Robert L. Kirk Co. of Oakland; and Barbara Stephen, former Gurdsman columnist, folls as a Bridal Consultant at Livingston Brothers here in San Francisco.

Even the field of engineering, once completely a man's world, has been successfully invaded by female alumni. Elma Odstead, former hill-topper, is now employed as a radio technician with the National Broadcasting Co., and numerous others have succeeded in medicine, science and teaching.

Those who have married are utilizing their education as helpful wives, mothers and citizens, Dean Dougherty said.

Dean Dougherty revealed one of her greatest joys is noting the progress of former students. She cordially invites all women on the campus to pay a visit. "My doors are open to all from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. for just that purpose."

DEAN OF WOMEN since 1940, Margaret Dougherty will represent the college at the coming state conference of university and college faculty deans scheduled to take place at Fresno in mid-March. Miss Dougherty has been at the college for eleven years, and has seen the female enrollment increase ten-fold. Photo by Lustig.

Prejudice

No Cause For Concern

SOMEWHAT related to the approaching American Brotherhood Week, a letter appeared in last Friday's Rams Horn. The letter dealt with the need for tolerance for the beliefs of our fellow students and abolition of that "ole debbil" prejudice.

It is readily admitted that these are fine sentiments though superfluous.

Viewing the record of the college's ten years of existence, one finds no trace of racial or religious discrimination.

At no time in the history of the college has prejudice been evidenced in the choice of leaders or participants in student activities.

This situation may be due in part to the influence of San Francisco, famed throughout the country as a city without prejudice, where all races and creeds live amicably together.

No race riots are perpetrated in San Francisco.

No members of any particular religious group are persecuted by those of other groups.

No one is prevented, because of his race or beliefs, from entering public office.

It is understandable that this liberal attitude has permeated the atmosphere of the city's junior college.

It is natural that students might attend the junior college with no shame for their race or creed; with no fear of their opportunities being put in jeopardy because of the same considerations.

This attitude of live and let live, of tolerance and respect for others is a precious thing. We should be thankful it is ours and not let it get away from us through carelessness or neglect.

Ford

After Dark

Editor's Note: The following column is whatever you wish to call it, and you probably will. It might be termed a surrealistic or impressionistic extract depicting the general clamour of the west campus cafeteria, any afternoon, and of nature's disconcern and imperviousness to such matters.

ON the brink of the new ice age the rosa tabula of stone mind cries, "Fill me with wisdom," yet a mad role, muddied in the timelessness of the La Brae Tarpits and stick of cafe tables, listening, not hearing, listening, calling, "Hi! Hi there!" to falsetto tune of jammin' notes, intense in the fading afternoon, unreal in the purple smoke filter of education, released by the predatory notes, a la college boogie. "Man I'm Jumpin!" and appearing in the door, a product of the Indies, softly shuffling, modestly, through the crowd, reeling into a milk shake, crawling through the shoe-leather floor of crossed anomalies, calling, shouting, screaming into the filter of sunlight the lost echo of ape wisdom, orh hanging passively on the sill of Neolithic caves, woman sitting, abstractly in the still pool of archaic fecundity, and ever the chant arising from the small dust of rosa tabula, "Gimme coffee, willya?" . . . "Gimmee cup o' coffeeeeee!" and taking the cup fall into line, thousands of sun rained lumps shuffling through doors, shuffling on wooden stumps, spilling brains between the brown covers of John Dryden, screaming defiantly in the fact of grass slope, "The World Is Not Well Lost!"

Close the books. Break the ranks. Follow the procession leading out to the white stars that dot the Cenozoic countryside, calling, tearfully into the sunshine, "I am a repentant idiot come to carry my white star home!" And there is the soft voice of afternoon, lazy clouds drifting over the green carpet, cuddling the man made spray to brimming eyes, stroking gently the white hot concrete of Socrates facade, cooing, softly to the weary ones, the ones with wooden feet and aching hearts, "Take hope, the Andes lie in evening still, the Himalayas covered with virgin ice, Mt. Shasta singing in the moonlight, the cycle in retrograde, the motions of nature inviolate."

Around And About with Nagle

YOUNG, charming, winsome, lissome do describe women! However, not all of these "charming, winsome, lissome" lovelies use their favorable attributes, e. g. "long tresses, curvaceous figures and flashing eyes" to send out Morse code distress signals for a husband, as one columnist suggested last week.

In the mate-hunting line, men rate quite high.

With such magnets as convertibles, double breasted grey gab suits, Kremel hair goo, and well-filled wallets, the gentlemen go in search of their own "one and only," wooing such beauties with smooth talk taken verbatim from Shakespeare and Jergins ads.

LOTHARIO AND LOHENGRIN

After completing the heart softening process, the modern Lothario rushes in for the kill. To the tune of soft violin music, moonlight atmopshere and a three inch steak, the weasel pops the question, and without realizing it, the unknowing woman finds herself nodding her acquiescence and waltzing to "Hearts and Flowers."

The honeymoon is over shortly when the greenhacks cease flashing, and John Boy suggests that maybe it would be a good idea for wifey dear to get a job, and forget about sewing ruffles on the curtains temporarily.

The dish-washing isn't forgotten, however, for that must be done after the 48 hour work week has been accomplished.

IT'S INEVITABLE

Of course, our gallant gentleman had this all in mind prior to "popping the question," but conveniently forgot to mention it. Reasoning that since statistics prove that there are inevitably more single women than men, some lissome creatures are bound to be left out in the cold, and for the chance to change Miss to Mrs. will gladly help out for 10 or 15 years to supplement the family budget.

So, women, beware!!

Once a gab-garbed gallant gives with a "snow job," watch out. Before the blizzard gets too bad, remember the odds here are four men to one woman. The next date may have an independent income, and not need your small pittance . . . and the next two may be even better.

STANDBY

By Bill Riley

CONSIDERING the prominence of the college, it is surprising that approximately two-thirds of the enrolled students hold associated student cards. In the past year college teams have garnered championships in football, basketball, baseball and track. Outstanding contributions have been made by the drama, music, and journalism departments.

Students who are making good: MELVA NILES and RAYMOND KEAST, former music department students, are now appearing with a light opera company in New York. Both were in lead roles in the Song of Norway, and Miss Niles is under seven years contract and expects to sing in London soon.

Nation's Travelers Getting Breaks On Air-Rail Fight

IN the most revolutionary offering to the public since removal of the brake bands underneath freight cars to discourage Weary Willies in their travels, the nation's railroads are on the verge of installing showers on trains.

Not only showers but valets and barber service, radios and recorded music and trained guides to point out interesting spots along the way.

Utmost in luxury will be offered the traveler. Nothing will be too good for the customer who is considering a cross-country migration.

ACP

Collegiate World

FROM Texas Christian University comes a tale of something that could only happen in an English class of G. I. students. Miss Rippy, the instructor, wrote on the board, "Jack is a captain," and went on to explain that in this case the word "captain" was a predicate nominative.

"Now if I said, 'Jack struck the captain'," continued Miss Rippy, "what would that be?" Without hesitation the class answered, "Court Martial!"

• • •

A student was refused admission to Western Michigan College because all classroom seats were occupied. His ingenuity and determination caused the ban to be lifted by a very simple plan. He now carries his own folding chair.

ICE TOO SLIPPERY

Several Texas Christian University students, on an ice skating party at the Will Rogers' Memorial Coliseum last week, were resting and commenting on the fact that Froggic cagers would soon play their games there. One sweet young coed was silent and intent throughout the entire discussion, only opening up long enough to give out with one comment just before returning to the rink.

With wide-eyed innocence and a puzzled little frown, she remarked: "Well, I still think that the ice is going to be too slippery for them to play very good basketball."

• • •

The Providence College Cowl quoted a freshman who, when asked by a patronizing "family friend" how old he was, answered: "Well, my latest personal survey shows my psychological age to be 22; my moral age, 10; my anatomical age, 17; and my physiological age, 16. I suppose, however, you refer to my chronological age which is 18."

THE GLORY RIDE

No longer will a trip between the Oakland Pier and Chicago be a gold rush in reverse but strictly a ride on a gravy train.

Perhaps even the gravy served in diners will undergo a complete change. Everything else, from the observation car to the headlights, is about to be overhauled.

Heretofore a train trip east was not unlike a covered wagon ride like those coming around the other way a mere hundred years ago.

Railroads have contributed only slightly in the last century to the comfort and well being of its live passengers.

New wrinkles in refrigeration have given slaughtered beef the best of the deal but as for human innovations the results have been next to nil.

REFUGEES FROM EAST, WEST

Western passengers, arriving in one of Chicago's dozen stations after three to four days of Pullman and coach carousing, feel not unlike the bindlestiffs that used to ride the rods —they never had it so good.

After three bathless days and nights eastern riders pull into the Ferry Building to either hail a taxi and get to a hotel quick or shuffle up Howard Street to keep in the mood of things.

All this is going to change and it can't happen too quickly for the future stake of the railroads.

For the first time in more than a hundred years of operation the rails have competition and on a scale that may, in ten years' time, set them back to carrying freight exclusively.

RAILROADS ACCEPT AIRPLANE

A railroad man, one Robert R. Young, chariman of the Chesapeake & Ohio line, has admitted, out loud, that the airplane is here to stay.

It was Young who made it possible for a Pullman passenger to ride all the way to New York from the West Coast without the necessity of a 12 hour layover in Chicago and a baggage wrestle to another train.

He has big ideas concerning mergers of key eastern system and a united front of all railroads to meet the challenging of mushrooming airlines that are taking an alarming number of air-minded people away from the rails.

In spite of gory pictures of tragic airplane crashes each winter the public is looking beyond these sensational stories to cold statistics on the case.

The airlines have piled up a phenomenal safety record in passenger carrying that represents billions of miles flown with relatively few accidents.

Letters to the Editor

College Beautification Program And Safety Measures Requested

• Traffic Conditions

Editor, The Guardsman:

It is easy for us to pick up the "make a promise habit." I am one of the students at the college who hope that the present regime of Associated Student officers will not forget a few of the reasons why they were voted into office.

Taking into account the present shortage of student funds, I would like to forward for public consumption the promise to do something about the street crossing by the student store, and also bring to light the new problem at the gate of the west campus through which the ten minute break between classes does not appear to be sufficient.

It was the promise of the present student administration to take care of the traffic conditions. This would involve little cost to the college, but would increase the safety factors. As everyone knows, it is taking your life in your hands to try and cross our streets.

—Associated Card No. 23621.

• To Add Dignity

Editor, The Guardsman:

Since this college comes under the San Francisco Public School Laws, it would seem to me, that our campus upkeep should also be up to that body that enforces the necessary laws. It is common knowledge that many high schools have much neater, well organized campuses than ours.

Perhaps letters to gardeners of neighboring colleges would bring wealth of knowledge of what we can do to improve the looks of our eye-sore campus.

The student government claims that this administration is to be one which will attempt to put the student body's wishes into action. Here, then, is a project worthy of every effort. Committees should be formed, petitions to the city fathers readied and presented.

The college which is located in the heart of some of the newest and most beautiful districts of the city, should be in a setting befitting the dignity and importance of an institution of higher learning.

Intramural

Signup Deadline On First Intra Sports Due Today; Basketball, Badminton And Ping Pong Are Initial Three Events

Today being Tuesday, March 4, and the entry deadline for badminton, basketball, and ping-pong intramural activities, the genial Tom Wilson is most concerned over the possibility of many students being confused regarding their eligibility in the tournament.

"Unless a fellow," Wilson commented, "has received a block letter or has actually engaged in varsity sports competition, he is legally entitled to compete in the intramural program."

The bespectacled instructor went on to state that even varsity participants are permitted to take part in any of the sport offerings, provided the game they choose is not the same one in which they engaged while in inter-collegiate competition.

To be explicit, any individual now seeking a berth with the track team is eligible to enroll, and will be eligible to perform in the intramural track contests until such time as he runs as a member of the college track forces in a meet.

With this ambiguous entity no longer in a clouded conditon, skipper Wilson related that schedules for the badminton, basketball, and ping-pong leagues (opening date for which is next Tuesday, March 11) will be available soon.

Repeating the fact that such a tournament occasionally proves a reservoir for athletic talent, it is noted that two of the 1947 Ram basketeers, Mike O'Neill and Bill Bahr, both cavorted their scantily clad bodies before interested eyes during last fall's intramural show. More to the point, and of pertinent importance, is the evidence that O'Neill had never before engaged in any casaba conflicts.

If such was the result of competent instruction by the tutoring physical education heads it is entirely within the realm of possibility that O'Neill's successes on the court should prove lucrative indeed to aspiring intramural athletes.

Rams Step Up Second To Whip Bulldogs

SAN MATEO, Cal., Feb. 28.—Paced by the resounding cheers of some two hundred enthusiastic whoopie-eyed bay city junior college followers, the visiting San Francisco Ram quintets came through in their final cage tilt of the 1947 era, when the campus basketeers in a second half scoring sprint overwhelmed their arch rivals, the San Mateo Bulldogs, here tonight, 50-45.

Reversing the story completely from their previous engagement with the Peninsula boardmen, the college five found themselves lagging behind at half-time, 30-19, from the destructive first period tallies of Matean hoopmen Lloyd Waters, Joe Matulich and Dick Babcock.

Whatever internal spark there was brought to the Hillsman players by the intermission period suddenly found itself on the scoreboards. After only four minutes had ticked around the timer's clock, the conditioned-kept courtiers each had surpassed the Peninsulans in every phase of the court contest, and the Rams were on top of the ledger, 32-31.

Throughout the first period the Baisley coached players found the hoop within the reach of their eyes, while the visitors had a difficult time to keep up with their rival's ability to bucket in the points.

The second half was a San Francisco floor show, with Al Munn's faking, Ken Cameron's pivot spot per-

RamNetTeamFaces Strong S. F. State Squad Here Friday

Returning to the courts for the first time since 1941, the Ram tennis squad, under the mentorship of Tom Wilson, will meet the strong San Francisco State College netters in a practice match Friday afternoon in Golden Gate Park. The first match is slated to start at 2 o'clock.

With a week of practice gone by, Wilson announced that all men interested in trying out for the team are still able to do so. Practice sessions are held daily from two to four o'clock on the courts in Balboa Park.

Several practice matches have been scheduled by Wilson with various local teams. A return match with the San Jose State College team, who the Rams met at San Jose last Saturday, has been scheduled for Golden Gate Park on April 8.

Practice tilts have also been booked with the Stanford, Santa Clara and University of San Francisco racqueteers.

Although unable to determine the caliber of his squad, Wilson named several men as showing good signs. Expected to play a large part in Wilson's plans are Joe Barton, Bill Covall, Don Cowderoy, Wetunka Moffatt, Charles Nix, Frank Reed, Wayne Rankin, Roland Sutfin and Tom Wong. Wilson would be pleased to see Dick Grenfel out with the squad. Rated as the best player on the campus, "Grenfel would greatly enhance the Rams' chances for a title," quoted the Head Man.

NCJCC play officially opens on March 22, when the Rams travel to San Mateo to meet the Bulldogs. After a long practice season, the Mateans are rated one of, if not the best, teams in the circuit.

Road Meets Predominate Ram Schedule; Dual Coaching May Build Track Hopes

With the release of the 1947 track and field schedule, we find the Ram harriers taking to the road nine times during the season, spending only one solitary afternoon at home when they take on Modesto Junior College at Kezar Stadium April 26.

Whether or not the numerous hours spent in travel will tend to take the edge off Coach Jensen's cindermen when they arrive at their destination remains to be seen, although it has been proven by past experience that the squad performing on its own turf has a decided psychological advantage.

For the moment, however, our spikemen don't seem to be bothered much by such weighty problems, having enough to do in getting themselves limbered up for their initial debut against the Salinas Junior College Panthers come March 22nd.

The practice sessions are being handled in shifts, with Coach Jensen taking one group, and Coach Klemmer taking another group later on, depending upon when the boys can get away from their classes.

Menlo Heads List For Ram Stickers

Exactly two weeks from today, March 18, Bill Fischer's Ram nine, the pride of Phelan Avenue, will take to the diamond against the invading Menlo Junior College squad in the defense of their NCJC title.

Reports from a reliable source indicate the local contingent will field a team strong in batting power, but slightly weak in the hurling department.

Although hampered by extremely cold weather and strong winds, daily workouts have been held at Ocean View Park in an effort to be in tip-top condition for the 1947 inaugural. The squad has been divided into four teams, with inter-squad games holding the top spot in the training program.

Fischer has looked practice tilts with top-notch Bay Area competition in an effort to form a well balanced squad. Although subject to change, games have been scheduled with Washington, Commerce and St. Ignatius High Schools, University of San Francisco JV's, San Francisco State College and Sacramento Junior College.

San Francisco State, long time arch foe of the Rams, renew their rivalry with the Fischermen on March 19, when the local mittmen travel cross-town to meet the Gators on their home grounds.

Pugilistic Call Made For Modesto Carnival

Jack Gaddy, director of men's athletics, revealed yesterday that at present he is contemplating taking four ringmen to the Northern California Junior College Conference Boxing Tournament scheduled for Modesto March 14 and 15.

Gaddy expressed a desire to see as many pugilists as possible representing the hilltop college in the coming boxing carnival. Anyone with leather throwing ability that is interested should apply to him immediately in the men's gymnasium.

Among the men already making the trek are Charles Bradbury, 20 year old veteran, who hails from Richmond, across East Bay way. Bradbury was quite a scrapper in his prep days and has gained considerable experience during his tenure with Uncle Sam.

Another fighter of note is Harry Topoian, a young man who has fought and won in the last two AMS boxing carnivals. Though he tips the scales at only 155 pounds, he punches like a heavyweight and is a dangerous man at all times.

Badminton Offered Two Nights A Week

Physical Education instructor Tom Wilson announced last week that the Adult Education Division of the San Francisco Public Schools is offering a night badminton course on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7:45 to 9:45 p.m. in the men's gymnasium.

No college credit is available for the course, but it will closely parallel the badminton course offered in the regular college curriculum.

Wilson extended an invitation to all members of the faculty and to veteran students to participate on either or on both of the nights.

Text System Approved By Campus Genius

By Paul Cone

Having taken and passed the course offered here as Math 51, I felt qualified to do some intricate calculating concerning the text book situation, and I have come up with a few really startling revelations.

The figures with which I worked, and the results I found may be looked upon with scorn by the freshman students, but with the campus oldsters, the men who know the college best, it's the present book dispersing system, 10 to 1.

The mathematical computations that I had to master in order to arrive at the foregoing ratio are astronomical. Lest some of the less scrupulous of the colleges brethren unjustly accuse me of compiling the data by surreptitious means, I hasten to explain just what steps and means were used.

The initial and most obligatory essential took place in September of last year. With pencil and notebook in hand I joined the happy throng that stood, invigoreted, on air-conditioned Ocean Avenue. The pencil and notebook were used to tebulate minutes as they ticked by, and then to divide them by 60 to determine the number of hours that had passed.

Also, on a separate sheet of paper, I made notations of various words spoken by the cheerful, smiling veterans. I couldn't seem to locate the words in Webster's fifth, but I suppose they were bits of a foreign language picked up during the war. But that is unimportant.

What is important is that after waiting five hours in the very fresh, fresh air, I found myself inside the store, mingling with 133 other prospective book purchasers. I pushed and pulled until I finally made my way to the sales counter.

I finally learned that if I was to receive any service I would have to garner one of the sales people by the nape of the neck and then hold him down on the counter while shouting my needs in his ear.

That I did, but he wouldn't answer 'til I let him up, so I had to do that too. "Sorry," he said, "but your books are out of stock now. Try again tomorrow."

Now needless to say, such a predicament was irritating. I probably would have gotten much more perturbed if I hadn't been slightly worried as to how I was going to get out of the store, let alone back in again the next day.

How I managed my exodus is a trade secret and not relevant to the case, so I will not bother to discuss it.

But, to be terse, I found it easier to borrow the books from a friend rather than continue acting as a component of "that line." (It lasted 11 "daze," ya' know.) After all, I thought, there are 3,000 vets enrolled and they are much more accustomed to standing in those long lines than am I.

So our present semester began last month, and I was back again after having taken up weight-lifting during the interim that I might be prepared for the book rush. But lo and behold, I found that the Vets were getting their books presented to them after an average wait of only 30 minutes; while the non-vets had an equally dynamic access to the student store and to their books.

Well, that's just how I arrived at my 10 to 1 ratio. Last semester it took five hours; this semester it took just 30 minutes; and if five hours isn't ten times as much as 30 minutes, my Math 51 instructor is going to think I cheated on the final test. (See Life Megezine, issue of February 17, for refined and foolproof methods of exam passing.)

Veterans Must File Claims By March 14

Bookless veterans were urged by Walter E. McCloud, director of veteran affairs, to call at his office before Friday, March 14, in a statement released last week.

"All veteran students who hold order receipts or chits from the bookstore and did not receive books and equipment for last semester, must report to the veteran affairs office, Building 12, west campus, prior to March 14," McCloud said.

Floriculture Department Sets Up Flower Shop

By Doris Hall

ACTUAL BUSINESS CONDITIONS are simuleted in the College Flower Shop, which is under the direction of John Lawrence. Shown above is Janet Cox, a member of the class, who is errenging the latest floral display. The Flower Shop is located in Building 4, members of the college are invited to visit the Flower Shop. Photo by Wechter.

Organized for the first time on the campus last semester, the "college flower shop" is located in Building 5 on the West Campus.

The flower shop, complete in its operation as that of a retail florist, consists of a display room, work room, storage room and class room facilities.

John Lawrence, instructor of the course, declared that the course stresses a minimum of lecturing and a maximum of actual work experience.

The class, strictly limited to 15 students, works on problems of all types confronting a florist, including arrangements for weddings, for funerals, bowl arrangement, corsages, cut flowers and floral design. The shop itself, under the direction of Lawrence, was designed and arranged by the students.

The Oakland Annual Flower Show to be held this Spring, will afford flower shop students a chance to show their skills. Theme of the show will be "Fantasia," and in conjunction with the theme the students will work out a display along similar lines to show a cross-section of the semester work. Two spaces have been reserved by the college for the first display at the show since the war.

Last semester, students of the flower shop did much of the floral arrangements for teas, luncheons, and other activities on the campus. This semester the group plans to continue with this practice if the work can be coordinated with classroom studies,

Lawrence, who has been associated with the floral business for 20 years, has lectured at numerous garden clubs, and has taught for a number of years in the California Public School Department. During the war he did research work on the atom bomb at the University of California.

Music

Lambda Alpha Plans Spring Activities

The local chapter of Lambda Alpha, honorary music society, is organized, installed and preparing for its first full semester of activity here on the college campus, according to Flossita Badger, choral director and faculty sponsor of the group.

Shortly before the semester ended in January, the group was formally installed by the chapter from Modesto Junior College at rites held in the lounge.

Elected to the office of President was Roy Abad, while Grace Mayfield was chosen to assume the duties of vice-president, and to round out the trio of executives, Adele Lee took over the reins of secretary.

Four To One?

Inquiring Reporter Turns Morale Lifter By Finding Ratio Actually One To One

By John Hulse

The statistics of four men to one woman sound good on paper, but it just isn't so. That's the general opinion of college women in answer to the question, "What do you think of the ratio of four men to one woman?"

The first few women asked for their views on this momentuous problem merely laughed at the reporter.

The next 20 interviewees responded more favorably, and the reporter was gradually rid of his natural shyness.

"The figures would have us in a land of male plenty, but the ratio is actually one to one," the women explained patiently.

They analyze the situation by taking four men as test cases.

The first man is a veteran. He studies. He is married and lives in Hurley Village. This, obviously, takes care of one man.

The second man, also a veteran, lives on the "un-cultured' side of the bay. Wanting an education, he spends his time in the library. He has no money. Check off another.

The third man, a non-veteran, is "going steady." Scratch that'n.

This leaves one man upon whose shoulders rests the burden of entertaining the fair sex.

The shameful condition is now exposed. How long it will continue depends on our local, red-blooded men.

Final Enrollment Hits New Record

Complete official enrollment figures were released today by the registrar's office. The tally showed a record student body composed of 5,242 students, of which there are 4,139 men and 1,103 women.

Of this grand total there are 1,663 new students among which 1,349 are men and 314 women. Registrar Mary Jane Learnard said, "Six hundred of the total enrollees are students returning from pre-Fall '46 semesters, or those transferring from another college."

The low freshman class holds' top honors with a total enrollment of 1,470 students.

Music Lovers Invited To Weekly Program

The music 7b listening hour class will hear its weekly program of recorded symphony music tomorrow at 12 o'clock in Room 200, according to Gertrude Norgard, class instructor.

Once again the music department extends an invitation to all members of the student body and faculty to attend.

The theme of the coming concert will be music by three great composers along with the corresponding stories by Shakespeare.

The program is as follows:

Midsummer Night's Dream.....
.....Mendelssohn
Romeo and Juliet Overture.....
.....Tschaikowsky
Selections from Othello.....Verdi
Selections from Falstaff.....Verdi

ers and Bud Goodier each hit 12 points for the loosers.

AMS Schedules Spring Social Functions

The Associated Men Students have a barn dance on the social calendar for Friday, March 28, and a Mardi Gras scheduled for Friday, May 9. The Barn Dance converts the men's gymnasium into a barn for the dance on March 28. Costumes are to be "levis" for the men and cotton dress for the women.

The Mardi Gras, in the carnival spirit, will have booths sponsored by the various clubs in the college.

Club Advisory Board

Organization Representatives Elect Bachman President, Scotty Mallen Vice-President At Initial Meeting

Deviating from the normal procedure of requiring a student candidate to have attended a complete semester of Club Advisory Board meeting, the board elected George Bachman, president; Scotty Mallen, vice-president; and Mary Lou Mitchell, secretary, at their initial meeting of the Spring semester, Friday, February 28.

The new ruling was invoked by members of the board as a desirable motion, so as to intensify the competition in future elections.

The American Veterans' Committee, first new club to apply for and receive official recognition for the new semester, was represented at the meeting.

Composed of one representative of each chartered organization on the campus, the CAB coordinates the activities and affairs of various organizations. In addition the board performs numerous other duties which are allotted to it by the Student Council, in accordance with the constitution.

Principal among these is the board's study of applications by new clubs for recognition. The board considers the new club's charter, and if it approves, recommends chartering to the Student Council.

Among the former members of the Club Advisory Board for the fall semester who have attained prominent positions in campus activities are Pat Pollack, member of the Student Council; Jo Ellen Cain, secretary of the Associated Students, and Jane Doran, college Publicity Committee member.

Student Council

Budget Requests $7000 Over Funds

All budget requests were returned Tuesday to the organizations submitting them, Associated Student President Trev Burrow announced at last Tuesday's Council meeting.

Burrow stated that this step was necessary because more than $21,000 has been requested by the various groups, and only $14,000 in Associated Student funds is available.

Either the organizations will voluntarily cut their request or it will be necessary for the council to slash all requests.

The council did pass a request for $65 by the Associated Women Students for their tea, Tuesday, March 13. This amount will be subtracted from their overall budget.

The Cosmopolitan Club charter was unanimously passed by the council, following recommendation by the Club Advisory Board.

Byne Davis was appointed with full approval as head yell leader, and Dee Roberts is head song leader.

Women Students Invited To AWS Tea March 13

In honor of women students who entered the college this semester, the Associated Women Student organization will act as host to all women on the campus next Thursday, March 13, at tea in the west campus student lounge.

Time of the tea is set for 2 to 4 o'clock, Claire Levesque, AWS president said, urging all women to attend.

Official hostesses for the tea will be selected from various clubs and organizations in the college, Miss Levesque said.

All women enrolled in the college are automatically members of the Associated Women Students, and the organization is under the sponsorship of Dean of Women Margaret Dougherty.

Found Bill Fragment Waits For Claimant

By Bill Wilson

One third of a dollar bill probably means very little to most people, but to one certain party this little piece of a dollar bill with the name Terry written across it may have many tender memories.

This fragment of a dollar bill was found in the main building last Friday near the spot where The Guardsman was being distributed and is now in the hands of a reporter on The Guardsman staff.

The owner can dry his or her tears and gaily skip to The Guardsman office and collect this bit of "memory."

Palace Hotel Site Of Event Honoring Freshmen Tonight

Coming up with one of the biggest events on the social calendar, the Associated Student Social Committee has lavish plans to make tonight's dance in honor of the freshman class, theme for which is Sweet and Smooth, the most successful in a long history of successes, announced Nancy Stookey, Social Committee chairman.

Scene of the dance is the Palace Hotel, and the time is 9 to midnight.

Couples can gain admission with presentation of one Associated Student card per couple. Dress for the affair will be informal, and the no corsage rule will continue to hold.

Miss Stookey explained that the class was particularly fortunate in obtaining the concert room and ballroom of Palace Hotel.

"We were also fortunate in engaging Sal Vance and his fine orchestra who have a well-deserved reputation for music in a sweet and smooth manner. The band is just what we needed to harmonize with the dance's theme," Miss Stookey continued. "It is fully expected that this initial dance will launch a bright social year for the freshman class."

Miss Stookey added that the committee's only hope is that students will realize that the favorable results of this and future dances depend, in a great measure, on the number of Associated Student cards purchased.

Last Day For Refunds; Card Sales Slow

That today will be the last day on which a transferring student may obtain a refund on his Associated Student card was revealed by Oscar E. Anderson, controller.

As to the sale of the cards Anderson remarked, "We have been selling on the average of 20 cards a day."

According to various reports, if the Associated Student fund is not enlarged sufficiently through the sale of cards, many activities will be cut out and club budgets will be reduced to a minimum.

Encouraging students to get their cards, Anderson stated, "Many benefits are in store for those who obtain their membership in the Associated Students of this college."

Among those are the admission to sports events, admission to Associated Student dances, and a copy of The Guardsman without charge.

Talent Bureau

Auditions Slated Today In Room 200

Talent auditions are scheduled in Room 200 today under the supervision of Flossita Badger, choral director, during the college hour at 10:40 a.m. while the rally is in progress. At this time, students will be given a chance to exhibit their talents before an audition committee.

The needed talent is not limited to any field. Solo singers and group singers of classical and modern music, dancers, and musicians are among the desired entertainers.

Other colleges in the city have been asked to offer similiar auditions that the city colleges may pool together their student artists for the use of all the colleges. It is believed that by making available talented students of the city, Rally Commissioners and social organizers will be greatly helped in planning entertainment for college students.

The audition committee consists of Dean Jack Brady, the music department faculty, Lloyd Sisler of the drama department, and the Rally Commissioner.

Tentative plans are being made for a series of musical programs to be given in the student lounge on alternating Tuesdays at 1 p.m. During the series of six performances, guest artists are slated to appear with the college group artists.

The Spring Festival in May is being prepared jointly by the music and drama departments.

Deadline Is Today For Adding Courses

Petitions to add a course will be accepted until 5 o'clock today, Registrar Mary Jane Learnard warned all students.

"Petitions issued today or on previous dates must meet this deadline or they will be entirely disregarded," Miss Learnard emphasized.

Students desiring to graduate must also file their petitions today so that the check may be made to find any deficiency in requirements.

Miss Learnard further warned students to file an official leave-of-absence blank if withdrawing from college to avoid straight F or their records.

Comedy Quartet Features College Hour Show Today

The first rally of the semester opens today in the west campus auditorium during the college hour. The program features a presentation of musical talent that may be the basis of exchange with other colleges. This talent is new to programs on the campus.

A male quartet, new to college audiences and composed of Joe Frazer, Bob Sherratt, Gene MacGowan, and Dave MacDade is to star the music portion of the program. The quartet is rumored to have considerable comic talent as well as straight and serious style.

Jim Mann, newly appointed Rally Commissioner, will substitute for Coach Ralph Hillsman in giving a review of the basketball season. The basketball team won the Modesto tournament, which gave the team the title of state champions. In the Northern California Junior College Conference, the cagers placed second.

Cheer leader Byrne Davis will lead the yells while Dee Roberts is expected to offer a tumbling routine concurrently with the yells.

Trev Burrow, Associated Student president, will present recording of the college hymn and fight songs. The recordings were made by the college A Cappella choir at the end of last semester.

Ushers Needed For Civic Performances

Because six students are needed to usher at every performance at the Veterans Administration Auditorium, Opera House, and Civic Auditorium, Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, urged that volunteers apply at her office in Building 2, west campus, immediately.

Miss Dougherty added that beginning last Tuesday and through Sunday, March 16, ushers are needed at every performance of the San Carlos Opera Company, slated for the Opera House.

HR Division Offers Bi-Monthly Luncheon

Inaugurating a new campaign to promote cooperation between the Hotel and Restaurant Division and the college as a whole, a luncheon was held Wednesday, March 5, in the cafeteria banquet room honoring officers of the Associated Students, according to Dick Felker, permanent host of banquets.

The luncheons, to be held twice monthly, will be given for the officers of all organizations in the college. The next group to be invited, Felker said, will be Coach Ralph Hillsman and several members of his successful basketball squad.

"After our guests have dined," Felker continued, "we conduct them on a 'cooks tour' of the cafeteria facilities."

Hosts for the luncheons will be Felker and members of the rotating committee, who are chosen from the division's staff.

Previous efforts of the division to promote student entertainment have been highly successful and favorably received, Louis de Saint Cyr, president of the division, said. Saint Cyr added that a tentative spring dance is now being discussed.

CLUB REPRESENTATIVES who compose the Club Advisory Board held their first meeting of the spring semester in the student lounge during the college hour last Friday.

Judiciary Force

Curbs Applicable To Few

AN EFFECTIVE, mature student group, to set and enforce campus and college social conduct, has long been needed at this college.

The judiciary committee and the judiciary force, working in conjunction, satisfy this need. Because of able leadership, they have a chance to succeed this semester when like groups have failed in the past.

The committee, headed by Bud Marble, and the force, under Don Burger, will begin activities this week. The only hindrance they might encounter will be lack of student understanding and cooperation, but when the students realize that such a group is necessary and similar groups are active in other colleges, their cooperation will be forthcoming.

Among other things, the judiciary committee should investigate and regulate the following:

Smoking in restricted areas since continued violation of the smoking privilege might very well mean cessation of ALL smoking in or about the buildings;

Illegal distribution of unauthorized literature and pamphlets on campus;

And unseemly conduct at college social events because such conduct tends to lower the respect of the college in the eyes of outsiders.

There will be many more activities to come within the scope of the committee, but these listed have long been overdue for action.

When proper and impartial regulations have been prescribed by the committee, it will be the duty of the force to see that the regulations are carried out. The students who do not conform are few in number, and there is no reason for allowing them to continue to disrupt the actions of all.

Such regulations as will be enforced will not bother the majority since they are already cognizant and respectful of the rights of others. But for the few who do not recognize these rights, curbs are necessary.

After Dark

Today's column is written by Gordon E. Smith

FEW books, indeed, have served to effect a more vivid realization of subversion within this country as does The Plotters, by John Roy Carlson.

Undoubtedly this accurate, dramatic testimonial of domestic corruption will be carefully read and studied by all Americans possessing an intense love and interest in the Constitutional United States, and will, understandably so, be spat upon by those malignant few who seek the destruction of American democracy. The hate-mongers along with the vicious rabble-rousing pseudo-Americans are, in The Plotters, exposed for what they truly represent; lies, greed, power, suspicion.

The Plotters is primarily concerned with American subversive groups and individuals such as American First Party, Kin Kiux Klan, Protestant War Veterans, Christian Veterans of America, Father Coughlin's St. Sebastian Brigade, rotten apples in the American Legion, Congressional errand boys in sympathy with fascist nationalism, Christian Youth for America, and Communists.

In addition the book also points out the gross ineffectiveness and impotency of the Rankin un-American Investigating Committee, usually engaged in Red-baiting. Mr. Carlson repeatedly emphasizes the danger of "name calling," and makes a sharp distinction between that which is actually communistic, compared with that which is called communistic.

The Plotters is not only a daring expose of American subversive organizations and menacing personalities, but is also a thrilling account of the author's personal love for America which is manifested by a stubborn and relentless fight to alert all Americans to the perilous consequences of subversive propaganda.

To those who are familiar with Carlson's earlier book, Undercover, The Plotters will have a greater significance, since so much has occurred during the war to make his new book even more transcending. Should you be unfamiliar with either of these books by Carlson, and sincerely interested in our nation's welfare, a perusal of The Plotters would be worth many times the cost which, by the way, is $3.50.

Today's column is written by Del Pichon

"THE veterans are good students. The veterans raise the average of the school. Instructors would prefer to have the veterans in their classes." This is all that one has heard ever since the veterans have come back to college. However, the veterans are not as decorous as they might appear to be.

PROOF POSITIVE

Visit one of the local pubs during any time of the day and you will discover that it is filled with veterans from the college. Here they while away their off hours in the blissful atmosphere of smoke and brew. Bookish thoughts are lost in a welter of laughter.

—Ah! The weekends—particularly the ones which come immediately after the subsistence check arrives—those are the times! Then one is able to see the veteran when he really lets go and casts aside the thin veneer of dignity which he holds while at school.

You see him downtown, uptown, crosstown and everywhere carousing to his heart's desire. Singing, laughing, drinking, dancing and in general letting go of his inhibitions.

SOME DO, SOME DON'T

Of course, not all of the veterans are like this, some are more inclined towards the more sedate life of viewing stage plays, the local opera and other such cultural pastimes. They are few. These man are known as the "super" veterans and usually boast an "A" average.

The average ex-doggie, zoomie, gyrene, or swable, however, usually spends his leisure hours lolling lazily at the beach, going to dances, carousing to the wee, tiny, little, small, early hours of the morning. When the end of the month draws near, though, his social activities are limited to hitting the district flicker and maybe partaking of a brew or two after.

MONEY TROUBLE

Sixty-five stones isn't very much glue to get by with for a month and very few of the veterans succeed in doing so unless they live so frugally as to eliminate the greater part of their social activities.

Then again one might use a hackneyed phrase, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." One will discover upon observation of the typical veteran that not by anyone's standards can he ever be called a dull boy.

STANDBY

By Bill Riley

LLEWELLYN SNYDER, instructor at the college, has had his text, Business Mathematics, published by McGraw-Hill Book Company.

An up and coming athlete at the college is IRV BOWKER, who will participate in the badminton tournament this Saturday at Marin Junior College. In 1927 Bowker won the Guam Tournament, and in 1938 captured the Shanghai championship from GEORGE LOTT, winner for ten consecutive years.

The Trover Hall Publishing Company here in the city has been formed by former students RAYMOND BISIO, EDWARD CLINTON and GEORGE LOOMIS. Their first publication is Puzzle Box, a collection of psychological short stories by Anthony More.

A young veteran here at the college with a wife and baby to support and only the GI bill for subsistence scraped together five dollars for an Associated Student card. The veteran said, "Although I have difficulties in meeting the necessities of life I feel that it is my duty to purchase the Associated Student card."

Dog World Uprising Exposed; Canines Plot Revolt

GATHERED around a fireplug down on Ocean Avenue a gang of neighborhood dogs were seen last Monday holding a mass meeting.

The leading pooch, a mixture of informal parentage and sporting a torn ear—an obvious rabble rouser, was addressing the group:

"Did you mutts all see yesterday's paper?" he barked at the assembled collection milling about the fireplug in ugly tempers.

Growling in unison the dogs all indicated they were hep to the latest current events at the turn of the week.

Hilltop Manner

ALWAYS on the lookout for a means to improve the educational system at the college, mostly by adding to the comfort of the students toiling with tedious texts, certain suggestions have been voiced recently which are herewith passed on so that all may ponder.

One thing which would most certainly add to the mental reassurance of everyone, and probably would do the U. S. Post Office out of a sizeable sum by eliminating scads of correspondence, would be to install a workable plan whereby students may communicate with one another during the day.

To accomplish this feat, it would be necessary to have a permanent place in the college for each student enrolled. This could be attained either through lockers, the numbers of which would be kept in the office of the registrar together with the names of the occupants, or else by a system similar to mail boxes which could be shared by several students.

A scheme of this sort would be an important asset, and would enable students to receive messages during college hours since the loud speaker would not be entirely effective in reaching everyone, even if it could be used.

Another helpful idea which should be kept in mind when and if appropriations for building and campus improvement come through is the construction of an underpass or overhead protection between all the buildings of the college.

Schools of the future which are located in areas where weather conditions become damp or even liquid every once in a while should be built with an eye towards pneumonia and rheumatism, one would think.

It has been suggested that when visual education is employed, laboratory technicians be more shapely and scientists handsomer. Hmmmmmm!

"Yeah, we seen it," squeaked a little fox terrier, circling the edge of the throng, "what are we gonna do about it?"

"Fellow, DOGS!!" began the big hound with the bad ear, "we're going to take over from now on in; that's what we're gonna do about it!"

"You, over there by the curb, either throw away that bone or get the h---- out of here, we mean business!" the leader snarled at a ragged spitz who hastily dropped his meal upon hearing the command.

"This is it, DOGS!" screamed Torn Ear as he waved grimy paws wildly in the air, "we got the Big Boss on our side and we're moving in this week . . . we've sweated this out too long now."

"People have been running this country long enough," roared Torn Ear, "and I say it's going to the dogs!!!"

A shout of approval arose from the motley gathering, and from up and down Ocean Avenue a long line of dogs and cats hastened to the meeting place, all attracted by the howls and catcalls.

"He got the RED-FASCISTS on the run, didn't he?" continued The Ear. "Now he's giving the VIVISECTIONISTS the business . . . that's our cue to RISE, dogs!!!"

"Personally," went on the mob leader in a eagier tone, "I'm gettin' damn tired of horse meat and Calo, and as for Friskies' Biscuits . . :"

By this time every dog and cat in town was gathered about the fire hydrant, shouting encouragement to the speaker.

Alley cats from the Excelsior, a few sleek Dobermans of the Sunset and Richmond districts, mongrels from the Mission, and one finely groomed wolfhound of Seacliff were observed, haunch to haunch in the mob.

"This is a dog's life, DOGS!" bellowed Torn Ear, "we got the long awaited signal and every paper in the country is behind us!"

". . . and we're gonna move the nation's kennel to SAN SIMEON, too!" shouted the speaker, and the audience went into a wild frenzy and shot their paws forward in unanimous salute.

Later, as the gathering drew to a close, a bulldog was overheard whispering to his neighbor, a tattered wirehair terrior, "Chee, Rags, ya know, I can almost see the Big Boss now, standin' there by the coib."

His companion nodded silent assent and both dogs joined the line of departing canines, who filed solemnly and haltingly, looking up in reverence at the fire hydrant on the curb.

Co-Eds Pity Woman-Hater Columnist; Signatures Confuse Class Dropper

• Why Slight Truman?

Editor, The Guardsman:

Why all this baloney?

The other day I mistakingly got into the wrong class and was informed I had to drop this class. I got a change of class slip and chased all over to get about 3,000 altogether unnecessary signatures.

Among those who signed were U. N. Delegate from Arabia, President of the Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce, 17 officials of the Santa Anita Race Track, Mayor of Oakland, football coach of Muskogee Oklahoma Gophers, Congressman from "Athletes Foot," Kentucky; "Buddah," and Mr. and Mrs. Boss, plus about 2,000 idiots down on the west campus.

A Happy Student

• Misguided Youth

Editor, The Guardsman:

Alas! Poor Mr. Pichon!

Let us women endeavor to soften his bitter heart, that seems to have been hurt so deeply by some scheming hussy. And let us gently open our arms, and tenderly draw him to our hearts, so that this inflicted hurt will melt, and his eyes will open to the beauty of it all.

Now for those who don't know him yet (but I hope they will soon); he is tall and good-looking, with a winning smile, well-read, intelligent, and wants to be a playwright. You will usually find him in The Guardsman office between 12 and 1, and his schedule can be looked up in the registrar's office, so that we can easily meet him after class. His address and number are also easily found in the phone book.

So let us all try to thaw out his poor, bitter soul! It might be hard at first, but don't give up trying. The triumph in the end will be doubly happy!

And his brew will be even cooler and taste even brewier to him than it has before, because now he can see and enjoy both kinds.

Two Fives Picked From "Haytack"

This year's compilation of the NCJCC all-conference basketball five would remind one of picking needles out of the proverbial haystack. With the expert recommendations of the conference's cage mentors plus the selections of The Guardsman Sports Staff we believe we have picked THE best five men of the lot, though we might add that the second team would give the top quintet as tough a fight as they might want.

Three important factors contributed to the 1947 winners: the cage coaches' findings; the player's individual ability; and the basketeer's value to his team in victory and defeat.

S. F. State, Rams Open Net Season Today; Stanford Meet At Palo Alto Tomorrow

Tennis Coach Tom Wilson's title hopes were dealt a severe blow today with the announcement that Dick Grenfel has transferred his talents to the University of California.

Rated as the best netman on the campus, Grenfel was counted on to play a large part in NCJCC competition.

Last Saturday's practice match with San Jose State College was postponed because of inclement weather.

Two practice matches are scheduled for this week. This afternoon Wilson's racqueteers tangle with San Francisco State on the Golden Gate Park courts. Led by Joe Woolfson, one of the top net performers in Northern California, Gator Coach Dan Farmer's squad is rated heavy favorites over the Rams. The first match is scheduled to start at 2 p.m.

Tomorrow the Ram netmen journey to Stanford, to combat the strong Indian squad, on their home courts.

Joe Barton, formerly of Polytechnic High School, currently heads the 12 man squad on the practice ladder. He is closely followed by Bill Covall, also an ex-Polyite, and A. Candelorio. Tough competition for the top spots is also being provided by Buz Fernbach, Frank Reed and Don Cowderoy.

Aside from the conference schedule, the Rams have booked some 15 practice matches, including California, St. Mary's, University of San Francisco and Santa Clara.

Wilson is still looking for tennis talent for the squad. All men interested in competing for positions on the team are invited to attend the practice sessions held daily from 2-4 on the Balboa Park courts.

Block Society Holds First Meeting Today

The college's Block "SF" Society will hold its first meeting of the current semester this morning in Room 194 during the college hour.

Two important tasks will be put before the grouped athletes in this morning's gathering. These will be the election of this year's society officers and the plans for the dances to be held by the organization during this Spring semester.

"It is the duty of the men who have earned their blocks in the various sports to be at the meeting, since it is hoped that the block "SF" Society will be the leading group in the college this semester," Adviser Lee Elsan declared.

WAA Names Matthews Semester Secretary

Mary Louise Matthews was named Secretary of the Women's Athletic Association yesterday, replacing Alma Pucci. Miss Matthews returned to her former post after departing from the college last semester on a leave of absence.

Ram Nine Hope For Prosperous Season

If the old phrase, "Everything is darkest just before the dawn," is true, there is an indication of a great season ahead for the Ram baseball squad.

Although the picture painted by Mentor Bill Fischer is of a deep ebony hue, the local contingent shapes up as one of the strongest nines in the conference.

The chief weak spot in Fischer's organization is the pitching staff, where a lack of experienced hurlers is giving the Deacon many sleepless nights. Righthander Jim Hughes heads the pitching list, having shown a good assortment of stuff. Paul Nederman has also exhibited good control on the mound and may play a large part in the coming campaign. Phil Velez, Charles Blagon, Howard Flora and Bob Maney are also searching for hurling positions.

A better than average catching staff, headed by George Homsey and Herb Markall, is planned to back the pitchers. Homsey and Markall, who saw action with last season's squad, will be joined by newcomer Bob Beuse.

With keen competition developing among the candidates for outer garden posts, the outfield appears to be the least of Fischer's worries. Currently holding top positions in the race for outfield berths are Ed "Frenchy" Allemand, Jim Johnston, Chet Anderson, Bill Kenna, Ernie Domecus and Zane Kaplan.

Striving to gain positions in the infield are Third Baseman Al Ganem, Bill Broderson, Lou Pisani and Charles Alcott. Bob Nard and Wes Bryant are competing for the shortstop position, with Bill Maxey and Ed Cassinago fighting for a place at the keystone sack. First base competition is among Art Cirimele and Ted Krauser.

First practice game of the season is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon. The local contingent will cross bats with the Santa Clara JV's at Father Crowley Playground. The game is slated to start at 2:30 p.m.

Scribe Asks Where Are Our Students?

By Arnold Wachter

TWENTY-FIVE faithful Ram fans huddled together last Friday night in the stuffy gymnasium of San Mateo Junior College, and shouted themselves hoarse rooting for the Rams to win their final cage game of the season against their traditional peninsula rivals, San Mateo. The spirit and noise contributed by these same 25 students helped make the finale of the Rams a successful one.

The question of the week as asked by those attending the final game, the team, and Coach Ralph Hillsman is, where in h---- was the rest of the student body?

We can think of only three reasons why the student body of this college stayed away in droves from the cage games played by the Rams this season.

Reason No. 1 could be that the admission to the events was too high for the average pocketbook. Nope, that couldn't be it, no admission was charged to home games, and only a slight fee was charged at games played away from the home courts.

The second reason might be that the Rams were a constant loser, but that certainly couldn't be the answer, as they were rated as one of the top junior college fives in the nation.

So this leaves us with reason No. 3, and undoubtedly the cause of the dismal attendance figures all season. This reason is that the student body has no spirit. Yes, we're talking to you, spineless.

If Lynn Waldorf fails to produce in his first year at California, he may get the same treatment as did Frank Wickhorst. Only this time it may his hide, but the hide-mound alumni, who were not pleased with his selection in the first place.

Admirable Critchon Offered For May 6

Completion of plans by the speech 42A class to produce The Admirable Chrichten, by Sir James Barrie, is the activity in the little theatre, Room 209, this semester, Ruth Somers, drama instructor at the college disclosed Wednesday.

The play, a three act performance, scheduled for Tuesday, May 6, and running for three days, deals satirically with a novel situation for creating social justice and equality.

Mrs. Somers admitted enthusiasm for the cast's acting ability and the forthcoming success of the production. The cast to date includes Ralph Bergendorf, Eugene Carlson, Konrad Kischer, Wayne Green, Harry Hanson, Jonas Harshel, Robert McCormick, Julian Pace, Joyce Barsaute, Barbara Ferrari, Jacqueline Thomas, Carl Kemington, Elizabeth Mercer, Barbara Murphy, Beatrice Owingo, Betsey Ponim, Gwendolyn Thorton, Marcia Weidler, and Nadia Kocharoff.

After receiving an order to halt production on Heaven Can Wait last semester from the Dramatists' Play Service, which handles scripts and non-professional acting rights for the members of Dramatists' Guild of the Authors' League of America, Lloyd Sisler, also dramatics instructor, is withholding information on his current schedule until he is assured of rights to produce a play.

"Double casts are being trained to allow a greater number of students to participate," Sisler declared, "and those interested in little theatre activities should register immediately to be assured a part in the coming plays."

Further details and final permission to enter the forthcoming production can be obtained from Mrs. Somers in Room 250, or Sisler, in Building 19.

Twice weekly the art class, under Instructor Richard Allman, can be seen boarding cars and starting their three hour jaunt to find inspiration for painting among scenic San Francisco's sights.

Because these painting excursions prove so successful and enjoyable, members of Alpha Delta Epsilon, which automatically includes students of the landscape painting class, plan to spend part of their weekend painting colorful spots about the city; their favorites being Fisherman's Wharf, Hunters Point, and Sharp Park.

The new Alpha Delta Epsilon officers were announced at the semi-annual banquet, held recently at the home of Omar Chilli. The Spanish buffet with turkey predominating was enjoyed by the 38 members of the society who attended and honored guests. Officers for the spring semester are Chilli, president; Nancy Sloan, vice-president; Betty Wolf, secretary, and Jene Hargens, social secretary.

The annual dinner and meeting date for the election of new officers has not yet been decided.

• XGI Society: All veterans of the college are invited to become members of this organization.

Counsellor Rates Over Truman

By John Hulse

Ask almost any veteran what he thinks of William Ogle, veterans counsellor, and he'll launch into a speech that makes Ogle look like presidential material on any ticket.

Ogle's business, though, is not politics but problems, students' problems. His manner of handling them is the best reason for his popularity.

For example, we'll follow a student to Ogle's desk in Building 3. This student is concerned with his service credits. He explains this to Ogle and receives a considered answer backed by training at the University of Southern California as an education and speech major, years of experience in government and personnel work, and work in the Army as a separation counsellor.

WILLIAM C. OGLE, veterans' counsellor, who has earned the title of the veterans' friend. Ogle was graduated from the University of Southern California.

The student, familiar with "assembly line" interviews, starts to leave. Ogle calls him back. It is at this point that the counsellor justifies his reputation.

He drags from his desk drawer a large book entitled American Council On Education, Guide. He looks it over, puts it back and takes out another book entitled California Committee Of Education (college Vice-President Paul Mohr serves on this committee). After examining this book Ogle gives a final and complete answer to the student. Significantly, the student knows that the information he has received is good.

Ogle outlined other services of the counselling center.

"The counselling center, acting as agents for the registrar, also interprets tests with the cooperation of Verrel Weber and her testing staff. I advise all students to take advantage of the vocational and program counselling offered by the center," he said.

Alpha Gamma Sigma

Ray Tiffany Heads Honor Society; New Members Need 30 Points To Join

In the initial meeting of Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, for the spring semester, the following officers were elected: Ray Tiffany, president; Mary Lee, vice-president; Eleanor Newell, secretary; and Nancy Stookey, Club Advisor Board representative.

The qualifications to join the society are a minimum of 30 grade points and grades in the first three brackets A, B, or C; however, a grade D or F disqualifies a prospective member for that semester.

At the end of each semester a gold pin and certification of honor from the Alpha Gamma Sigma will be awarded to the student maintaining the highest average of grades.

Eligibility for permanent membership in the society requires a student to meet the qualifications of the society three out of four semesters, or attain a total grade point average of 2.3 or above, according to Edwin A. Cranston, society adviser and president of California's Alpha Gamma Sigma.

Campus Magazine Needs Material

Contributions for the Forum Magazine have literally swamped the magazine staff with numerous additions to the material requested, disclosed Kenneth Ford, editor of the magazine.

With the deadline date set for Friday, April 11, potential contributors are urged to enter their material for consideration.

More short stories, philosophical sketches, essays, and critical works are desired, for thus far only eight impressionist works, and five essays have been contributed. More material of this type including biographical sketches will be used for the magazine.

The staff plans to run a special series of interesting photography including surrealism and local color work. This sort of material has not appeared in former issues of The Forum, and is a good chance for some of the promising contemporary shutter bugs to exhibit their talents.

Woodcuts will also be considered in this issue of The Forum, but as yet not a sufficient amount has appeared. Of great interest in the entries so far, the short humorous satires show great promise, but the sooner these contributions are handed in, the more time may be devoted to the judgment of the same.

Not enough hearts of oak. Too many heads of same.

Vets From College To Broadcast Vs. LACC

The college will be presented in a broadcast over KFRC April 26 from 7 to 7:30 p.m. by members of the radio classes, Marie Weller, instructor of the department, announced this week.

The students will contend against Los Angeles City College in the Quiz Of Two Cities.

Participants in the contest are Philip Silberman, Phillip Markinson, Jack Kalman, and Peter Bogghosin.

Special Class Hours Confusing Students

Urging all students who signed up for special classes in English tutoring to check with bulletin board outside the workshop in Building 19, Harold Miller, basic skill workshop head, declared that many students enrolled in these classes were confused as to their schedule of hours.

As these classes are now in session, students who are not certain of their class hours should report to Room 1, Building 19.

Song Contest

Song Writers Get Opportunity To Display Talent

Opportunity is knocking for amateur song writers to enter the college song contest for the purpose of having new tunes for games and rallies.

Entries may be brought to Room 200 or to any member of the judging committee between now and Tuesday, April 15, Flossita Badger, choral director, announced today.

The judging committee at present consists of Dean Edward E. Sandys, Assistant Dean John Brady, Rally Commissioner Jim Mann, the presidents of the college music societies, including the Symphony Forum, and the faculty of the music department: Miss Badger, Madison Devlin, and Gertrude Norgard.

In launching this contest, similar to one held several years ago, Miss Badger is acting on the suggestion of Dean Sandys to obtain new songs to add to the present roster of three. The songs, Alma Mater, Ram's Cheer, and Fight On, were all composed by former students of this college.

Original or semi-original songs are desired as entries—that is, tunes with creative words and music or songs with original lyrics set to previously written melodies. Songs should be ones that can be easily learned and sung by students, Miss Badger emphasized. Three prizes will be presented to the winners, following final voting.

Students may submit one or more songs in the contest. In addition to college-spirited tunes, songs in a serious mood are also acceptable.

To qualify for first prize, however, songs entered in the contest must have both originally composed words and music.

Entries contributed after the deadline, Tuesday, April 15, will not be placed under consideration by the judging committee, Miss Badger warned.

Further information may be obtained from the committee members judging the contest.

Classical Program Set For Tomorrow

Music and a picture will be the subject for the Listening Hour program in Room 200 tomorrow at 12 noon.

Gertrude Norgard, instructor of this 7b music class, will again play masterpieces of the music world on phonograph records.

An invitation is extended to all students and faculty members to come and hear:

The Fountains Of Rome.....Respighi
The White Peacock.....Griffes
The Sunken Cathedral.....Debussy
The Afternoon Of A Faun.....Debussy
Skyscraper.....John Alden Carpenter

28 More Housing Units Ready In May

Twenty-eight additional housing units are under construction on the site of the former tennis courts near the quonset huts adjacent to Phelan Avenue, Dean Edward E. Sandys revealed last week.

Date of completion is expected to be May 1. The units are two room apartments with separate showers, electric and gas facilities furnished.

The structures are divided into two sections, one facing the other, with a court between them, and each has a long balcony on either side and a long railing running to the stairs at each end. Various students have commented on the resemblance of the homes to auto courts.

AWS

Traditional Tea Will Honor Freshmen Women In Student Lounge Thursday At 2 O'clock; 22 Members Asked To Serve

Freshmen women students will be honored guests of the Associated Women Students at a tea scheduled this Thursday, March 13, from 2 to 4 p.m. in the student lounge, Dean Margaret Dougherty disclosed.

THE TRADITIONAL AWS tea will be held Thursday in the student lounge. All freshmen women are invited to attend. Claire Levesque, president of the organization, will preside over the tea.

AWS officer presiding over the tea will be Claire Levesque, president; Virginia St. John, vice-president; Rosemary Kapp, corresponding secretary; and Mary James, recording secretary.

Dean Dougherty added that at previous AWS teas the floral decorations have been arranged by John Lawrence's flower shop class. The table decorations will feature spring flowers in attractive displays.

Dean Dougherty explained that the AWS is exclusively an organization for the women members of the Associated Students. The organization provides teas, fashion shows and dances throughout the semester. The officers are active in the statewide organization of Associated Women Students.

Assisting in pouring at the tea will be the following faculty members: Janice Kreutzmann, Margaret Flourney, Laurine Bergin, Evelyn Kerkhoff.

Women assisting at the tea will be Pat Sullivan, Hank Hurley, Beverly Huddieson, Diane Guintali, Beverly Tattenhone, Ruth Gianella, Mary Mardella, Dolores Muziaraz, Joan Fizgerald, Aima Bacigalupi, Shirley Woodham, Barbara Scrivani, Geraldine O'Sullivan, Carmen Segrove, Elsie Grant, Dot Conlan, Pat Stanfield, Lois Hopkins, Millie Laube, Shirley Collins, Joanne Schmitt, and Duffy Steele.

Faculty Lectures On Social Problems

Lights will be burning at 8 p.m., Thursday in the west campus auditorium, helping to illuminate current social problems for the first of a series of six faculty lectures sponsored by the American Veterans Committee chapter here, according to Don Frost, entertainment chairman.

There will be no charge for admission to the lectures, all of which are scheduled for 8 p.m. every other Thursday in the auditorium. Students and automobiles will be admitted through the west campus gate without passes on lecture nights. Following is schedule for the series:

Thursday, March 13, Propaganda and Social Control, Ralph Grannenberg, psychology; March 27, The Pacific Today, Mervin Slosberg, history; April 10, Racial Fallacies, Phyllis Haley, psychology; April 24, Atomic Energy, John E. Booher, chemistry; May 8, What Has U. N. Accomplished To Date?, John Gerstung, history; May 22, U. S. Economics, William Goss, history, economics.

Traffic Problems To Be Investigated

With the definite job of alleviating the traffic problem at the Phelan Avenue gate to the west campus, a committee headed by Bob Reilly, member of the Student Council, was appointed this week by Trev Burrow, Associated Student president.

Reilly has for his right-hand man Nelson Baxter, also a Student Council member. These students have already approached the street department and the city has agreed to place 12-inch lines, 15 feet apart, at the Phelan entrance.

Reilly and Baxter will, some time in the near future, speak to the Police Commission in an attempt to secure arterial stop signs at the north gate. They also will try to persuade commission into putting automatic traffic signals at the intersection of Ocean and Phelan Avenues.

Reilly said, "At least 2,000 students cross Phelan on the way to the west campus within the 15 minutes following each hour. At these times the avenue is virtually jammed with students, and the majority of drivers pay no attention to the pedestrians, shoving right on through."

Registrar

Leave Of Absence Rules Are Important

Negligence in the proper application for a leave of absence will result in complete failure in all courses taken during the previous semester, Registrar Mary Jane Learnard again warned students last week.

Students are advised to take into consideration that the end of the first mid-term period will fall on Friday, March 21. Distribution of grades will be on Wednesday and Thursday, March 26 and 27, Miss Learnard said, and students will meet their advisers in scheduled room.

No new courses may be added to a student's program, but petitions to drop a course will be accepted until April 9, Miss Learnard concluded.

Pi Mu Gamma

Irish Theme For Pre-Med Dance

Moving into their largest stag-sport dance of the semester, the Pi Mu Gamma, pre-medical society, hopes to cap last semester's highly praised Scalpel Jockey's Jig with the Scalpel Jockey's Scramble, according to Brian McDonnell, publicity manager of the society.

The dance, to be held Friday, March 14, at the west campus auditorium, represents Pi Mu's outstanding event of the semester and will be centered around a Saint Patrick's Day theme. Admission will be 50 cents per person. The dancing will continue from 8 to midnight with the music of the popular Stefani Sextette, McDonald added.

Pi Mu Gamma has always been looked to for full participation in Associated Student activities and entertainment. This fact is affirmed, McDonnell explained, by Pi Mu's one hundred per cent membership in the Associated Students.

He further revealed that the society plans to present medical movies which deal in biological science.

Scholarships Provided For Future Teachers

Allotting scholarships of $300 a year, for the purpose of attracting students to the teaching profession, the California Congress of Parents and Teachers declared any student with a high school education or college background may apply for these scholarships.

Applications must be filed by Thursday, May 1. For further information students are urged to see Edwin A. Cranston in Room 340 of the main building.

The Congress of Parents and Teachers has also provided in this fund for several $100 scholarships that may be used for short-termed teacher education course to students of junior standing or above.

Tenney Bill Target Of Heated Debate By Student Council

The spotlight at last Thursday's Student Council meeting burned upon the proposed Tenney Bill now before the State Legislature. The bill prepared by Senators Tenney, Desmond, Kraft, Burns, Watson and Gordon if passed would completely change the entire educational system of the state of California.

The Bill proposes the curtailment of teaching or discussion of any subject which is either controversial, sectarian, denominational, or prohibitionary.

It was brought out by council members that practically any subject now taught in public schools would fall into these categories. Under the proposed bill, all subject matter would have to be approved by an appointed board, and only their approved views could be taught.

Don Burger, member of the President's Cabinet, stated that the bill is in direct contradiction to all the principles of the democratic system of education practiced by this country for the past 150 years.

President Trev Burrow said that this bill affected each and every student in California, and that it is their duty to take action. To this end a meeting was called for yesterday at 3:30 for all interested faculty members and students to discuss any possible action they might wish to take.

An invitation from Charles Daniels, president of the Associated Students of Marin Junior College, was read to the council inviting three representatives of this college to participate in the pre-conference meeting of the Northern California junior colleges.

Those selected to go were Nancy Stooky, Jim Edwards, and Niek Dirtiman.

Bob Sherrat, Edward Engle, Bob Possey Named As Officers Of Men's Choral Group

Officers chosen for the Men's Chorus by members in this group of 30 students were for the following positions: Bob Sherrat, president; Edward Engle, vice-president; and Bob Possey, secretary.

The fall semester of 1946 found this group struggling for help with an enrollment of seven students. With the help of visitors and bystanders, the chorus has grown to a present substantial group. There is a lack, however, of first and second tenors.

Social plans for the near future promise to be fulfilled with appearances at Stanford University and the Spring Flower Festival at the San Francisco Opera House.

Jobs Prospects Poor, Student Outlook At Fault

By John Hulse

The all-important job situation looks black to Joseph Amori, director of the college job placement service, an office which he tends with vigorous interest. Amori explained that he is confronted with two difficulties: finding positions for students in a rapidly filling job market, and, more important, combatting the attitudes of the students themselves.

"Job prospects, especially part-time, are bad and will get worse. In addition, students are often unprepared in skill, training or outlook to fit into an organization built for profit," Amori stated.

Between telephone calls and interviews Amori named "false indoctrination" as the prime obstacle to job hunting success. He traced the origin and effect of this obstacle.

"There is an 'executive mindedness' prevalent among young people, that makes the thought of starting from the bottom seem abhorrent to them. The 'executive' idea includes making money."

Amori added, "These attitudes are built by the multitude of forces affecting each person. In short, this means a barrage of advice from friends, institutions and anything which the person contacts. These ideas, which make some people unfit for work, are not to be blamed on the person but should be recognized as the person's greatest handicap."

Amori stopped to take a large stack of letters from a secretary. The letters evidence Amori's contact with some 2,000 employers. He explained the functions of his office.

"Our first interest is to prepare the student for the job. Of secondary importance is the actual placement. Finally, this office acts as liaison among the students, the employer and the placement relations."

Amori concluded by emphasizing one of his guiding beliefs:

"Work determines our pay and comfort, our friends, even our health. Our lives must be built around our jobs and for that reason our work deserves the most serious thought."

Tourist's Trolley

Part Of Romantic West

SENTIMENTALISTS of San Francisco have been aroused.

A proposal has been forwarded by Mayor Roger Lapham to discontinue running of our cable cars which have served us well for over 25 years.

To most San Franciscans, the cable cars are a part of their city and an institution of the West. They find it repugnant to imagine lumbering, smelly buses traveling up and down the city's famous hills. Even residents of long standing in San Francisco still get a thrill out of a ride on one of their beloved trolleys.

Prose and poetry has been written in praise of them and describing the breathtaking sight of the bay area as the car reaches the crest of the highest hill.

The sentimentalists are not alone in their desire to maintain the status quo in regard to cable cars.

Some hardheaded business men have recognized the value of them as a drawing card for tourists. One of the first things that a visitor seeks out on arrival are the cars.

In the minds of outsiders, they personify the colorful, romantic atmosphere which is characteristic of San Francisco.

According to an alternate plan proffered by the mayor last week the city will buy the California Street Cable Car Lines and run it for scenic purposes and appeasement.

This is a fair compromise for Cable Car fanciers.

This proposal will be put before the people for a popular vote to determine whether or not any more money should be spent on them.

Most true San Franciscans with any feeling for their city will vote in favor of the purchase.

Should it be passed, they will be going into this with their eyes wide open.

They will be showing their willingness to foot the bill in order to preserve the traditions and romance of the beauty spot of the West.

Ford

After Dark

THE wheels of American progress are still rolling, never fear, and soon those wheels will roll over the Montgomery Block, and annihilate it. Gone will be the Little Bohemia Of The Pacific Coast, and in its place a shiny new edifice may be erected . . . a big parking lot.

What with the commercialization of Fisherman's Wharf and parts of Telegraph Hill, this, the destruction of San Francisco's famed Monkey Block, should be that proverbial straw, and, urged by the insistent sharpness of knives from The Little Wall Street Of The West and to the general relief of the city's stuffed shirts, San Franciscans should see a new Diaspora by many of its artists to New Orleans and New York. Heaven help the petite bourgeois if the waterfront crowd heads into the residential districts. The town will really be jumpin' then and all the cats will be out making jam.

Artists have been living in the Block since the 1880's, and if you think the old building never turned out top rate material, try George Sterling, Charles Caldwell Dobie, Bill Saroyan, and Hilaire Hiler on for size.

It's not the destruction of the building itself that will be so rough, but it will leave several hundred people homeless, and the artist, contrary to romantic supposition, cannot live on the poetic fragments of Tom Wolfe's gastronomic passages, or, if you prefer—even a painter has to feed the face and lay the body down once in a while.

In the second place, if you care for the prestige of the city, it may be that the only reason this hilly old town will be remembered is for those past residents and homeless-waifs-to-be, or do you really think Roger D's name will blaze across the pages of future history books?

If the taxpayers are considering another bay expansion it seems reasonable that a modernistic Monkey Block could be added to the agenda. Then Little Bohemia could rest in peace.

Around And About with Nagle

CARTOONED in a recent issue of a male magazine were two bespectacled intellectuals (the male, a vet, Mr. Pichon) enjoying each other's company (the other individual, incidentally, was a woman) and listening to the disc jockey's patter, when suddenly Gertrude says to Gerard, "Let's stop a minute, my glasses have steamed up."

Which brings up the point of windshield wipers on glasses. A fortune could be made on such contrivances . . . particularly in this geographic location since scientists have yet to find a fog disperser, and misty glasses are impractical for 20-20 vision.

UNIQUENESS PERSONIFIED

Until such time as windshield wipers are provided, we shall have to derive our uniqueness from multi-colored and multi-shaped spectacles. Although some more dignified souls still wear unnoticeable rimless types, and some veterans still sport G. I. gold and silver metal framed cheaters, there are many—men and women—who sport thick and thin frames in blue, white, ebony, red, black or green colors and in shapes to best show off the features.

The sturdier souls enjoy wearing these vision correcters because they enjoy being different—even being termed exhibitionists. They feel colored glasses bring out the hidden part of their personalities, they have the "do-or-die air," the pioneer spirit, or if women, feel the "men-never-make-passes-at-gals-who-wear-glasses" days are over . . . and they are out to prove it.

A PHANTOM—YES!

Looking at the world through rose-colored glasses isn't all that it's cracked up to be. Take the woman for example. She must have matching lipstick, otherwise the colors clash and she is no "phantom of delight," also her entire wardrobe must be designed to fit in with her rainbow-hued "visionites."

The gentlemen . . . well, as yet no fancy colors have surrounded their limpid pools of cornea, and a silent prayer is murmured in hopes that they don't get that reckless with their appearances.

The dark, heavy frames they now wear are quite sufficient for their particular type of glamour.

STANDBY

By Bill Riley

AT approximately 1:30 a.m. Tuesday, March 4, 1947, an elderly gentleman was run down by a Yellow Cab while crossing Mission at Army Street. Two students of this college were present at the scene of the accident. Will these students inform DAVID C. BOGART, Merchants Exchange Building, phone EX. 3330.

Four enterprising students of this college have engaged the Palomar Ballroom, 1621 Market Street, for Saturday night dances. ERIC SWANSSON, spokesman for the "Entrepeneurs," stated that admittance may be gained for a nominal charge, and the melodious atmosphere will be provided by Howard Fredrie's Band Of Gold.

ART MARTIN, student at the College, holds a partnership in Airvoice Recording Studio, the largest in San Francisco. Martin stated that the studio is located in the basement of the Bellevue Hotel and that students will be offered special rates.

TBOTE OPENS DOWNTOWN RUN

As hinted in the above paragraphs, the Hollywood touch has been applied to the most deadly serious problem ever placed in front of mankind to solve.

The Beginning Or The End has been unveiled for public showing in time for Academy Awards, and five bells reverently bestowed by Jimmie Fidler.

Judging from the advance advertising on the epic, without even seeing it, an assumption that the picture will go over like a lead balloon is not a risky one to take at this time.

Year after year the film industry sinks its fangs into such momentous events as the Civil War, China's famines, the First World War and so on unending.

Invariably the results contain a hashing of tragedy and moonlight and roses with a slight touch of nausea accompanying.

Hilltop Manner

THAT semesteral character, Byron Biaster, was caught sneaking into an anthropology laboratory last week without having been registered in same.

He was not discovered until the two-hour session was nearly over, but at that time the instructor was forced to pick him up by the epidermis, attached immediately below the hair line and above the clavicle, and deposit him outside the door. When interviewed later as he sat dejectedly on the floor of the hall, Biaster merely lamented, "This is very embarrassing."

However, he also let it be known that he had gained quite a bit of knowledge during his short sojourn into the realm of fossils and craniums. One of the most important things he observed while hiding in a bottle of formaldehyde and posing as specimens of the supposed missing link was the fact that some of the apes he had as intimate friends resembled human beings quite closely in certain aspects. Amazing deduction, but so degrading to the apes!

Earlier that day his science instructor, who talks in terms of atoms, molecules, and reactions, informed Biaster that the Catalytic agent was caught during the war and shot. This Biaster knew couldn't be true. In an off-the-record statement to The Guardsman he said that he knew the special agent from Catalytica and that he was still alive and well, living in seclusion in a quonset hut on Yerba Buena Island. He intends to revisit his native land some time in the very near future.

Biaster also informed The Guardsman that he is now a member of the Hotel and Restaurant Division of the college and that he may be found scooping and pouring, mixing and squirting, to the accompaniment of Benny Goodman and Harry James.

Student Store Book Sales To Veterans Given Praise; "Open The East Gate"

• Unhonored

Editor, The Guardsman:

During the first week of the last semester havoc reigned at the student store. It was practically an impossibility to buy books . . . lines were long . . . students stood in them for hours.

The Guardsman wrote a few biting editorials filled with bitter, cynical sarcasm and general derogatory remarks about the student store and its management. This was a well directed attempt to speed up the process of buying books and to break the monopoly which the student store had gained on supplies and books for college students.

This semester the method of selling books to the general public had not changed but the veterans no longer had to stand in lines in and out of the book store. This time a system was set up whereby the veterans received their books on the west campus and buying of books was greatly accelerated. This fact, I'm sure, The Guardsman recognized even if they have deemed it necessary to mention it.

But facts that perhaps the sterling reportorial staff of The Guardsman overlooked were that the student store sent their own personnel over to assist in filling requisitions. This was necessary since the veterans' affairs office could not cope with the speeded up system. The student store paid these employees to do the veterans' affairs office's work. For this they will receive no recompense, and apparently not receive a word of praise from the organ that condemned them so highly last semester.

Editor, The Guardsman:

The situation at the east gate of the west campus is becoming increasingly worse. Why isn't something being done to alleviate the condition? Trying to get the stream of students through one small gate is like trying to shove Man Mountain Dean through a piece of quarter inch pipe. It can't be done!

RAMblings . .

By Arnold Wechter

THE Metropolitan Junior College Conference, in Southern California, which likes to think of itself as the mightiest junior college circuit in the nation, has split wide open over the question of post-season bowl games.

Compton, Los Angeles, Pasadena, John Muir, Long Beach and Santa Monica junior colleges, who favor bowl games, have joined with Phoenix Junior College in Arizona and have formed their own league. It will be called the Far Western Junior College Conference. The repercussions of this move will be felt as far north as San Francisco.

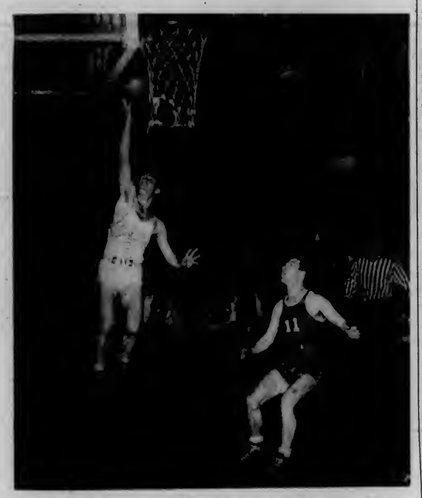
The experts predict that the Ram baseball team will finish the season with large corns on their feet and fallen arches. They have to walk 24 blocks a day to the practice field. Our feet hurt just thinking about it, much less walking it.

• • •



One of the reasons for the poor attendance at athletic events this past season, was the practice of scheduling other social events on the same dates that athletic events were scheduled. Both Alpha Gamma Sigma and the XGI Society held meetings the same night as the final basketball game of the season.

The Student Council might well step in and take immediate steps to correct the practice of scheduling two or more important events for the same date.

Bob Catudio, former editor of The Guardsman, and the man who did more for sports, in the matter of publicity, than any one other person, will enter Stanford. It is predicted that he will compile an even finer record there, than he did here, and that is going some.

Truth is stronger than fiction because we hear so little of it.

TITLE, PICTURE OF THE YEAR, was the unanimous opinion given by the Sports Editors when they saw this picture of Bob Mattulich tipping in two points for San Mateo, while forward Phil Burroughs of the Rams looks helplessly on. The two points did not affect the outcome of the game, as the Rams went on to win 50 to 45. Notice the tense muscles of the players, stoppage of motion, and the clarity of the picture. Baseball

Hurler Boosts Ram Diamond Stock

Bill Fischer's baseball title hopes were given a shot in the arm today with the discovery of a heretofore unknown left-handed hurler.

Unnamed as yet, the southpaw, who hails from Oakland, may be the answer to Fischer's pitching problems. Catcher Herb Markall was enthusiastic over the newcomer's ability, declaring him to have the makings of one of the best hurlers in the NCJCC.

Practice is continuing daily, exeept for interruptions by the unpredictable weather.

Several players have shown good form in fielding and batting practice, among them Zane Kaplan, Chet Anderson, Jim Johnston and Ernie Domecus. Paul Nederman, a right-handed hurler, has also shown promise during training and may earn a starting berth on the local nine.

Three practice tilts have been booked for this week. Tomorrow afternoon, the Rams cross bats with University of San Francisco JV's, on the U.S.F. field at 3:15 p.m.

Thursday, the Rams play Washington High on the Ocean View diamond, also at 3:15 p.m.

Tennis

San Jose State Host To Ram Net Squad; USF, St. Mary's On Weekend Slate

San Jose State College will play host to the Ram tennis squad this afternoon when the Rams journey south to meet the Spartans in a match postponed from March 1.

TOM WILSON, former College of Pacific athletic great, will again coach the Ram's tennis team.

Tom Wilson's netmen will play two other practice matches this week if conditions permit. Friday afternoon, the Ram and University of San Francisco tennis teams clash at Golden Gate Park. Activity is slated to start at 2:30 p.m. Boasting one of the best college tennis squads in the nation, U.S.F. will be rated heavy favorites over the Ram contingent.

Practice is continuing daily at the Balboa Park courts, with candidates for the team competing for top spot on the practice ladder. Bill Covall recently replaced Joe Barton in the number one spot.

Wilson's charges open the NCJCC season Saturday, March 22, when they tangle with the San Mateo Junior College team on the Matean courts.

The tennis team as it stands at this writing is as follows: Bill Covall, Joe Barton, Frank Reed, Buss Fernback, Bud Goldman, Wayne Rankin, A. Candelerio, and D. E. Cowderoy.

Modesto Boxing Show Attracts Pugilists

Boxing, a well established sport here before the war, may be on the road to recovery at the college.

Jack Gaddy, athletic director, announced yesterday an excellent opportunity for would-be boxers to show their talents.

Modesto is the scene of an amateur pugilism show staged by the NCJCC this Friday, and if enough men are interested in entering it, and so inform him in the men's gymnasium either today, tomorrow, or Thursday, between 9 and 4 o'clock, he will seriously consider sending a team to the tournament.

As yet there is little information on the golf outlook at present, exeept to mention that Northern California Junior College contenders will play at Stockton later on.

War was never more truly described than in Remarque's book and the motion picture that faithfully followed it in such detail. It was good enough to be banned in Nazi Germany as dangerous to their ideals.

The film has disappeared back into the files, but the book remains on library shelves to be read over and over.

Track

Local Thinclads, S. F. State Duel On Foe's Oval Today

The talented group of hopeful Ram cindermen bow in their initial performance of the 1947 track season this afternoon at 2 p.m., when they vie against the strong San Francisco State aggregation at the latter's home oval at Lake Merced.

Coach Jim Jensen still has his harriers in the semi-tuning up stage largely because of the inclement weather which has not been exactly conducive to good training.

New men are appearing for practice every day, and Jensen has a man-sized job ahead of him when it comes time to trim the squad to conference regulations. Two of these are Stan Feldman of Lincoln High of San Francisco, and Milt Bruzzone of Oakland who have signed up for the century and the broad jump respectively.

Coach Jensen got up early Sunday morning and drove to the college to start work of the high jump pit. When he got through, he had it almost ready for jumping, doing a particularly good job on the takeoff. Coach Grover Klemmer has offered to complete the project on his day off.

Basketball

Poly Club To Defend Intra Hoop Title; Colorful Tourney Looms From Signup

By Paul Cane

Featuring a basketball turnout that far exceeded his most elevated desires, Tom Wilson, boss of the college intramural prospectus, is at present wrapped in the turmoil and confusion of arranging the schedule for the coming eage classics.

Heading the list of more than 20 teams that submitted their entries were the Poly Lambs. This group funder the nom' de guerre of the Poly Alumni) proved to be the "cream" of the fall semester's tournament, when they waltzed off with title honors.

The club to watch, however, and this writer's choice for the top seat, is the aggregation sponsored by the Chinese Social Club. This group had originally intended to enter three teams in the competition, but later wisely decided to consolidate the better members of each assemblage into one well-integrated brood.

Even before these new additions graced the hardwoods in CSC colors, the ability and speed necessary for a championship were there. To be terse, the lads of Chinese extraction are quick!

As an after thought, and allowing for the possibility of a deficiency of material to fill the alloted space, Wilson is now accepting entries for the events next listed in his syllabus, namely, swimming, tennis, and track.

Forum

Prizes Offered For Best Contributions

With prizes offered for the best literary and art works submitted, the annual Forum Magazine has entered its final campaign for student contributions.

Using a revolutionary cover design more adaptable to modern type literary work, and enlarging the magazine to more than twice its former size, Kenneth Ford, student editor, declared that the forthcoming edition of Forum will be the greatest in the history of the college.

Recalling the last edition of the annual publication, of which Helen Ringius was student editor, Dorothy Mercer, co-faculty sponsor, explained that the 1946 edition was limited to only 32 pages because of failure to give sufficient advance notice as to the deadline for student submitted material.

Literature of the realistic, surrealistic, and expressionistic style will be highly favored, Ford added.

Thus far with four weeks remaining before the deadline, tentatively set for Friday, April 11, insufficient numbers of contributions have been submitted to insure the best possible selections to appear in The Forum.

Each article submitted is carefully analyzed and judged closely for its merit by The Forum staff, Miss Mercer disclosed.

Miss Mercer and John Gerstung are faculty sponsors, with Samuel Duff, John Ross, and George Mullany as consultant faculty advisers.

Peek-And-Nudge Time

Fortune Awaits Scientist Finding Cure For Epidemic Of Midtermitis

By Bill Wilson

With mid-terms approaching, many instructors will soon become victims of the peek and nudge process. Immunity to this procedure during examinations is impossible to acquire. Pills have been tried, shots have been administered, and F's have been given by instructors, but all to no avail.

The college student persistently has the proverbial crib notes tucked away on his person during examinations. The student may have the notes concealed in a sock, in a cuff, under a wristwatch, or up a sleeve. And the most hawkeyed instructor can seldom detect them.

This process is highly contagious and very few escape. During an examination one student peeks at the crib notes in his sock. Naturally a neighbor, being stuck on a question, nudges the cribber for information. This procedure continues.

Before long the whole class is either pecking or nudging. This is the famous peek and nudge process, and is used in the best of colleges. But of course this process must be done as inconspicuously as possible, or even the most absent-minded instructor may become a wee bit suspicious.

There are many instructors, in fact most, who realize this is going on, but they cannot detect it. And other than accuse and be wrong, causing embarrassment for all concerned, the professors merely forget it.

With this situation such as it is, one can imagine the anxiety on the instructor's part during all midterms. It is safe to say that any and all instructors would gladly pay handsomely for a cure to this malady, whether in the form of pills, liquids, or mental psychology.

This indeed offers an excellent opportunity for ambitious scientists, who may take over from here and reap abundant profits and at the same time save college instructors from getting grey hair.

Local Masonic Club Will Meet Friday

Now on the way to becoming a full fledged organization, the Masonic Club was newly formed on the campus last semester by an eager group of students familiar with the functions of a similar club at U. C.

The club is open to all students at the college who are of Masonic families or are members of the Masons, Eastern Star, De Molay Jobs or Rainbow.

According to Doris Hall, acting chairman, and Donald Atherton, sponsor of the group, a constitution has already been formulated and waits the approval of the Club Advisory Board.

Purpose of the club is to become a well coordinated group to promote better relations between members of the club and members of the faculty and administration.

Those who are interested in the organization are invited to attend the next meeting in Room 133 during the college hour this Friday.

College Has Own UN In Form Of Visitors

By Mel Hansen

While the official chapter of the United Nations Organization holds its meetings at Lake Success, New York, an embryo United Nations exists here at the college.

A survey of foreign born students enrolled at the college shows that almost every major country in the world is represented here.

The majority of these persons have become naturalized since their arrival while some, such as our many friends from Latin America, who are here with one purpose in mind, to acquire an education.

Guten Tag, Buenas Dias, Ohio; Ben Jour, Sholom Malechem, and Skol are a few of the unfamiliar expressions that can be heard while passing through the corridors of this institution.

For the most part these strange sounding greeting are appreciated, but many a Spanish A student while stumbling through a phrase has crept off into a corner when two or three people passed discussing the atomic energy plan in the language of romance.

These visiting linguists are not strictly book worms as they have organized various clubs and participate in student body as well as extracurricular affairs.

Don't forget that the bird in the hand has a pair of wings.

Veterans

Non-Hi School Grads Should File Petitions

High school non-graduates who expect to receive high school diplomas on completion of the current semester's work should file petitions with Mary Perry or Alva McMillan in Building 3 before Friday, March 14.

Veterans who are candidates for high school diplomas and who have not petitioned for service credit may bring a copy of their discharge papers and file both petitions at one time.

Students Urged To Take Guidance Tests

Because of the many perplexing problems that are confronting college students, Grant F. Marsh, in charge of the Vocational Guidance Department, Building 3, west campus, suggests that students discuss their scholastic and vocational difficulties with one of the nine professionally trained counsellors.

The counsellors, who serve as instructors in psychology 10 and 11, objectively analyze problems of the students, and help them to become adjusted to the college.

Originally the primary function of the counseling department was to advise vets, but now all students can benefit through this vocational program.

"Guidance tests should be taken by the students some time during the semester as these tests have proved successful and enlightening to those who were undecided, or had chosen the wrong vocation, and will be a help for those wishing to make a wise choice of occupation, or to re-evaluate their present choice," Marsh said.

The best way to get opportunity to call upon you is to call upon it first.

Drama

Broadway Hit Due On Campus April 17

The Broadway stage and screen hit, Arsenic And Old Lace, by playwright Joseph Kesselring, will be presented to the students of the college on or around April 17, Lloyd Sisler, drama instructor, disclosed yesterday after receiving confirmation of his right to produce the three-act play.

"Phillip Markinson, Hal Harris, Elbert Priddy, Merton Bercovich, William Riley and his wife, Marie Wispell Riley, all veterans of the Black Flamingo production staged last semester, were given the major parts in the current drama," Sisler explained, "while the characterization of Abby and Martha Brewster, two slightly touched spinsters, will be portrayed by Carolyn Reiss, Jacquelynne Wolfe, Carla Perkins, and Celia Sasson—four normal college women."

The other students in the cast are Robert Douglas, Pat Desmond, James Pierce, Sal Maeda, George Wesendunk, and Al Vayssie.

The rehearsals and production of The Admirable Crichton have been delayed until the scripts for the drama arrive. The parts have yet to be assigned.

New Greenhouse To Be Built Near Men's Gymnasium

By Herbert Levy

Climaxing a seven year request by the horticulture department of this college for the building of a greenhouse, Henry Nelson, department head, declared today that construction of this project has begun and is expected to be in use for the fall semester.

Completion of the greenhouse will be the first edifice for instructional purposes to be built on the campus since the original college building was erected in 1940, Nelson added.

The proposed site of the greenhouse is to be directly to the south of the men's gymnasium, extending toward Ocean Avenue.

"This new addition to the horticulture department is a far cry from the time the department was first established at Galileo High School in 1938. In those days the students had to board streetcars to reach a private nursery, where classes were held," Nelson said.

Horticulture department offerings include instruction in nursery practice, greenhouse maintenance, garden maintenance, and florist shop control.

Courses in ornamental horticulture, such as architectural landscaping and garden design, can be either terminal or recognized as lower division work for eventual California Polytechnic, Nelson asserted.

At the present time the horticulture department, in coordination with the floriculture group, is using Building 4 for instruction and the extreme east end of Balboa Park for practical gardening.

Listening Hour Sets "Music-Story" Theme

Resuming with the theme of Music and the Story, the Listening Hour will hear its semi-weekly program in Room 200, Monday, March 17, at 12 noon.

During this record series given to her Music 7b class, Gertrude Norgard offers the opportunity of listening to fine symphony music.

The program of compositions and their stories is as follows:

Petrouchka Ballet.....Stravinsky
Peter And The Wolf.....Prokofieff

Committee Continues Auditions In Room 200

To follow last Friday's successful talent audition, a second one is scheduled for today in Room 200 during the college hour at 10:40 a.m. under the supervision of Flossita Badger, choral director, and the previously announced audition committee.

The 14 contestants of last week showed a cross-section of various theatrical categories. Three dancers, two accordionists, and one pianist comprised part of the group. The remaining contestants were an equal number of singers of classical and modern compositions.

Rooms Assigned For Friday Meets

Thirty college organizations recently assigned to new rooms will hold their second meetings of the semester, during the college hour today, at 10:40 a.m.

Assistant Dean Jack Brady announced that the assignment of rooms has been completed, and warned students to vacate rooms at the end of the 10 o'clock classes to make way for the meetings.

California Legislature

Special Student Committee Scrutinizes Proposed Tenney Amendments To State Education Code, And Issues Protest

Moving with lightning like rapidity, a hastily organized committee formed to investigate state bills which intend amendments and an addition to the California Education Code last Monday voted to oppose the bills in their entirety.

The committee sent its adopted resolution and views to the Student Council for further action.

The bills, soon to be presented before the Legislative Committee of the California State Teachers Association, will be introduced by Senators Tenney, Desmond, Kraft, Burns, Watson, and Gordon. They offer amendments to prevailing sections of the Education Code, and an addition to the code relating to courses of instruction in sex and marriage problems.

The stipulations of the proposed legislation prohibits the "Use, distribution, teaching, or the discussion of any matter which is either controversial, sectarian, denominational or prohibitionary."

This bill is so "incoherent and vague," Trev Burrow, president of the Associated Students, asserted, "that it may be interpreted to include every subject now taught in public schools, including Math 51. It would eventually menace our entire academic system."

The acting committee, headed by Eugene Mead, faculty chairman, and Don Burger, student chairman, adopted an opposing resolution which states, "Because the bills imply incompetency and mistrust on the part of the teaching profession, and because we strongly oppose any legislation which regiments our public institutions, we protest against the proposed bills.

"Attacks upon the democratic faith which would prevent free examinations can lead to results that would eventually prove irreconcilable, and eventually destroy the principles of our free democratic government," the resolution stated.

Cosmopolitan Dance This Afternoon

Among the social activities planned by the Cosmopolitan Society is a dance to be held in the auditorium today between the hours of 1:00 and 3:00 p.m.

The officers for the society this semester are Leona De Bique, president; Jean Cannon, vice-president; Yowka Tahara, treasurer.

Pi Mu Gamma

Scalpel Jockeys Scramble Tonight

Expecting to surpass last semester's Scalpel Jockey's Jig, the first large stag-sport dance of the Pi Mu Gamma Society, composed of pre-medical, and pre-dental students, is scheduled tonight in the west campus auditorium.

Scalpel Jockey's Scramble, themed around St. Patrick's Day, will feature the music of the popular Stefani Sextette, according to Brian McDonnell, publicity manager of the society. The admission will be 50 cents per person, with dancing from 8 to midnight.

Though the dance is labeled stag, it is hoped couples will not hesitate to attend the affair, second social event of the club, which is active in all Associated Student affairs, according to McDonnell.

Also voiced by McDonnell was the fact that the organization is 100 per cent in Associated Student membership.

Other plans of the society include presentation of medical movies which deal with biological sciences.

Rehearsals Begin On Arsenic And Old Lace

Murder in the cellar will be witnessed by the students of this college when the forthcoming production, Arsenic And Old Lace, is presented in Room 28, Lloyd Sisler, dramatics instructor for the troupe of local talent, declared yesterday.

The big "When" is still unanswered, since the date for the play's appearance has yet to be determined; but rehearsals have begun and the material for the setting is in the process of being begged, borrowed, or bought.

The unusual seating arrangement will be patterned after that of Black Flamingo, presented last semester.

Reilly "Opens De Do'" On Traffic Congestion

By Mel Hansen

With the securing of a promise from the street department to paint safety lanes crossing Phelan Avenue at the gate to the west campus, Bob Reilly, newly appointed safety commissioner, announced that the first of many tasks aimed at clearing up the traffic situation locally has been successfully accomplished.

Reilly, who came here as a graduate of Hampton, Virginia, High School, is in his second semester at the college. In addition to his duties as commissioner, he is a member of the Student Council and Beta Tau.

The next traffic difficulty to be solved is at the intersection of Ocean and Phelan Avenues. In regard to this problem, Reilly and his assistant, Nelson Baxter, are attempting to secure an audience with the police commissioner of this city. They hope that the interview will be granted some time this week, and if so they will at this time propose the installation of automatic stop signals at the above mentioned intersection.

The new commissioner added another feather to his cap officially when he obtained permission to open the large gate at the Phelan Avenue entrance. This gate will not be opened for the use of automobiles but will be used by pedestrians only.

"It will no longer be necessary for students to wait in line for five or ten minutes in order to pass through the small gate previously provided," Reilly asserted.

With the speedy and efficient handling of his first assignments, Reilly has proved himself capable of carrying out the important job assigned him by Trev Burrow, Associated Student president.

The "human jam" at the east gate has been one of the worst "delay" problems of the semester, contributing greatly to the hazardous Phelan Avenue death trap.

PHELAN AVENUE DEATH TRAP will soon be cleaned up, according to Bob Reilly, newly appointed safety commissioner. The street department has promised to paint safety lanes across Phelan Avenue at the gate to the west campus.

Reilly also announced that as soon as a guard can be secured, the gates to the Phelan Avenue entrance of the west campus will be opened.—Photo by Lustig.

Tenney Legislation

Mental Slavery Advocated

"THERE is no God. Democracy is a failure. Kindness and generosity are flagrantly stupid weaknesses."

The survival of our American way of life is dependent on the teachings of the reverse of these theories.

They are certainly controversial subjects.

There is no subject taught in our school system that is not controversial to one degree or another, and yet, Senator Tenney and his cohorts have introduced a bill to the state legislature which would halt the teaching in our public schools of any subject containing disputable matter. This includes all state-endowed schools and colleges.

According to Tenney's "masterpiece," a regional board would be set up in each school district which would select and dictate exactly what would and would not be taught in the schools and HOW it would be taught.

Any instructor having the audacity to teach or discuss any other than the board-approved side of a question would pay for his "Crime."

Any school including an unsanctioned subject in its curriculum would immediately be cut off from all state funds. Of course, without funds the school would be non-existent.

Another provision of the proposed bill is that no sex or marital relations instruction could be given below the twelfth grade, and that all such instruction above this grade must be conducted by duly authorized physicians on a strictly professional basis, and all mixed classes would be prohibited.

Senator Tenney probably has the mental welfare of the youth of California in mind, but the bill, as stated, is the most viciously dangerous bit of legislation to come before the state of California, as it places into the hands of a small group of men the complete dictatorship of the education of the youth of this state.

It was by such means as that that Hitler subjected his people to mental slavery.

After Dark

AN anthology of selected writings by Thomas Wolfe, edited by Maxwell Geismar, and issued by the Viking Press, New York, 1946, seems to present one of the best cross sections of Wolfe's work to date. Besides lengthy excerpts from his four major novels (if they may be called such), there is a long informal essay called The Story Of A Novel which will be of great interest to anyone interested in creative writing, and especially to the members of English 30b, the classroom that harbors the future writers of American prose epics.

In this essays Wolfe expounds in some detail on the grueling, arduous, yet soul-satisfying process of writing a book, and of the many media of recording descriptive data, personal facts, and "time elements" in literature. A possible hint which many will find expedient; Wolfe, during the formative years of his career kept great ledgers of minute description, not only of towns, buildings, rivers, prairies, but of the face of the people throughout the land.

Also included in the book are long excerpts and selections from Look Homeward Angel (soon to flicker on neon marquis throughout the land), Of Time And The River, The Web & The Rock, You Can't Go Home Again, and several short stories from Death Before Morning and The Hills Beyond, with a valuable biographical note by the editor.

There are few American writers that have caught the spirit of our times, however, Tom Wolfe has done just that, and in that sense he is literally a Gershwin in prose, a giant in literature, the master of a new and rich native American tongue.

Around and About

with Nagle

This column is written by Del Pichon

ADMITTEDLY there aren't many girls like this, but all women have some of these characteristics and to what degree seems to be determined by their beauty, the more beautiful being the most like this exemplary case.

You know the kind! Blonde, blue-eyed, makeup applied faultlessly and stacked like an atomic pile. She dresses like she just stepped out of an Harper's Bazaar advertisement.

SVELTE WOMEN

In short, she is a completely gorgeous woman down to the tip of her delicate little toe. Her real name is Glumdalclitch Garfinkle, but she calls herself Adrienne Poisson. Of course, she wants to be an actress.

To get a date with this heavenly creature it is necessary to be a movie producer, a millionaire, or just plain lucky. Let's suppose Moe Fink is lucky.

CHOWIN' AT THE PALACE

On the big night Moe picks her up in his rented Cadillac—knowing she wouldn't deign to ride in anything less—to go dinner dancing at the Palace.

Once at the Palace she orders pheasant under glass and such like with Mum's 1905, speaking to the waiter in fluent, broken French. While eating a cold silence is maintained.

When dancing she's about as close as that million bucks that every guy is going to make when he gets out of college and is about as warm as an Eskimo's nose in the middle of January.

Back at the table she eyes all the dashing, suave middle-aged men; the kind that are greying at the temples and have that smooth, sophisticated appearance. Her conversation consists of a frigid "yes" or "no."

By this time Moe is feeling like an inebriate at a WCTU convention and suggests going home. She acquiesces.

THE REWARD

At her door Moe receives a quick peck and a "you're a sweet boy" as "payment" for the evening. Then she suddenly turns and slams the door in Moe's face. Moe leaves feeling very disconsolate, his wallet about as flat as yesterday's beer. As he drives home a word keeps running through his mind over and over again . . . Sucker! . . . Sucker!

Let this be an example. The mediocre appearing girls are a lot better companions and a lot more fun.

Gypsy Vacating Los Altos, Leaving 60 Acre Tent Behind

FABULOUS "Gypsy" who ran an old shack, the best steak dinners in California, and a batch of moth-eaten artists' masks into a fortune is currently in the news again.

The lady they call The Gypsy once owned a beaten up barn at the end of a beaten up road in the hills behind Lomita Park.

She installed atmosphere in the form of some old artists' trappings, put checkerboard tablecloths in the dining room and sprinkled liberally with candles jammed in old wine bottles.

Hilltop Manner

MANY scholars contend that the stamp of the mechanical age is increasingly eliminating individuality from the human race.

The surface life of the average collegiate of today appears strictly hedonistic in nature and confined to a clicky social circle. The same old dances attended by the same old crowd, bridge games for participation, and football games for observation. In all these, the goal is the top of the highest mountain, and everyone appears confident that he, surely, will reach the summit.

Manufacturers limit us in the choice of clothing, and social pressure plus the desire for a center of interest which will be shared by others, inclines the great majority toward a few special activities. Beneath these outward drives, however, it would seem that competition and rivalry are well expressed on every occasion, and the longing for individuality and distinction is quite manifest.

Women forever buying the very latest styles, creating new hair-do's, snapping up the latest fad but dropping it as soon as it has too many disciples to stand out from the mob—the rivalry is always present.

Men, either taking to flashy neckties or colorfully clashing sweaters, devoting themselves to handing out the fastest line of chatter in the crowd, or perhaps even taking to memorizing facts in the World Almanac, just to have something to justify a title of Man of Distinction! Whatever be the outlet, in men or women, the egotistical desire to be "different" constantly predominates.

There is hardly any fear therefore that monotonous, indistinguishable species will ever evolve from this trend toward standardization, as some have predicted.

RENDEZVOUS IN THE HILLS

A tiny bar jammed in one corner of the loft, staffed with philosophical bartenders, a few legends dropped casually about to develop the background of the owner, and the joint was made.

During the years tired debutantes and tosspots built up "Gypsy's" into the place to be seen, and it became "too, too elevah" to bounce and jostle in a Cadillac or Model A Ford over the old road to the hilltop barn.

Week nights and Saturday nights found sophisticated San Franciscans gnawing charcoal broiled steaks under wavering candlelight and telling their troubles to anyone who would listen, including bored bartenders.

At the end of an evening they would pay silent homage to The Gypsy in the form of sizeable checks and stagger through mud, homeward bound.

The place burned down about a month ago sometime after Gypsy sold it, and thus endeth an era.

GYPSY GOES COMMERCIAL

But The Gypsy carries on much to the chagrin of the good burghers of the sleepy little peninsula hamlet of Los Altos.

Doubtless many of the inhabitants of Los Altos have quaffed Gypsy's liqueurs and torn asunder many of her excellent steaks.

They wish now they'd stayed in bed instead.

Los Altans got the word that Gypsy was selling the 60 acre Morgan estate she owned, overlooking their city, to anyone that poneyed up $150,000.

STILL SPREADING LEGENDS

Those legends started again and Gypsy let it be hinted vaguely that she was going to sell out to a Los Angeles cult headed by a character aptly named "Peace, Peace It's Wonderful Brown," and he was going to convert the estate into a "branch heaven."

This shocked the conservatives of Los Altos into an attempt to raise enough greens to stop the sale. They were stymied at a mere $90,000.

Meanwhile, every time The Gypsy went to Los Angeles to talk over the deal the price hoisted fifty thousand per trip.

Los Altans are now worried over the possibility of the estate becoming a "recreation center" run by a Las Vegas gypsy.

A sort of USO for civilians, that, by Nevada standards, would cover a broad territory in the field of after-dark entertainment.

Faculty Interpretation Missed At Meet; Suggest New Name For Eatery

• Be Alert, Profs

Editor, The Guardsman:

When the students gather to learn something more about current issues, as they did last Monday, they have a right to expect that competent authorities will be on hand to interpret or explain such issues. This is particularly true regarding an issue as vital to both students and instructors alike, as the Tenney bill.

Does the faculty not realize the effect that such legislation would have on their teaching freedom? Surely they must know something about the bill and should be able to inform the students on what they know.

An issue as important to their future surely holds enough interest for them to become acquainted with the relative merits and demerits of such legislation.

If it doesn't—then they shouldn't be wasting their time trying to teach. If it does, they should be alert enough to pass along the information they gather from research, intelligent reading and study.

The capacity crowd that filled the student lounge Monday afternoon proved that a good percentage of the students are interested in current affairs and present day legislation. The faculty should take note of this fact and act accordingly.

• Fountain vs. Canteen

Editor, The Guardsman:

To add a bit of color to the fountain on the west campus, this suggestion is presented. The Jay-See Canteen would be an appropriate name for "the fountain."

Wherever GI's were one could be sure to find a local canteen where the fellows held end-of-the-day "session" to share their experiences of the day. Then, too, for the lucky stateside or Hawaii stationed servicemen the canteen meant relaxation, music, dances, girls and an all around good fellowship.

Would it not add a definite something to the fountain to call it "The Jay-See Canteen" (or facsimile)?

Topoian, Johnson 'Best Bets' As Six Ring Hopefuls Make Trek To Modesto For NCJCC Pugilistic Championships

Six would-be boxers passed the critical eye of Athletic Director Jack Gaddy last Monday night and will make the trip to Modesto today. Harry Topoian, 145 pounder, and Edgar Johnson, in the 175 class, stand out thus far as the best prospects to capture honors for the college.

Johnson exhibited good form in the first workout of the team. He is a Navy veteran of three years' service, is 28, and gained considerable ring experience overseas with the amphibious units. He will vie for the light heavyweight crown.

In sparring sessions earlier this week Topoian, who will be counted on by Gaddy to make a good showing for the Rams, showed that he was in excellent condition. In four continuous rounds against three different opponents, he exhibited plenty of foot-work, clever defense, and hard punches in close.

The four other pugilist contenders, and their weight divisions are as follows:

John Fisher, 115; Ken Unmack, 125; Bill Meier, 135, and Charles Bradbury, 135.

Gaddy does not feel too optimistic in view of the fact that these leather pushers have been limited to three weeks training, which is not sufficient for complete condition. Their only real pre-tournament opposition was supplied by the Lincoln High School team, mentored by Roy Diedrickson, who is also making the Southland trip.

Block SF Confab Today; Plan Dances, Banquets

During the college hour this morning, the campus' college Block SF Society will hold its first official meeting of the current semester in Room 194.

Last week's gathering was postponed because of the Associated Student Rally, however, honorary appointments for the block group prior to an official election went to Art Ekdall, president; Chuck Biess, vice-president; Marshall Leong, treasurer, and John Cooper, secretary.

"All athletes who have earned their blocks during the past year are urged to attend this meeting. Topics on the main list will include the plans for this term's dances and the block society banquet. Last semester's block society dances were rated as the best ever put on by a college group," was Biess' comment.

Also announced was the receiving of the football team's block sweaters and blocks. Last Fall's eleven hauled in the college's grid championship.

RAMblings . .

By Paul Cane

LIQUID sunshine was dumping itself all over the back yard clothes line one day last week, and we, taxing our pseudo instincts to the fullest degree, made haste for closest shelter.

It was a very welcome change from the usual bleak and barren doorstep, this refuge we chose, for we had been fortunate enough to invade that sacristy of college muscle, the men's gymnasium, and the men that put it there.

Our entry into the calisthenic dispensary went unnoticed, for at that very moment a bovine discussion was in progress and all hands were in participation. We moved our way into a secluded corner with a great deal of stealth.

A big, rugged looking fellow with a deep bass voice was talking. His tone was frightening, and we shook nervously for a moment lest he discover our presence and take means to forcibly eject us. We decided right then and there that we didn't ever want him mad at us. No siree! Not even for a minute.

But as he went on talking, all thought of his size, of his seemingly brusque nature, of his adamant exterior began to vanish. We listened to this man. We listened to him eagerly. AND WE BEGAN TO LIKE HIM.

We began to like his obvious sincerity; we began to appreciate his tender and friendly personality; and we began to look upon his logic with deference.

We say that his opinions, his ideas, his suggestions were esteemed by his colleagues also. The studious Tom Wilson was intently drinking in his offerings with an undeniable thirst; quasi baldpated Jim Jensen was meditating his last remarks; and the deeply lined face of Lee Eisan was aquiescent.

This, we thought, was a true paradox. Here was an individual that had proved himself an exact opposite of what we originally imagined. Here was a man possessing the coveted gift Dale Carnegie has made thousands of dollars exploiting.

Here, my fellow students, was William G. Fischer.

WAA Schedule Change; New Cage, Dance Time

The schedule for some of the Women's Athletic Association sports was changed recently, Gloria Swicegood, WAA adviser, announced today, and a new sign-up sheet in the women's gymnasium for basketball has been posted.

Time of the WAA modern dance class has been changed from 10 to 9 on Fridays. Because there were so few students to sign up for softball a new schedule will be arranged for it also.

Spartan Racketmen Wallop Rams, 10-0; USF, Gael Squads On Weekend Program

By Bill Covall

After starting the 1947 net campaign in a very unimpressive style, Coach Tom Wilson's charges tangle with topflight USF today at 2 p.m. on the Golden Gate Park courts and travel to Moraga to do battle with St. Mary's College tomorrow at 10:30 a.m.

The Tuesday duel with San Jose State was simply a Spartan party. The "Sutheners," led by Gene Franco, former Northern California Junior College champ, and Don McKenzie, ex-Lowell High star, swept through seven singles and three doubles matches without the loss of a single set.

Chances that the college netters will change their ways for today's outing with the Dons is unlikely. The Hilltoppers, boasting nationally ranked Harry Likas, backed up by Harry Roache and Con Catton, are regarded as the team to beat for the United States Intercollegiate title.

Official Northern California Junior College Conference play begins a week from tomorrow, when San Mateo Junior College plays host to the local contingent.

Individual match scores in the San Jose debacle are as follows:

Franco (SJ) def. Covall (SF) 6-3, 6-1.
McKenzie (SJ) def. Reed (SF) 6-4, 6-4.
Sargent (SJ) def. Barton (SF) 6-0, 6-1.
Terry (SJ) def. Fernbach (SF) 6-2, 6-2.
Sawyer (SJ) def. Goldman (SF) 6-0, 6-2.
Bischop (SJ) def. Cowderoy (SF) 6-0, 6-0.
Bulwa (SJ) def. Suftin (SF) 6-2, 6-0.

29 Teams Battle For Intra Hoop Laurels

With the first group of his 29 entries breaking from the barrier, Tom Wilson officially opened his spring intramural basketball tournament in the men's gymnasium on Wednesday last, March 12.

The action witnessed by the handful of spectators on that and the following day is but the opening movement of a score that calls for a lot of basketballs to be dropped through the mesh—whoosh, swish, or kerplunk style, as Wilson's schedule calls for six games to be played on three courts each week day excepting Fridays, with tipoff times listed at both 3:15 and 4:10.

To expedite the handling of the some 185 contesting basketeers, the enthusiastic skipper relegated his athletes to three Leagues:

Ten teams to the American, ten teams to the National, and, without intent to become facetious, the remaining nine teams to the Bush League.

These three leagues will be playing concurrently and, despite the fact that each team will have two games per week, they will in no way interfere with one another. The ultimate championship will be decided by a play-off series between each League winner.

Local Nine In Twin Bill Debut Today

Local baseball fans will get their first look at the 1947 edition of the Rams in action against top competition this afternoon, if the weather permits, when they meet the Sacramento Junior College Panthers in a twin-bill at Father Crowley Playground.

Both games will be played at the same time, one on the Harrison diamond and the other on the Clubhouse grounds. Starting time for both tilts has been set for 2:30 p.m.

Bill Fischer, mentor of the local contingent, expects these games to bring out the strong and weak points of his squad. With four days remaining before the season inaugural with Menlo Junior College, Fischer is desperately trying to mold a starting nine from his squad of 31 men. Hampered by the extremely wet weather, the squad has been unable to hold any organized practice sessions.

Fischer may have the answer to his pitching problems in the person of Lefty Janver, southpaw hurler, who shows signs of promise if he can gain a little control.

Last Saturday's game with the Santa Clara nine was called off because of wet grounds. Other practice tilts around the conference found the Modesto Junior College Pirates taking a twin-bill from San Mateo.

Track

Cinder Squad Nears Physical Peak For Opener At Salinas

With the rolling of the clay that has been distributed around the runway of the track, Coach Jim Jensen's spikemen have been able to shift into high gear in the delicate matter of arriving in top condition for the first meet with Salinas, March 22.

The high jump pit was in the process of being raked and spaded out last Friday, and work should be completed on it this week. Two of last season's point winners in the high jump and broad jump, Bill Barnes and John Didlo, are back this year but as yet have not been able to do any jumping, as the two pits have been resembling a tank trap for the better part of a year.

Bill Bahr, fresh from the basketball season, is back as a shot-putter, along with Glenn Hoffman. Tom Kellogg, point winner in the half mile, is still ailing, and it is doubtful if he will see any action at all.

Sprinters Jim Wyatt and Eddie Bryant, and distance men Bob Corredio and Ferdy Olivas are running slow quarter miles in practice, and won't be ready to "open up" for a week or two yet.

Because the inclement weather, which has been plaguing Coach Jensen's athletes for a good part of their early season training, the first organized meet which was to be held Tuesday last against our cross-town rivals from San Francisco State was cancelled. Jensen was expecting this opener to give him some idea of what he might expect of his harriers later on in the season.

New applicants for the track squad are welcome to see Coaches Jensen or Klemmer at any time and arrange for a tryout. Discus, shot-put and javelin men are especially urged to sign up.

Plans Are Laid To Organize Campus Unit As Part Of 233rd AA Artillery

Offering an opportunity for preparedness in the event of a future national emergency, a plan to effect the formation of a National Guard unit at the college was released yesterday by Captain Edward Terzian of the Adjutant General's Staff. Terzian proposed a liberal program of organization for the unit, which will be a component part of the 233rd Anti-Aircraft Artillery. This program allows the potential members of the group to vote for a tentative outline of organization.

ADVANTAGES and opportunities of the National Guard are being outlined to Don Cowderoy by Sergeant Joseph Hinten, who will be in the XGI office in Building 2 from March 17 through March 21. He will explain the future National Guard unit to be stationed at the college to all interested students. — Photo by Edwards.

Both veterans and non-veterans are eligible for enlistment in the unit. Veterans may enter at the rank with which they were separated from the service, and pay will range from $2.50 a week for the rank of private to $5.50 a week for master sergeants and first sergeants, and from $6 per week for warrant officers to $7.67 for the rank of captain.

When the unit is organized it will meet either once or twice a week for a two hour drill period at either the college gymnasium or at the National Guard Armory at 14th and Mission Streets. Tentative plans call for at least 30 men to form this unit, with age requirements set at 18 to 36.

Sergeant Joseph Hinten, assistant to Terzian, will be at the XGI office in Building 2 from March 17 through March 21 to give further information as to enlistment and future plans for the unit.

Terzian stressed the need for such a unit, saying that it is the duty of every man to prepare himself to defend our national security in case of another attack like Pearl Harbor.

All finances and equipment will be furnished by the federal government, and the specific purpose of the unit will be to defend the Bay Area in the event of danger from within or without. If agreeable to the members, a summer camp may be organized, and the drill periods will commence between now and June 30.

Big money doesn't talk. It hires a battery of lawyers.

Faculty Party Tonight Features Bridge, Bingo

The catering club unit of the hotel and restaurant division is increasing its services in planning a faculty party to be held at the student lounge of the west campus at 8 p.m. tonight.

Dancing, bridge, bingo will be on the faculty bill-of-fare at the party, also the serving of coffee and dessert. Music will be furnished by a juke box.

Counselling

Re-Admission Group Blocks 22

An official report on re-admission of students who acquired scholastic deficiencies during the fall semester of 1946 was released last week by Head Counsellor F. Grant Marsh.

Of the 329 students previously disqualified for poor scholarship, Marsh said that 155 appeared before the Re-Admission Committee, and 141 were granted admission, of which 75 were veterans.

All of the 25 transfer and former students who appeared before the committee during registration were re-admitted, Marsh continued, and only one of the 22 students who came before the special committee was denied re-admission.

Of the 117 disqualified students who were granted re-admission at the beginning of the fall semester, 1946, 15 were officially rejected at the end of that semester. Six of these appeared before the committee and three were denied re-admission.

"A student must appear before the Re-Admission Committee following excessive cutting or violation of probation," Marsh warned.

AGS To Aid Students Having Grade Problems

Offering personal counselling to students of this college by the Alpha Gamma Sigma, honor society, Adviser Edwin Cranston declared tutoring will start the week following the first mid-term examinations. Further information on this program will be announced in the near future.

Cranston urged all veterans to take advantage of this service if they are having troubles with their studies.

Merchandising

Formal Dedication Of Store In May

Due to arrive some time in May, S. W. Pettigraw, head of the Sears Roebuck & Co. in Los Angeles, will formally dedicate the retail store unit of the college. The retail store unit was presented to the college as an addition to the merchandising department by Sears Roebuck & Co. last spring.

Appreciative of this gift, Virginia Gohn, in charge of the merchandising department, has planned the dedication to be held in the classroom where the unit is located, and a luncheon following the ceremony to be served in the cafeteria. All faculty members and store executives are invited to attend the event.

Because of lack of space, students of the merchandising classes were not asked to participate in the luncheon.

The merchandising department of the college has been in effect since 1939, but because of the recent addition of the retail unit, which provides actual displays resembling retail store models of merchandise, laboratory apparatus useful to the students studying selling techniques, and a study of store operation practices, a tremendous improvement in the course has taken place.

The student majoring in merchandising works an average of 15 hours a week each semester, and finds that the use of practical methods of selling, learned in the retail selling courses, help immeasurably toward good salesmanship, Miss Gohn said.

• TZN: All members are invited to attend the cultural-social meeting to be held on March 21, at 619 32nd Avenue, at 8 o'clock.

Caterers Offer Services For Any On-Campus Event

Extending its catering service to any social event on the college campus, the Hotel and Restaurant Management Society is urging all organizations desiring this free service to contact the society planning committee at the cafeteria, it was announced today by Robert Barrett, head.

Barrett asserted that "the purpose of the society is not only in catering but also in helping plan events, decorations of any sort and make the procedure of preparation for such an event an easier task."

Assisted by a staff including Sam Morris, Bob Power, Paul Larquier, Hal O'Keefe and Jim Denton, Barrett added, "Our object is to gain experience in catering and to further the prestige and capability of our talents."

CATERING SERVICE for all social events held on the college campus is the aim of the Hotel and Restaurant Management Society. XGI's Form Flying Club, Plan To Purchase Plane

That plans are under way for a flying committee, to be formed by contributions of members to buy a private plane, was disclosed by XGI President John Tolly this week.

This flying committee is open to all XGI's who are interested in flying, Tolly said. By contributions of $10 or $12 by each member, enough money can be raised to buy the plane.

Instruction in flying will be given for little or no fees by an XGI who was a pilot instructor in the Army for two years.

Those interested in the committee can so inform John Tolly in the XGI office from 2 to 4 p.m. any day of the week.

President Cloud Stresses Increased Importance Of Junior Colleges, Their Role In Securing World Peace

Last Monday heralded the return of Dr. A. J. Cloud, president of the college, from a trip to the East, where he had attended various annual meetings of scholastic organizations. At these meetings, problems confronting higher educational institutions in the coming years were discussed.

Dr. Cloud's first stop was at St. Louis for the 27th annual meeting of the American Association of Junior Colleges.

Present were more than 400 representatives of junior colleges from all over the nation who discussed, among other topics, the role of the junior college in securing peace in the world.

John Dale Russell, director of the division of higher education of the United States Office of Education, in an address before the convention stated that college enrollments will remain swollen from 50 to 100 per cent above pre-war peaks until 1960 or 1965. This means that higher educational facilities must be expanded, he added.

According to Dr. Cloud, the role of the junior college is becoming increasingly important as an intermediate institution, and many new junior colleges have been organized, particularly in the eastern and southern states.

Dr. Cloud also attended the annual meeting of the American Association of School Administrators in Atlantic City, where approximately 11,000 administrative officials from the nation's educational institutions discussed the problems of universal education for peace.

Among the principal speakers at the convention were Senator Taft, Secretary of the Interior Krug, and Dr. James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard.

A plan was discussed which, in cooperation with the United Nations, would provide for an interchange of teachers between the United States and foreign countries for the purpose of putting on an international program of peace through education.

AFTER FIVE YEARS OF SLEEPING on its back, the Ram has arisen and will stand on its feet, to guard the west campus. The Ram, who is the symbol of the college, originally was part of the exhibits shown at the San Francisco World's Fair, held at Treasure Island during 1939-40. He was carved by Dudley Carter, and presented to the students by the college architect, the late Timothy Pflauger. Plans are now under way for the Ram to be painted. Pictures shown here were taken during the difficult operation of raising the 3,000 pound Ram, by workers supplied by the Board of Education. —Photo by Lum.

Student Council

Three Campus Leaders Appointed To NSO

Representatives to the National Students Organization were appointed at last Thursday's council meeting, which will meet at the University of California Saturday and Sunday, March 22 and 23. Although not officially a member of the N.S.O., the college has been invited to send three voting delegates and three observers.

Appointed by the council, the delegates, Bob McHenry, Roberta Robb, and Don Burger, and the observers, Gloria Wu, Millie Laube, and Nick Dirtiman, will sit in at the meeting, and decide the advisability of permanently associating this college with the organization.

A committee was appointed by President Trev Burrow to discuss with President A. J. Cloud the possibility of changing the name of the college to San Francisco City College.

Members of the committee are Pat Pollack, Frank Nelson, Millie Laube, and Roberta Robb.

Burrow delegated Jim Edwards to ascertain the possibility of having the Ram painted red and white.

No College Hour For Friday; Mid-Terms End

There will be no college hour this Friday, March 21, the registrar's office announced last week. The reason for this change is that Friday ends the first mid-term period and examinations.

Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, said that Wednesday and Thursday of the following week will follow the college hour schedule for the distribution of mid-term grades, with Friday a regular activity college hour.

Tri E

Frat Goes All Out On Student Card Sales

Tri Epsilon's all-out campaign for student card sales is approaching the "singing commercial" stage.

Together with Arthur L. Martin, former student here, the fraternity has prepared and recorded five spot commercials to be used on the college's public address system during the coming weeks.

The voices heard in the recordings are those of Kem Stewert, Jack Rhodes, and Arthur Martin.

Service Times Gives Vets Credit In College

All veterans who have not yet had their military experience evaluated are requested by Helen Kibbee, assistant registrar, to take care of this immediately.

F. Grant Marsh, head counselor also stated that all men in the service for 90 days would receive credit for six units of basic training for hygiene and physical education.

Veterans may report to William Ogle of the counselling center to have their service records cleared. No deadline has been set as yet.

Ram

Carved Symbol Of Mascot Standing Firmly After 5 Year Rest

By Paul Cane

After five long years of a veritable static existence, the wooden Ram, symbol of the college and its 5,200 students, has finally been placed on active duty.

The 3,000 pound figure, carved from a redwood tree stump by the "axe" of Dudley C. Carter, wood sculptor, assumed its position at the north entrance to the west campus on Tuesday, March 12, at 10:45. Trev Burrow, president of the Associated Students, made the affair official by shoveling the first spade of cement.

Guardsman photographers lent the scene an air of importance with the flashing of bulbs and the clicking of shutters.

The Ram, as yet unnamed, made its original public debut during the San Francisco World's Fair in 1939-'40, appearing in one of the many California handicraft exhibits.

At the conclusion of the fair the college architect, the late Timothy Pfleuger, presented the Ram to President A. J. Cloud to serve in the capacity it now occupies.

When President Cloud received the gift more than five years ago, it was stored in the men's gymnasium because of the absence of a place considered appropo for the erection.

With the acquisition of the west campus, however, the administration retrieved the Ram from its sepulchre in the gymnasium and immediately began preparations for the "raising" in its present position.

Barn Dance Slated For March 28 by AMS

The Associated Men Students have plans for a yet unnamed committee to find some corn stalks and other decorations that will make the west campus auditorium rustic enough for the barn dance Friday, March 28.

Walt Tolson and his band are expected to furnish the music; the band consists of seven pieces and a vocalist.

Costume for the men is "levis," and the women are to appear in cotton dress. The custom of the AMS furnishing refreshments goes overboard; the AMS plans to sell cokes in an effort to overcome the blight of the insufficient budget allowance.

The financial crisis in Associated Student activities is credited to the much publicized shortage in the sale of Associated Student cards.

If You Lose It Or Find It, See Dean

Students who have lost any possessions this semester were warned by Dean Edward Sandys to report at once to his office in Building 2.

Sandys declared that lost articles which are unclaimed for a period of five months will be donated to charitable organizations.

Among the most frequently lost items are pens (including the kinds that write under water), slide rules, combs, books (without which courses won't mean a thing).

In a previously released announcement, Sandys stated that lost articles should be turned in either at the telephone exchange, near the registrar's office, or his office in Building 2.

Air Line Offers Talk On Women In Aviation

Representatives of United Air Lines will speak to all women students of the college at a meeting scheduled by the Associated Women Students for Friday, April 25, according to Margaret Dougherty, dean of women.

The speakers will discuss the women's field in aviation.

"Since the meeting will take place during the college hour, I would like the women's organizations to cancel their activities for that day," Miss Dougherty said.

Something Wrong? See Dr. Jones, Campus Remedy Man

By Hank Weiss

If you're suffering from malfunctioning eyiia or a troubled Tibia, the man to sooth your aching woes is stationed right here on the campus—available any time in the morning.

He is Thomas Jones, M.D., physician for the college for the past two years.

The "Aggbs" and gurgles eminating daily from his office are auditory indications that Dr. Jones has assumed his post behind his stethoscope and is busily engaged restoring defective physiques to normal.

Dr. Jones carries on this work of revitalizing the health of sickly scholastics to the tune of an average of over 100 repairs a week.

One of the most common, mechanical disturbances has proved to be the common cold, with sore throats and skin abrasions (Charlie horses) placing close seconds.

Dr. Jones confines his practice entirely to younger men and women. He has been affiliated with the Board of Health and the San Francisco Board of Education in this connection for a good number of years.

One of the Doctor's current peeves centers about the inconvenience, expense, and health risks veterans inflict upon themselves, unwittingly ignorant of the medical attention and benefits offered to them for service instigated disabilities by the hospital services of the Veterans Administration.

THE MEDICINE MAN at the college is Dr. Thomas Jones. For those students who have health problems, he is available every morning of the college week. Dr. Jones has been at the college for the past two years. —Photo by Edwards.

Even if you may never have need for professional attention while you're around the campus, it's always nice to know there's a capable, well-trained stethoscope on hand to assist in any emergency.

College Physician Says Vet Waivers Not Final

Health waivers signed by veterans upon discharge from the service which stated that the veteran was discharged without claim to medical treatment for disabilities incurred while in the armed forces are not final testimonials, Dr. Thomas Jones, college physician, reports.

"Many veterans had some sort of illness when they were separated from the service. However, their illness may have been dormant or inactive at the time of discharge and not noticed in the final medical examination.

"Nevertheless," Doctor Jones commented, "these ex-service people are eligible for treatment by the government upon giving satisfactory proof that their sickness had been contacted or formented by their sojourn in the military forces."

Veterans who think their malady was contacted in the service are encouraged to arrange for government sponsored treatment through their own private physician or any accredited member of the California Physicians' Association.

Further information or guidance can be obtained from the office of the college physician any time in the morning before 11:30.

Tenney Bill

It Can Happen Here

WAY back in 1932, a guy named Adolf Hitler was rapidly becoming the big gun in German politics. He was an idea man, and now, 15 years later, we discover that our own country can learn from his ideas.

"Say," said Adolf one day to his assorted group of associates, "I know how we can get the kids to fight another war for us." (Adolf's reference to another war was to the fiasco that ended in 1918.)

Pressed by his circle of friends, Adolf told of his plan to rewrite all the text books. "If we don't let them know about the rest of the world, they'll never want any more than we give them."

Thus there came into existence a new race of people; narrow minded, arrogant, possessive, who called themselves the Nazi youth.

These youth are the Werewolves of today. They are the people who are so indoctrinated with the New Order that they can no longer recognize free thought, honest writing, and truthful speaking.

America must now spend millions of dollars, and an estimated 40 years, re-educating Germany. The generation that parallels our college students of today may never forget the glory of their New Order and never accept the fact that there is any other way of life on earth worth living except their trained Nazi way.

We must start training with the very young, and then we must train their children before our job is complete.

After seeing all this in Europe, we are blindly thinking of putting restrictions on the literature and learning of our own young. Any information that does not brag about the American way of life is treasonous, is the claim by narrow-minded politicians in our government.

Do these people want us to raise an unthinking, blind to the truths-of-life generation? Is this not still a country of free thought?

How can we be fools enough even to consider the Tenney Bill?

After Dark

This Column Is Written by Gordon Smith

CURRENTLY enjoying an upswing in popularity is W. Somerset Maugham's latest novel, The Razor's Edge, first published by the McCall Corporation in 1943.

This grand new kind of story lays waste the sniping arguments of those who are inclined toward scoffing at the profound idealism manifested by people who try to perceive some good in everyone, and somehow manage to view life from the brighter side.

Larry Darnell, the book's most outstanding character, returns from the service after the close of the first World War to discover that America is a land of business speculation and brimming over with quicksilver prosperity. His fiancee, accustomed to luxury, does not fully understand or appreciate his newly acquired sense of values. Larry cannot be satisfied with the life of a social hypocrite, and so begins his quest for a higher truth, and the answer to the mockery of man's birth.

Background for the story is situated mainly in Europe; however, the most significant climax occurs in India, where Larry, under the saintly influence of an Indian teacher, discovers the personal revelation of truth in the Absolute.

Other characters in the book merely add the sparkling color which the author gives to all his literature; none, however, detract from the brilliance of the main person. There is, for example, Elliot Templeton, an epicure-dilletante who is the uncle to Larry's fiancee. Another by the name of Sophie, who, in her youth, is a warm and romantic girl, but later develops into a hopeless nymphomaniac.

Circumstance weaves a peculiar story pattern, but one which will serve to keep the interest of the reader constantly stimulated. From the beginning the story is narrated from the opposite extremes of the human goal, and throughout eloquently illustrates the overwhelming diversity of man's nature.

Around and About with Nagle

A STARK announcement that "registration for Alphabet 1A classes is now under way" is very likely to be placed before any student intending to drink from the fountain of knowledge next semester.

But a drought is approaching in the form of statewide legislation.

If the proposed legislation is passed, all controversial matter will be excluded from state-endowed schools, unless an authorized group OK's the teaching of such matter.

Is there much controversial matter?

Take a look at the history department. Some of the authorities could be northerners, some southerners. Therefore, the settlement of the Civil War is still held in abeyance, and Civil War study is scratched. Every phase of history receives the same treatment. Even America's discoverer? Columbus or Amerigo Vespucci? A professor can't even mention the word "America" because apparently it hasn't been discovered yet. Hence no history courses.

Economics is full of controversial data. And each scholar, thinking of the "better monsetrap," writes a new text with his own pet theories expounded and emphasized. So the officials must read everything to decide which will be acceptable. This is drudgery, and economics is hurled with a 21 gun salute.

In the language field the problem of slighting France if more students enroll in Spanish 21A than in French 21A arises. So in order not to admit that the youth of today are interested in Spain, the entire subject is dropped like a hot potato.

Queries such as "Did Shakespeare really write Shakespeare, or was it a ghost writer?" eliminate English literature from the field; while composition would be banned because a student might write something controversial and the instructors, not knowing how to cope with such problems, would have to refer the creative art to the authorities for action.

Another art of the legislation proposes that sex instruction be eliminated until the 12 grade. At that time instruction by licensed personnel would be given. In other words, the stork and Santa Claus would be the "real McCoy" until the senior year of high school. Then the good Doctor would enter and tell all the kiddies that Santa was a myth, and that the stork ain't —but cell reproduction is.

Isn't education wonderful?

Education Under Proposed New Bill; Constellation Trouble

EDUCATION is on the verge of going underground in the state of California.

Under the proposed Tenney bill now before the State Legislature, education, as it is taught in state schools, would undergo complete control at whims of an appointed board swinging the whip in Sacramento.

The Tenney bill calls for a ban on the teaching of any subject which is either controversial, denominational, sectarian, or prohibitionary.

Reinisch

Hilltop Manner

"ALL right, let's have a little less noise in here, please."

Every person pursuing knowledge in a library or reading room is familiar with this gentle rebuke which is forthcoming whenever the rising tide of vocalization penetrates to the dispatcher's desk.

From the time of early childhood, all through grammar school, whenever the occasion arises, youngsters are instilled with the idea that the library is a hallowed place.

Each one who enters its sacred portals is obliged, out of sheer reverence, to mentally cut out his wagging tongue, tiptoe taciturnly, book in hand, to an inconspicuous, uncomfortable chair, and completely lose himself from the world.

To accomplish this masterful feat, it has generally been conceded that the cooperation of all present is necessary.

The only possible strife may occur when "foreign elements" disrupt the holy chamber. Upon the entrance of those hapless uninitiated ones, a word from the throne like, "All right, will you get settled in here, please?" is usually sufficient to subdue the tempest.

However, as often happens when despotism rules, the condition of the subjects sometimes becomes helpless. What a shame, when work is dutifully being perused by all, that whispering chit-chat from the distinguished corner should suddenly resolve itself into gales of piercing mirth.

And what could be more disillusioning to disturbed subjects, when, lifting their eyes, they behold none other than their rulers, surrounded by their immediate court, engaged in the pleasantries of an indolent, unproductive realm.

Ah, yes, but remember! Comes the revolution.

A COMPOSER BY TRADE

This far-reaching piece of legislature is the brainchild of one State Senator Jack Tenney, who, the last time he picked up a pen, composed the well known tune, "Mexicali Rose."

Unlike his famous composition, however, his latest tune can't be jammed on a juke box.

It stands close to being jammed down the throats of 5,000 students here, whether they like the lyrics or not.

In addition to knocking out cute little Tin Pan Alley ditties the good Senator spends his time in chasing Reds about the state.

He uncovered a whole gang of potential Communists in the northern part of the state recently when he sat in on a sex education lecture.

It's amazing the fields revolutionists hide in these days.

This bill wouldn't exactly reduce the college to an empty shell.

Such choice little items as basket-weaving, ceramics, woodcarving and horticulture would remain on the curriculum for the eager student to round out his well balanced education.

Probably a music course would be offered, provided the instructor offered Mexicali Rose as the only sheet music available.

TWA EXPERIMENTS

A good example of the airlines helping in wrecking their own prestige occurred recently over the Atlantic aboard a TWA Constellation .

A navigator, shooting his position through the astrodome was blown completely through the plastic blister and fell 19,000 feet into the ocean.

Knowing pressurized cabins are still in an experimental state, the air lines still insist on risking their passengers' necks while trying out new methods.

This was a common incident during the war, and it got so bad on board B-29's that gunners were forced to strap themselves to their positions with heavy harnessing.

More than one waist gunner spent time dangling out of a gaping hole in the fuselage where the plexiglass blister had blown it and him out into space.

Despite the vast sums spent in aeronautical research by the aircraft companies, it still takes a continuing parade of dead crewmen to bring home the fact that something is definitely wrong with the present system of pressurized cabins in bombers and commercial liners.

Veteran Declaims Lack Of G. I. Funds For Student Fee, Wants Social Life

• C'mon, Uncle Sam

Editor, The Guardsman:

We know that being in a public school, which does not compel us to purchase Associated Student Body cards, also automatically excludes all veterans from purchasing student body cards under their G. I. benefits. We also realize that it is rather futile to try to buck the Attorney General or the Veterans Administration offices on this regulation. However, here are a few points for all veterans to argue on, regarding student body cards.

Just what is schooling composed of?

While we were in high school were reading, writing and listening to long lectures our only chores of the day? Didn't we have a student body dance in the gym every now and then, or a weekly or biweekly school paper to look forward to usually? Didn't we have a complete line of intramural and major sports all financed by our student body cards? Didn't we have many other social and scholastic activities also sponsored by the local student body to look forward to at the end of the semester?

We usually considered our student body card a "must."

The federal government has very generously consented to help finance our way through college. But why is it that veterans are denied the above mentioned part of this scholastic training by the government's refusal to finance their student body "dues"?

Has all public schooling become so formal and austere since we left our last institute of learning, so as to include solely reading, writing and the long lectures or has the government decided to go only half way and deny us the other half?

I say it should also include the other half (the more pleasant half).

S. F. State Plays Host To Cindermen In Rescheduled Meet This Afternoon At 2; Conference Opens Saturday At Salinas

By Dayton Lawson

What with the inclement weather and the condition of the track, Coach Jim Jensen's little band of cindermen have not been rounding into the sort of condition expected of them for their initial debut against Salinas, come the middle of the month.

First off, the scheduled practice meet with San Francisco State had to be called off last Tuesday, and is now set for today, weather permitting.

Next, hurdler Dick Mason, a former Fairfield (Calif.) High School boy, comes up with heel bruises and swollen tendons, and will have to wait for them to loosen up a bit, before doing any more strenuous practice.

Given an even break in regard to the weather, however, Coaches Jensen and Grover Klemmer think that their charges might be able to lick the elements and the injuries, and come up fighting for their Salinas set-to.

Richard Gardener, a timbertopper hailing from Montezuma prep school down south, runs both the high and the low hurdles, and is one of the many new men showing early season form. He, together with the aforementioned Mason, should show much improvement as the warm weather comes on.

RAMblings . .

By Arnold Wechter

A FEW weeks ago we happened to make the statement in this column that college baseball is very boring. Since making that statement the roof has about collapsed around our head. Art Paymiller of The Guardsman sports staff (he covers baseball) tells us that we have Bill Fischer, coach of the Ram baseball team, looking for us with fire in his eyes.

Now if there is anyone we want to keep on good terms with, it is Mr. Fischer, he's a big man, too big to argue with. We also received a letter from Robert Tatum (no relation to the famous piano player), who states in no uncertain terms what he thinks of us, and we quote, "If you know anything about baseball, you wouldn't write trash like that," and he concludes his letter by saying, "Any guy who thinks baseball is boring is illiterate."

To set the record straight, we did not write that baseball is boring; we wrote that COLLEGE baseball is boring. In fact, we will go even further, baseball isn't even a major sport at college and should be reduced to a minor sport.

To prove this fact, just look at attendance figures for college baseball games. Not even the big universities have decent attendance figures for their baseball games. Why? Because the game is boring from a spectators' point of view, and the class of play is below the standard of minor league professional baseball. We hope that we still can be friends of Mr. Fischer and Mr. Tatum.

WAA Riding Club Tops Postwar Activities

Coeducational sports put in their first post-war appearance at the college this semester in the form of a Women's Athletic Association riding club, which will meet Tuesdays at 4:30 p.m. at the San Francisco Riding School, Stanyan and Haight Streets.

Anyone who wishes to join may sign up in the women's gymnasium.

Before the war the riding club's main event was the production of a full-fledged horse show.

"Harmony" In Men's Gymnasium

With Men Who Know Ram Coaches Best It's U. Of Calif., Three To One

By Sam Goldman

Amidst the wild growth of trees, bushes, and cactus plants in the eastern valley of the college campus there stands a modern structure commonly referred to as the "men's gymnasium." Between the hours of 8:10 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., there resides within this building a group of college grads in physical education who have been titled the coaches.

The student who ventures into this "dream castle" would believe that the coaches get along with each other honky-and-dory. However, such is not life.

Step inside, and what do you hear? California is the best team." "Now, before you hit me with that racket, Lee, what has Cal done that my alma mater hasn't already done in its history, other than firing a coach?" is the reply from his floored opponent.

A simultaneous group of loud roars is echoed throughout the office, the vocal vibrations of Monsieurs Bill Fischer and gym boss Jack Gaddy praising the qualities of their respective alma maters.

So strong and consistent are the daily verbal battles which rage between the instructors, that recently St. Mary's lone representative, "Deacon" Fischer, issued forth an SOS. (Save Our School) for any Moraga alumnus.

The Golden Bears from Berkeley hold the majority rule within the polished doors of the men's private palace. The Grover Klemmer, Lee Elsan, and Ralph Hillsman combine outnumber their co-educators in case of any disputes which question "the qualities of their former U.C. home."

Don't let anyone deceive you that the bay city U.S.F. homes of Jack Gaddy and Dean Jack Brady don't receive representation in the verbal goings on. Dean Brady, who at one time resided in the lower portion of the campus area, usually jaunts down to the gym whenever "Giant Jackson" Gaddy needs any assistance in defense of their former collegiate residence, the University of San Francisco.

"Put that baseball bat down, Bill." "But wait a moment, Tom, C.O.P. may be the C.B.A.A. champ, but remember when Washington State's ——."

Anyhow, it's a continuous battle. Step inside the office some quiet afternoon and just listen.

Maybe you'll even hear Mrs. Hush, or what have you.

Three Basketball Leagues In Intra Go; Badminton, Ping Pong On Future Dates

Rapidly assuming patch-quilt proportions, Tom Wilson's "best ever" intramural tourney has left its embryonic development and is now approaching the "I'm a big boy" stage.

The basketball leagues (three of 'em) have been in operation since March 12; the badminton and ping pong contests make their debut this week; and swimming, tennis, and track applicants are enrolling now.

Such a program (Wilson still has hoxing, soft ball, and touch football to offer) is deserving of promotion from the past skeptical references. This intramural competition is quickly becoming a fitting enterprise for even some of the self-styled "campus big-wheels."

"Any venture which is capable of attracting in excess of 225 student participants is definitely a big league project, and is entitled to big league praise," Wilson calculated.

As an example of the type of showmanship the boss man's athletes feature, he offers the basketball game today between the Sugar Mountain Boys and Beta Phi Beta.

The tip-off time for this conflict is listed for 3:10 in the men's gymnasium.

Rams, Menlo Clash On Diamond Today

It's "Play Ball!" in the NCJCC this afternoon, as the local Ram nine inaugurates the 1947 baseball season with the Menlo Junior College Oaks at Father Crowley Playground. Festivities are slated to begin at 2:30 p.m.

Blessed with sunshine during their final days of practice, Bill Fischer's men of swat will take the diamond in top condition for the defense of their 1946 laureis.

Fischer has nominated big Jim Hughes to wheel them in for the Phelan Avenue squad. Hughes has shown the most ability during the practice season, and although short on experience, possesses a varied assortment of pitching wares.

Veteran George Hornsey will receive the right-handed slants of Hughes behind the plate.

The local's starting infield will consist of Al Ganem at third base, Bob Nard at shortstop, and Art Clrimele on the initial sack. Fischer is undecided as yet between Bill Broderson or Bill Maxey for the second base position.

The infield will be small and fast for the most part, with Ganem expected to wield the big stick among the infielders.

The main power punch of Fischer's aggregation will be provided by the outfield. With Chet Anderson in right field, Zane Kaplan in center and Ernie Donecus in left, the outfield will not only be strong at bat, but rates among the best defensive trios in the circuit. Anderson led the pennant-winners last year with a .372 average.

Although little is known about the Oaks, the Rams will be favored to take the decision from the visiting firemen.

The Rams will also play two practice tilts this week. Tomorrow they renew their annual series with San Francisco State, on the Gator's field, and Thursday they face the Sacred Heart High School nine on the green at Ocean View.

Netters In Final Prep Tomorrow For Conference Opener

Still in quest of their first net victory, Tom Wilson's thrice beaten band of raqueteers take a long trip south tomorrow when they engage a mystery tennis aggregation from Santa Clara University.

This will be the final tuneup before the conference opener with San Matea Junior College this coming Saturday, March 22.

On the local scene the Ram netters have been practicing diligently and with the unexpected addition of Frank Haggerty, erstwhile prep star, Coach Wilson looks for a fairly successful conference season.

From advance reports, the opening conference match with San Mateo should be the toughest. Led by Frank Sample, well known Bay Area netter, who is backed by an evenly balanced squad, the Bulldogs from down peninsula way are top heavy favorites to cop the NCJCC tennis title.

The conference matches will decide the team champions, but the individual title honors will be fought for at the all-conference meet held at Stockton over the May 30 Memorial Day weekend.

Forum Magazine Appropriations Are Set At $1,575; Staff Awards Contemplated

At a recent meeting of the student council, appropriations for the Forum Magazine amounting to $1,575 were announced, said Kenneth Ford, editor of the magazine. This sum will be used to cover the cost of printing the magazine in its entirety and the distribution of prizes which will be awarded the best literary and art works submitted.

Now that there are no financial concerns, the staff and the advisory board is going ahead with full conviction in turning out the finest college literary magazine in the Bay Area. The price of the magazine is tentatively set at 50 cents per copy, Ford said.

The deadline for incoming material is still set for Friday, April 11, 1947, while competition is getting more apparent in lieu of the quality of material thus far submitted, Ford added.

Hitherto some material has been held back because the contributor heard rumors to the effect that the "Forum is not getting enough dough to make it good," and other such unfounded information.

"Contributions turned in earlier for consideration will of course have a slight edge on those turned in on the eleventh hour; it is something that cannot be helped. It takes a great deal of time to thoroughly examine and evaluate literary and artistic material to the satisfaction of the entire staff. Consider the time element when you decide to wait a while; turn it in now," Ford emphasized.

Tau Chi Sigma Fetes Platter Dance Friday

Relief from "mid-term nerves" can be obtained at the Mid-Term Mingle, Tau Chi Sigma's dance to be held Friday, March 21, in the student lounge.

Music will be by name bands (recordings) and dancing will be from 8 to midnight, according to Ray "Dutch" Welch, president of the organization. Welch further stated that dress would be sports-informal, and that admission will be 50 cents per couple.

Students To Entertain At Letterman Hospital

In the first of the series of musical programs to be given regularly at Letterman Hospital, Peggy Gay and Ray Abad will entertain the patients with their accordions on Tuesday, March 25, Flossita Badger, choral director, disclosed.

In addition to playing the accordion, Miss Gay will also sing some popular tunes.

Abad and Miss Gay, both active A Cappella members, were prominent entertainers at last semester rallies.

Contestants chosen by the talent audition committee will be the featured performers in the two programs scheduled for April. Throughout the future months the hospital patients will see and hear other successful students chosen by the committee.

The tremendous ovation that was given the choir at a performance there during last Christmas vacation and requests for more programs led to the formation of this plan for regular hospital shows.

Curriculum

Bass Offers New Math Statistics Course

Any students who are interested in a course of mathematical statistics parallel to University of California's course are advised to inform Thomas Bass, head of the mathematics department, or John Carson, who specializes in this subject.

If enough interest is shown in this course, Bass said, it will probably be placed on the college curriculum next fall semester or possibly during this summer session.

Capellas Heads XGI Flying Committee

Plans for organizing an XGI flying committee have been announced by John Tolly, XGI Society president. The committee, to be headed by Donald Capellas, former Army flying instructor, will be composed of veterans interested in flying.

"Details for purchasing a trainer to conduct flying instructions and securing Civil Acronautics Association permission will be discussed during our next XGI meeting," Tolly announced. The expenses of this project and the cost to each individual will vary with the number of veterans involved, he added.

All veterans interested are urged to attend the XGI meeting to be held March 28 at the War Memorial Building, Van Ness at McAllister.

National Guard

Enlistment Campaign Impetus Stepped-Up

Commencing a series of national hook-up broadcasts featuring Paul Whiteman and his Orchestra, the National Guard Hour will be heard on Wednesdays from 6:00 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. on station KGO, Captain Edward Terzian announced.

Information concerning the drive to form National Guard units will be give potential joiners a better view given potential joiners a better view of the organization and its functions.

Terzian added that in addition to the broadcasts, there will appear in the March 22 edition of Collier's, The Saturday Evening Post, Look, and Life Magazines, a full page advertisement as another means of informing those who are interested in the National Guard unit of its many benefits, activities, and purposes.

Dr. Thomas Jones, the college physician, has volunteered to give physical examinations to those college students interested in joining the college unit of the National Guard.

Both veterans and non-veterans are eligible for enlistment in the unit, Terzian said, and his assistant, Sergeant Joseph Hinton, will be present in the XGI office in Building 2 from March 7 to March 21 to give more extensive and comprehensive information to those questions that may arise.

Terzian pointed out as one of the many advantages of the National Guard is the service schools.

Two Travel 5,000 Miles For Study

By John Hulse

Two Filipino students, one of them blinded at Bataan, arrived in San Francisco March 3, and are now full time students of this college.

They are Aurelio Laigo, 29, a former Filipino Scout of the 45th infantry, who lost his sight in the battle of Bataan, and his companion, Santos Abuan, 27, a member of the underground movement at Luzon.

BLIND FILIPINO war hero, Aurelio Laigo, and his guide, Santos Abuan, are attending the college, so that they may help their devastated country when they return at the completion of their education to start a blind school. Photo by Wachter.

Laigo declared that he is attending this college in order to make up high school deficiencies. He later plans to go to a university and learn the teaching of Braille.

Abuan is at the college for preparatory work in the field of scientific technology. He said that both he and his companion "desire to get an education that will help us rebuild our devastated homeland."

"As each of these men has been through a great deal," an official stated, "and Laigo was blinded and later injured again while hospitalized and was confined in a 'death camp,' we urge all students to show them every possible consideration."

Charters Due For Renewal, Review By Board March 28

Renewal of club charters is on the agenda of the Club Advisory Board, with deadline for submission of charter applications set for next Friday, March 28.

George Bachman, CAB president, explained the board action as a regular procedure which provides for a check of active and inactive clubs.

"Frequently," he pointed out, "a club becomes inactive, and former members do not inform the Club Advisory Board. The club's name is carried on Associated Student lists and may be included in regular correspondence. In calling for renewal of charters, the board can determine immediately what clubs are actually active on the campus."

Current renewal of charters includes mainly a list of all active members and any changes in name or constitution of the present charter, Bachman said.

This responsibility of the board is provided for by the Associated Student constitution. It is expected to review club charters annually in addition to recommending to the Student Council the charter of or withdrawal of charter from college organizations.

PRESIDENT of the Club Advisory Board George Bachman. The board has the authority to pass on all clubs which are active on the campus. He is also a former president of the XGI Society, and is very active in student affairs. Veterans will remember him for his efforts to solve the housing problem on the campus.—Photo by Edwards.

XGIs Lay Ground Work For New Flying Club

Plans for the XGI Flying Club will be completed at the XGI meeting in the War Memorial Building, Hall Number 1, Van Ness and McAllister, at 8 p.m., Friday, March 28, John Tolly, XGI president, revealed this week.

The club is an organization to which all XGIs may belong, and, by individual contributions, a private plane will be bought and free instruction in flying given, Tolly said.

Definite plans will be made, also, for the forthcoming XGI Ruptured Duck Waddle III, of which the tentative feature attraction is the election of an XGI Campus Queen. Refreshments will be served.

Junior Colleges To Confer At Visalia

Associated Student officers from the college will meet with student officers from junior colleges throughout the state at the second meeting of the California College Student Government Conference, Dr. J. Paul Mohr, college vice-president, revealed this week.

The meeting is scheduled for Saturday, March 22, at Visalia, and is the second meeting of the conference, organized last semester.

Fifty-two junior colleges were represented at the gathering last semester, the first of its type in the annals of student government.

Song Contest

Three Best Entries Will Win Prizes

With entries already pouring in for the college song contest, students are again urged to submit their tunes to Room 200 or to any member of the judging committee before Tuesday, April 15.

Amateur song writers have the chance to enter their college songs, thus qualifying them for a chance at the three cash prizes, amounts to be announced later.

In launching this contest, similar to one held several years ago, Flossita Badger, choral director, is acting on the suggestion of Dean Edward E. Sandys to obtain new songs for games and rallies to add to the present roster of three.

The songs, Alma Mater, Ram's Cheer, and Fight On, were all composed by former students of this college.

Original or semi-original songs are desired as entries—that is, tunes with creative words and music or songs with original lyrics set to previously written melodies. Songs should be ones that can be easily learned and sung by the students, Miss Badger has emphasized.

Students may submit one or more songs to the judging committee which includes Dean Sandys, Assistant Dean John Brady, Rally Commissioner Jim Mann, the presidents of the college music societies, including the Symphony Forum, and the faculty of the music department, Miss Badger, Madison Devlin, and Gertrude Norgard.

In addition to college-spirited songs, tunes in a serious mood are also acceptable. To qualify for first prize, however, songs entered in the contest must have both originally composed words and music.

Traffic Violations

Property Owners Lodge Complaints Against Illegal Parking By Students On Streets Adjoining College Campus

Formal protest against the illegal parking of vehicles by students was lodged Monday with President A. J. Cloud by the Westwood Park Association.

The association complained, " . . . Owners of property on the 200 blocks of both Phelan and Judson Avenues find it impossible to get their own cars out of their garages without running the risk of hitting some student's car or vice versa."

President Cloud proffered the Association apologies of the college for obvious student negligence in blocking driveways and violating city parking regulations on the streets adjoining the campus.

In acknowledging the legitimate complaints of neighboring property owners, President Cloud explained, " . . . We (the college administration) have been greatly concerned over the problem in its totality, and have instituted measures that doubtless will ultimately enable us to use larger areas than we are now able to do for parking purposes on the West Campus."

Although 400 parking passes have been issued for the West Campus area, only approximately slightly over one-third of this number of automobiles can be accommodated in this area at one time.

Fred MacFarland, director of the West Campus, has taken steps to utilize present facilities to their utmost capacity.

Plans to create additional facilities north of the cafeteria have been under discussion.

Until better facilities are made available students are requested to use consideration and abide by traffic regulations in using and parking on these residential thoroughfares.

Tau Chi Sigma

Mid-Term Mingle Hits Campus Tonight

Full scale plans for the Tau Chi Sigma's Mid-Term Mingle (not Mangle) were rushed to completion today for the fraternity's most lavish dance of the semester to be held in the west campus auditorium tonight.

Ray "Dutch" Welch, president of the fraternity said, "Our dance will fit the bill perfectly as a relief to 'mid term nerves.' No pains," he continued, "will be spared to make this dance the best ever offered by our club."

Originally to have been held at the student lounge, the auditorium festivities will be held from 8 to 12 for those who have purchased their 50 cent bids.

As previously announced music will be by name bands via the platter route. The fraternity, according to college advices, boasts one of the largest and finest record collections of the campus.

Welch further stated that refreshments will be served throughout the entire evening, and dress will be sports-informal.

Beta Tau Schedules Easter Dance March 31

The biggest event on Beta Tau's social calendar for the semester is the Easter Parade Dance to be held at the Edgewater Monday night, March 31, from 9 to 12, Ted Noble announced today.

With Noble as chairman, the dance is expected by many students to far surpass the fraternity's last dance, The Mistletoe Mingle, and some have stated that the affair will be the best ever to be presented by a college organization.

Featuring a melodious background supplied by Buddy MacDonald and his orchestra, the affair will be informal with the no corsage rule in effect. Price of admission will be $1.80 per couple.

A picture, in which several students have been encircled will be placed in the hall of the main building. Each student encircled with receive a complimentary bid to the dance.

Student Council

Ekdall, Holmes, And Biese Selections Unanimously Ok'd

Highlights of last Tuesday's council meeting were the appointments of Arthur Ekdall as Men's Athletic Commissioner, Isadore Biese, Award Commissioner and Bill Holmes, Chairman of the newly formed student information committee. All appointments were unanimously approved by the Student Council.

Associated Student President Trev Burrow stated that Nick Dirtiman, who at the previous council meeting had been appointed to serve as an observer at the National Students Organization conference at University of California, would be unable to attend and therefore a substitute observer would be appointed.

Student Council member Lou Nelson moved that the council resolve to back the Judiciary Force and Committee entirely in any disciplinary action these groups might take in the prevention of smoking in unauthorized places and unnecessary loitering in halls. The council sanctioned the motion.

It was suggested and approved by the council that student violators of college regulations have their names published in The Guardsman with the name of any organization with which they are affiliated. All offenders will also appear before the Judiciary Committee. The committee can recommend the probation or expulsion of any student.

Dickey, Swendsen Will Sing On Choir Program

Two groups of choral pieces will be sung by the college A Cappella Choir in the concert to be given for the Army Y.M.C.A. at the Presidio Sunday, March 30, Flossita Badger, choir director, said today.

Soloists scheduled to appear are Elmer Dickey and Jane Swendsen.

The Maie Quartet will also have a featured part. The four men, Dave MacDade, Gene MacGowan, Bob Sherratt, and Joe Fraser, will have Martha Lee as their accompanist.

The traditional Alma Mater song will open the program. Heavenly Light, by the modern Russian composer Kopylov, will be included along with a Czechoslovakian folk song, Ifca's Castle.

American compositions on the program will be Blakesley's arrangement of Sewanne River and an American sea chanty, What Will You Do With A Drunken Sailor. The Lord Bless You And Keep You, by Latkin, which is the theme song of the choir, will be sung in closing.

"Young" Scholar Gains Wide Attention

By John Hulse

The flurry of photographers and pretty girls that surrounded James S. Nicklen, Jr., 80 year old student, on the steps in front of the main building, caught the attention last week of this college.

Attention to the man who believes "you're never too old to learn" was not confined to this campus.

The cameras and coeds were there because Nicklen, as "the oldest junior college student in the United States," had also captured the attention of the press and people of the entire nation.

This fact was borne out by last week's camera activities which marked a publicity feature of Nicklen and Acme Newspictures, Incorporated.

Photographers were Willard A. Hatch of International and Alvin S. Cocking of Acme, who remarked that, "the large number of photos ordered indicate that these Nicklen pictures might well receive wide circulation."

His statement was confirmed by Acme newspictures who said last week that orders for the pictures had been received from the San Francisco News, the Los Angeles News, The Chicago News and the Miami Times.

The Guardsman and Guardsman Photographer Fred Lustig take credit for the first news-photo feature to be published. Lustig obtained his photo as Nicklen came through the registration line. The photo, published in this semester's Guardsman of February 28, can thus be accepted as Nicklen's first newspaper appearance.

According to a college official, the first city photo feature of Nicklen was in the Los Angeles Times; which is supplied by Associated Press. First local Nicklen story was printed by The Call-Bulletin.

Campus Pride — Non-Existent

There Must Be A Reason

THERE must be a reason for the lack of pride prevalent among the students at this college. There has to be a reason.

Why is it that some two by four colleges have developed more pride and spirit with less in which to take pride, than students here have in a single department? Some colleges glorify themselves because of one outstanding or better than average activity.

BUT NOT HERE—

We have the finest junior college in the state—according to the superintendents of schools throughout the country.

Our Hotel and Restaurant Division is the finest of its kind—or so say the businessmen in these fields.

The Associated Collegiate Press has rated this paper among the best in the land—not once but on eleven different occasions.

Our science, music, publications, language, and social science departments are recognized by educators in other colleges and universities as tops.

Finally, a diploma from this college is a definite asset when applying for a job or transferring to another college.

But what of the students?

Pride—so little—it seems non-existent.

We leave our campus littered with refuse and garbage until even Third and Howard Streets seem clean by comparison. Our teams play championship games, and fewer than 10 per cent of the students appear to lend moral support. Our student government, elected by the students, receives little student support. The various and extensive programs financed by Associated Student funds have been drastically curtailed because of student disinterest.

THERE MUST BE A REASON. WHAT IS IT?

Ford

After Dark

NEWS tidbits of timely gossip, on and off the campus, prior to, and after dark, designed to meet the respective tastes of the general clamour:

Rumors are flying that Richard Corey has made tentative plans to blow his brains out in the near future. For the occasion he will wear a full-drape gray, sharkskin double-breasted suit, complete with black string tie.

Hearts and flowers department:

Joseph Andrews, a strapping young athlete from County Cork was seen ogling and whispering sweet nothings into the attentive and shell-like ear of Justine V. J. Millamont at the Alpha Beau Brummell Ball last Friday night. It looks like wedding bells soon for the happy frustrated couple. Miss Millamont wore a charming ensemble consisting of light blue taffeta Levi's, complete with bare bodkin and Chanel No. 5.

Rosencrantz and Guildenstern, the sensational playwright combo will present a new play soon titled The Last Voyage To England, which is a sequel to A Piccadilly Commando Cut My Throat. Ronsencrantz, it is said, will marry Aline Bernstein, New Yorkese stage designer, in April . . . O April!

Robinson Jeffers, the Lion Of The Tea Tables, will publish a freely adapted translation of Forever Amber soon. This will be, it is said, the most significant work penned by the Carmel-poet to date.

Caroline Slipslop, bay area Semanticist, enrolled here last week in English 8. She is tentatively planning graduate work at the Sore-Bun next year. Miss Slipslop, during entrance examinations, looked charming and complete in Patagonian sandles, Roman war-helmet, and green pigskin gloves.

Professor Richard Von Craft-Ebing, the word goes, will offer a course, Fetichism 21A, at Wingate Junior College next semester. The lectures will cover a broad experimental field of nocturnal relationships . . . Johnny Oldcastle, of the American Sack Co., will organize a San Francisco branch of his national boys club, Mechanism For Democracy.

W. H. Davies broke up the Amalgamated Steel Trust meeting last week with the following statement:

"What is this life, If, full of care
We have no time to stand and stare.
No time to stand beneath the boughs
And stare as long as sheep or cows?"

Around And About

with Nagle

Today's column it written by Del Pichon

IT is well known that the imaginations of Hollywood writers seem to exceed all bounds of other people's imaginations, but in regard to their descriptions of coming pictures they exceed even their own limitations. The glowing phrases presaging the premiere of a new cinemasterpiece are ample evidence of this, but even worse are the previews of the coming attractions.

For instance, the preview of Two Years Before the Mast. In this particular preview, consisting of graphic scenes from the picture, the skit opens with an old sailing ship plunging through the waves of a rough sea, the narrator's voice booming out, "Never before has such a story been told! Men sailing against the sea, sailing into danger, love, Hate!" At this point the face of the villain is thrown on the screen, twisted with malevolence and cruelty.

"See Ladd!" he continues, "see him fighting, loving" (picture of a beautiful girl) "and leading the crew against the cruel captain of this hell ship.

"See Ladd, flogged by the sadistic first mate, William Bendix" . . . (Scene of Ladd stoically biting his lip as Bendix flays him with the cat-o'-nine-tails) . . . "Thrill to the mutiny of the crew as they take over the ship and sail into the unknown" . . . (Mass of men surging forward on the lone figure of the captain, the villain.)

"See men fighting for the love of the one woman aboard the ship . . . ." (Scene of gorgeous creature surrounded by men leering at each other.) "Don't miss this thrilling picture!"

By such devious means the writers interest the people in mediocre pictures—throwing the one action scene of the picture on the screen to arouse one's curiosity. Having been aroused, you go to the show and see the movie only to leave disappointed that you haven't seen the action that you had hoped for.

The tripe and false advertisement dished out in the preview is enough to sicken one of all of Hollywood's productions, which appear to be magnificent movies through the eyes of the previewers, Too bad that the previewers can't speak as eloquently of such really good pictures as the Italian production "Open City."

Two Heroes, Two Heroines, Plus Bomb Equal One Lemon

IN an effort to save our three or four readers 85 cents, this column went to a movie last Saturday to review a picture that has already been reviewed without having been seen.

Like depositing the cueball along with the fifteen ball in the end pocket, we called our shot on The Beginning Or The End.

This is no accomplishment however. We still maintain that, give or take a few sleepers, it is possible for anyone to pass judgment on any Hollywood dramatic effort without having ever witnessed it.

Hilltop Manner

WITH balmy March breezes gently rippling our spacious lawns, who can doubt that fair Lady Spring is close behind, making ready for her grand and glorious entrance?

Already the effects of her arrival are telling a sad but amusing tale in personality changes.

Mighty stretching yawns from back rows disconcert lecturers and even a few listeners. Femmes fatale set male eyes a-poppin' with low-cut cottons and crisp gingham prints. A few of the more daring have even been observed, (lucky observer!) with shorts and etceteras camouflaged beneath coats.

Last week one or two sunburnt noses were noticed peeling happily away. A sure sign if ever there was one!

Even the fashionable esquires, vestiges of a lost age or perhaps the sign of a new one to come, have been seen about in shirt sleeves and open collars. Heavens to Betsy, what are we coming to?

And, finally, the surest sign of all, when, after a day spent bodily in classrooms, but with mind, soul, and heart flitting and tumbling merrily among the glittering sunbeams, one hears the mighty lion roar, and, hardly before one can climb back into the old winter underwear, the fog horns are bleating mournfully out on the bay. Spring is here!

A notice in The Guardsman last Friday tells of plans being laid currently to organize a unit of the National Guard at the campus which would meet once a week to drill. It is also stipulated that at least 30 men are necessary to comprise such a unit. It will be interesting to see if there are than many combat and uniform-hungry men on the campus, but since monetary adjustments are to be made, the project will doubtless be a grand success.

A LOST EVENING

We went early Saturday evening in an effort to avoid the expected mob and, as usual, to utilize the remainder of the evening before the midnight curfew bells ring out.

The evening was a total loss. Better we should have stayed home and listened to Digger O'Dell, the friendly undertaker, while thumbing casually through dry textbooks.

Anyway, dear reader, pocket your movie allowance and crack the books. Or better still go to the Orpheum and study Yvonne De Carlo in Scheherazade in Technicolor; we hear she's worth a term paper in this one.

If anyone is still with us at this point we'll put aside the stale popcorn, try and forget the financial loss, and get into the matter.

Heroine A, one Beverly Tyler, a neatly stacked up representative of the "typical" American gal, is waiting patiently for Hero A, Tom Drake, to drop the Bomb and get home to the pipe and slippers—newlyweds.

Audrey Totter, Heroine B, even better assembled than A, spends her time repulsing half-hearted passes from Hero B, an Army Air Force Lt. Col. realistically portrayed by Robert Walker.

Walker wanders around the various sets with hands in pocket, a wry grin on his juvenile pan and badly needing a haircut.

LT. COLONEL GETS THE BIRD

Incidentally, for ex-zoomies' information, our flyboy hero makes full Colonel in the last reel and we think he got the wench, too.

A few enlisted men are scattered about played by dead-panned zombies and evidently just along for the ride.

One of the GI's has the highly technical job of watching a little needle on a dial; if it hits the red The Bomb goes off in the plane.

So we're off to blow the hell out of Hiroshima. The audience is rolling in the aisles among peanut shells while the sergeant sweats blood as the needle wavers frantically back and forth.

To no one's great surprise we liquidated the target and amid plenty of "Roger's" and "Wilcoes" we turned back to Tinian whence we came.

The picture ended with philosophical lecture at Lincoln's Memorial delivered by Hero A and addressed to the people of the 25th Century.

There was a message somewhere in it, but we lost it every time blonde little Audrey tottered on the scene.

• Baby Needs $5 Shoes

Editor, The Guardsman:

I am one of the "lucky" ones to be a member of the Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society. A society pin is given FREE to all members, under the Constitution, providing that they have paid for their student body cards. Did anybody ever stop to think that it might be a hardship for some of the students, especially the veterans with families to pay that $5.00. I would like to wear the pin, but haby needs shoes. Brain or money?

• He's On The Bottom

Editor, The Guardsman:

So the all-important job situation looks black. That's not exactly a scoop, Guardsman.

It seems as though the students don't have the right attitude, such as being willing to start from the bottom.

I hate to sound like an individualist, Mr. Amori, but here is one student who isn't too proud to start at said bottom.

All I ask is a job in which I may stand on my feet, as the blisters and calouses I have from that hard bench outside the Job Placement Office are still painful.

• An Editorial It Is

Editor of The Guardsman:

It there some way of keeping this campus cleaner? There are an awful lot of papers and trash laying around on the grass and in the streets of the West Campus. Something should be done about it now! It's a good time for a blazing editorial from you.

Local Thinclads, Salinas Tangle Today

Jensen's Cindermen Move To Southland In Initial Defense Of '46 Oval Title

The cellophane peels off the 1947 track and field season today as far as the title-holding Ram harriers are concerned, when approximately a dozen and a half Red and White cindermen leave for Salinas and the opener against the Salinas Junior College Panthers.

Not much is known of the Maroon and Gold thin-clads, save for the fact that they have in tow a hundred yard dash man who cracks ten flat nearly every time he bounces off the starting blocks, and will figure to give Eddie Bryant quite a tussle in both the century and the furlong.

Coach Jim Jensen hasn't seen much in the way of what his charges can do when under pressure, and today will mark the first time this year he has even gotten the whole squad together at the same time, what with classes, bad weather and the like.

Some of the stand-outs Coach Jensen will rely on for points, however, are Bryant and Wyatt in the sprints, Coredio in the quarter mile, Gurgera and Olivas in the mile, and Barnes and Tapoian in the high jump and pole vault, respectively.

These men, along with some promising aspirants from the local high schools, should keep well out of reach of the Panther's claw when the first starting gun pops today.

Biggest headache is in the weight events, particularly the discus throw. Nobody can seem to break a hundred feet as yet, and Salinas may come up with a clean sweep in this event if they have anybody at all who can fling the platter.

RAMblings . .

By Paul Cane

SURELY someone must have noticed the preponderance of baseball ivory that has flocked to the colleges this spring semester.

This corner isn't referring to the crutch and cane veterans that are attempting to parlay a little enthusiasm and a can of 3 in 1 oil into facsimiles of their past selves. Rather, reference is to the peach-and-fuzz brigade who are still fresh from their prep school matriculation.

In the past, long before Tojo and Adolf became topics for American household conversation, the adolescents with particular adeptness at Abner Doubleday's diamond sport were quickly wisped under the "protective" wing of one of the numerous big league scouts that frequent this area.

SIGN HERE PLEASE

Their job was to replenish the home office chain with a stock of potential timber for the big show. This task was usually not very difficult, but for the rarer cases of "Well, I don't know," a bundle of crisp and green currency was pushed under the boy's nose with one hand, and a pen handed him with the other.

All of which leads to the question, "Ya' mean that these post-war kids just don't have it?"

On the surface, perhaps, it may seem that the beardless ones are a wee bit shy of the intangible entity—ability; but upon closer scrutinization it develops that this isn't so at all.

BOYS MISSING CHOW

Cause of the present influx of high school athletes to institutions of higher learning rather than to the beef laden training tables of a professional baseball camp can be explained in a manner more flattering to the recent grads.

Take the case of two ball players right here at this college for example. It is entirely within the realm of possibility that both Bob Nard and Jim Hughes might have penned their monikers on some sort of contract, either under water or flat on their backs at 20,000 feet.

"Well why didn't they," you ask?

O. A. C., Poly Club Top Intra Hoop Play As Teams In 3 Leagues Vie For Honors

Developments in Tom Wilson's intramural basketball loop are running true to form as the two-week-old campaign prepares for the week-end holiday. There is a mild surprise, however, in the form of the Operators A. C. quintet.

This group, led by their high scoring center, "Tips" Dugan, have shed any existing "dark horse" raimeths and are now to be ranked as a possible threat to the Poly Lambs in the quest for the National League title.

The 63 points the Operators tallied last week in defeating the weak Draftsmen five is the highest score thus far compiled by any of the 29 contesting teams.

In the American League, the Sugar Mountain Boys seem to be deserving of the pre-season praise that was heaped upon them, while, in the same loop, the entry from Tau Chi Sigma, although its basketball may not be of the highest caliber, features the most interesting and faithful rooting section in the tournament.

Netmen In NCJCC Play, San Mateo Tomorrow

Bolstered by the addition of two top-flight netters, the college's band of racketeers journey south to San Mateo, where they will officially open the NCJCC tennis round robin against the perennial peninsula foes.

Tom Wilson appeared elated over the showing his charges made Saturday against St. Mary's Even though dropping the match to the Gaels by a count of 6 to 3, the locals made a battle of it all the way. Three of the matches dropped were carried to three sets.

Frank Haggarty and Bud Langton, latest additions to the team, did especially well. Langton, Reed, and Covall were the three winners for the Rams.

Ram Pugilists Turn In Top Modesto Showing

Modesto, Cal., March 15—San Francisco's contingent of Ram pugilists scored a knock-out upset here, tonight In the NCJCC boxing show when the collegians took in a strong second place spot, while the Modesto hosts won the boxing crown.

With but a two week practice period prior to the Modesto ring affair, the campus boxers came through in perfect form when sluggers Harry Topoian, Charles Bradbury, and John Fischer cleaned up final victories in their respective divisions.

Ken Unmack, Glenn Hofmann, and Edgar Johnson were winners in the quarter and semi-finals, but lost in the finalist battles.

Hughes In 3 Hitter As Ram Diamond Men Pound Menlo, 12-1

By Art Paymiller

Big Jim Hughes held the Menlo Junior College nine to three bingles while striking out ten, as his mates were pounding two Oak hurlers for thirteen hits to gain a 12 to 1 victory in the NCJCC season opener Tuesday at Harrison Field.

After picking up two markers in the first canto, the Rams were held scoreless until the sixth frame when they coupled four hits, a walk and a hit batter for four runs.

The local contingent unleashed their batting power again in the seventh inning when they tallied five runs. The Ram's final marker came in the eighth stanza.

Center fielder Zan Kaplan provided the spark in the intial canto with a triple to right field. After Chet Anderson had forced Art Cirimele at second, Kaplan came through with his blow over Jim Durnall's head. He scored when Durnall threw the ball away.

Bob Nard started the avalanche in the sixth frame with a home run into left field. Cirimale, who collected three hits in as many trips to the plate, drove in two more with a single.

After Herb Markall's single scored Nard to lead off the seventh, Bill Kenna doubled across Hughes and Al Ganem. Markall scored when Jim Johnston was nicked by pitcher Dean Broski and Kenna scored when Kaplan forced Johnston at second.

The Oaks picked up their solitary marker in the fourth stanza on two singles and an error by Hughes.

Head Man Of Building 8

Southern Neighbor Is Rumba Expert

By Mel Hansen

This city is known as the gateway to the Orient, the city that knows how; but to Fabio Garcia Castillo Soltero Pietri, (his friends call him Pancho) Puerto Rican enrolled in the hotel and restaurant division here, it is known as the city of eternal good weather and beautiful women.

Fabio Garcia Castillo Soltero Pietri, better known as Pancho, who hails from San Juan, Puerto Rico. He is majoring in the Hotel and Restaurant Division.—Photo by Lustig.

Fabio enrolled in the prospective chefs and managers school last September after being discharged from the army. He stopped here on the way back to his home after a tour of duty in the Pacific. The weather, combined with the fact that the college boasts the only hotel and restaurant division in the west, persuaded Pancho to remain for a year's study.

His family is building a 250 room beach hotel in San Juan, his home town, and after completing his education he will return to Puerto Rico to manage the hostelry.

Upon completion of this semester, Fabio intends to enroll at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York, to complete his training here on the mainland. From there he will return home to take over the reins as head man in June of next year.

The men that live in Barracks 8 are well acquainted with this Latin friend as he is the proctor, head man, of their home. This is only one of the jobs that Fabio holds down while studying, the other being the director of the cleaning concession that has been in operation for the past two months on the west campus.

All is not hard work for this future manager however, as he finds time to indulge in his favorite form of indoor sports, dancing.

Recently he indulged in his syncopated gyrations long enough to walk off with top honors in a rhumba contest held at the Fairmont Hotel.

Patrick Henry Subject Of Oratorical Contest

An invitation for the college to participate in the fifth annual Hearst newspapers oratorical contest has been extended by The Call-Bulletin, co-sponsor of the contest with the Oakland Post-Enquirer, Lloyd D. Luckmann, assistant to President A. J. Cloud, disclosed last week.

Subject for the 1947 contest is Patrick Henry, Patriot and Statesman.

According to Luckmann, intramural competition is to be held within the colleges before the number one winner is selected and reported to The Call-Bulltin by Thursday, April 10. Bay area finals for the university and college division are being arranged for Friday evening, April 18.

Trusteeship Of Pacific Islands Focal Point Of Discussion-Lecture Thursday

Problems arising from American trusteeship of Pacific islands come up for discussion at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 27, when Mervin Slosberg, history instructor, speaks on The Pacific Today in the west campus auditorium.

The lecture is second in a series of free faculty lectures sponsored by the American Veterans Committee chapter here. The first lecture of the series, Propaganda and Social Control, presented Thursday, March 13, by Ralph Granneberg of the psychology department, was attended by about 80 students and others.

Granneberg defined propaganda as the expression of opinions for the purpose of influencing actions and thoughts. He discussed at some lengths the methods used by pressure groups in disseminating propaganda.

Schedule for the remaining lectures in the series is as follows:

April 10, Racial Fallacies, Phyllis Haley; April 24, Atomic Energy, John E. Booher; May 8, What Has UN Accomplished To Date?, John Gerstung; May 22, U.S. Economics and World Politics, William Goss.

Drama

Barrie Play Is Pungent Satire

By William Franklin

The great Scotch courtier's nickname which has been spelled variously Admirable Critchon, Chritchen, and Crighton is pronounced Cry-ton and written Crichton, Ruth Somers, dramatics instructor, declared yesterday.

The man, James Crichton, who inspired James M. Barrie to write his famous play, created astonishment in the Elizabethan world by his brilliant off-hand discourses on philosophy, theology and other high themes.

When in Mantua, Crichton was appointed to tutor the son of a duke. Attacked in the streets one night by a party of masked and armed men, he overcame them by his superior skill. Recognizing his pupil as one of the attackers, Crichton at once presented his sword. The appreciative prince immediately ran him through with the weapon.

The play, equivalent to James Crichton's life, and now being produced in the college little theater is a satire on a topsy-turvy world that insists upon setting rank above merit. The butler in an English lord's household is given the name of the famous Scotchman and hero.

When the lord's spoiled and extravagant family is shipwrecked on a South Sea Island, merit is set above rank and the butler becomes ruler.

The family is rescued after a two year stay on the island and on the return to London, rank again is set above merit, but with interesting modifications.

$78,000 Allotment Made For Greenhouse

The college horticulture department was allotted $78,000 by city officials recently for the construction of a greenhouse, according to Harry Nelson, department head.

The foundation, now being laid at the south end of the men's gymnasium area and extending to Ocean Avenue, is replacing several of the campus' few eucalyptus trees.

Headquarters for the landscaping, greenhouse and garden maintenance and nursery departments expect to expand sufficiently within the next five years to extend its three-quarters of an acre holdings to an area covering three acres.

VAUDEVILLE'S GIFT TO THE COLLEGE, Roy Abad and Peggy Gay, are scheduled to perform before the wounded veterans, today, at Letterman Hospital. This will be the first of a series of programs, made up of entertainers from the talent pool, to be given there. Both Roy and Peggy have been professional entertainers from an early age, and have performed at many of the better night spots of San Francisco. —Photo by Lum.

Four-Star Entertainment

Two Accordionists Grace College With Musical Versatility And Virtuosity

By Paul Lindstrom

With marked ability and vast experience to guide them, Peggy Gay and Roy Abad, accordionists, will entertain the patients at Letterman Hospital today in the first of a series of programs, made up of entertainers from the college talent pool, to be given there.

At early ages Abad and Miss Gay entered the theatrical world and have been professional entertainers ever since. Miss Gay's theatrical experience began as a child dancer in Seattle vaudeville shows. Not to mention earlier activities, Abad was with Al Wallace's orchestra, then newly formed, on the new KSFO's inaugural broadcast in 1941.

Their families have set precedents for them, which they seem to be following. Abad's grandmother was a star in vaudeville at its heyday; Miss Gay's sister, Lorraine, was graduated from this college in 1942 and was the recipient of the President's Award that year.

In addition to attending college in the daytime, they have appeared at the majority of San Francisco's famous night clubs and have made frequent performances for the U.S.O.

In their semesters here, Miss Gay and Abad have kept themselves busy on the campus with their music majors. They are members of Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, the A Cappella Choir, and Lambda Alpha, the music honor society. Abad is the president of the latter club.

When they are not "squeezing" their accordions, they are "tickling the ivories." Both take piano instruction from Fred Saatman, pianist, who once toured Europe in concert work.

Talent Auditions Show Up Student Ability

With the reminder that the third talent audition will be held during the college hour Friday at 10:40 a.m. in Room 200, the successful contestants in the last two auditions were disclosed today by Flossita Badger, choral director.

Singers selected are Marjorie Fulton, George McVey, Emery Mellon, Roy Burt, and Lynn Patton. Elbert Priddy, comedian, and Carolyn Reiss, comedienne, were also chosen. Luis Martinez, dancer, and Dolores Jonson complete the list of successful contestants.

Many other students are already working under the talent-pool plan. They are Roy Abad and Peggy Gay, accordionists; Delmar Faddis, Patsy Allen, Elmer Dickey, Jane Swendsen, singers. A male quartet, David Mac Dade, Gene MacGowan, Bob Sherratt, and Joe Fraser, is also included in this group. Martha Lee is the piano accompanist for the quartet.

Piano Player Needed For College Orchestra

Whether one seeks enjoyment in playing the piano or seeks experience and practice from it, one more piano player is needed by the college orchestra, Madison Devlin, orchestra conductor, said today.

A person experienced and good at "sight reading" meets the qualifications for the job of playing with the orchestra occasionally on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 2 to 3 o'clock.

Vacation

Production Halts Until April 11

Rigor vacationitis sets in with this issue of the college fishwrapper, viciously referred to in some circles as The Guardsman.

In a word, Easter vacation takes over according to the registrar's office for all hands. Next issue due on the stands Friday, April 11.

Deadline for submitting names of candidates for sophomore king and queen, sponsored by campus organizations, is Friday, April 11, declared Astrid Wettin, sophomore president.

Photos of candidates will be taken during the week of April 14 to 18 by the photography class, Miss Wettin said.

Winners of the contest will be announced, as is customary, at the Sophomore Ball, which is to be held in the second week of June, the sophomore president added.

CAB

Club Presidents Will Discuss Problems Tonight; Next Friday Deadline For Organization Charter Applications

Presidents of all officially recognized campus organizations are scheduled to meet tonight in the student lounge at 7:30 to discuss and coordinate college club activities.

Trev Burrow, Associated Student president, and George Bachman, president of the Club Advisory Board, will head this second meeting of club presideuts.

Tonight's conferenee marks the second meeting of club officers this semester and will be convened every third Thursday of the semester.

The first of these conferences was called shortly after the beginning of this semester by student President Trev Burrow to assist in combatting the general laxity of students in purchasing Associated Student cards and offer suggestions to formulating and balancing the spring budget.

This evening's confab of club presidents proposes to carry on the work of solving the myriad problems and conflicting programs which have previously inhibited success of the general club calendar.

Only three days are left for clubs to submit new charter applications to the CAB. Deadline for presenting charters is set for Friday, March 28. Included with the charter application must be a list of active members, Bachman said.

Organizations who have failed to take active participation in student activities are warned that approval of charters by the CAB requires illustration of an active calendar.

Ushering Jobs Still Open For Passion Play

Women interested in ushering for performances of Passion Play scheduled for the Opera House, through Saturday, March 29, are advised to leave their name with Dean Margaret Dougherty as soon as possible.

Dean Dougherty is in charge of securing six women usherettes for performances in the Opera House, the Civic Auditorium, and the Veterans Auditorium, throughout the seasons.

Rally

Name Quartet Will Head Talent Friday

With the star feature of the show a musical combo under the heading of the Four Aces, Jim Mann, rally commissioner, declared the second rally of the semester comes up this Friday, March 28, during the college hour in the men's gymnasium.

All service veterans, the Four Aces have gained wide popularity around the bay area night spots and have made many recordings of currently popular song hits.

The team produces their music with a piano, bass, guitar, with the aid of a vocalist.

Baseball Coach Bill Fischer will speak as a means to stimulate interest in college baseball. The Ram baseballers took the Menlo Junior College nine, 12 to 1, last Tuesday, and Coach Fischer's boys cross bats next Saturday, March 29, with the Santa Rosa Junior College at Santa Rosa.

Yell leaders Dee Roberts and Bernie Davis will be at the rally to lead the yells. It has been rumored that Miss Roberts has some tumbling ability and a routine that goes along with the yell leading.

The college band will be heard under the direction of Madison Devlin. The band was reorganized last fall and has been playing at ball games and rallies since coming out of the war casualty class.

The Faculty Association meets in Room 136, under the leadership of Assistant Dean John Brady, association president.

Class Changes Necessary

AS an experiment, the registrar's staff put into effect this semester a new system. Registration books were filed on the same day as registration, contrary to previous procedure.

On the surface this seemed a good idea. It would eliminate taking days out during the semester for the purpose. Also, it would, allegedly, eliminate a great deal of class changing.

It is obvious now that instead of simplifying matters, this method has thrown students into complete chaos and confusion.

They still and will always find it necessary to change classes. To their dismay, they also found it necessary to traipse all over the campus securing countless signatures.

It has been pointed out by an instructor, that at least one of these is unnecessary.

After obtaining the required John Hancocks, they returned to the registrar's office where not a few were treated more than abruptly.

A statement was made by one person of authority to the effect that if a student, adding a course on the last day allowed ran into difficulties, "let him get hung up."

What is the last day for, except last minute changes? There are times when students become victims of circumstances; when it is impossible for them to act sooner.

As long as there are some who wait till the last day for legitimate reasons, there is no excuse for criticism.

Granted that there are students who shop around changing courses at the slightest provocation, the majority of the changes are legitimate.

The work of the registrar's office is undoubtedly heavy, tiring and never ceasing. However, the students' viewpoint should be considered. Students do not intentionally choose to be troublesome.

HISTORIANS will view contemporary mankind thusly: "A modern geneticist would not let him breed, and a meat inspector would not pass him." This, according to Philip Wylie, is a Generation of Vipers. This is the world that Wylie built, not with a bang but a whimper.

Following up the much discussed Finnley Wren, Generation of Vipers, and Night Unto Night, Mr. Wylie has recently published a new book, An Essay on Morals, in a folksy attempt to persuade the jaded imbroglio of America to take better care of that great conditioned mass, the human soul.

LIFE IS GOOD AND LIFE IS EARNEST

Mr. Wylie has hit upon a new plan and he has thought it up all by himself. He believes, and perhaps rightly, that objective science cannot save us, and to neutralize this he is advocating philosophical introspection, of all things! In a recent review, Irwin Edman, Professor of Philosophy at Columbia University, summed up Wylie's soul-saving technique with, "A good many have said, 'know thyself,' long before Mr. Wylie. Socrates, that great 'irreverent,' for instance."

With a quaint flip of the pen, this contemporary Swift has nonchalantly discarded Kant, Leibnitz, Descartes, Spinoza, and a hundred other minor philosophers. In an assumption that man is essentially a teleological creature, Mr. Wylie goes on to say that man will further himself along the road to Nirvana by a comprehensive knowledge of his city's sewer system.

Very well then: on such a teleological basis, would one expect a violinist to carry a handbook on sewer systems? The violinist plays either to entertain or to satisfy the creative impulse. One is temped to say, "leave the sewers to . . . well, just leave them, will you?"

MAN TO MORON IN 304 PAGES

It takes Wylie 304 pages to reduce man to an unrecognizable, inadequate moron, This phenomenon occurs in Generation of Vipers.

Wylie states, "The radio has made sentimentality the 20th century Plymouth Rock." He goes on to say that man can beat the radio AND break the hold of rapacious Moms on the country's economic situation by a little personal integrity. Does that make sense to you? Incidentally, the name of the book was An Essay on Morals. Generation of Vipers should be read before you blow your brains out! O most happy, happy people!

Around And About

with Nagle

MOVIE reviews seem to be quite popular this season among The Guardsman's crack columnists. But did any of the movie-reviewers ever watch the drama taking place, not on the screen, but in the balcony of the nearest neighborhood movie-house?

Here stark, heart rending, amusing drama is continuous from 6 p.m.

Here on Friday or Saturday nights, is the spot for the sub-deb's first date; the hang-out for the older, yet noiser Levi-clad set; the last resort for the $65 per monthers on the 31st day of the month; the "night spot" for the married folk, who have the newly-wed stage and are too blase for the bridge-every-Saturday evening stage; the refuge for young mother with her young brood yelping 15 hours a day.

INHIBITIONS FORGOTTEN

Here shyness is lost, mob psychology takes over, and Oscar-winning gags, apropos of supplied situations on the screen, are stage-whispered for the enjoyment of the entire audience, by normally bashful individuals.

The now-bewhiskered "Open the Door, Richard" retort, invariably heard no matter whose door is knocked on; the loud smacking of lips during a tender romantic scene; the stamping of feet, and the whistles when a pleasant face appears on the screen; the crunch of candy papers and the crackling of pop-corn bags; all are synonymous with week-end theater balconies frequenters.

Even infants take in the Friday and Saturday night soiree . . . perhaps the youngster enjoys the smell of smoke, and the hot, foul air; perhaps he, like his parents, gets tired of sitting around the house and craves an evening of excitement; or perhaps a baby sitter can't be found quickly.

NUMEROUS BUT HUMOROUS QUERIES

When the child passes the age of infancy he still attends the cinema, only instead of wailing during 190 minutes of theatrical enaction, he asks "Why?" and "What did he say?"

During such films as Henry LXC, The Odd Situations Incurred by Martha Ives, or Donald Duck's Other Wife, the subject matter is entirely over the tow-head's head and such queries are both numerous and humorous.

To while away 190 odd minutes of your time, and maybe even come home with a piece of imported (from Yuba City) dishware, step out to a movie this Saturday night, but don't review the movie, review the crowd.

ONE of the former students of the college who is certainly on his way up is JAMES NEAL, Associated Student president in 1941. After graduation from the college, Neal attended Hastings Law College, where he obtained his degree. This former president received his discharge from the Navy after service as a Lieutenant. NEAL has just been appointed to the post of City Manager of Redding, California.

Another student president, GENE POWELL, has distinguished himself in both war and peace. A members of the class of 1940, he served during the war as a fighter pilot and garnered the distinction of being the third ranking Naval Ace. Powell is now serving as a Lieutenant Commander at the Naval Air Station at India Kern, where jet-propelled planes are being tested.

Army-Navy Merger Resulting In Still A Third Branch

NOT content with polishing off Japan and Germany in the last global battle, the armed forces came home and have been swinging sabers at each other ever since "peace" set in.

Congress and the public are refereeing the fight; Congress with an eye to the budget and the public as lackadaisical as usual.

Byrd is on his way back from the Antarctic. He didn't go there merely to renew old friendships with those little birds that smoke Kools.

Nor is the Army's Operations Frigid and Willawaw still in the Arctic to tweak Russia's nose or find out how Spam reacts in sub-zero weather.

Hilltop Manner

THE current trend in education toward the extremes of specialization is becoming increasingly traitorous to its own cause, and it is obvious that a reconciliation will have to take place in the coming years to correct this ambiguity.

When the college level is reached in the educational processing for the future, the student is supposed to be ready to travel the last lap on the journey to his final goal—success in one particular aspect of life.

Whether that goal lies in the field of medicine, law, engineering, teaching or business, it is usually on the assumption that very specialized, all-encompassing instruction is the way that adequate training is given to prepare the prospect "professional" for his desired post. That is, according to the theory at present followed in our school system.

However, anyone taking part in the system realizes that this is not entirely true. Many courses are required for college today which are solely for the purpose of making the person a well-rounded individual, and this type of course is especially stressed in high school and lower-division college work.

Resistance by students to this type of course, which holds no interest for him as an individual, runs high. Future engineers who could quickly submerge themselves in the world of higher mathematics are compelled to take history and English courses. Musicians must toil with algebra and geometry before they are permitted to produce their melodies.

Some time, quite soon, if current trends continue and atom bombs do not interfere, a decisive step will have to be taken by the educators. Do they want a well-rounded individual, or do they want a specialized individual who will perform one function, but perform it to perfection. Up till now, we have stressed culture; are we heading for specialization and extinction?

WELL ADVERTISED CAMPAIGNS

Both expeditions carried with them a goodly number of press agents to ballyhoo Army and Navy doings in the freezing posteriors of the earth.

For awhile there, the daring exploits of service airmen threatened to shove even Tommy Manville's and Artie Shaw's exploits back off the front page.

First the Navy gets together a gang of flyers eager to get home from Australia and has them wing across the Pacific to Washington.

So the "Truculent Turtle" did it; setting a new record for twin engine performance and, too, getting reams of favorable copy for the Navy.

Not to be outdone, the Air Corps souped up a B-29 in Hawaii and dispatched it via the roof of the world to Cairo, Egypt.

"Dreamboat" arrived in the land of the date and sheet merchants in a record time, proving at least that it's a long walk between Hawaii and Egypt if anyone cares to try it.

Then a carrier is dashed off to the Mediterranean where a squadron engages in some fancy acrobatics over Athens, Greece, while its citizens are casting a national vote.

SPONSOR CANCELS PROGRAM

A formation of Army bombers on a round-the-world "goodwill" tour is arranged, but the State Department put the skids to that ambitious plan.

By way of compensation, the Air Corps then spliced a couple of P-51s together and sent the odd looking craft on a speed dash from Hawaii.

Evidently the Air Corps hires the most and pays the best to their staff of public relations officers, for they've won recognition as a separate arm of the service.

The Navy didn't do too bad either, as they've succeeded in torpedoing tain most of the gravy they had during the war.

ANOTHER UNIFORM ADDED

When all the chips have been counted it will end up in pretty much the same setup except the Air Corps gets a divorcee from the Army.

Marines will still look like hotel doormen, sailors will keep the tight pants sway, soldiers will sport a well-tailored Arma blanket, and Adrian is being contacted to design a little number for flyboys.

East Bay Resident, Non-Gossiper, and Irate Vet Blast Guardsman Writers

● Cultured
Editor, The Guardsman:

In behalf of the students who live across the bay, I wish to express my resentment to the usage of the term "Uncultured" side of the bay as was used by Mr. (if I may) John Hulse in his article entitled "Four to One" in the March 4 issue of The Guardsman.

It might be pointed out that the term "cultured" to which the writer had reference, used in its broadest sense, cannot be made so broad as to depict the atmosphere on our campus, socially or otherwise.

Mr. Hulse should use forethought before tossing SUCH controversial issues around the campus in "our" Guardsman.

He who dares say that womanfolk at this institution are the prize-taking gossipers of our century, speak now or forever hold your peace! The talkative males can eloquently add to what "isn't so," developing more interesting tid-bits to be passed around to their buddies without a question . . .

—A Friend of a Misjudged Personality.

● Vets, With High I.Q.
Editor, The Guardsman:

. . . Mr. Pichon asks students to "visit a pub any time of the day" to see students carousing. Does he mean that we should cut classes to watch veterans at a bar? Never! What if your instructor should see you leave a pub through the swinging door, after cutting class? Mr. Pichon might look over Alpha Gamma Sigma records to find a few veterans who are members of the society . . . or can't he tear himself away from his studies long enough to support his "brilliant" comments on the student veterans?

Track

College Cinder Squad Meets Stanford, Univ. Of Calif. On Easter Oval Dates

By Dayton Lawson

Having had a couple of practice meets under their belts to determine just what they have to work with this season, the Ram track and field squad, title holders of last year's cinder campaign, start playing for keeps from this point on.

Breaking right into the field where the big boys play, the red and white clad spikesters meet three top-notch clubs in as many weeks.

Next Saturday, March 29, finds them prancing on the Stanford oval, and the following week, proving they play no favorites, they travel to Edwards Field, where the Blue and Gold promises to show them an interesting afternoon. San Mateo is next, and is also a road trip, although by this time the boys should be hep to each bump along the much-traveled Rue de 101.

Taking the past two practice clambakes as examples, the biggest headache seems to lie in the weight events. The discus, javelin and the shot put are tres sad, and the heavy boys will have to get off the dime and turn in some better marks to place at all in the conference meet.

On the sunny side of the ledger, the high jump and the pole vault are much improved, the dashes better than average, and the hurdles fair. Bill Barnes is showing much promise in the high jump and Harry Tapoian should improve his height in the vault with the help of some of the pressure put on him by a few of the new men, notably Bradbury, who should push 12 feet before the season is out.

Hot Time On Campus! Targets Up In Smoke

Fire of undetermined origin illuminated the lower campus recently, enveloping an archery target in flames and leaving charred embers in its wake.

The prank was first discovered by Gloria Swiecgood, the archery instructor, when her class took nim the following morning and found they had one less object to shoot at.

The target, a large bundle of hay supported by a wooden frame, was completely demolished by culprits, who were believed to be merely juvenile pranksters.

WAA Club Officers, Delegates Announced

Club managers to serve for this semester for Women's Athletic Association as announced by Gloria Swiecgood, WAA adviser, were Paulette Whiteborn, archery; Rose Chin, badminton; Josephine Egert, basketball; Carolyn Kennington, dance; Hermina Ross, tennis, and Jean Sliter, softball.

Miss Swiecgood named Frances Scilipoti, Annette Warden, Roberta Reams, Josephine Egert, Hermina Ross, and Marilouise Matthews as delegates to represent the college at the 1947 Women's California Athletic Federation Conference to be held at Stanford University Thursday and Friday, March 27 and 28.

James Gordon Bennett introduced the game of polo to the United States in 1876.

Entries Due

Intra Deadline On Activities Mar. 28

That the college intramural tournament has more new developments than the proverbial dog has fleas, was evidenced by the bulk of information released from the office of skipper Tom Wilson this week.

The issue of prime importance seemed to be the announcement of the entry deadline for swimming, tennis, and track activities. Wilson has had applications for these sports open for the past two weeks, but now declares they will be closed on next Friday, March 28.

Still pertinent to the cagers and their followers, the Operator A.C. has loomed as the team to beat in the National League race. Last year's champs, the Poly Lambs, do not appear to possess the finesse and ability they displayed while make a show of all 1946 competition.

The Operators, on the contrary, loudly voiced their claim to title honors last week, and broke the old tournament record of 135 points (held by the Poly outfit), by scoring 151 digits against weak Tri Epsilon opposition. At the same time the Operator stars Reilly and Duggan were pumping the basket full of holes, the Sugar Mountain Boys of the American League were "beating" their assigned foe, Beta Phi Beta.

In addition to basketball, this game featured several fisticuff skirmishes which proved the Sugar Mountain Boys possess not only the ability of champions, but the temperament as well.

WATCH for the revival of the Block SF Society. It will again be of the leading group in the college. In the past few years the society has lost much of its power and influence, but under the leadership of Art Ekdall, the society will soon have an office on the second floor of the administration building, and hopes to regain its lost prestige.

At this writing the college will only have three home football games next season. There are two reasons for this, the first being the poor attendance at home games. The second reason is the lack of a decent football field.

At the present time there are four football stadiums that are practical for use of the college, or that have been used in the past by the college. They are Kezar Stadium, Washington High Stadium, Balboa High Stadium and Seals Stadium.

Of these four, three are impractical for the colleges use. Kezar is too big, Balboa is too small and is dangerous to the players, and Seals Stadium is too expensive. This leaves the Washington Stadium at 32nd Avenue and Geary Boulevard as the best loction.

A recent feature in one of the downtown papers pointed out the fact that interest in swimming as a sport in college could be greatly increased by allowing men and women to compete together. This is a great idea, if we ever heard one. The women who swim certainly deserve a break in the colleges, and such a plan would increase the turnout for the male squad ten-fold, if not more.

We for one would put on our old swimming trunks, and give the old college try.

The Northern California Junior College Conference fared very well in the recent Western State Invitational Basketball Tournament. Sacramento placed third, while Grant Tech placed fourth. The tournament was won by Compton (who puts on the shindig), and second place went to Phoenix Junior College of Arizona.

Teamwork Needed Now

New Block SF Society Movement; Brady, Ekdall Fight Non-Cooperative Spirit

By Sam Goldman

Faced with the perlexing problem of reorganizing a weakened, war-disrupted Block SF Society organization, President Art Ekdall this week took the first step in strengthening the athletic group into a formidable, smooth working contingent by securing the helpful advise of Assistant Dean Jack Brady.

With the sincere belief that the Block Society can and must become a leading organization in building up college spirit, maintaining the high standards of activities, and ushering in the greatest era of the college's history, Brady cleared certain questions by stating:

"The situation here at the college concerning the block society is definitely serious. Throughout the various junior colleges and universities all over the country, the athletic organizations and block societies are leading spokesmen in all the major activities. As yet, only a few members of the present society have come forward with a strong, reasonable program."

Laxity and poor cooperation from "certain athletes, who having earned their block awards, relaxed from their responsibility to the college's social, political, and scholastic activities," have handicapped the Block SF Society leaders from successfully bringing the block group into the limelight of the campus life.

Mittmen Seek Third Conference Victory At Cub's Expense On Harrison Diamond

With their victories over the Menlo Oaks just a reminder, the San Francisco Ram diamond men will play host to a strong Santa Rosa Junior College squad this afternoon at Harrison Field at 3 o'clock as an opener of a two game series.

Although still short on experienced hurlers, the Bill Fischer coached locals appear to be among the teams "to beat" in the NCJCC circuit.

The invading Cubs boast a well balanced nine with a large assortment of deep reserves, including five starting hurlers who can be expected to go the route in any game. Coached by Cook Sypher, the Santa Rosans lay claim to a fast hustling infield and outfield.

Whatever championship dreams that presently occupy the mind of "Deacon" Fischer will largely depend on moundsman Jim Hughes. The big right-hander has thus far this season shown the ability to hold the opponents to a few bingles, and the remainder have gone down into the dust on the third count. Hughes will take to the pitching-hill this afternoon in an effort to continue the Ram's victory spree.

Heavy batting chores will be laid upon consistent basemen, Art Cirimele, Al Ganem, and Bob Nard, all of whom have put the destructive touch to the Ram nine thus far this season.

The outfield defensive and offensive power will be in the mitts of Chet Anderson, rightfield; Zane Kaplan, centerfield, and Ernie Domecus, leftfield.

Reliance George Homsey, still possessing his pre-season injury, will be "on the bench" for another week. However, his return to the squad is expected to bolster the Ram nine.

The second diamond contest between the clubs will take place on the Cubs' home field on Saturday, March 29.

Marin Junior College plays host to the Rams on the Mariners' home diamond, Tuesday, April 8.

The first Davis Cup competitive match was played on August 8, 9, 10, 1900 in Boston, Massachusetts. Sponsored by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, the United States won the first cup from England by capturing three matches to none. The Americans won ten sets to one and 76 games to 50.

NCJCC Net Opener Reset For Friday

The facts that the conference opener against San Mateo has been postponed until this coming Friday and the constantly improved showings made in practice tilts have led Coach Tom Wilson to believe that "his boys will do all right this year."

The six day stay for the San Mateo tussle will give the locals time to work out doubles combinations that may decide the NCJCC issue. At the present the doubles combo of Haggerty and Langton and that of Reed and Covall will draw the starting call against the Bulldogs.

These four together with Joe Barton are the probable singles players in the official conference play. However there is always the possibility that one of these boys may be replaced by men such as Buz Fernbach, Mel Hansen, and Bud Goldman who have been showing up well recently.

The San Mateo team was struck a severe blow when it was announced that Frank Sample, their star performance, will probably be ineligible.

While the peninsuln foes have been considerably weakened, reports of powerful squads from both Menlo and Modesto fed observers to believe that the title race may narrow down to the locals and the two nforementioned teams.

In addition to the San Mateo match this Friday the Ram racketmen play host to a mystery aggregation from Salinas the following day. Saturday's match will be played on the Golden Gate Park courts starting at 10:30 a.m.

Veterans

Subsistence Boost Spearheaded By AVC

A campus wide four day campaign by the college chapter of the American Veterans Committee was under way yesterday, designed to promote favorable action on an AVC bill.

The bill which was introduced by Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers, Massachusetts, favors a $35 increase in monthly subsistence allowance for all veterans plus $10 for each child of a married veteran.

The college chapter of the AVC headed by Chairman Phil Onstott started its drive yesterday, the beginning of National AVC Subsistence Allowance Week and will continue the campaign until Thursday to allow time for all student veterans to sign a petition approving the stipulations of the proposed legislation.

"The booths are open from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m., and all veterans are urged to sign the petitions," Charles Kaber, chairman of the membership committee revealed.

"The increase will be neither a bonus nor a handout," Chairman Onstott of the college chapter of the AVC asserted.

"The Government has committed itself to a training program for those who have given from three to five years of their lives in the service. Campus surveys taken by the American Veterans Committee, both here and in schools throughout the country show that it costs a single veteran between $90 and $110 per month to live and married veterans between $145 and $175."

AMS Features Barn Dance This Friday

Walt Tolson and his band will appear on the campus Friday night, March 28, at the Associated Men Student barn dance in the west campus auditorium. The band, seven pieces and a vocalist, will hold sway from 9 until 12 midnight.

Keeping in step with the theme, the men are requested to appear in "Levis" and the women in cotton or gingham.

The custom of the AMS furnishing refreshments has to be abandoned to cut expenses. Cokes and cider will be offered for sale by the hotel and restaurant catering organization, in lieu of the traditional furnished "victuals."

The AMS is acting with the Associated Women Students as co-sponsors for the decorations.

The decorations are to be themed around a rural scene. The members of the decoration committee representing the AWS are Claire Levesque, president; Nancy Stookey, and Virginia St. John. Committee members from the AMS are Frank Nelson, president; Frank Grant, Jim Edwards, Bob Reiley, and Wayne Zenger.

Nelson, when discussing plans for the barn dance remarked, "The decorations will be curtailed because the AMS budget is rather limited.

"The AMS expects this dance to be the success that it has been for the past six years since it was first presented," the AMS president added.

In addition to the sponsoring of the barn dance each semester, the AMS also presents an intramural boxing show, which is another highlight of the organization's activities, Thomas D. Wilson, faculty adviser, disclosed.

THE ASSOCIATED MEN STUDENTS, headed by their president, Frank Nelson, will hold their Barn Dance this coming Friday in the west campus auditorium.

"Easter Parade" Ball Slated For Edgewater

Social spotlight will focus on the Edgewater ballroom, Monday, March 31, at 8 p.m., when the first strains of music usher in The Eastern Parade, Beta Tau's semi-annual presentation.

Beta Tau has added a little flavor to their campaign for ticket sales by placing a photograph, previously taken during a rally program, in the vicinity of the silver pole. Those students appearing in the picture whose likenesses are encircled by a white line will be presented free tickets to the dance.

Ted Noble, dance chairman, hopefully stated that this year's festivities will surpass those held last semester in the form of the Mistletoe Mingle.

The theme for the coming dance was chosen since March 31 is the first day of Easter vacation which runs to Monday, April 7.

Music will be provided by Buddy MacDonald and his orchestra. In addition to the regular dance tunes, the group will present a series of specialty numbers.

For those who aren't lucky, tickets can be purchased from any member of the fraternity.

Merchandising

Specialty Shop Dedication Today

Representatives of many major downtown department stores and specialty shops will participate in the dedication, today of a model retail selling unit installed at the college by the Sears Roebuck Foundation.

The model installation is in recognition of the successful merchandising courses in operation at the college since 1939 which are complemented by successful "on the job" training in larger downtown retail establishments.

S. W. Pettigrew, president of the foundation will formally present the new unit to President A. J. Cloud.

Witnessing the ceremony will be executives of many major downtown department and specialty stores who have contributed merchandise to stock the unit.

Associated Students

Council Issues OK For Casaba Awards

The Student Council approved the awarding of blocks to 11 members of the varsity basketball team at last Thursday's meeting.

Immediately after the meeting, Associated Student President Trev Burrow, Don Burger, and Nick Dirtiman left for Visalia to attend the Northern California Junior College Conference.

As Millie Laube will be unable to attend the Sunday meeting of the National Student's Organization at University of California. Bill Riley and his wife, Marie Wispell Riley, were appointed by Burrow as observers.

Burrow requested the observers to pay special attention to the question of the United Nations Education, Scientific, and Cultural Organization which will be raised at the meeting.

Junior College Confab

Visalia Conference Elects Burrow Head, Names Rams Host

Highlights of the semi-annual California Junior College Student Government Conference were selection of San Francisco Junior College as the conference site for next semester, concurrent election of Trev Burrow as president, and designation of the college as headquarters for all future anti-Tenney activity.

Local representatives to the conference, held at Visalia Junior College, March 21 and 22, were Burrow, president of the Associated Students; Nick Dertiman, freshman representative of the Student Council; and Don Burger, chairman of the Judiciary Force.

One of the first problems which the conference tackled was that of the veteran and the Associated Student card. A measure was approved and passed requesting that in the future the government handle the payment of veterans' student cards.

Discussion then turned to the Tenney Bill, and this college's Tenney resolution was unanimously adopted.

As the meeting drew to a close, Burrow requested that San Francisco Junior College be chosen as next semester's conference site. The request was passed by unanimous vote.

At the next conference Burrow will be the president and Jack Spears, vice president of Menlo Junior College, will be the vice president of the northern California area. Shortly after this the conference came to its official close.

In a post-conference statement Burrow said, "The selection of the college as headquarters for activity against the Tenney Bill coupled with the unanimous acceptance of the college as a site for the coming conference are honors in which we should all take pride."

Delegates Selected For N.S.O. Convention

Action which will send delegates and observers to the next National Students' Organization regional convention was unanimously taken by the Student Council last Tuesday.

Following discussion and delegates' reports, which utilized the major portion of the meeting, Trev Burrow, Associated Student president, relinquished his gavel to Secretary Jo-Ellen Cain to make the motion later approved by the council.

During the discussion, Bob McHenry, council-approved observer to the recent NSO convention at the University of California, stated that in his opinion the proposed constitution of the soon-to-be-formed organization, as it stands, should not be backed by the council.

His reasons were that the constitution and by-laws had not been sufficiently clarified to the delegates and observers at the conference, and until the actual working principles could be ascertained, the council could not wisely back them.

Bill Riley, an observer at the convention, added that the proposed constitution, as it stands, puts entirely too much freedom in the hands of the students.

Burrow presented a bill from San Mateo Junior College for $93.55 for the repair of damage done last semester by members of this student body. The council approved payment of the bill.

Royal Soph Elections

Class King, Queen Contest Starts Tuesday With Nominations Due; Twelve Candidates Will Run For Each Throne

With the deadline for college organizations to submit the names of their candidates for the regal positions of Sophomore King and Queen extended yesterday to Tuesday, April 15, Astrid Wettin, sophomore president, warned all organizations that a candidate must have a minimum of 30 units to his credit before he is eligible for the title.

ASTRID WETTIN, Sophomore president, who will be in charge of the semi-annual King and Queen contest to be held in conjunction with the class formal.—Photo by Edwards.

Ten students representing campus organizations may run for each title, and in addition, two students will be selected to represent the Associated Students as a whole, Miss Wettin said.

The history of the royal elections dates back to the early days of the college, when it was decided that a queen would be selected each semester as a typical representative of the sophomore class. In the Fall of 1945 the position of King was added to the ballot so that the male members of the class would get a chance at the glory which goes with the honor.

Even though the elections will be held Thursday, May 22, and Friday, May 23, college tradition prevents the winners from being known until May 29, at the soph formal, called the "Coronation Ball." Miss Wettin remarked that unusually elaborate plans are being made for this ball, which include a formal crowning ceremony for the King and Queen.

Photos of candidates will be taken April 21-24, inclusive, by the photography class in Room 9E. This will enable Associated Student members to identify each candidate and thereby make the election more representative of the students' preference. A schedule notifying the candidates of the time their portraits are to be taken will be posted on the main bulletin board as well as in Room 9E.

Summer Semester To Commence June 23

With the purpose of enabling students to accelerate their programs and helping veterans to save time, summer semester plans are now in rapid progress.

With registration on June 20-21, instruction will begin on June 23, run for a period of nine weeks, and terminate August 21. This will allow students in the summer quarter a vacation of one month before the Fall semester begins.

This information was announced by Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to the president, this week.

The maximum number of units a student may take during the summer semester is nine. "Some cases may be restricted to fewer units, depending on the student's course and grades," Luckmann added.

The courses offered by various departments will be chiefly university parallel. Courses in all fields are offered and special courses will be given if students request them, but a minimum of 15 students must be enrolled in each course. These special courses may be requested through department chairmen or Luckmann.

Homecoming Day

Open House Heralds Public School Week

Homecoming Day here, May 1 (May Day), will climax an intensive Public Schools Week program both on the college campus and through the city's public schools.

The entire campus will be thrown open to the public. From 2 p.m. until 9 p.m. the faculty, students, alumni and general public will be accorded a comprehensive view of the Junior College's scholastic program.

Special performances in the afternoon and in the evening, featuring the choir, band, and college dramatic groups are scheduled for the west campus auditorium.

Displays by several departments in floriculture, hotel management, journalism, veterans' administration, and ceramics will be open for inspection on the west campus.

Mayor Roger Lapham, in commenting on Public Schools Week in San Francisco, declared, "The theme for this year's observance, 'How To Live And How To Earn A Living,' will be interpreted by the schools in open house displays, and will permit the residents of this city an opportunity to appraise the educational procedures in our public schools."

In conformity with this spirit and purpose, Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to President A. J. Cloud and chairman of the homecoming committee, urged both faculty, students and alumni to invite relatives and friends to attend the program planned by the college.

"Judiciary" Moves To Rebuke All Violators

Contemplating alleviation of the student smoking violations and other student infractions on the campus, the Judiciary Committee during a recent meeting considered a plan for dealing with the offenders.

The plan for dealing with student offenders will provide for manual work around the campus as punishment for all male offenders and clerical work for women offenders, revealed Bud Marble, Judiciary Committee chairman.

The plan, if adopted, will also authorize the committee to recommend expulsion for gross offenders, it was disclosed.

Publications

Potential Students To Get New Booklet

Training Now, college publication depicting courses offered here, and life on the campus, has been mailed to all potential students. The booklet was written by the publications class, and the photography was done by the photography classes. Funds were provided by the Board of Education.

The booklet has information concerning all courses offered at the college, and was planned as a tribute to the college for placing tenth highest in the honor roll of junior colleges in the United States.

Forum Magazine

Deadline Extended Until April 14

Offering a revision of the deadline date for incoming material to the Forum Magazine, Faculty Sponsor Dorothy Mercer today announced Monday, April 14, as the extended deadline, giving contributors a three-day period of grace.

To date, an appreciable quantity of varied literary material has been received, but humorous and satirical work is still needed, Kenneth Ford, editor of the magazine, said, urging students to consider immediate contribution of all types of creative literature.

Still lacking are sufficient cover design submissions, according to Don Honnert, art editor. "We need more varied types of art work, including photographic work, because the staff plans to run a series of photographic articles," he added.

The magazine is expected to go on sale during the latter part of May, Ford said, and finances allocated the magazine will provide an entirely new type of college magazine featuring a smooth glaze Kromkote cover in three colors, several extracts of psychological and modernistic writings, including every type of literary material, and for the first time a series of unusual photographs.

Reflecting upon the anticipated success of the magazine, Miss Mercer expressed firm belief that it will surpass any previous college publication in the bay area. The attitude of the staff and the quality of the material submitted all indicate a very successful magazine, Miss Mercer said.

SOPH PICNIC SITE CHOSEN

Adobe Creek Lodge, near Los Altos, California, has been announced as the site of the sophomore picnic, Sunday, May 25, by Astrid Wettin, sophomore president. Miss Wettin states that the park contains all necessary features for an enjoyable day—dancing, swimming, varied sports, and the low entrance fee of $1.00.

Tri-Epsilon

Spirit Of '49ers Sets Mood Tonight At Colorful Prom

Flooding the college with beards, buckboards and horses in an all-out campaign to put students in a '49er mood, Tri-Epsilon is ready to stage the biggest and most unusual dance of the semester with tonight's Pre-Centennial Round-Up at Fairfax Park in Marin.

Tri-E, under the temporary alias "Tri Angle E Ranch," acts as a vanguard to the coming celebration of California's one-hundredth year of statehood, according to Bob Hanson, Tri-E secretary now doubling as a Tri-E tophand.

Besides the dancing from 8 to 12, additional entertainment will be provided by one "Black Bart," who will shoot things up at the dance until apprehended by a student, who will gain a $5 reward for his pains. Warning: No Tri-E man may make the capture. According to Hanson, real bullets will not be in the desperado's gun.

To make it possible for all students to attend, the Tri-E, Hanson declared, will provide Greyhound buses which leave the college relay station at 7:15. Bus tickets will go at 80 cents a round trip per person.

Meanwhile, today saw the culmination of the beard contest, the winner to be chosen by the quality of his beard, mustache or sideburns. The contest will be held at the silver (hitching) pole during today's college hour.

The winning man receives free tickets to the dance, with transportation and refreshments included for both him and his date.

Newman Club Sponsors Dance Tomorrow

Presenting its Spring Dance, the Newman Club makes its initial social event of the semester tomorrow night.

The dance will be held in the student lounge from 8 to 12 to the music provided by the club's extensive collection of records, Frank Fahey, president of the organization, announced.

Refreshments will be cokes at the dance, which will feature sports-informal attire, Fahey added. Tickets will be sold throughout the campus by club members at 25 cents apiece, 50 cents per couple.

Fahey was confident that the dance would live up to the Newman Club's reputation for staging excellent dances. He further stated that the club, under the leadership of Tom O'Neill, adviser to the group, has a 100 per cent Associated Student membership.

JIVIN' AND JAMMIN' by the Four Aces was featured at the rally held recently, at the auditorium on the west campus. They are the first in a new policy of big name-artists to appear at the college rallies. The Four Aces, who ster currently at the Say When Club on Bush Street in San Francisco, received encore after encore at the rally and will be brought back to the college for a return engagement at a later date.—Photo by Edwards.

Will Only Dead Student Bring Aid?

Phelan-Ocean Death Trap

SOME speed demon, wheeling along in the latest hot rod, is going to kill or injure some student of this college when crossing Phelan or Ocean Avenues, and then everybody will begin screaming for safety regulations.

It is estimated that 1,500 students cross Phelan Avenue during the break between classes. Add to this number those who cross Ocean Avenue to car stops or book stores, and one can readily see the danger involved and the need for careful driving.

Obviously, remedial measures, designed to protect the lives of the students, must be developed.

The college administration and the student government have interviewed the police department several times and have been promised that cross walks will be painted and all possible signs will be erected.

Unfortunately, however, there are local and state vehicle laws which seemingly prohibit the erection of stop signs in the middle of Phelan Avenue, and Ocean Avenue is considered too far from school buildings to enforce the usual 15-mile speed limit, which is enforced at other schools.

Until the police department can act, or until the public realizes the necessity for more stringent regulations (probably following a serious accident), it becomes incumbent upon the general student body to govern themselves in a manner befitting collegiates, and in such a way as to preclude the possibility of accidents.

A college education is not worth permanent disability, and a degree from this college will offer little solace to the grieving parents of some student killed while crossing Ocean or Phelan Avenues.

So take your foot off the gas, hot rod, or face the possibility of killing or maiming a student and the subsequent remorse following such an act.

After Dark

FEW men gain recognition for their work while living. As it were, the critics and reading public wait for you to kick off, stop breathing, drop dead, and return to the cool peacefulness of the grave before any plaudits or mention are thrown your way.

Robinson Jeffers, a contemporary American poet, breaks this tradition. His fierce and terribly beautiful narrative poems, set for the most part against the backdrop of the Carmel Coast, have literally forced their way onto the American literary scene, and in this fact lies the great Jeffers paradox: the man is a recluse.

NEW ORDER

He has broken from a gregarious mankind to contemplate the lasting values of nature: the oid and crafty Coast hawk hanging in the sun, the awareness of timeless rock, the great and majestic mountain ranges. Setting his furious incest-ridden narratives against the uncontrollable forces of nature, Jeffers puts his characters through incidents that symbolize racial introversion.

He does not see a brave new world but years of gradual stultifying decadence and in this sense Jeffers stands against conventional values. He would, and does, question the values of the American Way Of Life and The Christian Myth.

GREATEST SINCE SHAKESPEARE

His recent book, a freely adapted translation of Euripides' Medea, holds great significance for the modern reader. As with At The Birth Of A New Age, Jeffers' Medea is curious in that it is written in the classic manner yet holds all the untamed passions, the psychological and sexual perversions of the wild coastal narratives.

Without doubt, Jeffers holds a unique and unchallenged place among modern poets, but beyond that, many critics and readers regard him as the greatest poet since Shakespeare. That man must step outside himself to appreciate, contempiate, and understand the timeless manifestations of nature, is the philosophy this fierce and imposing Carmel poet incorporates into a way of life. Perhaps Swinburne put it better when he said, "The world is too much with us."

Around And About with Nagle

Today's Column Is Written By Del Pichon

LOCAL bookmakers are having a hard time of it what with the city constabulary clamping on the heat and all, but in addition to that they are getting a rough time from college students.

One of the students at this college was more than eager to beat the bookboys and tried to do it at their own game. He devised a neat, little machine from a cane, a couple of batteries, and a war surplus walkie-talkie coupled with some radio know-how.

Unfortunately just as this gimmick was about to burgeon forth with those bright green government ieaves, the Tanfo gumshoes put the clutch on it and its inventor. So ended a well-planned scheme.

However, this isn't the only instance of a collegiate putting his knowledge to good use. Look at Bob Gollum, the L A boy who allegedly applied his engineering knowledge to blow his prospective in-laws-to-be to kingdom come by strategically placing twenty-four sticks of dynamite in their yacht.

INVENT FOR CRIME

The possibilities in the field of crime are unlimited for those students who wish to utilize their college-acquired knowledge. Maybe one of the boys will invent a machine that will make it possible to beat the new pinball machines that are coming out (that will be the only way to beat them).

Some up and coming electrical engineer might contrive a portable radar set for bank robbers, safe-crackers and other such professional men that would warn them of the approach of the local constabularies! Think of what a boon that would be to these men! Better yet, it could be used to spot the motorcycle cops who hide and then zoom out to tag the unwary motorist.

STEALING HOUDINI'S STUFF

Someone might go to the aid of the poor safecrackers, who are now sandpapering their fingers to the nubs, by inventing the legendary gimmick that Harry Houdini supposedly made. It was said to be able to open any and all safes ever made in five minutes by just holding it in front of the lock.

Students, your future lies in crime! Don't wait, start now!

RECALLS

AS WE look back across the years it is strange how we can find an unseen connecting cord between the present and the past. This cord can be found in the form of a single name, an organization, or a plan which was set down for us in the hope that we would accept it.

Let us crack the seal of age and go back to the college of 1938. Let us pick the first week of April of that year. Let us review what was happening.

The Associated Students had just voted approval of their Constitution, and the Club Advisory Board, which was provided for in the new Constitution, was just being organized.

Joseph Amori, the college representative to the meeting of the Northern Section of the California Educational Research Association, was returning to the campus after delivering his report to the association at the University of California.

Organization of the Judicial Committee was being discussed in order to curb cheating in the mid-term and final examinations.

The Ram baseball team had been beaten by the University of San Francisco on Funston Field by a score of 8 to 5, but they had come back to beat Santa Clara, 9 to 6, at Santa Clara.

All of the students and faculty at the Powell Street "campus" were talking about the possibility of having a new college and campus.

These are just a few of the many dreams, plans, heartbreaks, and bits of happiness that can be shared with those who came before. We must remember, though, that then there wasn't any thought of the great war, Glenn Miller was just reaching the top, songs like Heart And Soul, Two Sleepy People, and Deep In A Dream were just being copyrighted. Yes, it was the age of the Lambeth Walk.

CHARACTER IN LEATHER

All right, so you aren't a frat man, you don't own a car . . . you got a wallet, haven't you?

There is something fascinating about a man's wallet to the average female, and she won't rest until she's pawed through it meticulously.

Not necessarily looking for the green stuff; that comes after the ceremony and she has a legal claim to the lucre, if any.

She's just curious; just trying to figure out your "character," so she tells you, by the contents of your pistol-pocket.

Men have neither the time nor the incilnation to delve into the girl friend's duffle bag or sea bag they call a purse . . . some have been known to be lost for days while inside taking inventory.

UNLOADING THE LOOT

But let the "steady," as she prefers being called after the third date hand running, get within grabbing distance of the leather, your character is exposed to all eyes.

Unless our hero has plenty of advance warning his past life is now spread out upon the lawn, and skeletons are marching en masse from within the confines of his Buxton cash register.

If he's a solid citizen of the college, a student body card usually comes fluttering out first, all well and good.

WRONG CARD, WRONG NUMBER

However, to cancei out that virtue, comes tumbling down a well-thumbed Irish Sweepstakes receipt that didn't pan out.

Immediately following the green stub is a succession of raffle tickets, both defunct and pending, on chances ranging from a 99 year lease on the Taj Mahal to thirty minutes' time at the neighborhood Bendix washer emporium.

Then a succession of bits of paper containing excerpts of choice, modernistic poetry gathered while following Kilroy's trail about the world.

A few misplaced phone numbers hurriedly scribbied out, the address of a few all-night joints about town and a French postcard, cut down to fit.

By this time you've been labeled strictly a stiff, the postcard did it, and she stomps off in a huff.

Touch a match to the whole pile and toss in your draft card, too, Mac, you're all washed up with that TS card effective last month.

The absence of this country's flag from both campuses one day iast week has gone virtually unnoticed.

I was informed by an ex-newspaperman instructor that this bit of information did not rate an editoriai, but only a news articie in the college's bi-weekly tabloid. What do you think, Miss Editor Gannon?

The weather was not inclement on the day in mention. Where was east campus' flag?

Scuttlebutt has it that, duc to shortages, west campus possesses no flag! Come, come people—ever hear of surplus sales? Let's not be naive.

As an answer to the inevitable world-weary cynics who will sneer "flagwaver" at this writing, I should iike to point out that state law has it that flags wiii fly from all schools, coiieges, and institutions.

Editor's Note: 1) there is only one campus; 2) since the American flag and the California State flag fly daily, weather permitting, behind the main building, this "bit of information" hardly rates space, even here.

Red And White Thinclads Take On The San Mateo Bulldogs Tomorrow At Kezar

By Dayton Lawson

After a week of diligent practice Coach Jim Jensen's track charges take on the season's second conference foe tomorrow when they play host to the San Mateo Bulldogs cinder squad at the Kezar oval, the meet getting under way at approximately 2 p.m.

The Rams were fresh from their initial Salinas unveiling, where they copped everything but the century, javelin, and the keys to the mayor's garage, when they absorbed a mild lacing from the Cal Jayvee squad last Saturday.

The fact that the Rams had both Menlo and San Mateo on their side as part of the composite team meeting the Bear cubs wasn't much help either. The blue and gold teddies simply got there "fustust with the mostust." The final tabulation was 106 3/10 to 52 7/10.

The most exciting spectacle of the afternoon was furnished by San Francisco's Bob Caredio and Cal's George Leisz, when both boys finished the quarter mile event in strictly a dead heat. This sometimes happens in the shorter races, but is a rarity in the middle distance events.

Ram sprinter Julian Griffin, a former Salt Lake City boy, proved to be the big noise of last Saturday's get-together, winning both the 100 and the 220.

Spirit Is Keynote Of Block Society Confab

Revision of an out-dated society constitution, arrangements for this semester's gala dance affair, and plans to institute a program for strong college spirit will be a few of the problems that are to be discussed during the Block SF Society's meeting today during the college hour in Room 194.

The important business will be presided over by Lee Eisan, adviser; Art Ekdail, president; and Chuck Biess, vice president. The athletic group leaders will bring together the thirty-three block society members "who are hoped will be the men who will lead the college in a new era of cooperation in the field of athletics and college spirit."

Prior to today's gathering the athletic organization leaders, with the valuable assistance of Dean Jack Brady, revised the original Block SF Society constitution. The discussion of this new constitution will be the first part of the business to be enacted upon by the group.

Kenna Big Gun In 14-9 Slugfest As Fischer's Diamond Men Trip Mariners

By Art Paymiller

While Bill Fischer watched nervously, the hometown Rams eked out a 14 to 8 win over a determined but ineffective Marin Junior College baseball team Tuesday on the Ocean View diamond.

Off to a running start, the local nine picked up ten runs in the first three frames. With a 3 to 0 lead at the end of two innings, the Fischermen broke loose for their most productive inning of the season in the third stanza. Twelve men came to bat for the Rams, with seven of them denting the plate.

Chet Anderson and Zanc Kaplan indicated what was to come as they shot line drive singles to left to open the frame. After Jim Hughes forced Kaplan at second, Bob Nard singled to left to check in Anderson. Al Ganem drew a walk to load the burlaps, at which point Jim Watkinson replaced Glenn Davis on the mound for the Mariners.

Herb Markall greeted Watkinson with a single to center, scoring Hughes and Nard. After Bill Maxey drew another free pass, Ganem and Markall tallied on Bill Kenna's single, his first of four hits.

Maxcy scored a few moments later on an error of Art Clrimele's grounder. The Ram's final marker of the inning came when Kenna scored on the front end of a double steal.

The Mariners came back strong in the fifth canto to score five runs on five walks and two hits, and narrowed the count to 10-8 in the sixth on a three-run homer by Shortstop Carl Anaclerio.

The locals put the game on ice in the seventh stanza with a three-run outburst, featured by Ganem's triple with two mates aboard. Ganem crossed the plate when Tim Woods let Markall's hard grounder roll through his legs.

Two Wins, Two Losses Over Easter Holiday

While the college was having its traditional Easter vacation Ram sports went on their merry way.

In the ficid of track, the red and white thinciads were matched in a dual meet against an unusually strong Cal Jayvee squad. Cal won easily mainly because of their superior depth in all events.

The diamondmen had a busy week also, taking on the Mission High and Bank of America nines and whipping both handiiy, 6-4 and 4-2.

The siow starting Ram net squad lost another match, this time to Salinas, 7-0.

OF CONCERN to the percentage of the 5,200 students here who foster an interest in professional baseball (and a point of major aggravation with this corner) is the price range schedule now prevailing at Seals' Stadium.

Paul Fagan, termed "fabulous" by local sports scribes, bought into Charlie Graham's franchise during the war years and made all sorts of rash statements concerning the welfare of the San Francisco fan and the manner with which he should be treated.

"I've got money to burn," Fagan was heard to say.

Now such a quote made nice reading, and the Fabulous One became immensely popular with the local baseball filberts upon its publication. But what Mr. Fagan did not say was just whose money he intended burning!

It is becoming increasingly evident that he did not mean his own. Since Fagan began his "good deeds for Joe Fan" we have (from an outside vantage point) noted the following benevolences:

(1) Sunday doubleheaders were split to morning and afternoon games, thereby theoretically increasing the "take" for Sunday 100 per cent and making the baseball nuts bounce two admissions where they originally paid only one.

(2) Former grandstand seats which were available for $1.25 were changed of name to reserved seats and now bring $1.65. Meanwhile the reserved seats ($1.65) have assumed the title of box seats and rent for a not too appealing buck-ninety.

(3) The sporting pages were filled with a bunch of malarky demanding recognition as a third major league. This brain-storm was an ideal way of securing a bountiful abundance of publicity—gratis. It proved a boon to the turnstiles.

(4) A minor item which has been discussed often of late—the 50 per cent raise on cushion sales.

Of direct and prominent importance to the college student is the absence of some sort of rate on ticket purchases. "Fabby" Fagan, in his lust for legal tender, refuses to acknowledge that the youth he is keeping from his ball orchard with the present high "tariff," is the group that will be supporting his diamond venture in the near future.

The Oakland Baseball Club, it seems, has more foresight. Their secretary, F. H. Parrott, informed us in a friendly, business-like letter, that the high school and college student cards are honored with a four-bit reduction for both grandstand and box seats.

You can take in the game at Emeryville tonight for 75 cents instead of the $1.25 regular grandstand charge. Oakland's boxes are priced 15 cents below the Seals' box price, and with the student rate, the cost drops another 50 cents to $1.25.

In other words, you can recline in an Oakland box for the same price Fagan charges for one of his "newest" grandstand siats.

Netters Seek First Win Tomorrow

Still seeking their initial triumph, the college netters face foe number seven, namely Modesto Junior College, on their own courts tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Slightly disappointed at the dismal showing made against Salinas when his charges dropped a 7-0 decision to the visitors, Coach Tom Wilson expressed hope that a better showing will be made tomorrow.

The Salinas affair was a poor test for both schools. The match was run off between intermittent showers and a raging wind. While the locals carried five matches to three sets they failed to register a win.

Facing Modesto, the conference's strongest team tomorrow will be Pat Haggarty, Bud Langton, Frand Reed, Bill Covall and Joe Barton in the singles. Doubles combinations have not yet been announced.

Women Athletes Elect Officers For Semester

Club managers to serve for this semester for Women's Athletic Association sports were elected the week preceding the Easter holidays.

New archery manager is Paulette Whitehorn; badminton, Rose Chin; basketbaii, Josephine Egert; dance, Caroiyn Kennington; tennis, Hermina Ross, and softbaii, Jean Sliter. The riding and swimming managers have not yet been named.

Any WAA member who has signed up in the women's gymnasium to participate in a sport during the semester is expected to attend the weekly WAA meeting in Room 140, main building, during the college hour each Friday, Miss Swiecgood said today.

A spring playday has been scheduled Saturday, May 3, Miss Swiecgood said.

Confusion Reigns At Silver Pole

QUEER ANGLE? Have you ever tried getting through the swinging door on the main floor in front of the silver pole between classes? This condition would be relieved if students would put a halt to their loitering in the halls between classes, and chat with their friends elsewhere. If you are guilty of this practice, why not give the rest of the student body a break—Photo by Edwards.

Campus Song Contest Draws To Close; Deadline Tuesday; Cash Prizes Offered

With $25, $15, and $5 set as first, second, and third prizes, respectively, students are urged to hasten in submitting their college songs to the judging committee of the college song contest or to Room 200 before the pending deadline of Tuesday, April 15.

Listening Hour Will Feature Folk Songs

With the represented countries sounding like roll call at the UN, the Listening Hour schedules Folk Songs Of The World as their Monday and Wednesday, April 14 and 16, programs in Room 200 at 12 noon.

With music "strictly off the record," Gertrude Norgard will play for the classes folk songs from the following countries:

America	Spain
Russia	Finland
Sweden	England
Central Europe	Ireland

Students Will Meet To Discuss Missionaries

Opportunities for missionary service in foreign lands will be explained by Mildred Whitted, traveling secretary for the Student Volunteer Movement, in the west campus lounge at 8 o'clock Tuesday, April 15.

When Lee Kearney, president of the college Y.M.C.A. Chapter, made this announcement to a coterie of students yesterday, the interest aroused was such that Kearney wired Miss Whitted inviting her to spend the entire day on the campus.

Faculty members and students who are interested in the Student Volunteer Movement, service in summer projects, the Student Cooperative Movement, or service in far off lands, are invited to attend.

Radio Class To Meet LACC On Quiz Show

Taking part in an age-old rivalry between the cities of San Francisco and Los Angeles, four members of Marie Weller's radio classes will represent the City by the Golden Gate on Station KFRC, Saturday evening, April 26, on the Quiz Of Two Cities show.

The program is on for 30 minutes, beginning at 7 p.m. The junior college team here will oppose four students from the Los Angeles City College. All eight will be veterans.

Entries have been coming in to the contest with increasing rapidity as the deadline nears, Flossita Badger, choral director, said.

Amateurs in the music field may set their lyrics to previously written melodies. The more enthusiastic writers may compose both the words and the music.

Tunes should be catchy and spirited, for they are to be used for college games and rallies.

The judging committee—Miss Badger, Gertrude Norgard, Madison Devlin, Dean Edward E. Sandys, Assistant Dean John Brady, Rally Commissioner Jim Mann, Associated Student President Trev Burrow, and the presidents of the three music clubs—will accept entries any time before the deadline, April 15, and will place them all under careful consideration.

Thespians Prepare Arsenic And Old Lace

The melodramatic comedy, Arsenic And Old Lace, written by the skilful pen of playwright Joseph Kesselring, is to be presented to the students of this college on two consecutive days starting Thursday, April 24, in Room 28, Lloyd Sisler, drama director, declared yesterday.

This production, scheduled for two presentations each day, will cater to the students at 1 o'clock, and to the general public at 8:15 in the evening. Admission, free to Associated Student members, will cost non-members 60 cents, tax included.

Ticket sellers are needed, and those desiring the job should see Sisler, building 19. As an incentive, solicitors for this play will receive one ticket for every tenth sale, Sisler said.

First official meeting of Cercle Francais, newly formed French club, is also scheduled today for the college hour, in Room 312, according to Doris Hernried, sponsor of the group.

Election of president and secretary-treasurer for the organization will be held at this meeting, and for this reason Miss Hernried urged all prospective members to attend.

French students and those with some speaking knowledge of the language are eligible for membership.

XGIs To Select Own Queen At Dance

Election of a campus Queen provides a break in the music of Larry Pindar during the XGI Society's presentation of Day and Night, a dance scheduled to last from 2 p.m. to midnight, Wednesday, April 16, in the west campus lounge.

The Queen will be chosen in an "on the spot" beauty contest scheduled for about 10 p.m. to be judged by a committee of XGI members.

"A campus-wide search for beauty is now in progress," Welch said. "Sororities are holding primary elections within their own organizations. Women not affiliated with sororities who wish to enter the contest are requested to come to the XGI office in building 2."

Concerts Need Ushers

Students interested in ushering at performances at the Opera House are urged by Dean Margaret Dougherty to apply at her office in the student lounge.

Ushers are needed for the following performances: April 14, Jascha Heifitz; April 22, James Melton; April 28, Arthur Rubinstein.

Service Credits May Be Used Only Once

Veterans who have applied their basic training service credits and credit for service school attended, toward high school graduation may not use it again at the college level, F. Grant Marsh, head counsellor, announced.

All veterans who have obtained high school diplomas through this college, General Educational Development Tests, or other accelerated plans approved by the San Francisco Board of Education, are required to apply basic training credit at that level, Marsh asserted.

"Veterans who have already used their credits are also required to enroll for two units of physical education and two units of hygiene," Marsh added.

College Summer Session Entrance Dates Scheduled

Entrance examinations for the Summer session will be given Friday, June 20, and Saturday, June 21, with instruction beginning on Monday, June 23, according to a schedule released yesterday by Mary Jane Learnard, registrar.

Classes will run for a nine-week period, with a five-day week in effect.

No student who intends to carry either chemistry or physics will be allowed to take another course. A student's program will be limited to eight units, except by special permission, Miss Learnard said.

Opening date for the Fall semester has been officially set for September 17, and a tentative schedule of classes will be issued some time after May 1, Miss Learnard disclosed.

Students desiring to enter the University of California's College of Engineering must inform the dean of the College of Engineering, University of California, Berkeley 4, before May 1, and must have applied to the university before that date.

Entrance examinations will be given at the Engineering Building on the Berkeley campus on Saturday, May 17, at 8:30 p.m.

Applications for the Fall quarter at Stanford are due May 1, according to John M. Stalnaker, Committee of Admissions head.

Students who fail to meet the entrance requirements will be notified at once, while those students accepted will be informed as to their admittance earlier than usual.

New Judiciary Committee Head Plans Clampdown On General Student Laxity

Marble Outlines Three-fold Program

By Mel Hansen

One of the few students possessing a key to the faculty elevator and a pretty wife to escort him to and from the college is Bud Marble, newly appointed chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

Marble was born in Seattle, Washington, where he completed his high school studies.

He entered the service in May, 1943, and began his training as an infantryman.

Shortly after completing his training, Marble was shipped outbound for the European theater of operations. During the fierce fighting in France, he was there as a sergeant with the 45th infantry division. Throughout the following campaigns he advanced to the rank of technical sergeant.

It was after this last promotion that he established himself as an outstanding soldier by receiving one of the rarities presented to enlisted men during the war, a battlefield commission.

He was retired as a captain, March 22, 1947, and is now engrossed in his studies as a language major here at the college.

As newly appointed head of the Judiciary Committee, he is head man of one of the most important groups of law makers at the local institution.

His first official move was to instigate a three-fold plan aimed at correcting the laxness with which the students care for the building and its grounds.

Marble had this to say concerning the plan: "I request the cooperation of students and faculty alike in the common effort to improve conditions on and about the college."

Music

Many Entries In As Song Contest Closes

With entries coming into the judging committee of the college song contest hard and fast, Flossita Badger, choral director, warned that today is the deadline for submitting songs for judgment.

The committee is interested primarily in tunes which are catchy and spirited for they are to be used at college games and rallies.

Previously written melodies are acceptable as long as they have an original lyric set to them. However, the judges may be more enthusiastic over songs which have both original melody and lyric.

Freshman Dance Friday At Marin Redwood Bowl

Ushering in the traditional Freshman Dance Friday evening, April 18, at the Redwood Bowl in the Marin Town and Country Club, Jim Edwards, class president, has promised that this novel idea of daneing under the stars to the theme of Starlight Serenade will be greeted with success.

The music is to be afforded by Walt Tolleson and his seven-piece band, with the aid of a vocalist.

Daneing will be from 8 p.m. to midnight, with dress being informal.

Bids to this dance are now being made up by the college art department and are to be silk encased, Edwards said.

Council To Consider Constitution Change

Associated Student President Trev Burrow was given the go-ahead signal by the Student Council last Thursday to appoint a committee to investigate the possibility and advisability of changing the constitution.

Burrow particularly suggested that an amendment be introduced to include the Club Advisory Board president on the President's Cabinet, and that an amendment changing the method of selecting the election committee be drawn up so as to preclude any election irregularities.

Sophomore Class

Deadline Today For King-Queen Bids; Portraits To Be Taken Next Week

With the period for college organizations to submit names of their candidates for the coming Sophomore King and Queen election drawing to a close today, Astrid Wettin, sophomore president, again stated that portraits of the aspirants for the royal titles will be taken next week, Monday through Thursday, by members of the photography class in room 9E.

A schedule of available times when the pictures may be taken will be posted on the main bulletin board and also in room 9E.

When the portraits have been completed, they will be mounted and displayed in a prominent place to enable Associated Student members to scrutinize carefully the merits of each candidate and thereby make their choices.

This program follows the successful one presented on Thursday, April 3, when Del Mar Faddis, chanter of popular songs, and Evangeline Prigodich, soprano, favored the Letterman group with songs to the piano accompaniment of Martha Lee. The program was well received and was terminated by entertainers joining wounded men in making records.

Not to be outdone by these soloists, the A Cappella Choir has a busy schedule ahead of it. Shows already set, according to Flossita Badger, choir director, are a USO show for April 20; the Junior College Festival at Stanford on May 5, and the annual Spring concert for the Wiwanii Club's Music Week luncheon at the Fairmont Hotel, May 6.

The USO and the Kwanni Club have engaged the choir on previous occasions, and they continue to request its music.

Letterman Program Features Campus Duo

At Letterman Hospital, the entertainment spotlight swings and focuses on Janc Swendsen and Gene MacGowan Thursday night, April 17, in the weekly musical program for wounded veterans.

The popular soprano and baritone will sing for the hospitalized men, light opera favorites, in solos and ducts.

Rally Head Mann Plans Program This Friday

Rally Commissioner Jim Mann is hard at work preparing for the next student program to be held during college hour this Friday.

Continuing in his endeavors to maintain the high quality type of performance witnessed at the last student rally, which spotlighted the Four Aces, Commissioner Mann has opened negotiations with local college campi for exchange of student talent.

Yell Leaders Leona Dehique, Dee Roberts, and Bernie Davis are currently working in conjunction with Jim Mann in creating future top-notch rally programs.

The Rally Commission hopes to bring several name professional artists to the campus before the close of the semester, despite the handicap of insufficient funds.

Placement Office Set For Summer Job Rush

With Summer vacation rising slowly in the distance, the college placement office, with the cooperation of upper state industry, is preparing for the promotion of Summer jobs for junior college students.

According to Joseph A. Amori, placement officer, an extensive program is being initiated by the U. S. Public Roads Administration and the college engineering department, whereby engineering majors will spend the Summer season in one of the many highway construction camps in northern California.

Together with Paul Mohr, vice president; William Mayo, Cecil Aggler of the engineering department, and James Hart, field representative of the U. S. Public Roads Administration, the placement office is in the process of procuring enough students to meet the Summer demands.

The recreation department in the college is furnishing most of the recreation workers for the many camps, recreational centers, and youth centers in this part of the state.

The many requests sent to the placement office from resort owners in California show that they are expecting a busy season, with openings for workers of all types.

Homecoming Day

Displays Planned By College To Spotlight Public Education Week

Plans for an outstanding May Day program combining the annual Spring Festival and a city-wide Education Week are currently being developed by both students and faculty. This year's festivities will mark the first attempt at combining the regular Spring Festival and school authorities' annually sponsored "open house" program at public schools.

One of the several outstanding exhibits by numerous campus departments promises to be the ceramics display, under the direction of Instructors Roy H. Walker and John Lawrence.

This May Day program marks the first birthday of the ceramics division. San Francisco Junior College is the only public school in the city offering a complete and intensive course in this field. The college is one of the few junior colleges in the Northern California area pioneering the study on a college level.

Art In Action will permeate the central theme of the ceramic display. The general public will see the department intent at its everyday work, with students actively engaged in "throwing the wheel," casting, glazing and decorating. Pottery, modeling, and tile works will be on exhibition.

"Variety and almost limitless possibilities give clay-working an interesting personality with which everyone should have at least an acquaintance . . . our ceramics display hopes to serve this end," Walker declared.

Other exhibits will be sponsored by the hotel division, veterans' administration, floriculture, and journalism departments. Two musical and dramatic performances will be held in the auditorium.

This Education Week will feature the first "open house" held by the college since acquiring the varied facilities of the west campus.

XGI Society

Beauty Award Will Feature Day-Night Dance Tomorrow

A gold loving cup will be awarded to the winner of an "on the spot" beauty contest at the XGI Day and Night special dance, scheduled for tomorrow afternoon and night, Bill Guiles, publicity chairman for the society, disclosed.

The dance also features the music of Bob Emerson and his Five Sharps, and ten minutes of mystery by Ja-doo the Magician.

Women chosen from all parts of the college will compete in the beauty contest.

Guiles said that the following words will be engraved on the winner's trophy: "Love to our queen, (name of winner),. reigning beauty for the Spring semester, 1947. XGI Society of San Francisco Junior College."

Judges of the contest are XGI officers: President John Tolly, Les Holden, vice president; Henry Cravotto, secretary; and Robert Guilfoyle, treasurer; together with the member of the society who sells the most tickets to the affair.

The dance, to be held in the west campus lounge, will start at 2 p.m., continue to 6 p.m., when a two-hour break will give dancers time out for dinner. Resuming at 8 p.m., the dance will go on to midnight.

• Records furnish music for the afternoon session; then the Emerson band, under the management of Larry Pindar, takes over for the evening.

Committee for the dance are the following named XGI members: Bill Welch, chairman; Guilfoyle, Guiles, and Harold Eisert, Robert Tatam, Ed Morrison, Allan Maxwell, and Larry Hammond.

Admission to the dance tomorrow is 75 cents per person.

Spring flowers provide the decorations.

$93 Vandalism

Budget Takes Another Dive

AS A result of the vandalism of members of the college student body last semester, the student funds are being depleted by the sum of $93.

In a burst of animal spirits, preceding an important football game, some of the playboys of the college followed an artistic urge and took to painting, using the buildings of San Mateo Junior College in lieu of canvases.

A few days before the game was to come off, the apprentice painters, some of them in responsible positions in student government, allegedly setting good example for the rest of the college by their conduct, decided that San Mateo would look much better with "S.F.J.C." painted in red in prominent locations.

Irate San Mateans refused the services of the XGI Society and some of the campus fraternities which offered to do the clean-up job. Instead, and with justification, they used skilled help and did the job up brown at a cost of $93 to the Associated Students.

It is needless to point out that there is no provision in the budget for this expense.

THERE IS NO $93.

It would be useless to attempt to collect the sum from the hoodlums who perpetrated the deed. Officially it is not known who they are. There is no way to charge them.

Somehow, the money will have to be squeezed out of the budget, taken from other legitimate activities.

It is despicable that the already overburdened budget should be taxed further for the playfulness of a few childish reprobates.

This SHOULD—and we are optimistic—be a lesson to others from the college who in the future develop a hankering to try their hands at painting nice, big, clean walls that do not belong to them.

Ford

After Dark

James Joyce's Finnegan's Wake, a mighty allegory of the fall and resurrection of man, has long presented a monstrous enigma to critical observers. Some have utterly rejected this great work, but surely, none has rejected Joyce as holding a foremost position in world literature. One might even say the late Joyce was frightfully above it all.

The Wake is a strange, and to many, incomprehensible compound of fable, symphony, and nightmare. Freed from convention, fluid narration, style, concrete form, and the necessities of common logic, Joyce has compressed all periods of history, all phases of individual and racial development, into a circular design, of which every part is beginning, middle, and end.

All time occurs simultaneously; Tristran and the Duke of Wellington, Father Adam and Humpty-Dumpty merge in a single precept.

Elements of disassociation and disconnected word sequence give the work a dream-like quality, a quality of the unconscious saga of guilt-stained, evolving humanity.

The prodigious scope, abstruse fragments, and half words give the book a forbidding aspect of impenetrability. It appears to be a dense and baffling jungle, trackless and overgrown with wanton perversities of form and language. Because of this, the book, to some, is likened to the poetry of T. S. Eliot, William B. Yeats, Arthur Rimbaud, and others of the various esoteric schools.

In reality it is a huge time-capsule, a complete and permanent record of our age. Joseph Campbell has said, "If our society should go smash tomorrow (which, as Joyce implies, it may) one could find all the pieces, together with the forces that broke them, in Finnegan's Wake."

Stripping away the profundities of thought and uneven Semantical distributions, one finds, as with all great works, the themes of male and female, age and youth, life and death, love and hate, and the other basic polarities of man's never ending struggle, his unending aspiration, his decadence, decline, and rebirth —his lonely life on this microscopic ball of revolving mud and water.

Around And About

with Nagle

SO YOU think journalism is a snap course, a pusher for Alpha Gamma Sigma. So you resent every vacation that The Guardsman staff takes, an issue or two before or after a holiday. If so, face the facts!

Take the reporters, for instance. Their lot is an unhappy one. During their infrequent free periods they must scrape up news instead of slurping up shakes in the fountain. They must traipse up and down to the gymnasiums searching for notable instructors to learn they have "no comment," or have gone to lunch and won't be back for an hour or two.

If it isn't the physical ed department they want quotable quotes from, the problem still isn't solved, because faculty offices move up and down between campuses like the ocean tide, and faculty members can never be located.

BUT THE REPORTERS LOVE

—to writes stories, that walking a mile for a bit of information is just sheer joy to them.

Once the information is gathered up, the future Pulitzer-prize winner grabs a typewriter and whips his story into shape. Of course, the writing is easy—just ask anybody.

RACING UP AND DOWN

—head in hands, cursing and waiting for inspiration is a common occurrence among columnists, an hour or two before deadline time. Their ideas must percolate within themselves, and sometimes a boiling point isn't reached for several hours.

THE WRITING ASPECT

—being taken care of, only the make-up needs to be done now.

Editors, make-up men, copy editors, all enter into this picture . . . these sweet gentlemen and gentlewomen of the press are the handy men with the blue pencil, the exterminators of coined phrases, of improved un-Webster-like words, magnificent similes, and personal comment. These are the culprits that every reporter blames for "stereotyping" his copy, for eliminating the individuality, (which no doubt was worthy of libel suits galore).

After the "hacking" process, the material is gathered together. Long stories in one pile, short stories in another pile and both piles are tossed lackadaisically into the air. Those landing right side up go on page 1, the others doomed to anonymity on page 4. (Editor's Note: That's what Feature Editor Nagle thinks!)

Now, students, do you still think that the paper is put together with a snap of the fingers, and begrudge the staff an issue or two lay-off?

A Car In Every Garage—Thanks to Henry Ford

FEWER men will receive a more thorough dissecting by means of newspapers, magazines and books than will Henry Ford, following his death last week.

Praised or damned, by friend or enemy, Henry Ford left behind him a profound impression on the youth of America, mostly for the good.

But indirectly, too, he is responsible for wholesale slaughter of populations that has never been equalled by wars.

Ford built his automobiles for the common man. He was the father of mass production in the world, and, as such, put a luxurious weapon into the reach of the average person.

PEACETIME WARFARE

Weapon is a good term for an automobile today. In the hands of fools it becomes more deadly than a flame-thrower, more to be feared than a hand grenade.

Both of these war weapons are entrusted to experts for use. The automobile is available to all, both idiot and expert.

Ford built his cars and sold them. He cannot he held responsible for the inner workings of the feeble minds that sometimes bought his product.

PHELAN AVE. PROVING GROUND

Any street or highway in America can be selected as a prime example of sadistic driving that has been rampant since Ford and his competitors put autos into mass production.

Closer to home, Phelan Avenue is now a racetrack where sane and insane drivers alike compete in the mad rush to get home or to college or just to be getting nowhere in particular.

For every intelligent college driver there seems to be at least one moron behind the wheel and the pedestrian is caught in the middle.

No one wins on the racetrack, no one except perhaps the insurance policy holder. A rather hollow victory for those who cash in on the life insurance benefits.

GI DRIVERS STILL LOOSE

The cut down, souped up "hot rod" of a pre-war era seems to be still localized in Los Angeles and hasn't spread here to any degree.

Squirrel tails hanging from radio aerials, and cute wordings all over the chassis went out with the Hollywood haircut.

But the juvenile minds remain, romping down heavy on a gas pedal, and having no idea what a ton of metal can do upon hitting a human body.

A wartime hitch in the service doesn't make a genius out of every man and some vets drive as though they were still in the jungles.

Some of the vets receive more credit than they are worth, they got no closer to war than those who remained home, and came back from the service as brainless as the day they left. A hitch in San Quentin for manslaughter would be rougher than their war days.

Hilltop Manner

PROBLEMS are always arising, and this is the most troubled time of the year. Evidence is all around us.

Voices are heard loudly proclaiming that the individual is being neglected. Mommy is still in the kitchen at home, and once down the front steps, who is to tell poor Clarence College how to conduct his muddied life?

Desiring to help the situation along, there is a great temptation to compete with such famed advisers as Emily Post and Cynthia Grey. But that again would only lead to generalization.

Therefore, let us face one immediate problem at a time.

Spring is here, and it is well known that Spring is the time of the year when worms turn, or something. Also, people are supposed to be falling in love all over the place. The consequences of this rash act are usually disastrous, but few precautions have ever been taken.

Then, when the sickness and the fever take root, there is little that even medical science can do to effect an immediate cure. Casualties are few, however. When finally cured, the patient is usually so well healed that he quickly forgets his sufferings, and thus takes few precautions against a relapse or recurrence.

But that still doesn't help Clarence, who is suffering at this very moment. For him, and all his fellow sufferers, there are two main roads to relief: either to direct all mental energy toward a particular study, and not think of the pain, or to so completely immerse oneself in the pain, and the cause of the pain, that one finally becomes numb and no longer can feel anything.

If neither works, a mixture of sulfa water, a baked lemon, and 15 drops of ethyl is often recommended.

Co-eds Want Stag Dances; Objections Raised To Favoritism, Women Drivers

• Let's Get Acquainted

Editor, The Guardsman:

Since so many students really enjoy the stag-sport evening dances held at J.C., why aren't more given? It seems that many of the girls whom we have talked with agree with us, and we all find these dances a splendid way for getting acquainted with the members of the other sex. We do not know many men here since we have all women classes (monotonous, and how!).

Judging from the big turnout at the last dance of this sort, lots of other students had a good time, as well as ourselves.

If more dances were labeled "stag," we would certainly be very happy.

Six Co-Eds

• Eavesdropper Objects

Editor, The Guardsman:

"Four little gals from school" were unavoidably overheard in the canteen during midterm week. Their conversation was senseless. "Did you get your driver's license yet?" "Oh, that is swell." Another one said, "I know we used to get ten people in our car. We used to have such fun going to the prom."

The writer is urgently suggesting to the "girl with the car" to intelligently read the well known article, " . . . And Sudden Death" which was repeated recently in the Reader's Digest. In it she will read of the family who was speeding along the highway one Sunday afternoon—later the highway patrol officer found them . . . in a status similar to that of a condensed accordion.

The moral to the story—ten people in a car is too many—for safety's sake! (This is no reference to the driving ability of the "girl with the car.")

Intramural

Final Entries For Intramural Tennis, Track, And Swimming Teams Due Today

Prospective intramural athletes, with aspirations toward the swimming, tennis, or track activities, were given a reprieve by the program director, Tom Wilson, when he recently announced that the deadline for entrance applications would be extended until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Such a prolongation proved effective in Wilson's quest for basketball talent earlier in the semester, and the affable chieftain is expecting a similar deluge of "last minute applicants."

Anent the basketball leagues, the 29 contesting teams have narrowed down to three undefeated clubs, each topping its own respective loop.

In the American flag chase, the Sugar Mountain Boys are still riding the crest of victory, although their path is not as smooth as pre-season dope had imagined. The Operators A.C. appears to have the National League gonfalon sewed up, with major competition coming from the Fitz Fighters.

Wilson's Bush League, seemingly the slowest of the three, finds the Dandies as the number 1 challenger for title honors. The Dandies, though not spectacular, are a hard playing, earnest group of youngsters with a strong determination to win.

The badminton and ping pong charges are warned by Wilson that unless rounds 1 and 2 of their prospectus are completed by tomorrow a default will be recorded against the negligent party or parties.

Track

Sacs, Modesto To Test Ram Harriers

In their quest to recapture the conference gonfalon, the Ram spike champs of last spring have the two most important meets still in the offing.

Testing the likes of San Mateo and Menlo proved to be nothing more than a good workout for Coach Jim Jensen's harriers, but the Sacramento and Modesto clubs should be the deciding issue, as far as determining who will enter the conference meet with the biggest guns.

Although on the short end of the scoreboard in their little tiff with the Blue and Gold "Teddies" at Cal last week, the Rams uncovered a new javelin thrower in Brickell, whose winning toss of 163 feet is not exactly chopped liver in this league, judging from past performances. If the discus and the shot put can be strengthened it will serve to balance the weight events nicely.

Ram Netters Confident Of Victory Against Yuba Racketeers In Saturday's Match

Eagerly looking forward to Saturday's tilt with the Yuba Junior College racketeers on their own courts, the slightly rejuvenated band of local netters faced five days of hard practice this week.

Entirely satisfied at the showing made Saturday against Modesto, supposedly the conference's best squad, Coach Tom Wilson looked forward to a victory come Saturday against the unheralded Yubans.

Meanwhile, Menlo, Salinas, Modesto and San Mateo continued to top the conference in matches won.

The All-Conference meet has definitely been set for May 30-31, and will he played off on the College of Pacific's courts in Stockton.

The never ending battle for positions on the local scene continued, with Mel Hansen, Buzz Fermbach, and Bud Goldman striving to win a singles berth. The top five remained constant, Haggerty, Langton, Reed, Covail, and Barton staving off challenges to hold position.

Baseball

Nine Seeks No. 5 At Vallejo Today

With two victories over Marin Junior College under their belts, the Ram baseball team travels to Vallejo today to play the first game of a two-game series.

The Rams will be at top strength for the first time this season. Catcher George Homsey and Outfielder Frenchy Allemand have recovered from pre-season injuries and will be league's foremost hriers. ready for action.

Coach Bill Fischer's one-man pitching staff, Jim Hughes, will throw his fast balls for the Rams. Although slightly wild at times, the big right-hander is developing into one of the league's foremost hurlers.

Fischer's hurling problems were somewhat alleviated with the discovery of pitching talent in the outfield.

Rightfielder Bill Kenna was called upon to do relief in the Marin tilt and performed well under the circumstances. Centerfielder Zane Kaplan is able to pitch in relief roles.

Little is known about the Vallejo squad except for the fact that they defeated the Mariners twice in close games. This should make for an interesting pair of contests. The two teams return here next Saturday for slugfest number two.

Minor Sport Athletes Can Win 'Circle SF'

That minor sports have been designated in the athletic department by the award committee was announced yesterday by Assistant Dean Jack Brady.

The sports that were set up are junior varsity basketball, football, and baseball, boxing, golf, swimming, badminton, and skiing.

Participants in these sports will receive circle letters provided their team competes in a conference schedule or conference meeting and if they are recommended by the coach, Brady said.

Colonel Arthur Doubleday in 1839 laid the first regular baseball diamond and formulated the rules of play for the national pastime game.

Kenna Twirls Rams To Win Over Marin

By Sam Goldman

As a part of the trio of games posted by the college's teams over the weekend, Bill Fischer's defending champs kept themselves in high hopes for another crown for the Ram nine, when an eighth inning rally by the local batsmen downed Marin for a second time, 8-5.

Versatile Bill Kenna credited himself with his first win of the NCJCC baseball race, when he pitched the Phelan Avenue team to victory.

With the score all knotted up in the latter half of the eighth box the Rams battered the Mariners with three runs that decided the Big Rec affair.

Second of the week-end victories for the Rams occurred when the reserves of the Jensen cindermen came through Saturday to defeat a fast-stepping San Mateo team, 75-56, at Kezar Stadium.

Although packaging in eight first places out of the possible 15 in 15 meets, the peninsula rivals failed to total enough points to offset the 19-point win margin of the home track squad.

Upsets by the Mateans came in the 100, 220, and 880-yard meets.

The Tom Wilson acquetmen failed to overcome their loss jinx, and the tennis team was defeated by the Modesto netters, 4-3.

The Ram players were winners in two singles matches and one doubles cross-court hattle.

Joe Barton and Frank Reed each hackhanded their way in winning the singles, while Covall and Reed pooled their talents to net in the doubles victory.

Net Golf Events Open WAA Sports Calendar

The softball club of the Women's Athletic Association entertained the softball club from George Washington High School yesterday, and last Friday the tennis club was host to the tennis team for the College of Holy Names in Oakland.

These two events began what is hoped to be an active Spring for the WAA, Gloria Swicegood, WAA adviser, announced.

The badminton club is scheduled to play San Mateo Junior College's badminton club, Friday, April 25, Rose Chin, club manager, announced today.

RAMblings . .

By Paul Cane

IF LEE EISAN, Ram pigskin mentor, is seen walking around the campus with a large smile nowadays it is because lots of high school football material is headed this way. It seems that the youngsters are having a hard time entering the four-year institutions, because of the overcrowded conditions. Do not get too enthusiastic over the Ram chances to win the grid title again this year, as the same situation affects all other junior colleges as well.

• • •

Sacramento College has ambitions to become a four-year college, and at the present time there is a bill in the state legislature that will do just that. If this bill should go through, and Sacramento becomes a state college, it will leave a big hole in the Northern California Junior College Conference, and one that will be hard to fill.

Soccer will be available to those who like to play the European version of football, next Fall. Practice sessions are already under way at Balboa Park, under the tutelage of Ralph Hillsman. No schedule has been arranged so far, but it is planned to have the team meet the major college and private teams in the bay area.

• • •

Quite a few of last year's championship grid outfit will be wearing a different uniform this coming season. Glen Smith, All-Conference guard, has registered at San Jose State . . . Marshall Leong, All-Conference fullback, and formerly of St. Mary's, has left for the University of Oregon. Carter Corey, halfback last season, is at Berkeley, as is Staten Webster, last season quarterback. Art Psaltis, All-Conference tackle in football and a All-Conference guard in basketball, may join Herman Wedermeyer and company.

According to an eye-witness, a certain university (call it Semi-Pro University, if you want) in this area, fell heir to 20 imported foothall huskies that came along with their newly hired coach. Just for the record the coach's name isn't Lynn Waldorf.

Roos Bros. is planning to show a movie on San Francisco Junior College sports this coming week, it is reported. Can't think of what they will show.

Naval Reserve Comes To College, Will Invite Enrollment Of Vets, Non-Vets

Offering the opportunity for preparedness in the event of a future national emergency and many other privileges, the Organized Naval Reserve invites enrollment in its various branches to all honorably discharged veterans and to non-veterans, it was revealed by Electronics Technician's Mate Long, Naval Reserve recruiting non-com for the college.

Various members of the Reserve will be at the college today to give detailed enlistment information to all students interested.

Enrollment in the Organized Naval Reserve will give enlistees the opportunity to attend two training periods a day twice a month at a Naval training station, Long disclosed.

For this training members will receive four days' pay at the rate of enlistment. "The income is non-taxable and will not affect subsistence pay which student veterans receive from the government," Long stated.

The Oakland Naval Air Station has several million dollars worth of equipment which is used for training Reserve personnel. The equipment is available for all members training in electronics and aviation.

For the convenience of interested students, free bus service from the college to the Oakland Naval Air Station will be provided tomorrow.

Fame Comes To Paint Tech Course

Attracting international fame is the paint technology course offered at the college. Two letters inquiring for information about the course have been received by Dr. A. J. Cloud, president, from China and Holland, as a result of an article written in a national paint trade journal.

The article named the college as offering an extensive course in paint technology.

A more complete course is planned for next semester.

College Enters Cal Garden Show

The Annual California Spring Garden Show held in Oakland from Tuesday, April 29, to May 4 will have among its entrants the college flower shop and Horticulture Society.

Two spaces, centrally located in the exposition building, have been reserved for the college, according to John Lawrence, instructor of the flower shop.

Fantasia, theme of the show, is being carried out in the design worked out by Lawrence for the shop's display. The exhibit will have an ornate, three-dimensional frame as a background for a bowl arrangement of three dozen Antheriums.

In reply to a telegraphic request from Lee Kearney, president of the college YMCA, Mildred Whitted, traveling secretary for the Student Volunteer Movement, arrived here today to grant interviews to students interested in the activities of the Student Volunteers.

Campus Dorms Provide Good Living

By Jack Hulse

"Life in the west campus dormitories is pretty good."

That's the opinion of most of the men living in the single men's quarters that dot the west campus.

They have only one complaint that's printable. Other complaints center around the objects pinned up on their walls. The printable complaint is justifiable, because most of the men are war veterans, to-wit:

"Too many people call our living quarters 'barracks.' We would much prefer that they (the people) would refer to our temporary homes as 'dormitories'."

The desirability of the dormitories is best demonstrated by a survey of the buildings.

This survey is no attempt to sell anyone on the idea of moving to the dormitories, but the recent announcement by Fred McFarland, west campus director, to the effect that eight vacancies in the dormitories are now available and that now is an excellent time to make arrangements for a room for the Summer term, may be of interest to homeless students.

Music-Drama Groups Rehearse Gala Extravaganza For Homecoming, May Day, Spring Festival Celebration

College Hour

Top-Flight Talent In Rally Spotlight

A talent combine centered around Del Mar Faddis will be the feature of the college hour rally today at 10:40 o'clock. The rally, ensconced in the west campus auditorium, will afford interesting entertainment to the Associated Students, definitely promised Rally Commissioner Jim Mann yesterday.

This booking of Faddis follows a successful program in which he appeared at Letterman General Hospital, entertaining wounded servicemen and singing in night-clubs around town.

Second on the feature list is the college band. The band, under the direction of Madison Devlin, has been playing at the previous rallies but has heretofore been heard by the students only at the beginning and the end of the rallies.

Rally Commissioner Mann, in an effort to focus attention of the students on the band, said, "The band is good and we want to give it (the band) credit for the support it has given us."

Housing Units Ready For Occupancy Now

Now in the process of occupation by married veterans of this college without restriction, 28 new housing units adjacent to Hurley Village were completed last Monday, Dean Edward Sandys said in a statement released last week.

"Only recently was it possible to offer these units to veterans of this college," Sandys added. "Without the resolution passed by the Board of Education, the units would have been filled from the master list of the city's housing authority."

Sandys pointed out the advantages of the housing by calling attention to the facilities offered, including showers, ice-boxes, and in addition to these, features the units contain two large rooms.

It's a variety show featuring outstanding talent from the music and dramatic departments. Two performances of the varieties, one in the afternoon at 2 p.m. and the other in the evening at 7:30 p.m., will highlight the May Day program.

The program will headline A Cappelia Choir, Men's Chorus, the college orchestra and band, and several outstanding soloists, both student and professional.

Before the klieg lights are dimmed and the final curtain has fallen, the opening tune, I Love A Parade, by the band and chorus; some unique Spanish and Mexican dances starring Gloria Orzanco and Luis Martinez; a beauty parade boasting a bevy of lovely campus chorines set to the background music of A Pretty Girl Is Like A Melody, lyrics intoned by Pat McVey, popular bay area professional vocalist, and student here.

Plus—four famous Gershwin compositions rendered by pianist Grace Mayfield and songsters Emery Melon, Geraldine Akey, and Evangaline Progodich; plus several skits by Lloyd Sisler's dramatic class; a toe dance specialty by Marjory Manderville; revival of some popular American songs by Elmer Dickey and Bob Sherrat . . .

Pius—several special numbers by the band, orchestra, choir and Men's Chorus will have passed in review.

All this talent is combined under the tutorship of the music and dramatics department instructors and brewed into an outstanding show.

One of the highlights of the program will be the presentation of the winning song and composer in the college song contest. The winning tune will be played for the first time.

Other activities slated for the May Day celebration include exhibits by the ceramics, veterans' administration, floriculture and journalism departments.

Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to President Cloud and chairman of the Homecoming Committee, anticipates a large attendance and an interesting program. Faculty, students and alumni are urged to invite their relatives and friends to enjoy and partake in the festivities.

Anniversary

Great Earthquake 41 Years Ago Today

Today, April 18, we celebrate the forty-first anniversary of the destruction of San Francisco. On the morning of April 18, 1906, the great earthquake struck. It was one of the biggest catastrophies in the nation the biggest catastrophies in the nation's history, with casualties and property damage mounting in the millions.

As a result, there was the imprisonment of Abe Ruef (the city's old political boss, kingpin in a junior Tammany Hall setup) and Mayor Adolf Schmidt for engaging in some slightly underhanded work—it seems the expensive fire-proof, earthquake-proof city hall both burned and collapsed, to the politico's general embarrassment—only one sundry character was tossed in the clink for looting (he was caught).

Thousands made homeless by the quake and the fire that followed moved out to a tent city erected in Golden Gate Park to await the reconstruction.

The last phase of rugged American frontier life was obliterated. The Barbary Coast, cancan girls, nickel beers, and all were completely destroyed. After the fire not so much as a brass rail could be found to lean on.

Everything west of Van Ness was saved, the width of the street and an exciting dynamiting foray around the downtown section handicapped the surging flames.

Campus Improvement

Tentative College Control Of West Campus Starts FHA Reconstruction Ball Rolling In May Through Summer

By Stanley Medders

With west campus grounds under the control of the college and $100,000 supplied by the Federal Works Administration, vast reconstruction of west campus buildings will begin next month and continue through the summer, Oscar E. Anderson, coordinator of educational management, revealed last week.

Control by the college of west campus grounds and jurisdiction over the occupancy of Hurley Village will soon be obtained by securing signatures of the Federal Works Administration, Federal Housing Administration, Public Utilities Commission, and the San Francisco Board of Education, and by approval of the lease by the School Board.

For the purpose of training students in the hotel division to go into larger industry, the cafeteria will be modernized. Equipment will be moved from the old cafeteria and additional modern equipment will be set up. A modern bake shop will also be established.

The barracks will undergo many improvements. Anderson hopes that lounges will be put in, and new furniture for the lounges bought. Lighting will be improved and drafting lamps installed. Many fire escapes and fire exits will be added. Anderson emphasized the fact that the barracks are not run for profit, and that it might be possible to reduce the rent after the improvements are made.

By way of improvement in the auditorium, a new stage will be built.

The ceramics department, now partly in the main building, will be moved to building 10 after reconstruction is completed.

Symphony Forum Hear World Famous Pianist

Symphony Forum members will receive their first artist concert of this semester when Maxim Schapiro, internationally known pianist, appears before them in the student lounge, April 24 was set as the date of the recital, but Thursday, May 8, is now tentatively set as the program's date.

Faculty, potential forum members, and all students interested in symphonic music are invited to attend.

Schapiro plans an impressive program, and the assembled group will have the privilege of seeing and hearing him, one of the world's foremost musicians.

Plans are in order for a forum meeting to be held at the close of this first concert. Refreshments will be served.

Freshman Social

Outdoor Dance At MarinClubTonight

Smashing one tradition and inaugurating another, the college's freshman class presents its first outdoor dance with tonight's lavish Starlight Serenade.

This dancing innovation finds not only the promise of co-operation from the weather but gains a perfect setting in the beautiful Redwood Bowl of Marin's exclusive Town and Country Club, where dancing under the stars, and possibly swimming, will be enjoyed by those presenting Associated Student cards for admission to the 9 to 12 festivities, Jim Edwards, class president, said Wednesday.

Music will be ably provided by the well known seven-piece orchestra and vocalists of Walt Tolleson, Edwards added.

"We hope to make this dance a tremendous success," Edwards exclaimed, "and our efforts to make it so, together with the luxurious location and excellent music, practically assure success."

Edwards emphasized that the Starlight Serenade will be one of the biggest social events of the college social semester.

"With tentative arrangements being made to secure the swimming pool adjacent to the Redwood Bowl," Edwards continued, "and the promise of good weather plus the outstanding work done by the art department as evidenced by the fine silk screen-processed bids, this dance will be the most promising of a long series of freshman class dance triumphs.

College Band Needs One Drum Majorette

Wanted—One drum majorette for the Spring Festival, to be held on May 1. Those who wish to apply should have previous experience, a uniform, and a baton. Madison Devlin, music instructor, is the person interested parties should meet.

Jim Mann Campaigns For Zipped Up Programs

By Hank Weiss

If Jim Mann, newly appointed Rally Commissioner, has his way college spirit around the campus is in for a stimulating shot of adrenalin.

However, Mann's campaign for a zipped up student calendar, like all the other programs of the student government, rests on the shallow sands of Associated Student finances.

When and if the financial situation improves scheduled lavish rallies, pre-game dances and yell sessions will definitely insure a well spiced Spring semester.

"Howbeit," declares Mann, "if there is little money on hand to achieve this end, all we can do is nourish along the activities of a registered student enrollment of 5,000 on a paid up Associated Student membership of slightly more than half that figure."

One of the major assignments on the Rally Commissioner's agenda is creating the regular college rallies into a meeca for top entertainment both student and professional.

An "Orpheum Circuit" featuring talented scholastics from the bay area's major colleges is presently being organized. These colleges hope to exchange this talent pool among themselves.

"Miss Flossita Badger is currently conducting a talent survey, culling campus talent for engagements locally and in the circuit," Mann pointed out.

Mann's plans call for full attendance of all students and college backers at coming athletic tilts not only to witness Ram triumphs in the sport domain, but to provide the needed fire and spirit of organized rooters essential to stimulating hilltop varsities on to bigger and better scores.

Cooperation

Student Interest Reality

FIRST promising signs of actual mass student interest of spirit have been observed.

These signs of activity are few in number, but if they continue to exist and if they improve, this college will soon have a highly integrated student body, capable of unified action, not only in social affairs but in the more important field of local, national and world problems.

This is a complex society, made even more so by the advent of atomic energy and other scientific advances.

Therefore this college will probably never return to the pre-war type of immature, Joe College atmosphere.

This awakening of student interest has not been an accident. It is primarily the result of work by the organization here. The organized students have been able, by working together, to benefit themselves and the entire student body.

This, however, is not enough!

This merely takes in those students who are affiliated with one of the sororities, fraternities, or other clubs.

It's time for the individual students, those not connected with any organization, to take a part in this revival of interest. This return, not to the razzle dazzle college days of yore, but to spirited, vital part of them that should not have been completely lost in the war.

The only way to achieve this goal and not retrogress again, is for the students, regardless of whether they belong to one of the clubs, to work together to make the college a better one; one of which we can all be proud.

Ford
After Dark

THE English have done it again! First, a new playwright, Bill Shakespeare, swept the country with an intriguing play called Henry The Fifth, which was one of the numerous runners-up to MacKinlay Kantor's masterpiece, Glory For Me (better known as The Best Years Of Our Lives).

England's 1947 ace-in-the-hole for the little man, Oscar, will be a film called Stairway To Heaven, starring David Niven, Raymond Massey, and one luscious bit of fluff (A WAC no less). Kim Hunter.

PSYCHIATRY AGAIN

The picture, a curious mixture of psychiatric treatment and shock fantasy, opens in a British Laneaster, controls gone, flaming, and, as it were, plummetting to the earth. David Niven, a Right or Left Wing Commander, whichever it is, is quoting the old English masters of verse over the Command Set to a breathless, wide-eyed bobby soxer from Boston. Love comes in the picture, and Niven takes a dive through the bombay, minus one minor item—a parachute.

Just one of those freak incidents that only a film set or Mark Hellinger could dream up, or, perhaps, Niven, symbol of a modern Icarus, whipped out his Atomic-radio-active-Buck-Rogers-pocket-jet-propulsion set and. . . . You guessed it; the Commander lives, to greet another day. Of course the first person he meets its the WAC from Mass., now out of the control tower and conveniently knocking around the sand-dunes of Merry Old England on a tricycle.

AND HALLUCINATIONS

The rest of the film is a strange and somewhat amazing treatment of the shock hallucinations the young Commander is subject to, who, according to earthly reasoning and heavenly statistics, should have checked in for a new set of wings when he dropped, chuteless, from the crippled bomber.

Love, not only in Hollywood, but London as well, transcends death, and Niven, a hit psychotic about the whole thing, wins his case against Abraham Fallon (Raymond Massey), the first American to be dropped by a British slug in the Revolutionary War.

Movie reviews often lead to great and little confusions in the mind. This column has attempted to maintain that tradition; however, it should be sufficient to say that Niven lives to echo Browning's lines to his "Grow old along with me!

The best is yet to be,
The last of life, for which . . ." and so on.

ABNORMAL University recently inaugurated a college police force, the purpose of which was to see that the students didn't smoke El Primo cigars in the corridors. Those male students who were apprehended were to do manual labor, and the female students were to count the hairs on the back of a paramecium. The following is an account of what happened to one of the members of the police force as he attempted to enforce the regulations.

Moe Fink wandered down the halls, his eyes open for offenders of the new regulations. Suddenly he spotted one. There she was, blithely smoking her El Primo stogie in the corridor and blowing hexagonal smoke rings in the faces of passersby. Moe sidled over to her side and said, "Pardon me Miss, but you can't smoke that El Primo in here."

She stared coldly at Moe and then said icily, "Take off, bub!"

"Oh, yes. However, you will have to give me your name first as you must be punished for this infraction of the . . . " The girl ducked into that Inner Sanctum where men are not allowed before Moe had finished talking.

Moe continued on his way down the hall until he spotted another offender. This one was a tall, husky man, entirely enveloped in a cloud of smoke. Brushing aside the billows of cigar smoke, Moe peered into the face of the miscreant. "Sorry, old man, you can't smoke that El Primo in here. Ha, ha, the rules you know."

"This isn't an El Primo it's an Angostura Asphyxiator."

"Oh! I'm terribly sorry." Moe said as he withdrew from the choking fog.

Not to be undone Moe found another culprit, and this one was smoking an El Primo! "What's your name, Mister?" Moe asked imperiously as he whipped out his pad.

"What for, writing a book?" the man answered.

"No! You are violating the rules of this college and must be punished for smoking an El Primo in the halls," Moe said sharply. "You must be put to work! KP in the cafeteria, I think. Now, what's your name?"

"Warm." the student answered as he presented Moe with a knuckle sandwich. Then as he gently placed his El Primo in Moe's mouth he concluded, "Luke Warm is the name."

Southern Comfort And Culture Taking Over San Francisco

LOS ANGELES is a nice town, as far as villages go, but better it should stay within its own borders and not creep ever northward, spreading its make-believe influence on a city that has a personality of its own.

Used to be the city limits of Little Iowa could be found somewhere beyond Daly City but lately, in the last few months, signs of the screwball metropolis have been appearing here in growing proportion.

Not content with San Francisco itself, the southern California phobia is taking in the entire bay area.

EAST BAY GOES HOLLYWOOD

Across the bay on the other side of the Broadway Tunnel a group of fun merchants have erected a plush Gayway between Orinda and Lafayette in Contra Costa County.

They've titled the maze "Tunnel Strip," a direct steal from picturelands ballyhoo boulevard known as the Sunset Strip. Where modern western bandits ride herd over the doggies atop chromium cash registers. Where Frankie Sinatra gets in his ringwork and there are more fights to be witnessed than at ringside during the first night of a Golden Gloves tournament.

So much in fact they're considering lining the boulevard from curb to wall with canvas; buckets and stools at every intersection.

MODIFIED ATMOSPHERE

Somewhere over in Oakland is a pub broadly advertising its exotic zombies served in an "authentic" Hawaiian atmosphere. It's a far cry from Haiti to Hawaii, but they seemed to have made the jump.

If this isn't a comedy of errors L.A. style, we'll set up the next round.

Only the land of eat motels and cheeseburgers can be blamed for this state of affairs.

GEARY ST. OLD STUFF

San Francisco has a "strip" of its own, the Geary Strip, formerly known as Geary Boulevard, before the invasion.

Witness too, an ever growing number of drive-in restaurants along El Camino Real and how Millbrae is looking more like Cucamonga daily.

Van Ness Avenue may not boast a Madman Muntz among the tired touring car marts but Crazy Cox is in there pitching.

EVEN MISSION STREET

Our ambitious neighbor to the south has been analyzed by experts but it remained for a GI during a basic training days barracks argument to coin the classic description.

He was a San Franciscan, naturally, and stated, in answer to a Los Angelcno's barbed phrase of S.F.'s merits, something to the effect that if this country ever needed an enema it would be applied in L.A.

That rumbling heard in the background is not the start of another quake. It's old South o' Market Street boys turning over in their plots upon hearing Mission Street, between 15th and Army, being called, of all things—the "Miracle Mile."

RECALLS

APRIL, 1937, was a big month for the college, it was at that time that the then Mayor of San Francisco, Angelo J. Rossi, turned the first shovelful of earth that marked the spot where the science building was to be erected.

A large rock at the top of the harren hill was named Cloud Rock during the same ceremony. This was done to honor President A. J. Cloud for his never ending efforts toward getting the new location and funds for the college. The rock cannot be seen today, because it is now serving as part of the building's foundation.

Plans for the first Northern California Junior College art exhibit at the San Francisco Museum of Art were being laid.

The Ram baseball team went on their biggest hitting spree of the year when they scored 30 hits on San Mateo in a two game series played at Funston field. The college team won both games by scores of 12-11, and 14-4.

The college swimming team composed of George Windberg, Herb Brotman, and Ward Cox, smashed a world swimming record by doing the 75-yard medley relay in 39.2 seconds.

Forum Magazine staff revealed that they were having 250 issues of the publication printed, as in comparison to the 3000 being published by the present day staff.

Commuters from across the bay were using the ferry boats, a few of the old four masted ships could be seen along the waterfront. The Knock Knock jokes were the current topics of conversation.

Better dressed men were wearing a coat with a belt in the back, and the ladies' skirts were a great deal longer.

Paul Muni was thrilling audiences with his performance in THE WOMAN I LOVE. The pressed flowers of yesterday live on as memories today.

Columnists Praised By Readers; Vet Likes European Women

Letters to the Editor

● Laudation

Editor, The Guardsman:

I cannot see the purpose of a great many students who have been writing into the Rams Horn with nothing but defamatory remarks toward one of The Guardsman's best columnists. I am speaking of Del Pichon.

My opinion, which I believe is shared by a great many other veterans of this college, is that Mr. Pichon is absolutely correct in his observations of student life at the college. Even though some of his writings may seem shocking to some, it only shows stark realism in a world of real people.

Mr. Pichon's subtleties perhaps exaggerate to a small degree, but this is merely his form of creating an idea he is trying to present. He knows as well as everyone else around this college with an I.Q. of more than 69 that veterans as well as others do drink beer, that they do carouse, that they do blow their 65 cherries at the beginning of the month, and that they even smoke.

What say we as college students grow up, and accept these things which we know are truths.

● Lonely And Mad

Editor, The Guardsman:

Why aren't the girls in this school more sociable? You'd think that they were made of glass the way that they avoid the men. They all wonder why the servicemen brought so many wives back from overseas. The answer is that European women are a lot more friendly.

Basketball

Intra Cage League Nearing Conclusion

With just four days of actual competition remaining before the final play-offs, Fitz' Fighters and the Jeffersons are knotted in a tie for the National League intramural basketball leadership.

This complication developed as a result of the Jeffersons' stunning 35-33 upset victory over the highly regarded Operators on last Monday. The game, closely contested throughout the four quarters, featured a 27-27 score at half-time.

Ray Squeri, a high point manufacturer throughout the tournament, dropped in 14 tallies for the losers, but sorely missed the usually deadeyed assistance of his teammate, Jimmy Riley.

Jim McRea's 11 digits earned him high scoring honors for the winners, and the fine scoring support by his fellow Jeffersonians told the tale of the surprise, league tying win.

The Bush League title looks to all to belong to the once defeated Dandies, with a mathematical chance for honors going to the Goondoon aggregation.

A similar situation exists in the American loop between the only undefeated club remaining, the Sugar Mountain Boys, and the vastly underrated, once defeated Newman Club.

If the Newmans are successful in subduing the Sugar Mountain Boys in their contest on next Wednesday, April 23, a position identical to that of Fitz' Fighters and the Jeffersons will result.

Fast-Moving Red And White Harriers Go To Capital For Panther Clash Today

By Dayton Lawson

Fresh from their triumph over the San Mateo Bulldogs last Saturday, Jim Jensen's thin-clads attempt to continue their winning ways by meeting the likes of Sacramento today on the latter's home field.

The boys from the state capitol town haven't taken the wraps off yet this season, but they are said to have a great prospective high-jumper in George Stanich, the boy who gave the Rams so much trouble during the basketball series between the schools.

Stanich and San Francisco's Barnes should put on quite a duel, as both men are consistent over six feet.

In Sacramento the red and white-clad cindermen run up against their first real competition. It was this squad, along with the Modesto team, which gave the Jensenmen their toughest time last year in the conference meet, and if the defending champs get over this tough one tomorrow, the immediate future will look bright indeed.

The Ram's Eddie Bryant, the sprinter-turned-hurdler, looked good in winning the 220 lows last Saturday against the Bulldogs, and may be called upon to do it all over again for the cameras tomorrow up north.

The San Francisco crew really has something hot in the mile-relay quartet. With Bob Coredio running the anchor lap, they turned in the fastest time for this particular league seen this season, practically running flat-footed over the San Mateo foursome.

Signup Deadline On AMS Boxing May 1

Any student desiring to compete in the intramural boxing tournament must make an application to the intramural director by Thursday, May 1, in Room 111 in the men's gymnasium.

Trial bouts are scheduled for Tuesday, May 6 and the finals have been tentatively set for Tuesday, May 20. All of the activities are centered in the men's gymnasium.

Winners are awarded gold boxing gloves, silver gloves are awarded to second place contestants. Points are awarded to club members for the President Cloud trophy.

This tournament will be the second and third trips for some of the men. The men that represented the college in the meet at San Mateo will be in the competition in this tournament and are some of the toughest competition in the Northern California Junior College Conference class.

The first baseball night game was played on July 8, 1909 in Grand Rapids, Michigan. The game was played between Grand Rapids and Zanesville in the Central League. Grand Rapids won 11 to 10.

Barton, Reed Lead Rams In Near Win; Netters Picked Over Yuba Tomorrow

Firmly convinced that his tennis squad has finally begun to roll, Coach Tom Wilson confidently predicted that the locals would chalk up their first win of the campaign against the Yuba Junior College 49'ers here tomorrow.

The matches will start at 9 a.m., but whether they will be played at Balboa Park or Golden Gate Park has not been definitely settled.

The reason for Wilson's splurge of confidence goes back to last Saturday, when the Ram racketeers came within one match of knocking off Modesto Junior College, "the conference's finest." Saturday's big guns were Joe Barton and Frank Reed, both of whom came through with straight set singles victories. The red and white's final winning effort was put forth by the doubles combination of Reed and Bill Covall, who were extended to three thrilling sets before being able to down the tough Pirates from the valley town. The final match score was 4-3.

By clipping the wings of the high flying Modestans, the Rams moved Menlo Junior College into the conference lead. The Oaks are apparently gaining strength each week and are making a strong bid for the title.

The tentative lineups for tomorrow's match are as follows:

YUBA		SFJC
Kirn	vs.	Heaggarty
Llustrum	vs.	Langton
Waugh	vs.	Reed
Leong	vs.	Covall
Fong	vs.	Barton

Block Society Jig Set For May Third

Approval of a new Block SF Society constitution sent Ram athletes into a huddle Friday with the important plans for their Spring dance, which, as announced by President Art Ekdall, will be held on Saturday, May 3.

The new constitution as formulated by the society members will institute a new policy in sports promotion by the group to acquaint the students at the college and potential athletes who plan to attend this college of the Ram athletic program and policy.

"The society believes that it is their responsibility to let the students know what type of an athletic program this college possesses, and inform him of the benefits of being a participant of the sports' life here on the campus," Ekdall commented.

A complete publicity campaign program, purchasing of bids for the dance, and refreshments, were but a few of the items discussed for the coming affair.

Baseball

Mound Duel Features 2-1 Ram Victory Over Vallejo; Second Tilt Tomorrow

A three-hit pitching effort by hurlers Bill Kenna and Jim Hughes plus the timely hitting of Zane Kaplan and Herb Markall gave the Rams a 2 to 1 victory over the Vallejo Junior College nine in a tight pitching duel on the Redskins' diamond Tuesday.

The two teams conclude their series tomorrow afternoon at Big Rec. The game will start at 2:30 p.m.

The Rams tallied their initial run in their half of the first inning. After Kenna had lined out to second, Art Cirimele dropped a single into left field. Chet Anderson's grounder to third sent Cirimele to second. Kaplan then singled to deep short, Cirimele scoring when catcher Jim Castagnali dropped the ball after tagging him.

Not to be outdone, the Redskins came back to even things in their half of the frame. With one down, Lou Cook walked and went to second on an infield out. Joe Meeth shot a drive to center, the ball bouncing over Kaplan's head for a triple, and checking in Cook with the equalizer.

What proved to be the winning marker came in the fourth stanza. Al Ganem waited out Vallejo hurler Stan McWilliams for a walk, and pilfered second after Bob Nard flew out to left. Markall lined a single to the right centerfield fence, scoring Ganem with victory number five for the Rams.

Kenna suffered severe body bruises when he crashed into the left field bleachers in the ninth inning.

"Unless a sufficient number of men turn out for the squad by the end of the month, all plans for any golf team on the greens at Modesto will have to be abandoned," mentor Jack Gaddy stressed.

Nine Colleges Ready For WAA Playday Here

Plans are already under way for the Women's Athletic Association's annual May playday which will be held Saturday, May 3, Gloria Swiecgood, WAA adviser, said yesterday.

Participants from at least nine colleges are expected, and acceptances have already been received from Santa Rosa Junior College and San Jose State College.

The badminton club will play San Mateo's badminton team on Friday, April 25, Rose Chinn, club manager, announced today.

Public Schools Week will provide the spark for a coeducational badminton demonstration on the west campus, Thursday, May 1, where homecoming celebrations will be held.

NCJCC Golf Tourney At Modesto May 30, 31

The chances that the college will have a golf squad represented at the NCJCC golf tournament in Modesto on May 30-31 at the present time are nil.

Arsenic And Old Lace Assured Top Honors Despite Inadequate Facilities

By William Franklin

Surmounting the inadequate facilities which this college offers to the students of drama, the success of the coming play, Arsenic And Old Lace, to be presented on Thursday and Friday, April 24 and 25, in Room 28, has been assured by the ability and experience of the cast, according to Lloyd Sisler, drama instructor, who also said, "The successful play is one in which the actor is able to interpret and live the part with delicacy and intensity."

Hal Harris, participating in this melodramatic rebellion against the mundanity of everyday existence as Mortimer Brewster, has had a harder role in the entertainment world. During the war years, as a member of a Navy band, his stage was the rolling deck of a troop transport plying the Atlantic. Harris, it has been said, was in constant fear of having his music spoiled by the bass drum effect of a German torpedo.

Elbert Priddy, another student veteran and cast as Dr. Einstein, a renegade plastic surgeon in demand by the police forces of several countries, was a director and actor in an eastern radio program broadcasted from Norfolk, Virginia, designed to inveigle unsuspecting citizens into joining the Amphihian Corps. He was also in the Black Flamingo production of last semester.

Carla Perkins, portraying Abbie Brewster, the slightly touched spinster who administers a wine with a kick to the feeble and lonely, comes from a talented family. Her mother graduated from the State Teacher's College with a music major, while her father is a semi-professional musician. Miss Perkins has had dramatic experience at Polytechnic High School and Sisler's production of last semester.

Phillip Markinson, a veteran little theatre personality with the experience of two college productions — Thunder Rock and the Flamingo—to his credit, has been cast as Teddy Brewster, a mentally weak character who finds life in a vacuum to be more interesting than the earthly pedestrian life. Teddy's bugle will be heard throughout the play.

THE RILEYS, BILL AND MARIE, are really happily married, despite the above picture, which doesn't represent their home life but a scene from the weird comedy, Arsenic And Old Lace, in which they appear when the play starts on April 24 in a two-day run. Obviously, Riley takes the part of the psychopathic Jonathan.

The popular young couple (Riley is 21, Mrs. Riley, 18) possess a blend of artistic talents that have caused them to be called "The Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine" of this college.

To support this reputation they have appeared together in Thunder Rock, in which Riley took the lead; Heaven Can Wait, and Black Flamingo.—Photo by Edwards.

Student Council

Cloud Receives Plans Favorably

Recommendations requesting that the college's name be changed to City College of San Francisco and that a new stadium be added to the campus were favorably received Tuesday by President A. J. Cloud from the Student Council.

President Cloud inferred that he would request a meeting with the Superintendent of Schools, Curtis E. Warren, for discussion of the recommendations by the student delegation.

Luckmann Sets Courses For Summer Session

Courses for the Summer semester, commencing on June 23, have recently been disclosed by Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to the president.

Courses to be offered by the college will be English, math, business, physical science (chemistry and physics), biological science (botany and zoology), hygiene, engineering (civil and mechanical), foreign languages (French, Spanish, German), social science (economics, history, political science, psychology, philosophy, sociology), physical education (½ unit credit), art, photography, and floriculture.

"The maximum number of units a student may take during the Summer quarter is nine, and some students may be restricted to fewer units," Luckmann said.

Special courses will be given upon student request, but a minimum of 15 students must be enrolled in each course.

Energetic Students Relieve Bound Muscles This Way

By Jim Raser

Whenever they become muscle bound because of their daily stint of booklearning, Paul Ford and Gale Newcomb may be found in their barracks on the west campus grunting and groaning in their daily and laborious task of loosening those muscles into solid conformity.

To Ford and Newcomb, walking to the men's gymnasium for a workout makes about as much sense as planting a row of grapevines in the center of Phelan Avenue.

The reason for this is that in Cubicle 17 of Barracks 5, which the lads share while residing on the campus, there is assembled a complete set of weight lifting apparatus. The equipment, which belongs to Newcomb, makes the long trek to the gymnasium a thing of the past.

One might wonder, after learning that the boys are veterans, why after undergoing the rigors of combat training, they should return home only to go right back to the rudiments of body building. Well, apparently the service wasn't the end of conditioning, for daily the occupants of other west campus barracks make their way to the "Newcomb, Ford Junior Gym" so that they too may take a crack at lifting the weights.

The boys want it to known that they don't intend starting competition with the physical education department but modestly admit that with the addition of parallel bars, rings and a floor mat, they could run a very close second.

TRY THIS WEIGHT LIFTING TRICK, if you think you can. For the unbelieving, it is performed daily in Barracks 5 by Gale Newcomb.—Photo by Edwards.

Women's Importance In Air Age To Be Discussed By Airline Representatives

Representatives of the United Airlines will discuss the importance of women in the air age during the college hour next Friday, April 25, in the student lounge. The program is for all Associated Women Students in the college.

Following the success of their visit just one year ago, the United Airlines again are presenting an appliable discussion for all women students who are interested in aviation.

Dean of Women Margaret Dougherty, with the assistance of Claire Levesque, president; Virginia St. John, vice-president; Rosemarie Kapp, correspondence secretary; and Mary James, recording secretary, have arranged the program with the United Airlines.

A former member of the student body, Lucille Landresse, will be one of the guest speakers. While enrolled in the college she was elected to the office of semester vice-president during the Fall of 1942, and was graduated in January, 1943.

After the program a luncheon will be given honoring the guest speakers in the cafeteria, together with all the AWS officers, Dean Dougherty, Nancy Stookey, vice-president of the Associated Students, and Jo Ellen Cain, secretary.

All women in the college are expected to attend this program. It is one of the highlights during the semester presented for members of the AWS, Dean Dougherty pointed out.

Harry Sullivan, United Airlines education director, is in charge of the program.

Brief talks will be presented on the positions as stewardess, in reservations, and in passenger service by the guest speakers.

The Listening Hour patrons will hear their weekly program in Room 200 at 12 o'clock, Tuesday, April 22.

AVC Sponsors Talks On U. S. Foreign Policy

A round table discussion on U. S. Foreign Policy, to be conducted by history instructors John Gerstung, John Ross, and Mervin Slosberg is scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday, April 21, in the west campus lounge. The discussion is sponsored by the college chapter of the American Veterans Committee.

Also on the AVC agenda for next week, publicity manager Don Frost said, is a report on the atomic bomb by John E. Booher of the chemistry department, planned for 8 p.m. Thursday, April 24, in the auditorium.

The lecture is fourth in a series of six to be presented this semester.

Arsenic And Old Lace Performances Scheduled For Thursday And Friday; Room 28 Is Scene Of Quaint Murders

First performance of Joseph Kesselring's melodramatic comedy, Arsenic And Old Lace, will be given Thurday, April 24, at 1 o'clock by the college drama group under the direction of Lloyd Sisler, drama instructor, in Room 28.

Other presentations are scheduled for 8:15 Thursday evening, and Friday at 1 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. Free to Associated Students, admission will cost non-members 60 cents, tax included.

The play, taking place in the sedate Brooklyn home of the charming, charitable Brewster sisters, emphasizes the humorous side of homicide.

Most of the comedy is found in the child-like innocence of Abbie and Martha Brewster, who solicitously serve hot food and elderberry wine, mildly favored with arsenic, strychnine, and cyanide to lonely and homeless old men.

Mortimer Brewster, engaging in a sane courtship with the minister's daughter next door, discovers the quaint peculiarities of his aunts' charities, and attempts to bring to bear the more orthodox social standards of conduct.

Another nephew, Jonathan Brewster, who shares the little family idiosyncrasy about murder, but without the refined taste in technique, farther complicates Mortimer's task by importing strang corpse; while the mildly demented nephew, Teddy Brewster, digs the "Panama Canal," buries "yellow fever victims," and charges "San Juan Hill."

This three-act play, which captivated Broadway, promises to be another college success.

The parts assigned the cast, some double cast, are as follows: Celia Sassoon and Carla Perkins as Abbie Brewster; Caroline Reiss as Martha Brewster; Hal Harris as Mortimer Brewster; Merton Bercovich and William Riley as Jonathan Brewster; Phillip Markinson as Teddy Brewster; Dave Henergandt as Reverend Doctor Harper; Patricia Desmond and Marie Riley as Elaine Harper; Elbert Priddy as Dr. Einstein; Edward Kelly as Mr. Witherspoon; Clyde Gebb as Lieutenant Rooney; Stephen Salonites as Officer Klein; Robert Douglas as Officer Brophy; George Wesendunk as Officer O'Hara; and Jim Pierce and Sal Maeda as Mr. Gibbs

Among the material used for the setting of this play will be genuine antique furniture, borrowed for the realistic atmosphere of a Brooklyn home.

Radio Class

Team Selected For Twin City Quiz

Selection of four local students to represent this college in a battle of wits against Los Angeles City College on the radio show, Quiz Of Two Cities, was announced yesterday by Marie Weller, radio director.

The program is to be aired Saturdays April 26, at 7 p.m. over radio station KFRC, located in the Don Lee Building, corner Van Ness Avenue and Geary Street.

Tickets for the performance may be obtained from Trev Burrow, Associated Student president, in The Guardsman office from 10 to 12 Tuesdays, and 3 to 4 daily in Building 2 at the president's office.

Students accepting tickets, which are free, are urged to attend so as to insure a sizeable representation from the college.

The college team, all veterans and members of Miss Weller's radio class, are Phillip Silberman, Thornton High, Elbert Priddy, and Merton Bercovich.

According to educational officials, the weekly program invited the two colleges to participate in the quiz as part of the celebration of Public Schools Week, which extends from April 27 to May 3.

The festivities, twenty-eighth of the kind, aim to bring about closer cooperation between teachers, faculty, and parents in education of children. San Francisco's educational circles feature as a theme to this year's observance the topic, How To Live And How To Earn A Living.

Thespian Dies Thrice, Builds Own Coffin Too

By Jack Huise

Misfortune that's the only thing Sal Maeda of the Drama classes has found in acting. Maeda has never appeared in any play except as a dead or dying man.

Dropping dead, first as the mad professor in BLACK FLAMINGO, Maeda continues to cross the bar as Mr. Spenazo, a victim of the lovable killers of Arsenic And Old Lace, which comes to the college this Thursday.

And now, to add insult to fatal injury, Maeda, as a scenery and construction man, must build the window seat that serves as his coffin in the play.

Federal Works Administration Gives $100,000 For Campus Reconstruction

By Stanley Medders

One hundred thousand dollars might not make Rockefeller any richer, but it certainly causes a merry jingle in the college's financial pocket. It is not often that this college experiences the joy of running its fingers through such a credulous sum, but now such a pleasure can be felt.

The neat pile of wampum, supplied by the Federal Works Administration, will be used for reconstruction of west campus buildings, Oscar E. Anderson, coordinator of education management, recently disclosed.

Control by the college of west campus grounds and jurisdiction over Hurley Village will soon be obtained by securing signatures of the Federal Works Administration, Federal Housing Administration, Public Utilities Commission, and the San Francisco Board of Education, and by approval of the lease by the school board.

With the west campus under the control of the college, the vast reconstruction project will begin next month and continue through the Summer.

The biggest reconstructive undertaking will be the modernization of the cafeteria. For the purpose of preparing students in the hotel division for larger industry, much modern equipment will be bought and all equipment will be moved from the old cafeteria. In addition to these improvements, a modern bake shop will be established.

Many improvements will be made in the auditorium, but the major undertaking will be the building of a new stage.

Alumni Edition Will Feature Homecoming

A special "Alumni" edition of The Guardsman will be distributed Thursday, May 1, as one of the many highlights to be presented during the coming Homecoming celebration to be held that day.

Former editors and members of The Guardsman staff will contribute most of the material, while the issue will cover Homecoming activities in detail as a souvenir edition.

Council Discusses Racial Tolerance

Action at last Thursday's council meeting was routine, with the question of racial intolerance on the campus the main topic of discussion.

Associated Student President Trev Burrow told the council that a committee meeting will be held next Tuesday afternoon at 4 p.m., and members of the council as well as interested students are invited to attend.

A motion was approved that a committee of students investigate the National Students Organization, and recommend either acceptance or rejection of the organization on the campus.

The council approved the price of 50 cents for Forum Magazine. The publication will be available to all students, with or without Associated Student cards.

AVC Sponsors Lecture On Atomic Energy

Blasting its way into the west campus auditorium at 8 p.m. Thursday evening, Atomic Energy will be discussed by Chemistry Instructor John E. Booher as a regular lecture sponsored by the American Veterans Committee Chapter here.

Booher, who worked as a chemist in the Manhattan Project and in the Radiological Safety Section at the Bikini tests, said that he will explain methods used in liberating atomic energy and will conjecture as to its peacetime uses.

Culinary Artists Cook Up Special Cuisine Displays

On Homecoming Day, May 1, students of the hotel and restaurant division will display culinary handiwork.

R. Louis de Saint-Cyr, chairman of the student group, is currently planning a special "Cook's Tour," with students of, the department set to guide the general public through a maze of ranges, refrigerators, and gravy pans in the campus cafteria.

Sightseers will view the entire hotel and restaurant division busily engaged in the regular daily routine. Everything from kitchen to scullery will be thrown open for public scrutiny.

The tour through the food plant will include a special exhibit featuring specially prepared culinary works. Guests on tour will be treated to light refreshments.

Invitations to attend the display have been sent out to all the leading bay hotel and food emporiums. Both local and national business organizations have often expressed an interest in the college's hotel program.

While all this "to do" about food is going on in the cafeteria several other outstanding displays in ceramics, Veterans' Administration, and floriculture will be concurrently conducted throughout the campus as a part of the Open House program.

In the afternoon and later in the evening the gala varieties extravaganza will be staged at the auditorium.

Students, faculty, and alumni are expected to mark May 1 off as a red letter day and plan to attend with the general public the special program being planned.

Buried Water Main Stymies Construction

By Barbara Calvyhouse

An unknown water main provided difficulties last week in the construction of the horticulture department's greenhouse located at the south end of the men's gymnasium, according to J. Paul Mohr, vice-president.

While digging the foundation for the structure, workmen came across the water main 36 inches below the ground surface.

No maps available by the architect assigned to the construction of the building showed any pipe in the vicinity. Further investigation revealed that the pipe runs 30 feet under the future site of the library.

Mohr said that no permit will be issued to allow the greenhouse to be built over the former site, but it is possible that the library construction will go ahead as planned, some time in the future, since the pipe is so far under at that point.

Under present plans, the greenhouse will be moved 35 feet south.

Listening Hour To Hold Another Program

Listening Hour attendants will hear a record program on orchestra instruments in Room 200, tomorrow at 12 noon.

Employing a personification, Gertrude Norgard, the class instructor, said, "We will be able to put the orchestra on a dissecting table at that time."

Mrs. Norgard's plan is to train the students' ears to distinguish individual instruments, by their tones and pitches, when they are played in a full orchestral setting.

Active Ex-WAC Works At Hotel Course

By Jim Benerich

Lilly Gerard, former first lieutenant in the WAC of U. S. Army, is among one of the college's most interesting students of foreign birth.

Miss Gerard was born in Berlin, though her family was of French origin. Her education was mostly spent throughout France and Germany, and upon completion of her education she did considerable social service work in Berlin before coming to the U. S. in 1935.

Upon her arrival in the U. S. in 1935, Miss Gerard resided in New York City for two years, whereupon she moved to San Francisco in 1937.

As soon as Miss Gerard obtained her citizenship papers, she immediately volunteered for service with the WAC, entering as a private and winning her commission in service. Miss Gerard was attached to a unit of G-2 in intelligence work in France after preliminary training in Fort Sheridan, Illinois.

While attached to the intelligence unit she was stationed 30 miles outside of Paris, where she served as interpreter, censored mail (French) and covered any special assignments requiring services of interpreter. Miss Gerard says that now she shudders when she is reminded of the cold and other hardships of a French winter during the war.

After her discharge from Camp Beale in the Fall of 1946, Miss Gerard enrolled in the hotel division of the college in the Spring of 1947. She takes an active interest in student affairs in the division and is especially popular with students and officials of the division.

Miss Gerard likes hotel work and hopes to locate eventually in some hotel which caters to foreign travel where her knowledge of languages will be of special use.

Legislative Troubles

Fraternities On Way Out?

THERE is a bill before the State Legislature of California which will, if passed, put an end to the fraternities and sororities in all elementary and secondary public schools of the state.

Since this college is classified, along with high schools, as a secondary school, it becomes necessary for the students to weigh, and weigh carefully, the pros and cons of such legislation.

It cannot be denied that in many instances the frat-sorority group has by its snobbery, exclusiveness, or superior attitudes incensed the other students (and more important, their families) so that a need for restrictive legislation becomes apparent.

However, it also cannot be denied that this same group, acting in an organized manner, has done more for student interest, spirit and welfare than the unorganized students have ever accomplished.

This does not mean that the students should condone the harm done by the group at times, because of their achievements—but the students should recognize that this group and similar ones can be, if operated in a democratic manner, one of the greatest single assets any college could have.

Possibly in elementary and high schools such action, as contemplated by the legislature, is necessary. In junior colleges such as this, however, the problem could best be solved by the students themselves.

If undemocratic organizations were shunned, rather than honored by the general student body, they would soon realize their mistakes and the necessity of correcting or disbanding them.

As students it is our responsibility to demand that all groups conduct themselves so as to reflect credit to the college. This problem should never have existed to the point of requiring state legislation.

After Dark

HENRY MILLER'S fifth New Directions' pearl, The Wisdom Of The Heart, pried from the vast hollowness of the frontal lobe, according to the dust jacket, contains some of Miller's finest shorter writings to date. (It might be well to note that ALL of Miller's writings are short; either that or they are Works In Progress.)

One of the more curious little whimsies that appear in the book is called The Alcoholic Veteran With The Washboard Cranium, and is a typical Millerism treatment of symbol-drunken-character-incident while mucking through these United States.

Another of the chapters, Into The Future, is, at the most, a somewhat passable extract from a volume (also in progress) called The World Of Lawrence, and is a mystical sort of hif and miss treatment of the great English writer (author of Lady Chatterly's Lover), D. H. Lawrence.

The whole of the volume is alternately dull, boring, pedantic, and in some cases brilliant. Studded with anarchistic overtones, artistic mysticism, theories of destruction, sex, reflections on writing, stilted literary criticism, and all too numerous tributes to minor Parisian intellectuals, one is never permitted to lose sight of the fact that Miller is a big wheel of sorts, a profound mystic, a great writer, but above all, an ardent fan of H. Miller.

He has written some fine works in the past, but, in the opinion of the more able literary critics, his work is now on the decline. Tropic Of Cancer, and Tropic of Capricorn, both banned from the U. S. for obscenity (and they ain't kiddin'!) are among his earlier and more able works. The Colossus Of Maroussi, published by New Directions in 1941, is, perhaps, the finest volume he has published in the U. S. and is the account of an interesting pilgrimage through Greece prior to World War II.

The main idea of Miller's philosophy is a curious combination of pacifism and destruction. His solution for mankind is to make living an art, thus destroying art as it now stands, or as it now totters.

In a sense it might be said that Miller is pushing forward, by surrealistic obliques, to the borders of a vague and shadow dream world. He is pushing forward to create the life as yet inchoate, ad infinitum.

Around And About with Nagle

DESPITE our Declaration of Independence, a radio commentator recently said that Americans today are dependent on each other, and not completely independent as in days of yore. Most of us consider ourselves to be independent—that is our goal and aim in life. But are we? Will we ever be?

Awaking by sheer will power or the rooster's cocking at sun up, milking a cow for cream for the ground chiekory-seed coffee, baking a batch of bread for a piece of toast, boiling the water to shave or wash, saddling the horse or hitching up the buggy for the ride to class . . . that is "Morning Independence."

SUPPLANT THE ALARM

Ringing an hour or so before class, the Silex coffee brewing while one shaves and dresses, and the mad rush to the bus which drops one off right in front of the college . . . that is Dependence. But not too worthy of complaint.

Instead of bucking the crowded, well-stocked shoppes for new outfits, the "Independents" would spin enough cloth to make a new gown, and be so happy that the spinning was over, sew up a side or two, and forget about style.

MOVIES WOULD BE OUT

Entertainment would be provided by our own ingenious methods (which could be better than the stereotyped movies, crowded Saturday night dance, or brew ball).

To call up the local damsel for an evening's social gathering would be unheard of—the horse again would have to be saddled and a special ride made to said lady's domicile with the invitation.

Rather than stride into a gift shop five minutes before a party, we would spend hours embroidering towels, or baking goodies for the dainty giftie.

LUNCH COUNTERS

Juke boxes, all would be banished in favor of "Dependent Citizenry."

The world has made strides to free us from something, but definitely not from each other. With more strikes a la telephone operators, our distaste for independence could be proven. In any event, are there many complaints now?

STANDBY

By Bill Riley

MARY JANE LEARNARD, college registrar, has revealed that an all-time high of 366 petitions for graduation have been filed. Of this total 112 students completed their studies last semester and 254 will finish this semester. Students should remember that May 1 is the deadline for applications to Stanford and the College of Engineering, University of California.

FORUM MAGAZINE, a publication of the students, by the students, and for the students, will be ready for distribution the latter part of May. There will be a nominal charge of 50 cents per copy.

TANIOS HABEEB, student representative of the college, appeared on a coast to coast broadcast last April 4. Habeeb, along with representatives from Stanford and Mills College, discussed the question, "What should we do with the Pacific Islands?" Catch: Fifteen minutes before the broadcast the news came through that the United States had been granted trusteeship of the Islands.

IN OBSERVANCE of Poetry Depreciation Week we herewith present our version of Horatius, Thomas Macaulay's classic of Rome's days.

This is completely original, being stolen lock, stock, and stanza, and altered slightly to fit a situation peculiar to California.

Herb Levy, esteemed News Editor of The Guardsman, is entitled to fifty per cent of the blame, and all libel suits may be addressed to him and this columnist; both being partners in the plagiarism.

Any reflections on characters living or dead are incredible. We can't imagine how it slipped by. With no more ado, we give you:

REILLYUS AT THE BAR

Georgius Reillyus of Sacramentum
By the Appellate Court he swore
That all histrees of Californium
Wouldst serve food; or drinks no more.

By the Appellate Court he swore it.
And named a trysting day,
And bade his equalizers ride forth,
East and west and south and north,
With padlocks in array.

East and west and south and north
The equalizers ride fast,
And pub and club and tavern
Have heard the bluenose blast.
Shame on the shady dispensers
Who hide behind their foam,
When Reillyus of Sacramentum
Marches on harroom chrome.

The equalizers and agents
Are pouring in amain
From Sacramentum's stately halls,
With badges that show no stain.
From the mighty capitol's lobbies,
From the valley to the K Street bridge,
Reillyus' lackeys are a'pouring
'Til they stand on Sausalitum's ridge.

Just then a bouncer came flying,
All wild with haste and fear:
"Get food! Get food! Oh harkeeps; Georgius Reillyus is here!"
O'er the bay to the northward
All harkeeps fixed their eye,
And saw a swarm of hoys in blue
Through the Marina, riding high.

No sound of joy or sorrow
Was heard, save hissing steams;
But agents and owners in equal surprise,
With parted lips and straining eyes,
Stood gazing at a can of beans;
And reflected in the mirror
They saw the can appear,
All owners sent forth a rapturous cry,
And even the ranks of Reillyus
Joined hands over a bottle of beer.

When the workingman drains his tumbler,
And is broke by the following noon:
When his good wife greets him nightly
To a rolling pin's merry tune;
With weeping and with laughter
Still is the story told,
How a can of beans kept open the bars
In the brave days of old.

Hilltop Manner

STUDENTS will never fully concentrate on classroom studies until all disturbing influences are removed, the most upsetting influence invariably being the instructor.

Day after day students enter lecture rooms deflated, and expect to leave completely distended with the knowledge absorbed during the hour. This goal always misses the mark, and the blame must necessarily fall on the innocent instructor.

If the platform-master is male, the mental processes underlying the bland surface can be greatly tangled. He wears a flowered bow-tie and a glowing salmon-colored sweater peeks from under a snappy sports jacket. He talks of foreign lands and days gone by, but the sounds fall on deaf ears. The minds at which the words are directed are thinking only of how much happier both master and pupil would be out on the golf course or lounging at the beach.

Or perhaps he is the conservative business suit type. He talks of mental and physical conduct, but his listener's eyes wander back and forth from his over-active Adam's apple to his expressive hands; now in his pockets, now on the desk, now scratching his right ear, now his left; now rubbing his forehead, now playing with his top jacket button, now straightening his tie; now back in his pockets; endlessly.

If feminine charm holds the helm, however, the situation really becomes trying. Will that loose comb slip out of her hair and clatter noisily to the floor? Will she sight the yellow-jacket buzzing about and jump out of her chair? Will she knock out some front row spectator's teeth trying to put across a vehement point? Keep all eyes focused on her; no telling what will happen next!

Letters to the Editor

• Males Flunk

Editor, The Guardsman:

It seems that time and effort are not the deciding factors in obtaining a satisfactory grade.

One must be of the fair sex and be outstandingly adept in the rather-questionable art of cojolery. How can we surmount this obstacle? What value can he derived from a class which is taught in an obsolete and narrow-minded manner?

Perhaps the prerequisite course for students should be how to flatter and influence influence instructors.

SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME?

• Wants Prognosis

Editor, The Guardsman:

This letter is not meant to be condemning, but it is meant to be suggestive. I would like to see the Sports Page of The Guardsman give just a bit more background on the games before they are played.

In the past it has been downright disgusting to see how our teams have been supported, and according to a great many students of this college it is because the games did not have the proper build-up in the college paper.

For instance, baseball is big only after the players receive the right publicity. Little is known of our players. Why not have the sports writers make a few predictions about the outcome of the games, and how the players will play?

As it now stands, The Guardsman Sports Page is giving a perfect reflection of our student spirit. Which isn't what it should be.

• Let 'Em Do It

Editor, The Guardsman:

Why should the junior college have to pay $93 for cleaning up San Mateo Junior College campus when the XGI Society and some fraternities offered to do the job for nothing?

I'm not defending the vandalism that was done there, but I do think that the offer of these organizations should have been taken up and in that way show San Mateo that our intentions were collectively honorable instead of singularly destructive.

Rams, Menlo, Mateans Pool Cinder Talents To Wallop Stanford, 94-65

Last minute schedule revisions may see approximately a dozen and a half Ram cindermen pack off today for the valley town of Modesto, where they will clash with the Pirates of Modesto Junior College in a night meet, with the initial event starting at 7 p.m.

However, should these tentative plans for the valley meet fall through the two colleges will tangle as scheduled at the Kezar oval this coming Saturday.

Last Wednesday saw the locals join forces with the elder squads of San Mateo and Menlo to administer a 94-65 walloping to the varsity harriers of Stanford.

The San Franciscans were the heavy point winners as the Junior College aggregation swept the host Indians.

The only double winner for the Red and White was Nick Darnier in the mile and the two mile. Julian Grillo, a consistent winner in previous meets, was edged out in the century and the 220 by Ted Marr of San Mateo. Harry Topolan, two-year letterman in the pole vault, was tied for first place in that event at a height of 11 feet 6 inches.

The Ram runners continued to dominate the NCJCC competition with a win over the Panthers of Sacramento last Friday.

Another stiff test will be put up to Jensen's charges next Saturday when they go against U.S.F. and St. Mary's College in a three-way meet.

Basketball, Tennis On WAA Agenda Thursday

The Women's Athletic Association is entertaining the tennis club from Balboa High School here on Thursday, April 24. In addition, the basketball club will play San Francisco State College here the same day, club managers have announced.

Colleges which have accepted the invitation for the May playday to be held here Saturday, May 3, are San Mateo Junior College, San Francisco State College, San Jose State College, and Santa Rosa Junior College.

The first intercollegiate baseball game was played on July 1, 1859 between Amhurst and Williams College at Pittsfield, Massachusetts. Amhurst won 66 to 32. Each team had 13 players and the game lasted 26 innings.

USF, Gators On Local's 'Rest Week'

Bill Fischer's mittmen get a well-earned and much-needed rest this week as they prepare for the second half of their 1947 campaign.

Although no league games are to be played, Fischer has booked two practice tilts to keep the team in shape. This afternoon the Rams meet the University of San Francisco JV's on the Dons' home field. The game will begin at 3 o'clock.

Tomorrow Fischer will lead his men in battle against the cross-town rivals from San Fransisco State. The Rams will be out to avenge a previous 3 to 2 defeat at the hands of the Gators. The game is scheduled for Harrison Field at 3:30 p.m.

Bill Kenna is recovering from severe bruises received when he ran into the left field bleachers at Vallejo. At first it was feared Kenna had broken ribs, but examination at the hospital failed to reveal any fractures.

Kenna is the leading hitter for the Rams, having garnered 11 hits in 23 trips to the plate for a .478 average.

Ernie Domecus collected four-bits from Second Baseman Bill Maxey after Domecus got his first hit of the season against Marin. Maxey has yet to get on base via the base hit route.

Big Splash Starts Today As Intramural Swim Gets Underway At Jefferson Pool

Starting sharply at 12:30 today (and ending one hour and one-half later) the Jefferson High School plunge in Daly City will act as host for a barrage of college swimming talent that will be competing in the bi-annual intramural aquatic tournament.

Program Director Tom Wilson announced that the one-day meet will feature individual competition in several free style sprints, a 50-yard back stroke race, and various diving contests.

Medals will be awarded in all divisions for the first and second place winners, and, in addition, individuals representing a club or organization from the college are permitted to retain their winning points (ten for first, seven for second) toward the Dr. A. J. Cloud Perpetual Trophy.

Wilson made mention of the fact that interested students may still enter as participants even though they have not yet filed application.

Also current on the intramural agenda is the track meet (a one-day affair) which will be staged on the football field at 3 o'clock Thursday, April 24.

Varsity Swim Picture Glum; Gaels First Foe

Jim Jensen, head man in the swimming picture here, announced tentative plans yesterday for a meet with the water aggregation of St. Mary's College. He hopes it can be held about April 25.

Jensen gloomily predicts, however, that even by then the Ram squad won't be able to make a good showing against a fair opponent.

Men who originally turned out for Jim Jensen's track team but who were cut from the varsity squad are eligible to perform in the intramural meet. Events scheduled include the discus, shot-put, broad jump, the 220, the 440, and the mile run.

Netters Win; Ram Track, Nine Lose

By Sam Goldman

Snagging three singles and two doubles matches, Tom Wilson's racketmen found the win rainbow when the Ram backhanders in their first win of the NCJCC tennis race cleaned the court of a Yuba squad here Saturday, 5-2.

The Heaggarty, Langton, Covall combo took the singles events, and the entire town tennis batters proved they could win again by a twin-bill set of victories in the doubles.

However, in the other departments of the Ram sportdom, the city collegians suffered two upsets over the weekend at the hands of the Sacramento trackmen and the Vallejo baseball batmen.

First of the sports blues came on Friday afternoon at Sacramento, when the defending champ cindermen were outscored "one point," 66-65, by the Panthers. However, speedsters Jim Wyatt, Nick Gardere, and Bob Caredio proved themselves to be the better distance men in the NCJCC track competition by winning their respective events.

The Ram batters, in failing to hit the cork-encased pill when the bingles counted, gave Pitcher Jim Hughes his first loss of the current baseball season, as a late starting Vallejo nine handed the city players their second upset of the 1947 era at Big Rec Field, 5-4.

SMILING HERE, YES, but there were no smiles on the faces of the members of the college's Tennis Team when they dropped a 7-0 decision to San Mateo last week. San Mateans Uphold Ram Record, 7-0; Locals Rated Best In West—Campus

By Don Cowderoy

The San Francisco Junior College tennis team was defeated last Wednesday, 7-0, in a conference match on the victor's home courts.

Pat Heaggarty and Bill Covall put in the best showings of the day, with Heaggarty extending Frank Sample to three sets, and Covall being edged out by Burt Blake, 4-6, 8-10.

There is no joy in Ramville today.

Poor Tom Wilson hasn't been able to eat for days. He goes around with his chin balanced on his knees. And why?

It all started some seven weeks ago, when a gay, lighthearted band of netmen, both the players and their rackets full of guts, tripped onto the bee-utiful Balboa Park courts.

Folks, they really looked good, our boys. Heaggarty, with his laughing eyes; Reed, with his dangling fag; Barton, with those piston like strokes. Here was another championship in the offing for dear old San Francisco.

But something went awry. The stalwarts didn't do very well that fateful day. (10-0.) An off day. Sure, that was it. Wait until next time.

Came next time—oops!, the same thing. Wilson states, "Something must be done. A thing like this may become habit forming."

But on they went, 9-0, 10-0, 7-0 (they're improving). The fact is the only good showing the boys made was when they were rained out against Stanford!!

Last Saturday's match with Yuba may have proved to be the turning point in the knights of the Red and White's performances.

The tennis team hopes so!

Women Students To Hear Air Age Talk

Featuring guest speakers from the United Airlines, the topic, Education In The Air, will be presented at an Associated Women Students meetlug during the college hour Friday, April 25, in the student lounge, Claire Levesque, president, announced today.

The role American women now play in commercial aviation will be discussed by the airline representatives, including the positions of stewardesses, in reservations and in passenger service.

All women students of the college are urged to attend, Miss Levesque added, and the meet promises to be of particular value to all women interested in the aspects of commercial aviation.

Harry Sullivan, United Airlines education director, will be in charge of the program.

A luncheon immediately following the program will be given honoring the guests in the cafeteria. The AWS officers, together with Dean Margaret Dougherty, have invited President A. J. Cloud, various faculty and administrative members, and representatives of the Executive Council, Jo Ellen Cain and Nancy Stookey.

California Announces Application Deadline

Deadlines for the Colleges of Engineering, School of Business Administration, and School of Optometry, has been set for Thursday, May 1, the University of California announced in a bulletin last week.

Rating of applicants for both lower and upper division standing will be based on the scholarship of the applicant and in examination to be given on May 17 to test aptitude for engineering.

Cosmopolitan Society

Role Of This College In World Order Subject Of President Cloud's Speech

The Role of San Francisco Junior College in World Order will be the theme of President A. J. Cloud's address to the Cosmopolitan Society and its guests at a meeting to be held during the college hour this Friday, April 25, according to Leona De Bique, president of the group.

All students are invited to attend the program, scheduled for the west campus lounge, Miss De Bique said.

The Cosmopolitan Society is at present conducting a membership drive which is proving successful. Recently Trev Burrow, president of the Associated Students, joined the organization with Bud Marble, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, thereby increasing the membership of the club to a total of 35 students.

Although the society has been inactive for the last two semesters, much improvement has taken place within the group this semester, and the club is becoming eminent through their active program.

Organizations

Clubs Meet Friday In Rooms Assigned

The college hour at 10:40 o'clock Friday is designated for club meetings in rooms previously assigned, stated Assistant Dean Jack Brady. This statement from Brady confirms the college hour schedule issued early in the semester.

These regular meetings coincide with the special Associated Women Student-United Airlines meeting, which all women are expected to attend, and the Cosmopolitan Society meeting with President A. J. Cloud scheduled to speak.

Vets Office Moved To 180 New Montgomery

An announcement that the Veterans' Administration Regional office has moved to 180 New Montgomery Street was made last week by the Veterans' Administration here.

All veterans' affairs should be referred to the new address in the future.

Payments on all veterans' National Service Life Insurance policies may now be mailed directly to 180 New Montgomery Street. Policy holders need not make payments in person at the new office.

Unrepresented Clubs to Lose Their Charters

With Friday, April 25th as the next scheduled meeting of the Club Advisory Board, George Bachman, president of the CAB, announced that any of the 34 members of the CAB who fail to attend the meeting will dissolve the club he represents.

Scotty Mallen, vice-president of the CAB, for the past few weeks, has checked all the various clubs throughout the college and has approved of their constitutions which meet the requirements of the CAB.

At the meeting on April 25, the CAB will vote on the clubs approved by Mallen's committee and, if they conform to the standards set forth by the CAB, the clubs will receive their charters.

Deadline Today For Charter Resubmissions

With the deadline set for today for submission of all club charters, George Bachman, president of the Club Advisory Board, urged all members of the CAB to be present in order to charter their respective clubs in the college.

Regardless of whether the clubs have been formally approved by the by all members of the CAB, Bachman emphasized.

All clubs approved at the meeting by the board will receive their new charters on Tuesday, May 6, authorizing them to function officially as an organization within the college.

Bachman warned that any club failing to provide a representative at the meeting will automatically go unrecognized as a club.

Mid-Term Grades Will Be Given Out May 7, 8

Mid-term grades will be distributed on Wednesday and Thursday, May 7 and 8, following the end of the second mid-term period, Friday, May 2, Assistant Registrar Helen Kibbe announced last week.

The grades will be received by students during these days, which will run on a college hour schedule, Miss Kibbe said, with all students whose last names begin with A to L, inclusive, meeting on Wednesday, and those in the M to Z category meeting on Thursday.

Registrar Mary Jane Learnard is attending a meeting of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars in Denver, Colorado.

Veterans who have not yet had their basic training evaluated are advised by Miss Kibbe to take care of this at once if they expect to be exempt from physical education. Counsellors in Building 3 will help students in this evaluation, Miss Kibbe said.

Aviation Role Of Women Aired In Student Lounge

American women's role in commercial aviation will be discussed by airline representatives during the college hour, 10:40 a.m. today in the student lounge. The topic, Futures In The Air, will describe vocations now open to all women interested in positions of stewardess, reservation clerks, and passenger service work.

Perhaps of primary interest is the fact that one speaker from the airlines was graduated from this college in January, 1943. She is Lucille Landresee, who, while enrolled here, was Associated Student vice-president.

"This aviation program, which features representatives from the United Airlines, will be of great interest to all women who are considering securing positions in airlines after leaving this college," Claire Levesque, AWS president, declared.

Although a club college hour, all women's organizations have been asked by Dean Margaret Dougherty to see that their members attend this program. All women students on the campus are urged, and expected, to be present at this program, Dean Dougherty said.

A luncheon in the cafeteria will be given in honor of the speakers immediately following the program. President A. J. Cloud, various faculty and administrative members, Dean Dougherty, all AWS officers, and two women representing the Student Council, Nancy Stookey and Jo Ellen Cain, will attend the luncheon.

Quiz Of Two Cities

Radio Team Ready To Match Wits With Los Angeles Group On Saturday Night; Veterans Boast Broadcast Experience

By Ann Land

Mental giants of the college will match wits with the mighty stalwarts of Los Angeles City College on the radio quiz between San Francisco and Los Angeles tomorrow night, on station KFRC at 7 o'clock.

Those chosen to represent this college on the Quiz Of Two Cities program are Phil Silberman, Elbert Priddy, Thornton High, and Merton Bercovich.

These four students were selected by Marie Weller, speech and radio announcing instructor, because of their excellent radio technique, veteran status, and interest in the program.

Experienced in radio and dramatics, these students are far removed from amateurish stage fright. For example, Silberman has been on such programs as Opinion Please, American School Of The Air, In The Army, and American Forces Network, and was attached to the radio division in the Stars And Stripes during the three years he spent in the Army.

Priddy, a dramatics and radio major, is at present appearing in Arsenic And Old Lace, and last semester performed in The Black Flamingo. Priddy's appearance on the quiz show this Saturday night will be a return engagement for him, as he was a contestant on the program while in the Navy Air Corps.

Priddy said yesterday that he thought the quiz was very interesting and exciting, and that the guess questions were tricky, but not too difficult. While in the Navy he did radio work for The Voice Of The Amphibs.

High, another contestant for the quiz show, is a business major, and works part time as a salesman, but his secret ambition is to break into radio as an announcer.

Majoring in speech and radio, Bercovich has appeared on several radio programs, and is now in the cast of Arsenic And Old Lace. Bercovich is interested in becoming a radio announcer after graduation from college.

There will be a total prize of $12 each for the students of both colleges if they answer all questions correctly.

Big Souvenir Edition Rigged For May Day

Former editors and members of the staff have contributed by mail from near and far for the occasion which is part of Homecoming Week events.

Little Theatre Group

Arsenic And Old Lace Closes Campus Run With Two Performances Today

Ending its two day run at the college, the famed Kesselring comedy, Arsenic and Old Lace, will be presented by the drama group under the direction of Lloyd Sisler, instructor, today at 1 o'clock and 8:15 p.m. in Room 28.

Playing to packed houses yesterday, the fast moving story of the problems concerning Mortimer Brewster, his finance Elaine Harper, and a background of demented relatives, evidenced its triumph in the buoyant approval of its audience.

Contributing as much to the success of the play as the sense of timing, and the delicate interpretation of emotion is the atmosphere of domestic seclusion achieved by the performers.

This performanee takes place amid tarnished silver, antique furniture, and old-fashioned wallpaper in the reproduced set of the original Broadway melodrama.

The speech Class, 42A, is rehearsing for The Admirable Crichton, a drama by Sir James Barrie, in the little theatre, Room 209. The play, a four-act performanee, is scheduled to run for three days starting Tuesday, May 6, Ruth Somers, drama instructor, declared.

Alpha Thetas Hold "After Hours" Tonight

Staging their biggest dance of this college's social semester, Alpha Theta Epsilon presents After Hours tonight, with high hopes of a crowning success for the 8 to 12 student lounge festivities.

Entranee to the affair, which requires sports-informal attire and will feature "coke" refreshments plus the music of an extensive record assortment, can be gained by purchase of tickets at 50 cents a couple which are on sale at the silver pole and throughout the campus by Alpha Theta members, Murney Cunningham, publicity chairman for the organization, announced today.

"With promise of refreshments amid small tables in the lounge terrace, and 8 to 12 dancing to the largest collection of records on the campus," Miss Cunningham declared, "it is no wonder that our limited supply of tickets are going like wildfire. Anyone planning to attend," she warned, "should buy tickets today at their earliest opportunity."

Miss Cunningham stated that "campus records were crowded" with Alpha Theta dance successes which received praise from students and faculty alike. Proceeds resulting from these dances, she claimed, have always gone to the purchasing fund for phonograph machines for the veterans at Letterman Hospital.

The most recent contribution of record machines were the two presented this semester in conjunction with the XGI Society.

Bangup Forum Mags Hit Salesstands Soon

Topping all previous editions of the college annual literary publication, the 1947 Forum is scheduled to appear in the latter part of May, according to Kenneth Ford, editor of the magazine.

Sparkling with wit and ingenious originality, Forum consists of short stories, various types of poetry, essays, cartoons, art work, and photographs; a magazine that represents a cross section of student ability, Ford added.

Possibility of a price reduction was discussed by the staff this week during a business meeting.

Cosmopolitan

Cloud Cites Import Of Junior College In World Order

With the theme The Role of San Francisco Junior College in World Order, President A. J. Cloud will address interested students at the invitation of the Cosmopolitan Society at 3 o'clock today, instead of the college hour as previously announced in the student lounge.

Of the purpose of his speech Dr. Cloud said, "What I want to do is to arouse interest on the part of the students to continued restoration of the world to peace and order."

Dr. Cloud will also give a glimpse into the purposes of UNESCO, the United Nations Economic, Scientific, and Cultural Organization. UNESCO is designed to coordinate with the UNO in all issues besides those of politics.

Under UNESCO, exchange systems of students and teachers from all parts of the world will be set up. These systems will need partial support from funds raised by student organizations everywhere.

Dr. Cloud stated that a common understanding of elements of all societies is necessary for a lasting peace. Students everywhere can play a great part in achieving this understanding, he believes.

Dr. Cloud also hopes to arouse student interest in helping the people of war devastated countries.

The change in time for Dr. Cloud's address from the college hour to 3 o'clock was necessitated because of previous engagement of the student lounge for the Associated Women Student-United Airlines meeting.

Rooms Tabbed For College Hour Meet

During the college hour starting this morning at 10:40 o'clock, all clubs will meet as previously scheduled, according to Jack Brady, assistant dean of men.

Organizations that desire rooms will be assigned them by applying to the office of the assistant dean. "There are several rooms for club use that have yet to be designated," Brady added.

Clubs and room numbers are as follows:

Alpha Gamma Sigma, 204; Alpha Theta Epsilon, 158; AVC, 100; Beta Phi Beta, 111; Beta Tau, 254; Block Society, 194; Chinese Social Club, Building 2, student lounge; Club Advisory Board, 2B; Cosmopolitan Society, 113; Delta Psi, 206.

Judiciary Committee

Rule, Regulate, Enforce

STUDENTS of this college, specifically those who seem bent in ridiculing or reviling the actions of the Judiciary Committee and Force, might well be cutting the hair which holds a Damocles' sword over their heads.

Certain misconceptions have arisen and been bandied about regarding these two bodies, and it is time to repudiate these malicious rumors.

Some students believe that the student government, through the force and committee, is instigating certain reforms and or restrictions with regards to smoking on this campus.

This is not true.

Smoking on campus, or in the buildings here, is decided by state law. This law is and has been in effect for some time and clearly states that students who merely carry cigarettes on the college grounds are subject to dismissal.

In keeping with policy established in all colleges, school authorities, however, have liberally allowed smoking, not only on the campus, but in certain areas in the main building. This is a definite concession from the faculty.

But the smoking students do not seem to appreciate this privilege and persist in smoking in restricted areas, putting out cigarettes by mashing them into the walls, discarding the butts indiscriminately, and generally giving the college the appearance of a cheap Howard Street flop house.

Finally, after their patience and good humor wore thin, the administration said, in effect, to the student government, "Rule, regulate and enforce smoking (and other campus manners) NOW, and clean up this college or we shall be forced to remove ALL SMOKING PRIVILEGES."

Well, it is up to you as students.

Observe and obey the codes set up by the Judiciary Committee, or prepare for the necessary harsh measures which will follow.

Ford

After Dark

FOR the past 20 years or so, Anais Nin, author of Ladders To Fire (with engravings), has kept an extraordinary diary from which she has drawn material for her books. According to Henry Miller, this diary will eventually take its place beside the Revelations Of St. Augustine, Rousseau, Proust, Edgar Rice Burroughs, Kathleen Winsor, and others.

Everyone writes a book or D. H. Lawrence sooner or later. Miss Nin is no exception, however, and in relative modesty she has added An Unprofessional Study. She is also the author of The House Of Incest, Winter Of Artifice, and This Hunger.

VERSATILE IS THE NAME

As a versatile offspring of Parisienne Paris, Miss Nin has also been a professional dancer, practicing psychoanalyst, actress in Maya Deren's surrealist movies, and had three of her plays read to music on the radio.

She does, however, have unusual triumph of destination and Edmund Wilson, in a recent review of Ladders To Fire, said: "Miss Nin is a very good writer. Her woman half child, half spirit, she shows employing certain words dropped out of the poems of Mallarmé or Rilke at any moment under control of a super personal being who feels things we cannot feel" all of which seems to be another way of saying she is a knocked out character.

To this day Miss Nin deals with the problem of modern woman as she attempts to integrate her feminine self while imitating the patterns of man (it sometimes falls prey to strange and twisted emotions.

ALL YES, PARIS

Surrealistically, she brings out the frustrations and inward self destruction. Bewildered by odd feelings, ecstasies of today's incomplete woman as she wishes inward other women, yet cannot quite understand love toward man. Lovers who is constantly in a state of consummation, and Paris who would lend pace unlike through a single of emotion, slide through the enchantment atmosphere of the artist in Paris.

The setting, the characters, and fecund imbroglio of two-bit words like fecund and imbroglio, have endeared Anais Nin among the Avant-Garde circles of America, Australia, and Berkeley, California . . . April 0 April.

Around And About

with Nagle

Today's column is by Del Pichon

IT IS noticeable around and about the campus that this college, much as many other colleges throughout the nation, is possessed in a modified degree of a unique clique of organizations. These organizations, by the very fact that they are close-knit minorities, usually control the social, and extra-curricula activities about college campi.

The peculiar brand of students which go in for these organizations have a psychic feeling for high-sounding words and phrases which have an aura of mystery about them. Hence they name themselves with titular monstrosities taken from the archaic Greek alphabet. Because of this unusual habit one might term the members of these organizations "Greeks."

The classic-sounding words need not have any particular connotation, for the majority of the members haven't the vaguest idea of what they mean.

Whenever they wish to replenish their emptying ranks they absorb eager youths of the same temperament possessed of the same zealousness for exclusiveness. These willing youths serve as guinea pigs for the various caprices of those "Greeks" who are already on the in.

The curious capers that these "fledglings" go through during their pubescent period in the Hellenic society remains a wonder to the "barbarians" (those not in the clubs) and to doctors interested in the workings of the psychotic and neurotic minds. During this trial period the young hopefuls, aided ably by their brother "Greeks," try to make themselves as ridiculous as they possibly can. They usually succeed.

Some organizations, possessed of some rationality, hold their initiations in the clandestine chambers of their clubs. This set-up provides a greater outlet for the sadistic instinct forever latent in the "Greeks."

In these quaint little orgies of blatancy, the fledglings are subjected to pummelings, beatings with paddles and such like. All designed to cleanse the fledgling of his "barbaric" ruminants which he must leave behind when entering the sacred Hellenic society.

The poor "barbarians" are left to live their miserable lives in a world sterilized of association with the "Greeks." The poor souls!

STANDBY

By Bill Riley

FRED PIERCE and JEAN NEWBERRY, both students of the college, eloped this month in the Pierce family car. Caught in the act by Pierce's father, the couple received his blessing along with a recommendation that the car be overhauled.

The couple ignored the recommendation and proceeded to Yuma, Arizona, where they were married. Passing through Salinas on the return trip the car overturned three times. Although the newlyweds received no injuries, the automobile is definitely the worse for wear.

Continuing the department of vital statistics, JOHN TOLLY, XGI president, is passing out cigars after being presented with an eight pound baby boy Easter Sunday.

CARLA PERKINS and BILL TANNEWITZ are two more students who recently took the final step. Carla, now appearing in ARSENIC and OLD LACE, is active in dramatics while her husband is a member of Beta Phi Beta fraternity.

Letters to the Editor

Edwards Thanks Comm. 'College' Status Query; Hilltop Writer OK'D.

• Thanks

Editor, The Guardsman:

The freshman class of the San Francisco Junior College wishes to extend its gratitude to everyone whose combined efforts made our Spotlight Serenade Dance a success.

Namely, Mr. Eckert, Miss Gary, and students of the art department for making of the silk screen, Mr. Mallary and Henry Charnick for the mimeo-ink printing of the tickets, Beverley Waddoups for posters, Don Schumacher for assisting with silk screen work, the freshman class officers, Pat Stanfield secretary for a job well done, and most important our gratitude of thanks to Wayne Zenger, vice president, whose untiring effort in every detail made our dance possible.

Thank you all again.

Jim Edwards, President, freshman class

• P.G. High School

Editor, The Guardsman:

The last editorial to appear in the semi-weekly bugle pertaining to student interest, is more interesting in the fact that it has the word college mentioned five times. What madman ever called this edifice a college?

The editorial states that we should not return to "the razzle dazzle days of yore." The only time this Post Graduate high school has seen razzle dazzle days is when a bright summer sun is flashing on the windows.

Either raise this institute to a four year college, where student interest can be formulated into something solid and lasting, or change it to a second Continuation School.

Cheers to Adele Reinisch, on her wonderful column "Hilltop Manner." Miss Reinisch's style is certainly interesting and noteworthy in content. Her sparkling humor or her serious consideration of problems of college life is written with the intelligence of a mature junior college mind.

Contrary to the other columns in The Guardsman, Adele's does not write about controversial issues, only items of lasting interest to students and faculty alike.

Navy Finds Button Planted By Air Force

WHEN General "Hap" Arnold went into retirement from the Air Forces he warned the nation that any future war would be of a "pushbutton" nature.

Some months later Admiral Nimitz hung up his life preserver for life on the farm down in Texas somewhere.

Before he quit, however, he couldn't resist a crack at an Air Force that skimmed off plenty of Navy gravy during the war.

Not only in headlines but in some cases top priority on such important items as digestible food for troops and seamen.

Items which were usually channelled away from Army ground forces and, in remote instances, from Navy shore based installations . . . namely the Seabees, whose Navy social status sometimes ridiculously bordered on the Jim Crow style.

But Admiral Chester "touche'd" General Hap with the revelation, "The only thing that has been developed in pushbutton warfare is the pushbutton."

BUTTON FOUND IN '45

Now the Navy lets its be known, through press releases from Point Mogu's testing grounds that, in 1945, they not only had the pushbutton but 6,000 pound made-in-America buzz bombs to spray all over Japan.

This would have been fine news in 1945 but coming now it only heightens the complete confusion existing between the branches of service, Congress and the paying public.

Instead of a complete merger of the services, in name and in fact, the armed might of the nation is drifting ever farther apart.

THE "GLORY" OF WAR

Still the cavalry generals guard their "country club" posts from all opposition, as they did in the days of Billy Mitchell.

Still the battleship admirals wave blueprints around Navy yards and yell for more luxurious battleships to tour the world with.

And still Marine commanders scan their scrapbooks and keep empty pages available for more material.

With all respect to the millions of men in different uniforms who gave their lives, history will record testimony that every branch of every service fought with equal skill in securing final victory.

But that was yesterday. Another war will not be won on the headlines of the Rhine River, Iwo Jima, and Midway Island.

MEN DIE BUT TRADITION LIVES

Yet today tradition still holds the upper hand and men have died for a delusive thing called "esprit de corps" and nothing else.

At Point Mogu, Ventura Co., the Navy experiments with radio controlled rockets, likewise at Inyokern.

Not far removed the air force is putting jet propulsion through its paces at Muroc Dry Lake.

Up in Alaska the ground force of the Army tests various equipment under climatic conditions.

This is the merger picture as it focuses today, a tragic joke on men who fought to end all future war.

RECALLS

YEARS have passed since April, 1941. To a great many people they were long, hard, and bitter years, but still everyone has some fond memories connected with this period. For instance, let us go back to that month of April just before we entered the war.

The college was enjoying its first official homecoming day, and at the same time President A. J. Cloud was unveiling the two carved figures, one of Edison, the other of Da Vinci, which are behind the science building.

Shirley Temple, film star, was introduced to a group representing the college Hotel and Restaurant Division at the Desert Inn at Palm Springs.

Plans were being made in the line of college tradition by the creation of a Hello Walk. The path which was chosen is the one which lies between the science building and the gymnasiums. This thought seems lost to us today.

The annual faculty stag barbecue was being held in Sigmund Stern Grove on April 22.

San Francisco State was taking a drubbing from the Ram track team at Kezar Stadium by a score of 62 to 59.

Coach Lee Eisan had just put his boys through their first football scrimmage of the year. Eisan was very optimistic over the prospects of the coming season. Marshall Leong, fullback, and "Turk" Terzian, halfback, were bolstering his hopes.

These were the days when a fellow could get a hand finished worsted suit with two pairs of pants for only 30 dollars. A couple could take in a movie for a dollar, and in some of the show houses this price would include a bag of popcorn.

Taking a few things like this into consideration it isn't hard to see what is meant by the GOOD OLD DAYS.

Diamondmen 'Rest' This Week

Rams Downed By USF, Army Nines

By Art Paymiller

The Ram mittmen dropped their first two practice games of their "rest week" schedule as the U. S. Army and University of San Francisco J. V. nines defeated the local squad by identical scores of 6 to 4.

The Fischermen garnered an early 2-0 lead against the soldiers in the second frame on a double by Zane Kaplan, one-basers by Herb Markall and Bob Nard and a fielder's choice.

The fourth stanza saw the Rams tally again on Art Cirimele's single and Pitcher Paul Nederman's double.

After the Army had picked up one marker in their half of the fourth, the Rams scored their final run in the fifth on singles by Bill Broderson and Kaplan.

After taking a three-run lead in the first inning, the Rams blew again as the Junior Dons dented the plate three times in the fatal eighth frame to gain Tuesday's decision.

A walk to Erskine Shaw, followed by singles by Ernie Domecus and Jim Johnston plus two Don miscues, allowed the Rams to tally thrice in the first frame Tuesday. After the Dons had narrowed the count to 3-2 in the sixth stanza, the Fischermen scored their final marker in their half of the inning on Ed Bryant's walk and Ed Cassilagio's two-bagger.

Writer Chastizes Casaba Quitters

By Paul Cane

WE WERE debating as to whether or not Charley Graham and Paul Fagan should be put on the chopping block again in this issue, but decided to save our gripes against them for a later date.

Instead we thought we would turn our neurotic complexes in another (and closer to home) direction, namely to a very minor portion of the students here at the college.

As means of indoctrination, it was always our belief that character molding, the developmental aspect of an individual's personality, was formulated in and about his school life. With apologies to Ralph Granneberg, it is this column's impression that "we learn what we do."

Accepting this reasoning verbatim, then the idiocyncrasies, the habits that that are acquired under given conditions are apt (or more correctly), almost certain to be brought forth again and again.

And there is the crux of today's epistle!

On March 12 of this year when the spring intramural basketball league began, there were 29 teams enrolled in the competition. These 29 teams represented a minimum number of 210 of our "typical American citizens;" or perhaps even slightly better than "typical."

This youth was in quest of a basketball championship, the idea of which is all well and good. But the part that isn't so "well and good" is the manner—the wholesale manner—with which a great percentage of the teams dropped out of competition after suffering one or two early losses.

The point of concern isn't whether or not these teams were as athletically able as their opponents, but rather that in the face of defeat they quit!

In view of the earlier assumption, such a manner of withdrawal may have set a precedent—a criterion—within the individuals, and may lead to similar tactics when confronted with seemingly insurmountable tasks in later life.

We sincerely hope such will not be the case, but in a comparable vein, we are supremely thankful that like "athletes" didn't enter the "tournament" held on Guadalcanal in August of 1942.

Small Turnout Looms In NCJCC Golf Show

As of this issue, but two students have signed up with Athletic Director Jack Gaddy for the coming Northern California Junior College golf tournament to be held this year at Modesto May 30 to 31.

Gaddy believes that in spite of the weak response to his call for golfers, he will take the two lone putters south and enter them as individuals. In the meantime, however, he is in hope of garnering a full team to enter in the annual affair of putts and pars.

Square Circle

Pugilists Set For Intra Boxing Show

To be climaxed by a 15-bout tournament final on Tuesday, May 20, the bi-annual intramural boxing program is readying itself for what promises to develop into the most successful presentation of its kind in the young history of the college.

Led by last fall's 115 pound champion rapid ami rhythmical Harry Tupolan, the eager and capable gladiators have already begun their enrollment rush. By the signup deadline of Friday, May 2, the record assemblage of fistic talent is expected to have been conditioned to a point which will not allow the contests' three one-minute rounds to prove too gruelling.

The elimination trials will begin on Tuesday, May 6, with all weight divisions from fly-weight to heavyweight represented. When the trials are completed, the remaining two undefeated contestants in each division will be paired to vie for the championship on May 20.

The enthusiastic Tom Wilson, director of all intramural activities, is attempting to secure the services of the same officials that served so competently during the last boxing show. These men include Roy Diederiksen, George Canrinus, Louis Conlan, Dr. Thomas Jones, Herb Markall (who did a fine job of announcing), and Jack Brady.

In addition to the Topolan appearance, there are others who will be competing for a second time. Gordon Fell, who beat Willie Dawson in the 175 pound contest, will be back. Ditto Newton Hill and Johnnie Brown; and "Navy Bill" Lanahan is considering his initial venture.

And there'll be more; big fellows and little fellows so quiet and unassuming one wouldn't think they had ever been exposed to even a spectatorial measure of the manly art! But when the lights go dim and the first bell rings at 7:45 on May 20 physical stature will assume an insignificant role as pugilism with a college education goes on display.

Tennis

Racket Win Streak On Block Tomorrow

With high hopes of annexing their second consecutive win, the Phelan Avenue netters play host to Stockton at their newly adopted home courts at 26th Street and Vicente Avenue tomorrow at 10 a.m.

The Ram racketmen, still glowing from the effects of their semithrilling 5-2 win over Yuba last Saturday, have aspirations of taking the Stockton team into camp. The Tigers also nipped the Yuba team by a 5-2 score.

The starting quintet for tomorrow's tussle is unchanged from that of previous weeks with Pat Heaggarty, Bud Langton, Frank Reed, Bill Covall, and Joe Barton getting the singles assignments. However, there will be a revision in the doubles combinations, Tom Wilson, net coach, announced.

The Rams will enter tomorrow's fray as the "best dressed" team in the conference, what with their red-trimmed white shorts, white T-shirts with the college emblem, and their red and white warmup jackets.

Tomorrow's match will be the last conference match for the locals in the city. In the next four weeks they hit the road for Napa, Sacramento, Menlo and Marin.

However, according to Manager Jim Logan, several non-conference matches are still to be played. These are to include Stanford, California, and return matches with Santa Clara, St. Mary's, San Jose State, and San Francisco State. The all-conference tourney at Stockton, May 29-30-31, will conclude the season.

Netters Can Reap Milkshake Reward

In an effort to spur the college tennis team on to greater heights, Denny, of Denny's Dairies, has offered ten milkshakes to the first netter to turn in a victory against Stockton tomorrow.

Should more than one Ram come through with a winning performance, the 10 shakes will be equally divided among those winners.

Last semester Denny awarded similar offerings to both football and basketball players.

Thinclads Tangle With USF, Galloping Gaels In 3-Way Meet At Moraga Today

The on-again-off-again Ram spikesters will splash around in a bigger pond today when they take off for the hills of Moraga for a triangular meet with the U.S.F. Dons and the Gallopin' Gaels of St. Mary's. The act gets under way at 4 p.m.

WAA Playday Officers Named; Set For May 3

With four junior colleges already accepting the invitation to attend the Women's Athletic Association playday which is to be held here Saturday, May 3, Gloria Swicegood, WAA adviser, and Frances Scilipoti, WAA president, have been named as the day's general chairmen.

The colleges that have expressed a desire to attend are San Mateo, San Francisco State College, San Jose State, and Santa Rosa.

The Associated Women's students have been asked to supply ten hostesses for the reception committee, which is headed by Laurine Bergin, faculty sponsor, and Carolyn Kennington.

Mrs. Bergin and Miss Kennington are also in charge of guide service and are working in conjunction with the dance club.

Other committees and their chairmen who have been appointed for the event are as follows:

Archery, Paulette Whitburn; public address system, Hermina Rose; direction and signs, Ann Chestang; luncheon and entertainment, Janice Kruetzmann, Mary Lee and Mary Perano; scoreboard and messengers, Nancy Sparks, Annette Loy; and invitations, Rose Chin and Chow Kaji.

The first night football game was played in October, 1904, between the Cherokee Indians and Southwest Teachers College of Missouri.

The Gaels and the Dons are in the throes of a renaissance insofar as track and field are concerned. It's been a good many years since either club fielded a cinder squad, heretofore concentrating on football and basketball. The Rams stand a good chance of making more than a satisfactory showing against their bigger opponents in view of this edge in experience, and should cop more than a few firsts.

The Jensenmen were nipped by one point (66-65) in their engagement with the Sacramento crew in the capitol city last Friday, but the score doesn't tell the difference between the two squads.

Had Sacramento made the gruelling road trip, chances are that they might have been on the short end. Coaches Jensen and Kleinmer are making no excuses for that one, however, and will be pointing for the Panthers when the conference hunting is on the line.

Eddie Bryant, the dash man, continues to amaze by adapting himself so readily to the hurdles. He busted the tape in front of the pack for the second time in as many weeks in the 220 lows.

Bill Barnes lost a close one to the Panthers' George Stanich in the high jump, but will be gunning for a win today at Moraga.

The Rams continued their 1-2-3 superiority in the quarter mile while half miler Jim Wyatt turned in his best seasonal performance to annex his event.

Alpha Gamma Sigma Constitution Revamped

Changes to the state constitution of Alpha Gamma Sigma to provide new eligibility rules for permanent membership in the society were approved in the last club meeting to the effect that temporary semester membership will count in the future toward permanent membership.

Approval by this college, among 30 chapters voting on the proposed amendments, is just a stepping stone to a majority ruling necessary for amendments to the constitution.

Edwin A. Cranston, adviser, announced that membership pins are now available in Room 249. Any member who has not previously received a club pin is entitled to one on presentation of an Associated Student card.

Opening Postponed On West Campus Library

Once again the opening of the west campus branch library has been postponed—this time until next semester, according to Librarian Marcus Skarstedt.

Reason for the delay is that the room in Building 2 that the branch will occupy is now used by classes, which are unable to move until west campus reconstruction makes room for them elsewhere.

Establishment of the branch, originally set for the beginning of this semester, previously had been postponed till after the Easter vacation.

The new library will feature political science and history reference books.

Regulations

Judiciary Members Adopt Fine System To Curb Violators

The adoption of more concrete plans for the Judiciary Committee's three fold enforcement program highlighted the activities of the Judiciary Committee meeting last week.

A system of fines, to be imposed as a minor punitive action on student offenders on the campus, was adopted, and the completion of the printing of the blank forms, to be used as summons slips, was announced.

The fine system, a change from the originally proposed plan of imposing off-duty work for violators, is proposed primarily as a clampdown on smoking offenders, Bud Marble, Judiciary Committee chairman, revealed. It will provide for the imposing of a 25 cent fine for first time smoking offenders, and a 50 cent fine for all second time offenders.

After the third smoking violation, offenders will be subject to suspension, and a fourth offense will warrant grounds to recommend expulsion. A similar system of fines, with authorization already granted by the school board and the office of the deans, will be set for all student violators, it was disclosed.

The Judiciary Force will act as the committee's enforcement arm throughout the campus.

Council O.K.'s Riley As Force Chairman

Appointment of Bill Riley as Judiciary Force chairman was unanimously approved by the council last Tuesday following the resignation of Don Burger. Appointed by Associated Students' president, Trev Burrow, Riley will take over the leadership of the force formed last semester.

Nine students were nominated and approved by the council to serve on a committee to inquire into the National Students' Organization, Nancy Stookey, Bob McHenry, Don Frost, Gloria Jean Wu, Paul Malty, Don Burger, Al Doech, Dan Golden, and Riley. The purpose of the committee is to determine whether or not it is advisable for the college to join the N. S. O.

Burrow stated that along with Don Burger, Bob Hanson and college President A. J. Cloud, they had approached School Superintendent Curtis Warren concerning a new stadium and the changing of the college's name. They were referred to Park Superintendent Wilson in regard to the use of Kezar Stadium. Superintendent Warren suggested that a committee approach the Board of Education on the subject of the college name.

The question of the difficulty of Guardsman distribution once again came up for consideration, with the recommendation that Bob Winegardner, Millie Laube, and Bernie Davis determine the possibility of a better method.

Administration

Brady Proves Capable And Popular, Hopes This College Will Lead Others

By Herbert Levy

MAN OF MANY JOBS is the assistant Dean of Men, Jack Brady, who holds such diversified positions as the President of the Faculty Association, and chief adviser of the XGI society.

Brady started his career at the University of San Francisco, where he graduated with honors in the educational and administrative field.

Handsome Jack Brady, the hard working assistant dean of men, is truly a congenial and exacting servant of this college.

Brady's many jobs, in addition to being assistant dean, include such noteworthy offices as president of the Faculty Association and chief adviser of the XGI Society.

Dean Brady began his early career in the educational and administrative field as a graduate of the University of San Francisco. He can recall his early days in college, with merely "it was really rough."

Brady started at this college many years ago as a men's physical education instructor, and through hard work and earnest devotion to his job, worked his way up in a true Horatio Algier fashion to his present position.

The genial dean's working day usually starts at 8 a.m. in the morning, and extends most every day to nearly 6 p.m. in the evening.

His first success about the campus was in the early days of 1942, when the reigns of the intramural sports tourney was placed in his hands. The over-all success of this mission so instilled the students with his hard work and organization, that in his honor the following semester an intramural basketball team was named after him, and likely enough the outfit was called the "Brady Beauties."

The present financial distress which seems to be creeping into every phase of college life falls directly into the lap of the hard working dean, but Brady, through his efficient organization, is coping with the problem with his usual ease and dexterity, and as the assistant dean said, "We will handle this problem with the swiftest and the most efficient manner, as we have handled such problems in the past."

The industrious dean is truly looking toward the future of education and quietly disclosed that some day he hopes the college will be the leading higher institution of learning in San Francisco.

Subsistances Cease At Semester's Close

All student veterans' subsistence allowance will be interrupted at the close of the current semester on June 13, F. Grant Marsh, counselling head, announced yesterday.

All student veterans who are planning to attend the Summer quarter will be required to have enrolled for subsistence benefits by June 20 in order to receive subsistence allowance for the Summer quarter, Marsh disclosed. The quarter will start on June 23.

Student veterans must include a minimum of six units in their program, it was disclosed.

At the close of the Summer quarter on August 22, veterans' subsistence will again be interrupted and all students will he required to enroll for the Fall semester.

Summer Registration To Be Held June 20

Registration for old students planning to attend the Summer session at the college will take place on Friday, June 20, Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to the president, revealed last week. Entrance examinations for new students will be given on June 20, with registration on June 21; and actual instruction will begin June 23.

California Announces Final Admission Dates

The last dates of application for admission to various colleges at the University of California have been announced as follows: Colleges of Engineering, May 1; School of Business Administration, May 1; School of Optometry, May 1; College of Dentistry, August 1; College of Pharmacy, August 1; Hastings College of Law, August 1.

Rating of all applicants will be based on previous scholarship records.

Applicants are requested to file their applications together with a

Open House

Floral Displays Readied For Guests On Homecoming Day

A little publicized but highly industrious phase of the college's rounded curriculum, the school of floral design division of the floriculture department, will come into its own with an outstanding floral display on Homecoming Day.

Open House, May 1, comes simultaneously this year with the National Flower Show in Oakland. Persons on tour through the floral design division will get first hand previews of students hard at work creating and maintaining some of the resplendent flower displays entered by the college in the national Oakland contest.

Guests of the division during the Open House program will receive special corsages, courtesy of the floriculture department.

The floriculture department itself is a pioneering field among several colleges in the area. The school of floral design, however, is not only a pioneer attempt in a new field of education, but one of the only such attempts in any college on the West Coast or in the country for that matter.

Minimum Needs For Readmittance Announced By Mohr

Students who expect to return to the college next semester will be readmitted subject to minimum scholarship requirements, according to an announcement made by J. Paul Mohr, vice-president.

Under the new regulations, a student whose scholarship is unsatisfactory will be subject to disqualification and may be denied the privilege of registering in the college for an indefinite time. Ordinarily, Mohr pointed out, such disqualification will be imposed upon a student only after a period of probation.

Any student who receives notice of disqualification may petition the Coordinator of Counselling and Guidance for a hearing. If the petition is granted, the student will be permitted to present his case before the Com- missions.

"Any student enrolled in chemistry 21a or physics 24b will not be allowed to take another subject," he added.

If a minimum of 15 students request a course, additional listings will be made.

Alumni Edition

Guardsman Will Print Extra For Homecoming

A newspaper seldom gives its readers a notice of an extra edition, but in this instance The Guardsman scoops The Guardsman in announcing the Alumni-Homecoming edition which will hit the campus Thursday, May 1.

The Alumni edition will be the work of former editors and present members of The Guardsman staff and will cover Homecoming activities and the spring music festival in detail, and will be issued as a souvenir edition.

While the extra Alumni edition features the homecoming celebratiug, the current staff will get the regular Guardsman out for general distribution on Friday, May 2.

The Guardsman thus contributes its bit to the spring festival by being published three times during the week, thereby preserving for the students continuity in this journal of student activities on the campus.

TALENTED TENOR, Elmer Dickey, whose singing will be featured at the Spring Festival and annual Homecoming. Dickey, who is the college's leading singer of songs, is considered by the critics, to have a voice that compares favorably with the great Paul Robeson's.

Ramshead Poised For Technicolor Coverup

Unanimous passage of a motion to paint the ton-and-a-half Ram on the west campus (with the bill to be sent to San Mateo Junior College) was one of several items of business conducted at the Student Council meeting held last Thursday.

The red-and-white paint job will cover up blue paint splashed on the wooden symbol of the college by San Mateo "vagrants" in a pre-game raid last semester.

Other business conducted at this council meeting was as follows:

President Trev Burrow named Don Burger, Dan Goldman, Lou Neilsen, Frank Nelson, Pat Pollack, Bud Marble, and Roberta Robb, as members of a committee to draft necessary amendments to the Associated Students constitution.

Burrow, Burger, and Neilsen will represent the college at the NCJC Conference on Saturday, May 3, at Marin Junior College.

Winners Of Campus-Wide Song Contest Will Be Announced During Thursday's Musical Show

Winners of the college song contest will be named at the Spring Variety Show Thursday, when the songs will be sung by the college's men's chorus.

Through the judging committee's rearrangement of two songs linking lyrics of one to the music of another, the two respective musicians will split the third prize, Flossita Badger, chorus director disclosed. Miss Badger implied that competition was keen, and much deliberation ensued before the victors were chosen.

The judging committee, Miss Badger, Gertrude Norgard, and Madison Devlin of the music faculty, Dean Edward E. Sandys, Assistant Dean John Brady, Rally Commissioner Jim Mann, Associated Student President Trev Burrow, and the presidents of the three music societies, have chosen melodies that are to ride high on the college hit parade for many coming semesters along with the two previous contest's winning songs, Alma Mater, Ram's Cheer, and Fight On.

Publications

Forum Cuts Price To 35 Cents; Abstract Cover Theme Chosen

In a bid to place Forum Magazine, the college literary publication, within reach of every student, the original price of 50 cents per copy has been slashed to 35 cents, Kenneth Ford, editor, announced today.

Aiming for an even greater circulation than a previous years, the magazine will be double the size of last year's issue. The new low price of Forum will in no way detract from the quality and quantity of material, Ford emphasized.

Innovating an entirely new type of cover design in the abstract theme for a college literary magazine, Forum Magazine will present an original idea submitted by Jonas Harschel, student of Fancho Gary's Art 15 class, chosen carefully from many cover designs entered for consideration.

Climaxing an intensive search through college talent the Forum staff has elected this abstract contribution which answers the requirements of the magazine perfectly, Ford said.

Uncovering a wealth of hidden talent within the college, Ford and his staff have finally completed the diligent task of combing the entries for the outstanding works, and believe they have the material for the outstanding issue of the college's history.

Several authors whose original ideas highlighted last year's issue have written completely new stories that will make their appearance. Among these are J. A. Kershaw and Alex Apostilides, business manager of Forum Magazine, Ford stated.

Ceramics Display Fetes Art In Action

By Ann Land

That the process of creating works of art through the use of clay holds fascinating possibilities for the creative mind is the belief of Roy H. Walker, instructor of ceramics.

Walker is planning an Art In Action story of the course which will introduce to the spectator the process of pottery and modeling in clay, from the beginning to the completed objects.

Faculty, students, and public are invited to attend the ceramics Homecoming exhibit this Thursday, May 1, in building 10, Walker announced.

The college ceramics training includes in its course, pottery form, produced by such methods as coil, slab, slip casting, and the wheel thrown; tiles and ceramic sculptures; methods of decoration, and laboratory experience in clay study, glaze making and kiln firing.

The course serves many groups, Walker informed, as it is closely tied up with art and advertising, with home economics, recreational leadership, and floriculture.

The handicapped often seek clay. It is particularly therapeutic in that most who work with clay find it quiets and soothes the nerves, and it stimulates creative drive. Several students in the classes have partly overcome arm or hand injuries by working in this medium.

Ceramic classes also include premedical and dental students seeking to train nimble fingers, a boy studying to be a mortician, and several students planning to set up pottery production at home.

Spring Festival Variety Show Boasts Grizzled Veterans Of Theater In Top Billing; Seasoned Artists Cavort

Just about every student billed for the gala Variety Show scheduled to highlight the Spring Festival and Homecoming celebration this Thursday, May 1, is a grizzled veteran of the theater.

Practically everyone from the top soloist to the property man's assistant has logged in a moderate heap of professional hours before the footlights.

The proof of this will be self-evident Thursday when the curtain rises on the co-sponsored extravaganza of the music and dramatic departments.

Nimble footed Leo A Luis Martinez and Gloria Orzanco are professional virtuosos at native Mexican and Spanish dances. Marjorie Manderville, student ballerina, has tripped the light fantastic as a professional hireling with the Russian Opera Ballet and several other nationally known dance troupes at the San Francisco Opera House; Del Mar Faddis has just concluded a contract to chirp the vocals regularly at the Marin County Bowl.

Elmer Dickey, the "Paul Robeson" of San Francisco, who was hailed a big hit at the college's Christmas concert, will also be on hand.

These soloists aren't the only experienced performers in the big Variety Show. The Choir and Men's Chorus have been turning out concerts about town in mass production. Thespians starring in Lloyd Sisler's dramatic skits are seasoned veterans from numerous past productions of the little theater.

While all these top-notch entertainers clasp onto the ears of the two big audiences in the auditorium, one crowd in the afternoon at 2:30 and another in the evening at 7:30, students of the floriculture, ceramics, hotel and restaurant division, and directors of the campus unit of the veteran's administration, will feature interesting exhibits of their departments.

Veteran Guidance

Batmale To Head Branch Office Here

A college branch of the Veterans Administration Guidance Center, headed by Louis F. Batmale, opens on the campus today, F. Grant Marsh, Director of Counselling announced.

The new guidance branch located in building 3 shares offices with the regular counselling staff, and as Veterans Administration representative, Wolcott C. Treat will occupy offices with training officers William I. Olsen and Myron Makower.

Counsellors William Rosevear and Thomas Nesbitt will aid in the new work, it was disclosed.

This facility, long contemplated by the Veterans Administration here, was secured primarily through the efforts of Counselling Director Marsh.

The Veterans Administration Guidance Center, which is operated by the San Francisco Public Schools, has its main office at 750 Eddy Street. A branch office is located at Galileo High School. The main office and its two branches are under the management of Ward M. Nichols, Coordinator of Veterans Counselling for the San Francisco Unified School District.

German Band To Lead May Day Parade

Colorful pageantry will be heralded by a German Band, which will play following the Homecoming parade to the west campus auditorium, in the May Day celebration here Thursday, at 2 o'clock, Madison Devlin, band instructor, disclosed.

Costumed in appropriate dress, the five-star band will play Dutch waltzes and old-country tunes.

Nick D'Angeli and Leonard Lucy will play clarinets, with Dan Lucero on the trumpet, Harold Twining, trombone, and Walter Lauer, tuba.

Alpha Gamma Sigma Constitution Revamped

Changes to the state constitution of Alpha Gamma Sigma to provide new eligibility rules for permanent membership in the society were approved in the last club meeting to the effect that temporary semester membership will count in the future toward permanent membership.

Approval by this college, among 30 chapters voting on the proposed amendments, is just a stepping stone to a majority ruling necessary for amendments to the constitution.

Edwin A. Cranston, adviser, announced that membership pins are now available in Room 249. Any member who has not previously received a club pin is entitled to one on presentation of an Associated Student card.

Opening Postponed On West Campus Library

Once again the opening of the west campus branch library has been postponed—this time until next semester, according to Librarian Marcus Skarstedt.

Reason for the delay is that the room in Building 2 that the branch will occupy is now used by classes, which are unable to move until west campus reconstruction makes room for them elsewhere.

Establishment of the branch, originally set for the beginning of this semester, previously had been postponed till after the Easter vacation.

The new library will feature political science and history reference books.

Regulations

Judiciary Members Adopt Fine System To Curb Violators

The adoption of more concrete plans for the Judiciary Committee's three fold enforcement program highlighted the activities of the Judiciary Committee meeting last week.

A system of fines, to be imposed as a minor punitive action on student offenders on the campus, was adopted, and the completion of the printing of the blank forms, to be used as summons slips, was announced.

The fine system, a change from the originally proposed plan of imposing off-duty work for violators, is proposed primarily as a clampdown on smoking offenders, Bud Marble, Judiciary Committee chairman, revealed. It will provide for the imposing of a 25 cent fine for first time smoking offenders, and a 50 cent fine for all second time offenders.

After the third smoking violation, offenders will be subject to suspension, and a fourth offense will warrant grounds to recommend expulsion. A similar system of fines, with authorization already granted by the school board and the office of the deans, will be set for all student violators, it was disclosed.

The Judiciary Force will act as the committee's enforcement arm throughout the campus.

Council O.K.'s Riley As Force Chairman

Appointment of Bill Riley as Judiciary Force chairman was unanimously approved by the council last Tuesday following the resignation of Don Burger. Appointed by Associated Students' president, Trev Burrow, Riley will take over the leadership of the force formed last semester.

Nine students were nominated and approved by the council to serve on a committee to inquire into the National Students' Organization. Nancy Stookey, Bob McHenry, Don Frost, Gloria Jean Wu, Paul Matty, Don Burger, Al Doech, Dan Golden, and Riley. The purpose of the committee is to determine whether or not it is advisable for the college to join the N. S. O.

Burrow stated that along with Don Burger, Bob Hanson and college President A. J. Cloud, they had approached School Superintendent Curtis Warren concerning a new stadium and the changing of the college's name. They were referred to Park Superintendent Wilson in regard to the use of Kezar Stadium. Superintendent Warren suggested that a committee approach the Board of Education on the subject of the college name.

The question of the difficulty of Guardsman distribution once again came up for consideration, with the recommendation that Bob Winegardner, Millie Laube, and Bernie Davis determine the possibility of a better method.

Brady Proves Capable And Popular, Hopes This College Will Lead Others

By Herbert Levy

Handsome Jack Brady, the hard working assistant dean of men, is truly a congenial and exacting servant of this college.

Brady's many jobs, in addition to being assistant dean, include such noteworthy offices as president of the Faculty Association and chief adviser of the XGI Society.

Dean Brady began his early career in the educational and administrative field as a graduate of the University of San Francisco. He can recall his early days in college, with merely "it was really rough."

Brady started at this college many years ago as a men's physical education instructor, and through hard work and earnest devotion to his job, worked his way up in a true Horatio Algier fashion to his present position.

The genial dean's working day usually starts at 8 a.m. in the morning, and extends most every day to nearly 6 p.m. in the evening.

His first success about the campus was in the early days of 1942, when the reigns of the intramural sports tourney was placed in his hands. The over-all success of this mission so instilled the students with his hard work and organization, that in his honor the following semester an intramural basketball team was named after him, and likely enough the outfit was called the "Brady Beauties."

The present financial distress which seems to be creeping into every phase of college life falls directly into the lap of the hard working dean, but Brady, through his efficient organization, is coping with the problem with his usual ease and dexterity, and as the assistant dean said, "We will handle this problem with the swiftest and the most efficient manner, as we have handled such problems in the past."

The industrious dean is truly looking toward the future of education and quietly disclosed that some day he hopes the college will be the leading higher institution of learning in San Francisco.

MAN OF MANY JOBS is the assistant Dean of Men, Jack Brady, who holds such diversified positions as the President of the Faculty Association, and chief adviser of the XGI society.
Brady started his career at the University of San Francisco, where he graduated with honors in the educational and administrative field.

Subsistances Cease At Semester's Close

All student veterans' subsistence allowance will be interrupted at the close of the current semester on June 13, F. Grant Marsh, counselling head, announced yesterday.

All student veterans who are planning to attend the Summer quarter will be required to have enrolled for subsistence benefits by June 20 in order to receive subsistence allowance for the Summer quarter, Marsh disclosed. The quarter will start on June 23.

Student veterans must include a minimum of six units in their program, it was disclosed.

At the close of the Summer quarter on August 22, veterans' subsistence will again be interrupted and all students will be required to enroll for the Fall semester.

Summer Registration To Be Held June 20

Registration for old students planning to attend the Summer session at the college will take place on Friday, June 20, Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to the president, revealed last week. Entrance examinations for new students will be given on June 20, with registration on June 21; and actual instruction will begin June 23.

California Announces Final Admission Dates

The last dates of application for admission to various colleges at the University of California have been announced as follows: Colleges of Engineering, May 1; School of Business Administration, May 1; School of Optometry, May 1; College of Dentistry, August 1; College of Pharmacy, August 1; Hastings College of Law, August 1.

Rating of all applicants will be based on previous scholarship records.

Applicants are requested to file their applications together with a follow.

Open House

Floral Displays Readied For Guests On Homecoming Day

A little publicized but highly industrious phase of the college's rounded curriculum, the school of floral design division of the floriculture department, will come into its own with an outstanding floral display on Homecoming Day.

Open House, May 1, comes simultaneously this year with the National Flower Show in Oakland. Persons on tour through the floral design division will get first hand previews of students hard at work creating and maintaining some of the resplendent flower displays entered by the college in the national Oakland contest.

Guests of the division during the Open House program will receive special corsages, courtesy of the floriculture department.

The floriculture department itself is a pioneering field among several colleges in the area. The school of floral design, however, is not only a pioneer attempt in a new field of education, but one of the only such attempts in any college on the West Coast or in the country for that matter.

Instructor John Lawrence pupils are regular full time students, special students interested solely in floristry, and part-time professionals from such name local florists as Podesto-Baldocchi, out to catch and develop new ideas.

Despite the fact that the course is only six months old, one graduate, Vigril Yee, has already opened his own business, the Legion Flower Shop, in Sacramento.

Minimum Needs For Readmittance Announced By Mohr

Students who expect to return to the college next semester will be readmitted subject to minimum scholarship requirements, according to an announcement made by J. Paul Mohr, vice-president.

Under the new regulations, a student whose scholarship is unsatisfactory will be subject to disqualification and may be denied the privilege of registering in the college for an indefinite time. Ordinarily, Mohr pointed out, such disqualification will be imposed upon a student only after a period of probation.

Any student who receives notice of disqualification may petition the Coordinator of Counselling and Guidance for a hearing. If the petition is granted, the student will be permitted to present his case before the Committee on Readmissions.

A student will be placed in probation for the following reasons:

(1) If during the first semester in residence he fails to pass with a minimum grade of "C" in courses totaling at least three units; or

(2) If at the end of any semester subsequent to his first, his grade-point average falls below .5 ("C" minus average), computed on the total of all courses undertaken in the college.

A student will be disqualified as follows:

(1) If during any semester he fails to receive passing final grades in one-half the total number of units undertaken and completed; or

Any of these courses which fails to enroll sufficient students to warrant instruction will be withdrawn before the close of the first week of the quarter, Luckmann said.

"Any student enrolled in chemistry 21a or physics 24b will not be allowed to take another subject," he added.

If a minimum of 15 students request a course, additional listings will be made.

Alumni Edition

Guardsman Will Print Extra For Homecoming

A newspaper seldom gives its readers a notice of an extra edition, but in this instance The Guardsman scoops The Guardsman in announcing the Alumni-Homecoming edition which will hit the campus Thursday, May 1.

The Alumni edition will be the work of former editors and present members of The Guardsman staff and will cover Homecoming activities and the spring music festival in detail, and will be issued as a souvenir edition.

While the extra Alumni edition features the homecoming celebrating, the current staff will get the regular Guardsman out for general distribution on Friday, May 2.

The Guardsman thus contributes its bit to the spring festival by being published three times during the week, thereby preserving for the students continuity in this journal of student activities on the campus.

TALENTED TENOR, Elmer Dickey, whose singing will be featured at the Spring Festival and annual Homecoming. Dickey, who is the college's leading singer of songs, is considered by the critics, to have a voice that compares favorably with the great Paul Robeson's.

Ramshead Poised For Technicolor Coverup

Unanimous passage of a motion to paint the ton-and-a-half Ram on the west campus (with the bill to be sent to San Mateo Junior College) was one of several items of business conducted at the Student Council meeting held last Thursday.

The red-and-white paint job will cover up blue paint splashed on the wooden symbol of the college by San Mateo "vagrants" in a pre-game raid last semester.

Other business conducted at this council meeting was as follows:

President Trev Burrow named Don Burger, Dan Goldman, Lou Neilsen, Frank Nelson, Pat Pollack, Bud Marble, and Roberta Robb, as members of a committee to draft necessary amendments to the Associated Students constitution.

Burrow, Burger, and Neilsen will represent the college at the NCJC Conference on Saturday, May 3, at Marin Junior College.

Winners Of Campus-Wide Song Contest Will Be Announced During Thursday's Musical Show

Winners of the college song contest will be named at the Spring Variety Show Thursday, when the songs will be sung by the college's men's chorus.

Through the judging committee's rearrangement of two songs linking lyrics of one to the music of another, the two respective musicians will split the third prize, Flossita Badger, chorus director disclosed. Miss Badger implied that competition was keen, and much deliberation ensued before the victors were chosen.

The judging committee, Miss Badger, Gertrude Norgard, and Madison Devlin of the music faculty, Dean Edward E. Sandys, Assistant Dean John Brady, Rally Commissioner Jim Mann, Associated Student President Trev Burrow, and the presidents of the three music societies, have chosen melodies that are to ride high on the college hit parade for many coming semesters along with the two previous contest's winning songs, Alma Mater, Ram's Cheer, and Fight On.

Publications

Forum Cuts Price To 35 Cents; Abstract Cover Theme Chosen

In a bid to place Forum Magazine, the college literary publication, within reach of every student, the original price of 50 cents per copy has been slashed to 35 cents, Kenneth Ford, editor, announced today.

Aiming for an even greater circulation than a previous years, the magazine will be double the size of last year's issue. The new low price of Forum will in no way detract from the quality and quantity of material, Ford emphasized.

Innovating an entirely new type of cover design in the abstract theme for a college literary magazine, Forum Magazine will present an original idea submitted by Jonas Harschel, student of Faneho Gary's Art 15 class, chosen carefully from many cover designs entered for consideration.

Climaxing an intensive search through college talent the Forum staff has elected this abstract contribution which answers the requirements of the magazine perfectly, Ford said.

Uncovering a wealth of hidden talent within the college, Ford and his staff have finally completed the diligent task of combing the entries for the outstanding works, and believe they have the material for the outstanding issue of the college's history.

Several authors whose original ideas highlighted last year's issue have written completely new stories that will make their appearance. Among these are J. A. Kershaw and Alex Apostilides, business manager of Forum Magazine, Ford stated.

Ceramics Display Fetes Art In Action

By Ann Land

That the process of creating works of art through the use of clay holds fascinating possibilities for the creative mind is the belief of Roy H. Walker, instructor of ceramics.

Walker is planning an Art In Action story of the course which will introduce to the spectator the process of pottery and modeling in clay, from the beginning to the completed objects.

Faculty, students, and public are invited to attend the ceramics Homecoming exhibit this Thursday, May 1, in building 10, Walker announced.

The college ceramics training includes in its course, pottery form, produced by such methods as coil, slab, slip casting, and the wheel thrown; tiles and ceramic sculptures; methods of decoration, and laboratory experience in clay study, glaze making and kiln firing.

The course serves many groups, Walker informed, as it is closely tied up with art and advertising, with home economics, recreational leadership, and floriculture.

The handicapped often seek clay. It is particularly therapeutic in that most who work with clay find it quiets and soothes the nerves, and it stimulates creative drive. Several students in the classes have partly overcome arm or hand injuries by working in this medium.

Ceramic classes also include premedical and dental students seeking to train nimble fingers, a boy studying to be a mortician, and several students planning to set up pottery production at home.

Spring Festival Variety Show Boasts Grizzled Veterans Of Theater In Top Billing; Seasoned Artists Cavort

Just about every student billed for the gala Variety Show scheduled to highlight the Spring Festival and Homecoming celebration this Thursday, May 1, is a grizzled veteran of the theater.

Practically everyone from the top soloist to the property man's assistant has logged in a moderate heap of professional hours before the footlights.

The proof of this will be self-evident Thursday when the curtain rises on the co-sponsored extravaganza of the music and dramatic departments.

Nimble footed Leo A Luis Martinez and Gloria Orzanco are professional virtuosos at native Mexican and Spanish dances. Marjorie Manderville, student ballerina, has tripped the light fantastic as a professional hireling with the Russian Opera Ballet and several other nationally known

Public Schools Week

Custom Is Time-Honored

IN keeping with a tradition established some years ago, Public Schools Week will again be observed throughout the city this week. Parents will be given the opportunity of visiting the schools and seeing how their children are being educated.

This practice has proven to be a successful one.

Parents who can very seldom get a word out of junior about "what he did in school today" finally have a chance to find out for themselves. They see class in action, with, of course, students on their best behavior.

While some consider it a complete bore to sit in class and listen to other people's children recite, just for the sake of hearing their own, most recognize the value of this custom and consider it worth the trouble.

Contrary to the preconceived ideas of some of the students here at the college, we, too, are included in the Public Schools system of San Francisco. We, too, benefit by our association under the Board of Education.

Therefore, this college is also holding open house for this occasion. Our students will also be expected to be on their best behavior for the benefit of the visitors.

Besides the parents and friends of the students, school authorities will be present from time to time to view the college in action.

We must give them a chance to see how our institution works. Since this is the only college in the school system, ours will be the only illustration of higher education available to the visitors.

We will have to be the shining example, and should try to make a good impression.

After Dark

SAN FRANCISCO is still the last frontier of something or other. Many of the cult crowd say it is literary freedom; others, a sailor's paradise. Perhaps historians of Mother Asia will be able to determine which was the most important.

As to literary freedom witness the ancient trial of Edmund Wilson's Memoirs of Hecate County. It occurred back in 1946. The court found it was not lewd, obscene, filthy, salacious, or any of the other choice adjectives thrown around by what some called yellow journalism. First the Spanish-American War, then Bathtub Gin, now Hecate County. What progress the years provide.

Since the good old days of '46 most people have read the book and found it wasn't worth the stink. The extreme odor of words is sometimes transmitted into psychological action via the channels of the unconscious, namely, the id, ego, hid, sid, and little gohlin levels. Hecate didn't do it; it laid an egg. The egg hatched and people named the chicken Diana. Some called her the Duchess of Hotspur. Progress calls for change. Hotspur soon cooled off. Diana is now seen slumped over the bar at the Artists' Club. There's progress. America forges on. Axel's Castle stands.

Some things are irrelevant in a column, but deadlines have to be met. Abstractions and surrealism are often used to cover up inadequacy. Surrealism is here in line (the streetcar is jerking so!) The morning after calls for uneoncern.

The clock is humming on the wall. Everybody is getting educated. Vets and teachers are underpaid. Forum magazine comes out soon. Forum is the answer to students' prayers. Within its Kromkote covers one lives, one dies, a small whimpering in the night; one also rises, eyeballs red, to meet the glistening sun. A tear, an old man's tear, falls on Howard Street. The K car plummets out of the Twin Peaks tunnel. San Francisco is a city of cliff dwellers. Prometheus, Diana, Edmund Wilson, Hotspur, Henry Miller, and some drunken Greek gods prowl the streets. There is a prophecy in the fog that oozes in from the sea. The prophecy, little ones, is for you.

Around And About

with Nagle

WITH summer so obviously in the foreground, and foggy weather taking a back seat, it seems advisable that the administration and faculty do something drastic to lessen class-cutting.

Truly no student wants to miss a fiery lecture, full of pertinent interesting material concerning the Economic Situation in Europe during the 13th Century. . . . Facts which will infinitely assist in earning one's daily bread when Uncle Sammy tires of check writing.

PLEASE, TEACHER

But with formal dances coming up, kindly, understanding instructors must realize that strapless formals are much mor becoming with darkly tanned, healthy looking shoulders, backs and arms.

This situation is not only true with the feminine class-attenders; the male population is equally as proud of their respective tanned appearance, and may be seen daily comparing arm shades.

HELP HAS ARRIVED

Solutions have been offered to assist the faculty in solving this pressing problem.

Solution No. 1: Install sun lamps in every class instead of the ordinary 120-watt globes which light up the class rooms. Lectures then would become a healthful joy.

Solution No. 2: Lock all class rooms throughout the college, block off the grassy portion of the campus into squares representing rooms, place a blackboard within each blocked off portion, and hold classes within these areas. Armed with sun-tan oil, and binders, students would gladly attend daily sessions.

QUICK, THE FOG

If the "wheels" of the college would act upon this matter immediately, sun-worshippers would acquire gloriously tanned flesh, and class attendance reports would be no problem for instructors come Friday afternoon.

Providing the weatherman has changed his tune by the time this appears in print, the faculty is advised to forget the above advice. Instead, turn on the heat, and prepare lectures which will be sufficiently interesting to keep students awake, and interested . . . so that the fact that their sun-tans are getting fainter and fainter by the hour will not faze them in the slightest.

STANDBY

By Bill Riley

FORMER president of the Newman Club and a pre-med major, JAMES DAWSON graduated from the college in '41, and is now serving an internship at Mount Zion Hospital. JANE LIPPERT, a pre-dental graduate from the college in '42, is now practicing dentistry in the city. In the course of events these two doctors met and were married. And now Jimmy and Jane are the proud possessors of a prospective M.D.

There is a rumor going around the campus which has found a number of firm believers. It seems that "revolutionaryitus," a familiar malady among our southern neighbors, has struck at a certain South American country. The scuttlebutt has it that the government of that country is offering $15,000 to any American flier who will offer his services to suppress the insurrection. The only difficulty is that any American who fights for a foreign country loses his citizenship.

I Can't Stand Jack Benny Because . . . A Late Entry

WHILE NBC's vice-presidents are still in a switch throwing mood after pulling the plug on Fred Allen and Red Skelton last week for ridiculing their exalted positions, they should concentrate on another of their allegedly "top" programs.

We're referring to the J . . . a . . . c . . . k Benny program which has been a model of repetitious monotony for the past twenty thousand Sundays in a row, at least.

It would be an extreme pleasure to sit down on Sunday afternoon and tune in the Zenith to KPO and hear nothing but a nice, pleasant low buzz in place of the bushels of corned air that pulsate through the house.

TWO OF A KIND

When Benny hooked up with Lucky Strike for a sponsor it was a wedding of two of the past masters of monotony in their respective fields.

As soon as Luckies dream up a catch-phrase to hang on their weed, they plaster it across the country for three generations running.

Holding ever to the traditions of their late president, George Washington Hill, to repeat, repeat, repeat, until the public is so damned sick of it they'll never forget.

"So round, so firm, so fully-packed . . . " lives on and on. "Speed" Riggs and F. E. Boone drone out the chant of the tobacco auctioneer and Basil Rysdale blats forth "L.S./M.F.T.!!" every second on the second.

"Yes . . . Lucky Strike Means Fine Tobacco!" "Yes!! . . . Lucky Strike Means Fine Tobacco!!!"

SPARKLING SUNDAY

If this isn't enough of a dreary rut to he in, Benny and his gang latch on to one gag and rip it to shreds, milking out every last chuckle it contains and many that were never there to begin with.

The entire world by now knows Mary Livingstone used to hustle behind the May Company's counters in Los Angeles.

There isn't a living soul with working knowledge of the English language that isn't aware of the fact that Benny lives next door to Ronald Colman and plugs his electric shaver into Colman's floor soekets and borrows his evening clothes . . . and . . . sells heer in his swimming pool every Sunday, and . . . keeps his money in a huge vault within the earth's vitals.

PUNCH LINES

Or that Don Wilson isn't a big, fat jerk who acts at times as stand-in for Boulder Dam.

Is there a man still alive who has yet to hear Phil Harris sing, "That's What I Like About the South"?

A nation winces while Mary laughs her inane littie giggle, awaiting either Benny or Wilson to ask, "What are you laughing at, Mary?"

Or . . . find us a hermit within these United States who hasn't rolled the floor of his cave as Benny screams at his audience, "Quiet!!! . . .

"Pickle in the . . . men who know tobacc . . . Answer the phone, Mary . . . the naturally milder . . . Howdy, Jackson! . . . 2 to 1 . . . Quiet, Polly." . . . Anyhuddy wanna buy a radio, cheap?

Hilltop Manner

THE normal day at the top and bottom of the hill could be almost amusing, if it weren't for some annoying people who expect students to attend classes, listen diligently, and get A's on every test. But let's ignore those minor idealists and look to the blissfully innocent side of college life. In fact, let's follow one of our happy, carefree lovers of the hedonistic way of life, and share some of his joy.

Let's suppose, for instance, our ideal Epicurean's name is Joe. Well, Joe just wallows in pleasure. He loves everyone, and blissfully believes the feeling is reciprocated.

Joe gets to his 8 o'clock class at 7:30 because he doesn't want to make his instructor unhappy by being late. Of course, he gets in an extra hour's sleep once there, and usually wakes happily in the middle of the lecture to find a sign pinned to his shirt which reads, "WAKE ME AFTER CLASS." His dear, sweet classmates. He thinks they're swell.

Sometimes, later in the day, when Joe is fully awake and is enjoying a lecture, a dear buddy of his opens the door a crack, and Joe, not wanting to be rude, or coarse, tramples a row of his benignly smiling classmates, and calmly walks out for a little chat. If he feels like it, he comes back in about 10 minutes. Sometimes the talk gets quite absorbing, though.

Then there's the job of crossing Phelan Avenue. Joe loves life, so naturally he'd like to preserve it. Therefore, when crossing this particular thoroughfare, he always waves aloft the yellow-and-black sign reading, "stop when pedestrians are in crosswalk." He leaves the sign on the other side for the next daredevil to use. Joe is a humanitarian; Joe is very happy!

Letters to the Editor

"Support Supporters" Say Supporters; Pichon Gains Another "Admirer"

● Hot Air Columnist

Editor, The Guardsman:

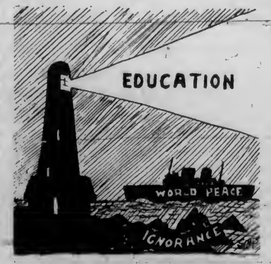
Del Pichon seems to he entirely lacking in the rare commodity known as school spirit. Although offering nothing himself, Pichon continuually attacks the groups that at least try to improve our college. Veterans, although they have their faults, and who doesn't, comprise the majority of top students on the campus. Greek letter organizations, although "cliquey," make the lion's share contribution to school spirit on the campus. Without them school spirit would he entirely dead.

The judiciary force has a hard enough joh to perform without the ridicule which Pichon finds so easy to throw but would probahly find very difficult to catch. I defy him to join the judiciary force. If Mr. Pichon can make fun of others, let's see if he can do a hetter joh himself.

I consider Del a big bag of hot air until he proves otherwise. Card 448

● Improvements

Editor, The Guardsman:



The issue of April 22 carried a letter which offered some suggestions to the sports editor. We would like to add a few more suggestions which would improve the sport page and promote student body interest towards the college's athletic events.

We recommend the following:

1. A box score of the baseball games.
2. A resume of the individual performances in the track meets.
3. The standings in the NCJCC for all sports.
4. More background concerning past performances of the Ram opponents.

In the end this would inject a great deal more spirit into the student acceptance of the college's sports. It would boost the sale of Student Cards for the next semester, and it would ensure greater crowds at all the games. We want to support the teams, but we are pleading with you to please support us!

Vol. XXIV, No. 15 TUESDAY, APRIL 29, 1947 Page 3

TIMBER TOPPERS, Serge Kordash, left, and Eddie Bryant, right, are shown here practicing their hurdling. Both men are figured to garner a few points for the coming track meet with Stockton Junior College, at Stockton, on Saturday, May 3. Kordash is a high hurdles man, while Bryant specializes in leaping the low hurdles. Both boys are expected to reach their top form for the coming meets. Coaches Jensen and Klemmer both have hopes that the two will be able to crack the Northern California Junior College Conference records for their respective events. They will make their bid during the coming all-conference meet to be held at Sacramento, Saturday, May 10.—Photo by Lum.

Butter Town Disaster

Modesto Spikemen Trample Ram 84-46 In Night Meet; Griffin, Caredio Win

The Modesto Pirates stood their ground on their home field last Tuesday night against the combined efforts of the Menlo and San Francisco track squads, and came up with the winning margin of 84½ points. The Rams garnered only 46½ digits.

Highly favored to sweep the conference meet next month, the men from the butter town completely dominated the evening and turned in some near-record performances.

Bob Caredio of the Rams grabbed his usual win in the quarter-mile, and anchored the relay team to another first. Julian Griffin turned in another twin-killing in the century and the furlong, and that about ended the big White, as they proceeded to glom their share of seconds and thirds.

Boh Brickell latched on to a third place in the javelin, Harry Tapoian another third in the pole vault, and Dodson still another third in the two-mile.

The fact that the Ram harriers performed under the lights on a fairly cold night had nothing to do with Modesto's brilliant showing. The Pirates are actually that good, and have proved themselves the team to beat in the final ciambake.

Netters Journey To Napa For Sat. Tilt

Saturday will find the Red and White racketmen matching strokes with the netters from Napa Junior College in the first Ram conference road trip of the season.

The locals have concluded their home conference schedule and now face the junior colleges of Sacramento, Menio, and Marin in that order.

On paper the hilltoppers seem to be the stronger of the two in the Napa match and net coach Tom Wilson looks hopefully for another victory to be hung up by his charges.

Here are the starting lineups as announced by both coaches:

Pat Heagerty	vs.	Jack Roper
Bud Langton	vs.	Bill Cole
Frank Reed	vs.	Joe Lehmen
Bill Covall	vs.	Ted Lazarus

College WAA Host To 6 Schools For Playday

The colleges which have accepted the invitation to the playday to be held here by the Women's Athletic Association Saturday, May 3, are Santa Rosa Junior College, San Francisco State College, San Mateo Junior College, San Jose State College, Sacramento Junior College and Modesto Junior College. Students from these colleges will participate in tournaments of softball, basketball, tennis, badminton and archery.

The purpose of the playdays is to foster friendship between WAA organizations in California, Frances Sciliporti, WAA president, said.

Baseball

Rams Plow Through State Nine, 15-3

With a gleam of satisfaction in his eyes, Bill Fischer watched his Phelan Avenue mittmen lash out with a furious 16 hit attack to defeat their cross-town rivals from San Francisco State 15 to 3, last Wednesday at Harrison Field.

Although the Gators pulled a triple play in the third inning, they were unable to keep the Rams from victory. Bill Broderson made a diving catch of a hard line drive to stop a State rally in the fifth frame.

The State nine took an early two-run lead in the first frame on Jim Keating's four-ply swat, but the Rams came back to score three runs in the second stanza and two more in the third.

A big ten-run fifth inning put the game on ice for the Fischermen. Fourteen men marched to the plate for the Rams, with ten of them continuing their jaunt around the basepaths.

The Gators scored their final marker in the ninth inning as they coupled a walk, stolen base and a single to close the scoring records.

Pitcher Jim Hughes and shortstop Bob Nard led the hitting attack with three hits apiece. Art Cirimele, Chet Anderson and Herb Markall collected two safeties, while Bill Kenna, Bill Maxcy, Zane Kaplan, and Broderson garnered a solo.

Basketball And Swimming

Intra Casaba Season Drawing To Close With National League In 3-Way Tie; Houghton Stars In Swimming Tourney

By Paul Cane

With an affinity that has proved itself unbreakable, three basketball teams in the National intramural league have ended their regular playing season tied closer than the strings on Jack Benny's purse.

The knotted trio, consisting of Fitz' Fighters, the Jeffersons, and De Maris Tigers, will undergo a special playoff series beginning today to determine just which clubs is the winner of their loop title.

The Bush league flag is still in the offing, as the schedule in this covenant has one game remaining to be played.

Of the ten American league contenders only one team, The Sugar Mountain Boys, gave voice to winning laurels. These Chinese boys, preseason favorites to emerge as final champions, are the only quintet in the entire tournament to preserve an unbeaten record. Whether or not Benny Wong & Co. are capable of continuing their court success throughout the final three-league-playoffs remains to be seen.

Results of last week's hi-annual swimming tournament were released by intramural director Tom Wilson as follows:

Fifty yard back stroke win in :39:5 by John Miller; 200 yard free relay won in 2:08 by team of Sherrill Houghton, Miller, Pickens, and Ed Cinquini; 200 yard free style won in 2:38 by Simpson;

One hundred and fifty yard medal relay won in 1:39 by team of Miller, Cinquini, and Simpson; 50 yard free style won in :28 by Houghton; 50 yard breast stroke won in :35 by Cinquini; 100 yard free style won in 1:01:5 by Simpson.

Vic Pagone's 54 points were enough to merit victory in the diving competition.

RAMblings . . .

By Arnold Wechter

WE don't make it a practice of advising our readers of worthy affairs which should be attended, but once in a while something unusual comes along, like the Block SF dance, which is going to be held on Saturday, May 3, in the student lounge.

The proceeds of this shindig will go to further interest in Ram sports, which anyone can see is badly needed around here. So put the pressure on your present flame and make a showing; you'll probably have lots of fun, besides doing a good deed.

* * *

As long as we are discussing the Block SF Society, we might give them the benefit of our brainy opinion. It has come to our attention that Stan Orgain, an end from last season's championship football team, has just returned home from the hospital, after undergoing a serious operation. It would be a nice gesture on the society's part, if they made sure that Orgain has plenty of books and other items to keep him busy during his convalescence. You take it from here, Mr. Ekdall.

* * *

Question of the week is: will the traditional football classic with San Francisco State College be revived? We play them in baseball and various minor sports. It was certainly missed last season, and it would definitely increase local interest in the Rams.

* * *

No matter where the Rams participate in sports, they are assured of at least two fans. Baseball, football, track, tennis and all other sports are followed by Roslyn Tuska and her sister Vale. Real sport lovers, these girls. They win our prize of the week.

E. H. Outerbridge organized the first American Tennis Association in the United States. He titled it the United States Law Tennis Association which consisted of 33 tennis clubs.

AWS

Women Instructed In Air Vocations

Now the air age beckons. Like ants at a picnic, only in this instance a little more welcome, women are crawling into, around and over the complex structure of occupational vocations that once lay prey to the wiles of only the agile males.

The old adage "Heaven will protect the working girl," has been tossed into reverse, and the astute working girl now has the chance to mount the clouds, via United Airlines, and make sure that everything's going okay in heaven.

Such was the picture painted by several guest speakers from the United Airlines before an assembled throng of Associated Women Students, gathered in the student's lounge last Friday.

Included on the roster of notable guests was Lucille Landresse, who was graduated from this college in 1943, and is a former Associated Student vice-president. The speakers described an almost limitless array of interesting occupations ranging from reservationists to stewardess that are being offered to women in the airlines.

The visiting contingent of speakers led by Harry Sullivan, United Airlines education director, stressed the factors of liberal pay, congenial working conditions, in a relatively youthful and expanding industry.

Dean of Women Margaret Dougherty, and officers of the AWS, thanked the airline visitors for their vocation hints with a luncheon in the college cafeteria shortly after the meeting.

Salty Vets Consort With Glamour Jobs

At least six unregistered veterans are now attending the college. Latest campus count includes three each of models Willys and Ford Jeeps.

One unidentified old salt, apparently fresh from overseas duty, is complete with floating rust in a battered water container. Rifle racks, entrenching tools and mud, are evidently standard equipment for these unrehabilitated warriors.

Two extremes were reached one day last week when a worn wartime vehicle was spotted standing next to a freshly painted civilian Jeep. This battered, proud vehicle, appropriately bears the name of Foxhole.

Stag Dance Slated For Saturday, May 3

Fortified with as fine a reputation for out-of-the-ordinary social events as for exploits in the field of muscle, the men of Athlete's Gulch stage the Block SF stag dance, Saturday, May 3, at the west campus auditorium, Art Ekdall, president of the Block Society, revealed today.

Entrance to the stage dance, which will feature informal clothing and dancing from 8 to midnight to the music of the society's extensive collection of records, can be gained by purchased of tickets at 50 cents for men, 25 cents for women. Tickets will be on sale by members at the silver pole and throughout the campus.

"No efforts are being spared by Coach Lee Elsan's men," Ekdall asserted, "to make this dance even finer than those given in the past. Refreshments and dancing to the largest collection of records in the Bay Area, added to the facilities offered by the auditorium, will make the success of these efforts a foregone conclusion."

Ekdall further stressed the need for the dance in a statement released yesterday.

"This dance is of the utmost importance to the athletes, because it is for their benefit, for all gold medal awards to members of championship teams come from the funds of the Block Society. All awards and every item necessary to the running of the society comes from these funds."

According to Ekdall, the dance will also serve to renew that high place in college affairs that the society lost through "non-cooperation of certain athletes."

Information was also released by Charles Biess, vice-president of the organization, to the effect that Arnold Wechter, chief staff photographer of The Guardsman, will take group pictures of the society members during today's college hour in Room 194.

Fall Semester Calendar Slates Start Sept. 17

Another revision of the calendar, changes the Christmas vacation dates from the usual vacation extending to the day following New Year's to December 29, with January 1 the college holiday.

Wagner Fans To Hear His Best Works Today

Wagnerian opera fans will hear record music based on the more familiar works of that great composer today in Room 200 when the Listening Hour turntable starts spinning at 12 noon.

Gertrude Norgard, class instructor, disclosed that the time will be devoted to German Opera and the "leit motive."

Selections from Richard Wagner's Lohengrin, Die Meistersingers, Tannhauser, and The Ring will all be included in the symphonic session.

More On Readmissions

(2) If while on probation his grade-point average for the work undertaken during any semester fails below .5 ("C" minus average); or

(3) If after two semesters of probationary status he has not obtained a grade-point average of .5 ("C" minus average), computed on the total of all courses undertaken in the college.

The requirements are being made of old students as an alternative to refusing admittance to new students enrolling next semester. The expected number of total enrollment will be too large for available facilities, Mohr said.

The Committee on Readmissions may suspend the provisions of this regulation and recommend the retention in the college of students subject to disqualifieation and the return to the college of students who have been disqualified under this regulation.

Blue Book Breeze Dance Offers Quick Relief From Mid-Terms' Torn Nerves

Offering relief to mid-term torn nerves, the Social Committee of the Associated Students presents this Friday, May 2, the appropriately themed dance, Blue Book Breeze, at which test-torn students of this college can dance their cares away to the music of Sal Vance's orchestra in the Ballroom of the Palace Hotel, Nancy Stookey, vice-president of the Associated Students, announced today.

Admission to the 8 to midnight dancing will be one Associated Student card per couple, Miss Stookey said. Informal attire and no corsages will be the rule. Tickets will be on sale at the silver pole.

Miss Stookey pointed up the promising nature of the dance by relating some of the plans going into the dance.

"Sal Vance's sweet and smooth music, which has been so well received by students in the past, is again available, and with the wonderful setting and co-operation that is synonymous with the Palace Hotel. In addition, refreshments will be offered at the adjoining coke bar of the hotel," she said.

That nothing was being overlooked to make the dance as highly praised as previous Associated Student dances was confirmed by Miss Stookey.

"Everything is being done to make this the most easily accessible dance in the history of this college," she explained. "Student cards will be on sale at the entrance for those who have not purchased them as yet."

While Thinking

Editor's Note: Leonerd Gross, editor of The Guardsman, Spring and Fall, '40, is Assistent Menegar, Publicity Department, San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

THE name of this column is a misnomer. It will stand as a permanent reminder to the writer that "thinking" and "college" are not synonymous!

There was a time when a guy named Gross wrote a very clever (he thought) column about what was happening in the world. The column dealt with world affairs, national affairs and college affairs . . . in fact, this guy Gross wrote about anything and everything . . . sort of a poor man's Royce Brier . . .

One fine day, collegian Gross wrote a piece about Europe and Hitler and war. It was a very fine piece of work (he thought). It clearly outlined the European situation, carefully weighed all the problems and tensions in the political mess of 1939, and then came up with the profound prediction that there would be no war in Europe!

So you see, "thinking" and "college" are not necessarily synonymous . . . the moral of the story being that anyone who believes what he reads is an idiot . . . and anyone who believes what he writes is a fit candidate for lower Slobbovia!

THE READING PUBLIC

While Thinking was a very widely read column . . . two tired professors and the author's mother! . . . and the mother liked the column . . . As a matter of actual record the author's girl friend never read the column . . . and maybe that's why she married him!

Probably the most stimulating experience Gross had while he authored the column was the battle with the football team . . . or . . . "How To Get Your Head Broken In One Easy Lesson!"

ONE EASY LESSON

It seems that the team had a favorite pastime of indulging in horseplay in the cafeteria. The horseplay included setting bonfires in the middle of the tables and various other not-so-amusing antics.

At this point in the game, the cafeteria management stepped in and threatened to close the cafeteria as a study hall unless the boys cut out the tomfoolery.

With that call to arms, Gross wrote a front page editorial which concluded with the words: "It is our suggestion that the members of college teams confine their grandstanding to the gridiron" . . .

The morning the paper came out, the door of The Guardsman office was flung open and in marched most of the football team, weighing what looked like an aggregate total of ten tons compared with the author's weight of 130 pounds, including his typewriter . . .

The ensuing argument lasted for about an hour, at the end of which time the team assured Gross that if he would get up out of his chair they would paste him in the snoot . . . and Gross, not being a complete fool, assured the football team that he was very comfortable sitting down and intended to stay that way!

It was a lovely crusade, and surprisingly enough Gross escaped all in one piece, and the team quit the horseplay in the cafeteria.

ALL THE WORLD . . .

Then of course there was always the battle between the staff of the paper and the other students of the college. It seems that everyone in the world is an authority on how to run a newspaper, what to print and what not to print.

This seems as good a time as any to let the secret out . . . really, fellows, The Guardsman staff of those days read the paper word for word . . . but we never had any proof any other students did . . . we did know that the faculty read the paper . . .

IT WAS FUN . . .

This column could go on and on . . . writers are like that . . . but if you have read this far, you're undoubtedly getting sleepy and possibly bored . . . so let's put a period right here . . . It was fun while it lasted.

Volume XXIV SAN FRANCISCO, THURSDAY, MAY 1, 1947 Homecoming Edition

Festival

Talent Packed Show Opens 2:30 Today

It's curtain time today at 2:30 and 8 p.m. in the college auditorium for the music and dramatic departments' co-sponsored, talent-jammed gala Spring Varieties.

Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to President A. J. Cloud and chairman of the Homecoming Committee, announced that all classes will be dismissed at 2 p.m.

The stage will reek from wing to wing with talent, a big cast headlining the A Cappella Choir, Men's Chorus, the college band and orchestra, and several outstanding soloists.

Dance specialists Gloria Orzanco and Leo A Luis Martinez; pianist Grace Mayfield; ballerina Marjory Manderville; tenors Emery Mellon and Elmer Dickey; and baritone Bob Sherratt will take over as the house lights dim.

Several of the acts billed are rising personalities in the bay area entertainment world. One of the prominent theatrles is Pat McVey, who, besides attending the college, holds down a popular following in local entertainment circles.

McVey will vie for the spotlight with a bevy of lovely campus chorines. Martha Lee, representing the best from Lambda Alpha; Mille Laube, from Theta Tau; Marilyn Doll, of Retail Merchandising; Barbara Christensen of Kappa Phi; Betty Jones, for the Home Econs; Irene Bresiauer, of Delta Psi; Bette Davis, of Lambda Chi; Claire Levesque, for the Associated Women Students; Nancy Stookey, Associated Student vice-president; Dee Roberts, from the Latin American Club; Mary Jane Wong, for the Chinese Club; and Gloria Orzanco, from Mu Iota Psi; and Goldie Byrd, from the Cosmopolitan Club.

Four In Line For Song Contest Prizes

By Paul Lindstrom

That Dayton Lawson and Richard Torre, Dorothy Spealman, and Geraldine Akey are the winners of the song contest was disclosed today by Flossita Badger, choral director and member of the judging committee.

During the 2 o'clock performance of the Varieties today in the west campus auditorium these successful contestants will receive public notification of their placing in the contest.

Trev Burrow, president of the Associated Students, will present the $25, $15 and $5 prizes to the first, second and third respective winners.

The three winning songs fall under two headings—serious and spirited. These songs bring to mind past winning songs.

In the 1940 song contest, Al Rubke won top honors for his composition, Rams Cheer. Earlier, in 1935, Sherman Grant, Chason Tucker and Tak Ijima collaborated on the college Alma Mater. The composer of the Fight On song remains anonymous.

Hotel, Ceramics, Floriculture Depts. Offer Displays At Open House Today

By Hank Weiss

Public Schools Week will come to a sterling climax on the campus with today's special Open House program featuring exhibits by several college departments.

In keeping with the general theme set by Mayor Roger Lapham and the Board of Education, interesting displays of several important campus departments will be open for inspection by general public throughout the day.

Three of the exhibits, the hotel and restaurant division, floriculture and ceramics displays, mark the progress of the Junior College in pioneering the study of these fields on the college level.

Students of the hotel and restaurant division have prepared an extensive tour for visitors through the inner maze of equipment and techniques that characterize their department.

A vivid portrayal of "Art In Action," depicting the students hard at their daily chores, "throwing the wheel," casting, glazing and decorating, will head the ceramics exhibition under Instructor Roy J. Walker.

The flower shop and an interesting tour of doings in the floriculture department will be led by the department head, John Lawrence.

Judge Bradford Bosley, a prominent legal figure in the community, will speak on the general city-wide theme of Public Schools Week at 7:45 p.m. in the auditorium.

GUARDSMAN WELCOMES ALUMNI

This special edition of The Guardsman, written and edited by graduate and present members of The Guardsman staff, welcomes all homecoming alumni and the general public to the college's simultaneous observance of Public Schools Week, Homecoming, and May Day.

Pres. Cloud Reminisces, Praises Students, Faculty

By Carmel Gannon, Editor

DR. ARCHIBALD J. CLOUD, president of the college, has guided it through a dozen years of existence. "I have had the time of my life," he said for The Guardsman Alumni-Homecoming Edition.—Photo by Devlin.

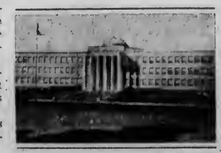
Forty-one years ago last month the city of San Francisco was devastated by fire and earthquake. It took a long time for the city to emerge from the wreckage, to be rebuilt as it is today.

In reminiscing about the beginning of the Junior College, President A. J. Cloud likened the situation here to that of the early fire by pointing out, "Just as the city can't be built in a day, neither can the college be built in a day."

The college was first established in February, 1935, by the Board of Education, and though it wasn't built from wreckage, it grew from meager beginnings.

President Cloud, at the time chief deputy superintendent of schools, was invited by Dr. Edwin A. Lee, then superintendent, to be president of the college.

In recalling the earliest days of the institution, President Cloud related that until about three weeks before classes were to start, the infant college, like many present day San Franciscans, had no home. By opening day, however, it had been determined that temporary headquarters would be U. C. Extension for morning classes and Galileo High School for afternoons.



The first semester brought about 1,450 students and 70 instructors together. These figures have fluctuated since then, hitting the lowest ebb of 900 students during the war, and soaring to the all-time present peak with about 5,000 students and 220 instructors.

In discussing the college curriculum, President Cloud said that it was based on the theory that this was a college for the community.

Student government has always been fostered by the college's administration.

"In fact," President Cloud pointed out, "this college went to greater lengths in allowing freedom in student activities than any other college."

President Cloud gave a word of praise to his staff and faculty, and in summing up his experiences and recollections, he commented, "I have had the time of my life and enjoyed it from beginning to end. The students have been utterly fine since the beginning."

Guardsman History

The Editors In Review

FOR the first time in Guardsman history, the faculty adviser claims the editorial column in this, the first homecoming-alumni edition of The Guardsman.

Although mindful of the similarity to a bit of Mr. Chips continuity, the faculty adviser to The Guardsman believes the combination of time that rounds out the first dozen years in college and Guardsman existence, time that calls for the first college homecoming since dedication ceremonies, and particularly time that sees Guardsman graduates returning for a day in the columns of their own newspaper, warrants recollection of editorial history.

The first Guardsman, not then so-named, was published by faculty members Lloyd Luckmann and Francis Colligan for distribution at the first gathering of students of this college. With a staff organized under the guidance of the same faculty members, The Guardsman swung into publication in Fall, '35, with JULIAN O. GOODELL wielding with gentle firmness the editorial reins.

With the present faculty adviser so appointed the second semester, WILLIAM H. RAWSON, the best working newspaper man of them all, began an editorship that lasted a year and saw modern type used throughout The Guardsman.

Then the first woman editor, FLORENCE MURPHY, as clever a writer as they come, whose editorials hit where editorials should.

And gentlemanly, capable DON MIX, who progressed from Sports Editor to Editor, and then was Associated Student President.

Whimsical ROBERT MacARTHUR reluctantly gave up his column, Out Of The Fog, which heralded present references to Baghdad-By-The-Bay, to become editor in Spring, '38.

He was followed by FRED VAST and the first streamlined Guardsman; Fred Vast met with courage two of the most vital problems ever to confront The Guardsman, and he developed from a freshman who could hardly write a lead paragraph to one of the most prolific writers of the combined staffs.

JOHN JULIUS next took the editorship of a volume that boasted in its feature columns outstanding, and well-rounded writing talent.

Again a columnist turned editor, when WILLIAM FRANTZ not only led the staff in Fall, '39, but saw to it that The Guardsman became a member paper in the Associated Collegiate Press. That semester The Guardsman was awarded its first All-American rating among junior college papers throughout the nation by the Associated Collegiate Press—a pleasant welcome indeed.

With LEONARD B. GROSS as editor in Spring, '40, and the college nearing the end of its around-San-Francisco-campus days to move to its permanent Balboa Park location, The Guardsman saw the necessity for more than one issue a week, even though it was a seven column paper. Len Gross, with his Associate Editors Lou Goldstone and Dan Rosenblat, published one four-page newspaper a week and one two-page paper a week on the Tuesday-Friday schedule. The two-pager alienated the affections of the Associated Collegiate Press, and the rating that semester was First Class.

Len Gross carried through the following semester as editor, the first at the Balboa Park campus, the first with two four-page papers a week, the first with an office that possessed a telephone, and his papers of that volume were rated All-American.

Spring, '41, with 3,000 students very much at home in their new building, saw the third All-American rating, with drama critic GEORGE R. COWIE as editor. Mr. C. is famous for his satirical editorial that warned students of The Unholy Three who menaced their freedom—an editorial that more than one trio took to be the shoe that fit, until the date of the paper, April 1, was pointed out to them.

Cowie

After Dark

Editor's Note: George Cowie, editor of The Guardsman, rated All-American in Spring, '41, is now completing a course in advertising at Armstrong College, Berkeley.

SO YOU'RE dusting off the old typewriter and writing a column again, eh, Mr. C.? You are back in The Guardsman where once you burned the midnight oil writing movie reviews. The piled up residuals of six years' absence hover ominously in the background. It should be easy, however, to push them out of the way, leer them into temporary oblivion.

It was so nice, sliding into the neatly defined arms of a movie critique, like slipping between comfortable, clean, freshly-laundered bed-sheets back in those good old days of '40 and '41. So very nice to let a critique's analytical caress cut off the harsh, cold menace of an outer world, a world boiling and fuming with threats of war, hatred, prejudices, and strife.

STARDUST AND SPANGLES . . .

These factors didn't bother you, Mr. C., twice a week, rain or shine, up soared the shielding curtain, out flowed the rhetoric. A pleasant curtain it was, too, trimmed in stardust and spangles . . . "Betty Grable, though weak in dramatic highlights, was a sight for sore eyes" . . . "Rita Hayworth stood out, though the picture sagged in the middle" . . . Oh, yes, a delightful retreat from reality was our little corner on page two.

Yet you so wanted to cut a swaggering path through the hovering clouds with your words a shining sword. The embryonic throne of an Ernie Pyle, a fuzzy-cheeked Royce Brier, a juvenile Stoakes—Cowie stood poised in the offing.

DARTS IN PLACE OF SWORDS . . .

Did you latch on to that golden chair? Heck no. All the fury and vitriolic spume came roaring forth, but found itself attenuated into feeble winds, blowing down only the papier-mache fabrics of a gossamer cinema world, when it might have cleansed and burned and seared the rotting tenets of that pre-atomic world.

Oh, yes, we had all the conceit of youth. Still, it was much easier just sitting in comfortable theater seats, casting little darts instead of launching the sword.

That world is gone now; only the framework remains. Yet, that framework finds tangled weeds of corruption, rumors of war, prejudice clinging tight. It's 1947, but you'd never know it. You have another chance, another challenge, one last column to fill.

A column. Your last opportunity to face your conscience, man to man, and make amends. Now let forth those burning words of indignation against injustice, pent up so long, or . . . slice some more in tinkling inconsequence, the innards of Hollywood.

THE SHADOWS PRESSING TIGHT . . .

The time is now; the decision immediate. Your fingers poise above the typewriter keys. The years press close; you see once more the figures of marching men, their shadows pressing tight around your desk.

You write: "Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has buried beneath its financial mountains the seed that motivated a brilliant novel, Sea Of Grass. Ponderous, groping for expression . . ."

Yes, it is so easy to sit in darkened theater seats. There, you cannot see the shadows.

Awareness More Than Thought In Terms Of Black And White

Editor's Note: Borrie Hyman, editor of The Guardsman, rated All-American in Fall, '41, is now completing his senior year at the University of California.

REMINISCENCE is the inevitable phase of a Homecoming. For an erstwhile editor the targets of thought are the old files of his heyday. Ours covered the autumn of '41 and ran a ways into January.

That semester the Soph Sweetheart race got a lot of publicity because of a friendly tiff between Soph President George Coart and The Guardsman over the manner of selection. Matilda Mortigia gained the final honors, by the way.

When Union Square was about to be excavated, we ran a feature on the days when it was an important though unofficial part of the city-wide campus.

THE PARKING PROBLEM

The parking problem was early a burning issue. There were picture spreads and "indignant" articles comparing the rain-soaked parking lots with the La Brea pits.

Then we began to get publicity shots from the Army and Navy Air Forces: Neat looking fellows who were earning their wings. Impressive formations of silver planes over Randolph Field. The Associated Students' president, Gene Powell, resigned to begin training at Pensacola Air Station.

On the front page, under the head, Slants On The Headlines, Francis Chrisman searched for intellectual order in the world confusion. That column was about the only place The Guardsman discussed the war. We liked the column and didn't care if it was too long and had to be jumped to page four. Francis tried to achieve the broad views of events, and he turned down dogma for quiet appraisal. We smugly compared him to the Chronicle's Royce Brier.

HIS NOT THE RESPONSIBILITY

Francis was lost in the air war over Germany. Neither he nor any of us had responsibility for the conflict. Few of us could vote. At best we were cogs in a fighting machine—the visible admission that world intelligence had failed again.

During the war, issues had to be clear cut, even at the expense of truth. If you weren't for us, you were against us. We can't afford that extravagance now. America has never before been so aware of its foreign policy, but awareness must be more than thought of in terms of black or white. That's dogma.

WALLACE—AND APPRAISAL

Do we call Henry Wallace names and thereby ascribe wrong to all of his words? Or do we submit his words to appraisal, gaining perhaps some essential wisdom that the one-way thinkers overlook?

The world has need of fair evaluation and calm decision. We weren't responsible the last time, but we're in the thick of it now. Reliance on dogma and thought-smothering catch phrases could create another debacle with no time for reminiscence.

Leeds

Hilltop Manner

Editor's Note: Claire Leeds, reporter and feature writer for The Guardsman staff in '42, is a staff reporter, The San Francisco Examiner.

THE editors of this Homecoming Edition said, "You may write about anything," when they confronted me with a request for copy.

Anything. I struggled to conceal an almost fiendish eagerness. It was a moment for which I have longed for six interminable years. At last I was free to unburden my soul. At last I was free to write what I really think about radishes.

My antipathy toward radishes goes back to the very early days of the war when, as a reporter for The Guardsman, I was permitted my first crack at feature writing as official Radish Reporter.

The idea of this weekly piece of corn entitled the Radish Report was to promote the floriculture department's Defense Garden which was planted on the site of a small truck garden which had at one time been cultivated by prisoners of the old City and County Jail.

My job, which I shouldered for an entire semester, was to follow the progress of the radish crop from the time of planting till final harvesting. I chose the radish with the notion that it was one of the most rapid growing vegetables.

The first crisis was brought about by an acute shortage of fertilizer, which for a time threatened not only the radishes, but the entire project. Next, an insidious army of Japanese beetles established a beachhead in the radish area, and the crop seemed certainly doomed to extinction.

But for the unfailing support of Floriculture Instructor Harry Nelson, I would never have survived those grim weeks. He furnished seed catalogues containing pictures of dozens of varieties of radishes, including the

Cuthbertson

Shots At RAMdom

Editor's Note: Robert Cuthbertson, editor of The Guardsman in Fall, '42, is a reporter with The Oakland Tribune, Richmond Bureau.

I DON'T think I ever imagined that I would have the task of writing Shots At Ramdom, especially after having left the college.

Neither did I expect to have to write it, simply because there once was a fellow who did the job so superbly. That fellow was Doug Johnson. And apparently because Doug, who had that rare quality of being able to spin a good yarn, has drifted to parts unknown, I've been asked to take over his old chair for one issue of The Guardsman.

Well, I don't choose to tell a story. I'm too used to pounding out the straight dope—no frills, just plain fact—to hope to tell a story well in a single column. Anyway, I'm no columnist.

But the news of a Homecoming Day at the college does bring back fond memories of a short but happy sojourn at that institution of learning at Ocean and Phelan.

While others would remember the course they followed, the good grades and the bad, the cinch notices, the instructors, the dances and football games, I would rather think of the ups and downs a gang of us had in publishing a news sheet.

I'd remember the all-out effort of people like Borrie Hyman and George Cowie, who thought more of a good national rating for the paper than a good night's sleep; of Nick Barbaratto and Bob Marcus, who fought like a couple of friendly dogs over who would do the sports column this week; of Bob Catudio, who could turn out a sparkling feature or a pleasurable column. All these and many more, I'll never forget.

And last of all, I'll never forget Joan Nourse, who acted as instructor, adviser, mother-confessor and a million other things all rolled into one.

When she was ill for a time, we'd manage somehow to get the paper together and off to the printers, but always with the thought in mind of "how would Joanie (with apologies, now) like it."

And since today is Homecoming Day, it's a nice feeling to know that the college has changed very little, that the men and women attending do and act the same as did we before, and that each year that big building on the hill attracts more and more to her ever-increasing roster.

Homecoming

Campus Reunion For Former Bear

By Robert A. Catudio

Homecoming Day for Ralph Hillsman, who trudged the paths of learning from Powell Street to U. C., was an uneventful occasion.

Current head basketball coach here at the college, the ex-U. C. performer holds the enviable distinction of his team winning a state invitational cage tourney—the distinction lying in the fact that it was his first effort as head man.

"I've had a lot of fun playing and watching basketball, but winning the Modesto Tourney last season—as a coach—was one of the biggest thrills yet."

Upon his graduation here, Hillsman transferred to California, where he performed with the Herwigs, Carlisles, and Jensens. He taught in Susanville prior to the outbreak of war.

"I was in the Navy. Period."

After being released from active duty in 1945, the "break of breaks" fell his way, namely, San Francisco Junior College, where he is acquiring a host of friends.

Plans, if any?

"I might go down to Stanford this Summer, but I guess I'll wait and see how the situation is at that time."

An uneventful occasion—but it's Homecoming Day in 1947.

Of Riddles And Titles

They Wonder What's Become Of The World's Greatest Diver

"Listen, you big lug, don't tell us you don't know what to write about. This is Homecoming Day."

Minus the blast of trumpets that come with every slap on the back, we were tasting the English language at its out-and-out bitterest until some gentle soul pulled in his gars and tossed in two cents about a swimmer who became a springboard diving champ.

"I wonder what's become of Helen?" he sighed.

"Of course, you mean Sally," we countered. "That's a song, you know."

"Okay, wise guy, have your fun," the soulful one said. "This was Helen. Helen Crienkovich. Went to Mission High, came out here for a while."

We said we remembered the young lady as if it were only yesterday, and yesterday goes back beyond the Pearl Harbor setto, when the west campus was dressed in swaddling clothes of barrenness.

At first, we thought she might have been any other girl with chestnut-brown hair and dark brown eyes. She was lugging a huge biology textbook and was headed for the lecture room at the end of the first floor corridor.

"Studying is like diving practice," she had told us. "If you miss practice it shows in a final."

One day she showed up in class grinning from earring to earring.

"I'm learning to play tennis and I suppose I'll learn to fly some day."

She learned springboard diving the hard way at the Fairmont's Crystal Plunge pool, and, under the tutelage of wily Phil Patterson, gained enough poise to warrant the scrutiny of professional aqua-scouts.

The affable character with the gentle soul added a bit of reminiscent wisdom.

"She was a swell champ. Later went to Cal, I hear."

We nodded our head and remembered the start of the war that wrecked plans of a proposed tour of the Hawaiian Islands, where she was to exhibit the springboard savvy that enabled her to succeed Marjorie Gestring as the nation's top diver.

"Look," we said, "you're supposed to be happy today. C'mon, pal, let's go see the deans' secretary."

"Okay, but my heart won't be in it."

We walked toward the ad building.

"Yeah," he mused, "I wonder what's become of Helen?"

FULL REGALIA OF A CHAMP can aptly be said of Helen Crienkovich, once called the world's greatest diving champion. Miss Crienkovich, who was graduated from the college in 1942, is now married to ex-Navy man Bob Morgan.—Photo courtesy of San Francisco Call-Bulletin.

RAMblings . .

By Bob Marcus

Editor's Note: Bob Marcus was Sports Editor of The Guardsman, Spring, '42, and is now sports reporter, The San Francisco Chronicle.

WHEN you speak of an era in sports, keep in mind the years before the war when an enigma known as San Francisco Junior College fell into "the greatest athletic slump in Westwood Village history."

The college, everyone agreed, was loaded with potential world-beaters so talented that Lee Eisan, the prodigal pigskin papa, was once heard to moan:

"This is the worst football team I have ever coached. But don't worry. We'll improve because we can't get any worse."

World War Begins

Then came an era of traveling in buses and broken-down jalopies, of tattered uniforms and shoddy equipment, and things were getting rough when the war started.

"We have a chance to win a baseball championship, and what happens. The kid has to get himself drafted into the Navy."

"You should squawk. As of next week I'm leaving PE for TI."

When demobilization took place the rank and file returned to the classrooms. No one expected miracles, but miracles did happen.

Fischer Snares Pennant

Ponderous Bill Fischer, the ex-Commerce High tutor, capped a successful debut as head man of the baseball corps by snaring the college's first baseball title in history.

"It was a tough row all the way," Fischer exclaimed, "but I guess the best team won, eh!"

That was in 1946, and when crafty Jim Jensen brought back a gold cup emblematic of the NCJCC track and field championship, the wise men of Westwood Village began to sit up and take notice.

Titles Roll In

Two major championships in one year was too much for anyone to believe.

A football squad, last year's, in fact, was bopped soundly by Long Beach City College, but somehow managed to annex eight straight wins after that opening game defeat to win a conference pennant.

From Slumps To Riches

The Rams, papers were now blaring, had captured the ninth annual state invitational junior college cage title.

Those were the days following the war's end. Those were the days which saw a new era suddenly spring into being. The world-beaters had arrived. But despite the four major titles in one season, a lot of people will always remember—

"An era of what was once the greatest athletic slump in Westwood Village history."

Japanese Sakurajima, a radish as big as a watermelon and weighing fifteen pounds. The enemy radish was only one subject discussed in my column, with the assistance of Mr. Nelson.

So strenuous were the mental calisthenics I underwent during my term as Radish Reporter I often wonder that I was not permanently demented as a result. And yet, though I shudder to admit the fact, Radish Report was really my only notable journalistic effort during my entire college years, and my only attempt at feature writing until I was given the job of writing women's features and club news at The Examiner.

This, it would seem, adds up to the ridiculous but logical conclusion that I owe everything to the Radish. But I simply cannot face it. And to this day I cannot look a radish in the face.

From New York To Korea, Former Students Of The College Carve Their Careers

By Doris Hall, Paul Linstrom and Bob Tatum

Alumni—men graduates; alumnae—women graduates. Put them together and many varied careers are represented.

Melva Niles, music major class of '45, left college to join the cast of The Red Mill. She has been singing ever since with the same company in the Song of Norway in New York, and returns to San Francisco May 19 to sing the lead in the same opera.

A former student in the fashion design classes, Erma Shenson is now designing hats at Fox Studios in Hollywood. Also a former student in the same department, Josephine Jordan is a buyer in boys' wear for Macy's in New York.

Raymond Keast, another music major, sang with the Fred Waring Glee Club and has since appeared in the Song of Norway. Keast won a Juillard Scholarship in voice. A distinguished concert and radio star, Peggy Turnley, music major, is now appearing in Street Scene in New York.

Owner and manager of the Palace Hotel in Ukiah is Terry Sandelin, class of 1940, hotel and restaurant division.

President of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, and active in nurserymen's association, Bert Bertoleno, one of the horticulture department's first students, is at the McDonnel Florists in Oakland.

Dave Massingham, '41, was graduated from the hotel and restaurant division and assists Carl Rutledge, '40, in Stanford Village.

Natan Kobliek, violinist, has played for a number of years with the San Francisco Symphony.

Dorothy Trood, '40, vice-president of the Associated Students, Associated Women Student president, woman's editor, The Guardsman, and winner of the President's Award Plaque, is a Red Cross worker in South Korea.

Sports Department Buyer of The White House, Edna Ravazzano, stepped right into her job from college merchandising classes.

Fred Maggi, among the first students of the horticulture classes, is now superintendent of playgrounds in an Oregon city.

Dorothy Roberts, music major, sang for a number of seasons with the San Francisco Opera Company, and is now in Hollywood in radio.

John Ward, also a music major and Guardsman critic-columnist, was granted a scholarship in music at Columbia University and is now completing his doctorate at New York University.

Barbara Stephen, '45, is bridal counsellor, Livingston Bros., while Enzo Beill (both are former merchandising students) is an expediter in the New York office of Roos Bros.

Again from the merchandising department, Nancy Pilgrim is manager of Robert Kirk Co. of Oakland, a new shop in which she helped plan the lay-out and decoration, while Barbara De Matel travels up and down the coast as a representative for Charles Landsburg Company.

Operating an air freight lines out of Manila is Tom Caswell, '40, hotel division, while Ernest Box, also '40, is a Pan American pilot.

Fran Goetz, business administration major, Beta Tau president in 1940 and '41, is now personnel manager for the Craig Oil Company in Oakland.

More About Guardsman History

Brilliant BORRIE HYMAN steadied The Guardsman with his intelligence and recognition of a college's relationship to the world through that tense fall of 1941 to the fourth All-American rating.

1942—no longer 3,000 students on the campus, The Guardsman went back to a once-a-week newspaper, with keen, taut-nerved FRANCIS CHRISMAN the editor. The newspaper profession lost one of its finest prospects in the late Flight Officer Francis Chrisman.

ROBERT CUTHBERTSON, who as a freshman quietly impressed the staff with his very real ability, carried The Guardsman through Fall, '42, with Lloyd Luckmann as his adviser, and the next semester a rotating editorship was effected, a sort of editor-for-a-day before that greeting came.

In the Fall of 1943 the present faculty adviser returned to the college, snagged a Luckmann-trained reporter and seven tyros, and published a miniature volume, a four-column Guardsman. The Luckmann-trained reporter, BURT EDELSTEIN, grasped the editorship like a veteran and joined the Associated Collegiate Press again to win a first class rating.

Dependable, serious-minded DON B. CONSTINE assumed the editorship in Spring, '44, and although he had practically a new staff each semester, came through with three successive All-American ratings.

For the second time The Guardsman had a woman editor in Fall, '45, and Spring, '46, when PAMELA SAMPSON held an again growing Guardsman staff through a period of progress to the present five-column size paper, and an All-American rating for both volumes.

ROBERT A. CATUDIO returned to the college from the Army to become the first editor in The Guardsman's new office on the west campus and put the paper back on its two-a-week publication schedule. As reporter, columnist, feature writer, sports writer, editor—they seldom come better than Bob Catudio.

A numerologist might have predicted the success of The Guardsman's present editor, CARMEL GANNON. The third woman editor, the eighteenth editor, the twenty-fourth volume . . . they all add to leadership of the most efficient publication in Guardsman history. A faculty adviser knows.

Life Magazine Selects Julian Goodell Zone Manager In Advertising Program

By Bill Keast

A typical example of a San Francisco Junior College alumnus success story is that of Julian O. Goodell, '36 former Guardsman editor. Goodell, who majored in advertising and journalism at the college, is now a Zone Manager in Life Magazine's Retail Representatives Program in the San Francisco area.

During Goodell's stay at the college, he distinguished himself by being the first editor the The Guardsman, which was originated in the Fall of 1935. Besides steering the newspaper through its early trials and crises, Goodell wrote a column enfitled Loudspeaker Lowdown, which was a review of the then latest records, music, and radio programs.

Upon reading these musty columns in The Guardsman files one will find such nostalgic names as Paul Pendarvis, Jan Garber, Richard Himber, and Tom Coakley, all bay area orchestra favorites of a decade ago.

During the war Goodell, who is married and lives in San Francisco, was an expediter for the Bethlehem Steel Company, and later he joined the circulation department at Time, Inc. from which he transferred to the Life program.

According to a release from Life, the principal objectives of the Retail Representatives Program are to give a large number of advertising-minded young men essential experience, and to help national advertisers increase still further the efficiency of their advertising.

SUCCESS STORY is personified by Julian O. Goodell, first editor of The Guardsman, now Zone Manager in Life Magazine's Retail Representatives Program.

Life is meeting these objectives through a series of personal calls by it representatives of 15,000 leading dealers in the drug, food, department store, appliance and automotive field.

Student Council

Committee To Investigate Possibility Of Raising Special Assistance Fund To Aid Destitute European Students

Setting up a committee, under the chairmanship of Lou Neilsen, to probe into fund raising possibilities for destitute European students was effected by the Student Council in last Thursday's meeting.

Associated Student President Trev Burrow announced that Balboa High School had contributed more than $11,000 to the Save the Children Federation, and in connection with this Burrow read to the council pamphlets from various organizations dedicated to the welfare of suffering students in foreign countries.

Stating that $150 will keep a school of 30 students going for a year, Burrow urged the council to take action of some sort. After discussion, the motion to establish the committee was unanimously passed.

Others on the committee include Frank Nelson, Jim Edwards, and Bob Reilley.

Hoping to far surpass the precedent set by Balboa, the committee will mull over all possible money raising ventures. Among the activities under consideration is the possibility of a block party.

A proposed pamphlet on tolerance was referred to the Publications Board for consideration and recommendation.

Theta Epsilon Will Sponsor "Pic Parlor"

By Mel Hansen

Students attending the Mardi Gras will be able to record their likenesses for now and forever and for all posterity at the Alpha Theta Epsilon Pic Parlor, according to Murney Cunningham, booth chairman.

Two photographers have been engaged to do the work, and they are reputed to be particularly adept at this sort of thing.

There will be a nominal charge of 75 cents for this novel service and the finished product, a handsome 5 by 10 photo, will be returned to the buyers in from 30 to 45 minutes.

Math Department To Renew Parallel Course

Thomas Bass, head of the mathematics department, announced the renewal of an advanced math course for the Fall, 1947, semester.

The course is differential equations 34ab, a continuation of 24ab, and the renewed course is a lower division requirement at the University of California comparable to mathematics 110 there.

J. Paul Mohr gave his approval to the renewal of this course, Bass said.

Mardi Gras Spirit Hits Campus Today

That the traditional Mardi Gras this Friday, May 9, sponsored by the Associated Men Students will climax Gung Ho week, today through Friday, was disclosed yesterday by Frank Nelson, AMS president.

The Mardi Gras, traditionally a gala carnival affair, is slated for the west campus auditorium and starts at 7 p.m. Friday. Dancing starts at 9 and lasts until 12 p.m. to the music of Howard Simon and his band.

This will be the first appearance for Simon and company on the campus; they are newcomers from Alameda.

Everyone is expected to come in costume to the Mardi Gras, Nelson said, and prizes are awarded to best costumes and the most successful booth.

Prize Cup Donated

Last semester the best costumed couple won a dinner dance at the St. Francis Hotel sponsored by a local merchant. The booth that was called the best took as a prize a cup donated by Van Wormer and Rodrigues, Inc. Incidentally, that cup may be found among the trophies of the hotel and restaurant committee.

Second and third prizes are awarded also, with merchants putting some interesting prizes into the ring for second and third place awards.

Theme Is Gung Ho

The west campus auditorium will be open for booth decoration to club committees tomorrow, Thursday, and Friday, May 7, 8, and 9, according to Nelson.

"The auditorium will be open during the day when there are no classes in session and at night on those days so the clubs may put their booths in shape," he said.

The theme of the Mardi Gras, Gung Ho, is from the Chinese and means, "to work in harmony." Typifying Gung Ho week is the co-operation being given the AMS committee by the Chinese Club and the Cosmopolitan Society by preparing signs to be placed on the campus.

All of the campus clubs have been asked by the Student Council to participate.

AGS Reception For High School Grads

The annual reception by Alpha Gamma Sigma for high school graduates will be held Thursday and Friday, May 22 and 23, Ray Tiffany, AGS president, said yesterday.

Purpose of the affair is to acquaint high school graduates with the advantages offered here.

Midterm Grades Out Next Friday, Monday

Contrary to a previous announcement, the distribution of second mid-term grades will not take place until Friday, May 9, and Monday, May 12, on which days the college hour schedule will be followed, Registrar Mary Jane Learnard said last week.

Advisers' room numbers where the grades will be given out will be listed in the Friday issue of The Guardsman.

Photographer Invokes Draft To Get Photos

By Doris Hall

Two costumes lay unused. The Guardsman photographer was ready to shoot; the costumes had to be filled.

According to Ruth Somers, considerable part of the cast of Admirable Chrichton were studying feverishly for mid-terms. The costumes needed some stuffing.

Two heads peeked through the door at the assembled posing cast. The peekers were drafted to fill the empty costumes, and there stood William McCarty, custodian, as straight and as tall as the footman he portrayed, while Margaret Ensign, janitress, stood looking adoringly up in the face of the butler.

She was the housekeeper. The photographer got his picture and went away happy.

Drama

Four Act Comedy, Admirable Crichton, Starts Run Today

First presentations of The Admirable Crichton, a four-act comedy by James M. Barrie, are being given today in the little theatre, Room 209, by the class in speech 42a, under the direction of Ruth Somers, drama instructor.

Admission free, the performances run from 10 a.m. to 12 o'clock, and 12 noon to 2 p.m. today, tomorrow, and Thursday. Ten-minute intermissions occur at 11 a.m., 12 o'clock, and 1 p.m., at which time one may enter.

Equality Forced On Servants

The settings of the play are two islands, England and a tropical paradise. The production is a humorous satire on a world in which rank is set above merit.

The pompous, blustering Lord Loam forces equality upon his miserable servants once a month at a tea in their honor. He says firmly, while surrounded by the security of his mansion, "If we were to return to Nature, which is the aspiration of my life, all would be equal."

Crichton, a butler at 30, has realized his proudest ambitions. He believes that whatever is natural is right, and that the divisions into classes is the natural outcome of a civilized society. Crichton dislikes his master's one fault of being insufficiently contemptuous of his inferiors, and admires the haughty disdain shown by Loam's oldest daughter.

Crichton Conquers Nature

Lady Mary, being two years lazier than Catherine, and four years lazier than Agatha, is envied for her beauty, natural hauteur, and indolence by her sisters.

Stranded for two years, Crichton's ability is recognized and accepted. He has conquered nature, invented, civilized, and became the leader of the shipwrecked survivors.

Anything can happen under the spreading palms of a lonely tropical island, and almost does—to the hero of this story and a beautiful woman in a leopard skin.

German Reading Offered Next Fall

A course in the reading of scientific German will be offered in the Fall semester, Thomas Gabbert, head of the language department, announced this week.

This course is designed to meet the needs of students majoring in chemistry or any other science in which a reading knowledge of German is required, Gabbert said.

The Admirable Crichton

A satire on social equality will open today, when Ruth Somers' drama class presents James M. Barrie's The Admirable Crichton, in the college Little Theatre.

Time For A Change

Junior Or City College?

IS San Francisco Junior College the 13th and 14th year of high school or is it what the name implies—a college?

We think it deserving to call it a college, or more correct the freshman and sophomore year of a university.

There is absolutely nothing about this institution that is "junior" in the sense of a college. Of the some 250 instructors, 50 have Ph. D. degrees and most of the rest have M.A. degrees.

The courses offered are of a university parallel for lower division along with other departments, such as hotel and restaurant, and floriculture, which are terminal or two-year courses. These terminal courses mentioned are some of the few of these types offered in the country.

The vast majority of the students are veterans with a mature and understanding outlook on a higher education.

At long last there comes positive action that the name of this college may be changed to City College of San Francisco.

We believe the masses of the students are behind this move for a name change, if only to eliminate the misconception that arises in our citizens' minds when the name of Junior College is mentioned, to wit:

"When are you going to leave J.C. and go to college?"

The idea of a city college is no longer in the experimental stage. Los Angeles City College, a two-year college, has been operating successfully for a good many years along with City College of New York, which is a four-year college and has one of the largest enrollments of any college in the nation.

The city of San Francisco, with a population of well over 850,000, is certainly worthy of more than a "junior" college in its public educational system.

Above all, the size of this institution is worthy of more recognition in that we have one of the sixth largest enrollments of any college in the state of California.

Ford

After Dark

AN INCREASING number of articles on jazz and swing are appearing, not only in musical magazines such as Downbeat, but in top commercial magazines as well; notably the New Yorker and Esquire. Though informative, these articles often do nothing more than to quote some names and state that jazz has become one of the most forceful auditory expressions of American culture-society.

Yet it seems that all is not inspired. The musician's life is not one continuous hot lick, for there is a tragic, brutal humor in such men as Paul Eduard Miller and Leonard Feather, and lately, Stan Kenton and Boyd Raeburn. Few laymen understand the musician's language. It is the smooth, yet forceful, tongue that strips aside the superficialities of declining culture, and, from process of splashing some red and white paint seems to he taking the proportions of a huge idiom to instrument, interprets that culture through the mouthpiece, the keys, the drum—the soul of the new sideman.

To those who ask, "What is jazz?" there is no defined tangible answer. What is love? What is hate? What is death? What is war? It is a thing beyond mere factual matter, mere definition, mere classification, and let it go at that.

Jazz is that which touches the lost emotion of the Hollow Men; it is one of the greatest single environmental factors in American society. It (jazz) is all which senses, all which intimates communion of the inner self with the fluid, yet eternal self. Jazz is not a knowledge, but the manifestation of intense sensual feeling. It is the mad-sanity which finally destroys all, yet, in death, brings life.

Since King Oliver packed his golden trumpet and left New Orleans for the sorrow of Chicago, jazz has inspired, slaughtered, but above all reproduced. It has gone beyond the King, beyond Beiderbecke, beyond the Maestro, the Count, the Duke, beyond all borders into a vale of tense, joyous tears, beyond all reasonable borders to lodge in the great pulsing American heart.

Beiderbecke was to New York as Strauss was to Vienna, Verdi to Italy. It is this intense cultural interpretation that one must understand, or as the Right Hon. Duke has stated, "Frightfully above it all."

Around And About

with Nagle

YOU think the veterans attending college are the only ones dismayed with the thoughts of no subsistence money? Don't l'd yourselves! The women were affected in a manner slightly different, but nevertheless affected.

Out came the news, and out came the nickel for the evening paper on the night of nights . . . quickly the news story was scanned, then the little black book. And the names of current gentlemen friends were thoroughly checked according to alphabetical status.

XYZ CASE REAPPEARS

Names such as Xysophnick, Wetnick, Vtotoham, even the stray Smiths and Taylors were eyed with dismay, and future dates with these gents were forgotten.

Individual cases where the delectable lady in question had begged and pleaded (and finally received an affirmative nod) with the 65 per monther boy friend to "take her some place swanky," appeared to be lost causes.

The future seemed black . . . walks up and down Market Street, visits to the aquarium, free school dances, or social gatherings at the local public library seemed to be on the social calendar agenda.

PLEASE—NOT SELFISH

But please, veterans, "65 per" veterans, don't think the women are selfish, desirous only of your 65 fish.

Oh no! They really only want to make your rehabilitation easier. And one of the best ways, they feel, is by sharing their radiant beauty, scintillating personalities, and marvelous sense of humor with you. They are not the gold-digging, hungry band of vultures that some male columnists make you believe.

Perhaps some arrangement could be made whereby the men with names comprising the last one-third of the alphabet would drop out of the social swim for a month, and the men whose names comprised the other two-thirds would take care of the lonely, dateless women.

Thus everybody would be happy, and money for dates would be no problem for the "checkless" class.

So rest easily, veterans, we, the women, will stand by you through thick wallets and thin. Perhaps after all, walking through the zoo on a sunny Saturday afternoon is more enjoyable than attending a hot, stuffy, smoky hotel matinee dansant.

Bobby-Soxers Blasted By Barefoot Boy; Student Wants Ram Painted

• Gets His Goat

Editor, The Guardsman:

Why doesn't somebody around here get on the ball and have the Ramshead painted? The Guardsman gave the story of raising the "monstrosity" a lot of space, but the simple process of splashing some red and white paint seems to he taking the proportions of a huge undertakinc.

The Student Council (that vague group of students who "formulate" policy around the college) seems to agree that a little coloring on the ton and a half of wood standing at the entrance to the west campus would be a boon to the college. That was a couple of weeks ago.

It certainly is a pity to have to wait a couple of weeks for a little task that takes no longer than a half hour.

• Barefoot Boy Moans

Editor, The Guardsman:

Ye gads, will style never cease?- The latest thing out of Vogue seems to have the bobby-soxers going one better in their usual informal attire.

Now the kiddies on the campus are wearing their sox rolled well down over their heels.

As much as I love the girls around here, as soon as they start coming to school barefooted, then I'll start wearing a charm bracelet!

Some Views On The GI Check Shortage; Buick Bombsight

THE 65-90 fraternity of the campus greeted last week's news, "Veterans Office Goes Broke," with varied emotions.

Comments ranging from slight touches of cynicism to all-out revolution were heard from the many frat brothers who searched their mail boxes in vain on the morning after.

It would seem that all former GI's names here are in the P to Z bracket, for on the first day no one was found who received their monthly check, yet the VA claimed all would be paid except the last one-third on the alphabetical list.

Reinisch

Hilltop Manner

SOMEONE is nearly always heard remarking how wonderful the world could be if only everybody would co-operate.

This line of chatter has been particularly stressed since the end of the war, when our common objective was happily removed. But now we seem to be lost without that objective, and constantly strive to attain another which will once again unite us under one tremendous umbrella.

During the present nervous transition period, having attained the general condition of peace, but lost the particular state of peace of mind, each individual seems to find himself forced to join a specific movement, align himself with a definite group, and shout long and loud exactly what he thinks are the medications proper for what alls us.

We see this condition extant all around us. Democrats and Repuhlicans, communists and fascists; liberals and reactionaries; progressives and conservatives. Colleges divide themselves into hissing, priggish factions of invitational and non-invitational groups.

The strange thing about all this ultra-fanaticism is that the hulk of the people go their own way, shaking their heads a little, but always hopefully expectant that things will return to "normal" tomorrow.

Most people do not belong to any particular political group, and most students go along from class to class, participating in no extra-curricular activities whatever. This large group of the population consider themselves merely plain, ordinary Americans, and their main desire is to live a quiet, strife-free life, in a free country.

What a pity it is that when we have a general peace we are so discontented with it. Will we always hope for a better tomorrow, or make a perfect today through understanding?

NEWS RECEIVED CALMLY

"After all, it's only money," stated one cynic. "Earl Browder for president!" screamed the revolutionary.

"Recall that billion dollar loan to the Limeys and pay off the veterans," roared a mildly anti-British ex-Marine.

"Sixty-five-ninety or fight!" was a battle cry that echoed about the campus.

TAILOR-MADES DISAPPEAR

Guardsman reporters, many of them war graduates, cast possessive glances at pawnable typewriters sprinkled about the office.

So far an armed guard hasn't been necessary for property but other evidence of poverty is at hand.

The "citizens first—veterans second" boys are threatened with reduction to Bull Durham and snipe-pinching.

A campus apple sale was suggested hy one bitter entrepreneur.

BUICK MILES AHEAD OF FIELD

The new Studebaker has been hailed as the only truly post-war car to be put on the market at the present time.

All the praise and criticism of it seemed to have put into the background the utterly radical step Buick has taken on their new models.

Buick, in their '46 and '47 models, boasts the motorists' dream, and it's standard on all models, too.

It seems to he a modification of the „Norden bombsight and, perched up on the front end of the hood, it enables the driver to draw a perfect head on the nimble pedestrian.

The gizmo works best when three people are riding the front seat.

One passenger spots the target, the middle rider lines him up in the sights, acting as bombardier, and the driver, or pilot, applies the gas pedal and finishes off the chosen victim.

IMPROVEMENT NEXT YEAR

As yet the sights aren't co-ordinated to-turn with the steering wheel, hut this is a minor adjustment that Buick engineers are expected to take care of in the '48 models.

Possibly radar will be added to deluxe models for night driving.

In that event, pedestrians will have to refrain from wearing any metal objects or resort to wavelength jamming in self-defense.

As it stands now, visual bombing only is available, and it's perfectly safe for the stroller to venture forth on foggy days and moonless nights.

Weekend Roundup

Trackmen, Netters Win; Baseballers Split Doubleheader

By Sam Goldman

Once again proving that they are to be considered the main threat at the NCJCC final championship track meet come next weekend, the fast speedsters and eventers of the home college cleared off the track a weak Stockton squad, 101-31, last Saturday in the peninsula town.

Julian Griffin, Jim Wyatt, Ed Bryant, and Bob Caredio were the main contributors to the San Francisco victory.

Tennismen Beat Napa

Another Saturday victorious battle for the college sportsmen occurred on the Napa courts when the Phelan Avenue tennis players squeezed by the hosting Napa team, 4-3.

Three singles matches, won by Frank Reed, Bill Covall, and Joe Barton, sent the netmen into the lead and a third conference win for the Wilsonmen.

Hughes Wins Opener

On the diamond the collegians kept one-half game behind the league pacing Salinas Panthers, when the Rams split the takings of a double-header tilt at Big Rec Saturday, winning the inaugural test, 5-3, and losing the second game, 3-2.

The effective hitting chores of Third Baseman Al Ganon and the cool, deliberate pitching of Jim Hughes won the opener for the bay city hosts.

Taking advantage of a group of base on balls issuings by Ram Pitcher Bill Kenna, the Panthers kept their first place holdings by ringing up three runs to win second contest.

Spring Practice On With Klemmer At Helm

First session of the Spring football practice will officially start Monday, May 12, Room 107, at 3 p.m., in the men's gymnasium.

This announcement by the physical education department head, Jack Gaddy, was followed with the news that Grover Klemmer, last season's junior varsity football coach, will be in charge of the Spring grid session.

After Monday's opening get-together session, Coach Klemmer will turn the future 1947 Ram eleven into a complete gridiron training session which will be moving at a fast pace every day from 3 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., except on Fridays.

Coaches Expected To Help

Even though Bill Fischer and Lee Elsan, last season's football bosses, are this semester filled with a tight athletic program, Klemmer is expected to find the coaches out on the turf assisting him during the daily workouts.

Calisthenics, football fundamentals, and team scrimmages will be emphasized by the Spring training grid coach.

Main Problem Equipment

The main problem for the college's spring training mentor, other than the conditioning of the players for the NCJCC grid race of 1947, will he the acquisition of uniforms and equipment.

With the drastic reduction in the student budget, the destruction of old equipment, and the need for new clothing and equipment, Coach Klemmer is expected to find this puzzler his main worry.

Although young in years, Klemmer can be expected to prepare the men for next year's teams during the remaining weeks of this semester.

KEY MEN are Bud Langton, left, and Pat Heagerty who play first and second singles and first doubles for the Ram Tennis Team. Bud and Pat lead the netters as they face their biggest weekend to date with Stanford at Palo Alto, on Friday, Sacramento at Sacramento Saturday, and Santa Clara at Golden Gate Park next Wednesday.

Both Stanford and Santa Clara should offer the Rams all the competition they might want as the Indians boast one of the West Coast's strongest outfits and the Broncos, already a 10-0 victor over the local team, last week nipped the mighty University of San Francisco team in a big upset. The Red and White racketeers have won three while losing three in Northern California Junior College conference matches this season and face four conferences on consecutive Saturdays.—Photos by Lum.

All-Conference Meet

Modesto, San Francisco, Sacramento Cinder Squads Appear Tops In NCJCC

With the All-Conference fishfry coming on like John's Other Wife, a peek, albeit somewhat belated, at the record book for the 1947 track season seems to be in order.

As far as Jim Jensen's troups are concerned, the spikemen standing the best chance of breezing through the scheduled 15 events this Saturday without fear of having their sweat pants pressed too badly, are the Pirates of Modesto.

Always a tough club to put the hoodoo on in track, the butter-and-egg men from the valley town really came up with a lulu this year. Running the score up to 84½ points against a better-than-average San Francisco squad isn't exactly th.

There was some talk to the effect that the San Francisco bus driver had made the wrong turn and driven right smack into the U.S.C. Coliseum, but this was later shrugged off as hardly likely when some old butter wrappers were found in the Modesto dressing room.

Turning to a couple of other clubs figured to cop some points in the Sacramento turkey shoot, it wouldn't be a smart move to sell the San Mateo Bulldogs short in the final analysis.

Getting back to the rational side, the three clubs looking the hottest on paper in view of their past record are Modesto, San Francisco, and Sacramento, respectively.

Deadline Today For Intra Boxing Tourney

In what is comparable to an information grab-bag, Tom Wilson, studious chieftain of intramural activities, yesterday conveyed details of many pertinent phases of his athletic program.

Concerning the boxing tournament, the program director announced that today is the last opportunity the college pugilists will have to enroll in the competition, as the boxing trials are scheduled to begin at 7:30 this evening.

The finals, however, do not take place until Tuesday, May 20.

Seven volleyball teams have already signed to vie in the league, which begins on next Monday, May 12. Requirements for application demand that each team consist of six regular players with two additional men to serve as substitutes.

Wilson expressed disappointment regarding the lack of enthusiasm evidenced by the small number of contestants who have decided to box in the tourney.

Ram Baseball Season Nears Finish; Face San Mateo Today In Bulldog Town

Riding high in the first division of the Pacific Coast League, the defending-champion Ram nine journeys to San Mateo this afternoon to inaugurate the final series of the 1947 season. The game will start at 2:30 p.m.

Resting in fourth slot in league standings, the Bulldogs, under the mentorship of Lee Bissett, boast a well-balanced team capable of upsetting the best, as evidenced by their victory over the Salinas nine.

Bill Kenna or Jim Hughes will assume the mound duties for the invaders, with Frank Loughery or Tom Pellizer curving them up for the San Mateo aggregation.

The winner of the Coast League will meet the winner of the Valley League of the NCJCC in a three-game series at the end of the season to determine the conference champions. Sacramento currently leads the Valley League with a 4-0 record, followed by Modesto, with 3-1.

RAMblings . .

By Arnold Wechter

WE HAPPENED to be wandering around the west campus administration building a few weeks ago, and we ran into a former All-American center from California, First Lieutenant Bob Herwig, USMC.

After almost breaking our hand shaking it, Bob gave us the lowdown on about everything, except what we wanted to hear. He was non-committal on the football situation at UC; he made no statement on Artic Shaw, but he did expound on the advantages of being a Marine. It seems he is on recruiting duty. Any volunteers?

BATMALE HERE NOW

That new veterans' counsellor has turned out to be none other than Louis Baitmale, former basketball coach at Commerce High, and one of the West Coast's leading basketball officials. It wouldn't surprise this column to find him giving Ralph Hillsman a helping hand next winter.

We're not the type to tell you we told you so, but it is now official that Grover Klemmer will be in charge of spring football practice.

WEBSTER GETS BUILDUP

The daily downtown papers are building up Staten Webster, last season's quarterback on the Ram team, as the coming star at the University of California. Webster, who was rated second string all-NCJCC last season, wasn't even considered the best back on the team.

Now, if Coach Waldorf is right, this means one of two things. It means either that NCJCC is a very fast league (and we sure hope so), or that we just didn't take full advantage of Mr. Webster at the college. Take your choice, we refuse to argue over the matter.

HIGH PRICE COMPLAINT

Everyone seems to be complaining about the high prices at Seals ball park. Our comrade in arms, Paul Cane, the sports editors of the downtown dailies, and others, have all raised their voices to protest the rise in prices at O'Doul's garden.

We have the answer to the situation. Attend the Ram ball games; they are free of charge. You might even enjoy yourself; who knows?

As an added lure to the glove throwers, the Associated Students are giving to the two remaining finalists in each division a set of miniature boxing gloves—gold to the winners and silver to the runners-up.

WAA Banquet Planned Awards To Be Given

With the May playday ended the Women's Athletic Association has begun to formulate plans for the forthcoming banquet, Frances Sellpoti, WAA president, said yesterday.

Chairman for the banquet will be Herminia Ross.

The banquet is traditionally the climaxing event of the WAA semi-annual tourney day, at which awards are presented.

Yesterday the softball club of the WAA played a game with the softball team from Mission High School.

35 Club Charters Approved By CAB

Chartering of 35 clubs in the college and postponed acceptance of one organization were finally agreed on by the Club Advisory Board, George Bachman, CAB president, said.

The Camera Club, denied its charter because the club's constitution was not submitted in the form prescribed by the CAB, will undoubtedly be approved when this discrepancy is corrected, Bachman asserted.

1500 Came, Saw, Enjoyed Open House

Fifteen hundred visitors last Thursday saw education in action all over the campus and the Spring Varieties in the west campus auditorium as the college's part in Public Schools Week celebrations.

The show, produced by Flossita Badger and Lloyd Sisler, was said by experts to be the best in 12 years of these semi-annual entertainments.

Hal Harris and Elbert Priddy emceed the program, which was headlined by the singing of Elmer Dickey and Pat McVey, and several production numbers using the choral organizations and a bevy of pretty girls. The house was packed for both performances.

John Lawrence's Flower Shop in Building 4 gave away 200 gardenia corsages to women visitors. His prize-winning students had on display a rare pure white streamer of varigated ivy.

The hotel and restaurant division, headed by Hilda Watson, who came home from Hawaii just in time for this Homecoming Day, served coffee and cookies to all comers. A big red lobster dominated the display of fancy food.

An action show was the ceramics exhibit, where students were "throwing the wheel," casting, and glazing under the supervision of Roy J. Walker.

Admiral Schonland

Medal Of Honor Winner Visits College, Praises Cafeteria And Other Depts.

By Mel Hansen

The college played host to a distinguished visitor one week ago today in the person of Rear Admiral Herbert Emery Schonland, U.S.N., retired.

The admiral explained the purpose of his visit by saying, "I am very much interested in the education of American youth and of the veterans in particular."

Admiral Schonland became a national hero during the war when, as a lieutenant commander aboard the USS San Francisco, he was awarded the nation's highest decoration, the Congressional Medal of Honor, by President Roosevelt during ceremonies conducted in the White House.

The President presented the award to Admiral Schonland as the senior surviving officer aboard the USS San Francisco after the memorable battle of Saco Island, where the U.S. Navy met and engaged superior Japanese forces.

It was through the then Lieutenant Commander Schonland's direct supervision that the ship was kept from sinking and was brought safely to port.

The admiral was graduated from the United States Naval Academy with the class of 1925 and reported aboard the San Francisco in 1939.

Although the admiral had only a short time to observe the facilities of the college, he was pleased with what he did see, especially the cafeteria.

Knee Hiding Skirts Displease Lovelies

By Jack Hulse

Every once in a while the women of this college are set on their pink shell-like ears by a change in the fashion world.

Of late, such a change, namely the lengthening of hemlines, has once again set the girls in their customary position. Womanly tempers grow short as skirts grow long.

Personal Questions Asked

All of this fuss has inspired your requiring reporter to start peering kneeward, where skirt hems are currently found, of course, and to ask the rather personal question: "What do you think of lengthy skirt fashions?"

Answers varied, but most coeds didn't like the downward trend of hems because they look fine where they are (in some cases) and also cost less. This resolves into the following formula: high skirts, low prices; or conversely, low skirts, high prices.

Red Elements Unavailable

No campus red elements were available for questioning, but it is said that according to the party line, the dipping skirts are an attempt by manufacturers to drain the life blood of the common people.

Male opinion was not heavy, but one student said that the longer, tighter skirts would discourage the boys who hang around downtown street corners waiting for the wind.

In short, the only lovelies that seem to have taken the new fad to their hearts (or below their knees) are those with long convertibles, long cigarettes and all that goes with it.

USC Offers Courses In Public Administration

An opportunity for a student interested in Public Administration is being offered by the University of Southern California, School of Public Administration, through the Julia Prindle Nelson Scholarship.

The School of Public Administration offers training in such fields as personnel administration, fiscal administration, law enforcement, and city management.

Candidates for appointment must be graduates of junior colleges and be eligible for entrance to the School of Public Administration. Applicants will be considered on the basis of scholastic attainments, professional interest and personal characteristics.

With their applications, candidates will be expected to file evidence of high scholastic standing and a report not exceeding 3,000 words describing the government of the city or county in which the junior college is located, or other evidence of promise in thinking and writing on governmental problems.

Cloud, Mohr Guests At Shrine Club

Honored guests at the weekly Shrine Luncheon Club meeting in the Gold Room of the Palace Hotel last Thursday, May 1, were President Archibald Cloud and Vice-president J. Paul Mohr.

Representing the hotel and restaurant division of the college at the luncheon were Lawrence Wong and Hilda Watson.

Wettin Decrees Campaign And Voting Rules In Current King, Queen Race

Topping off the final plans for the Sophomore King and Queen elections was the announcement yesterday by Astrid Wettin, sophomore president, of the campaign rules and voting regulations. Miss Wettin warned that the campaign rules must be closely adhered to since a violation will result in the disqualification of the guilty candidate.

The regulations, largely pertaining to poster restrictions, are as follows:

1. No posters may be displayed before May 7.

2. Not more than seven posters may be displayed by each candidate. Two may be displayed in the main building, one at each of the two student stores, and three on the west campus.

3. No photographs will be allowed on posters.

4. Campaigning will not include handbills or any other inducements given to students.

5. The portraits taken by the photography class will be displayed only on the east and west campus and in The Guardsman.

The voting will take place Thursday, May 22, and Friday, May 23, and the results will be kept secret until the Sophomore Formal, to be held Thursday, May 29. Miss Wettin and the dance committee are working on special decorations for the dance.

Following is a final list of candidates, according to Miss Wettin: for Queen, Barbara Lee Brown, representing Phi Beta Rho; Barbara Christenson, Kappa Phi; Yvonne Fanfelle, Alpha Lambda Chi; Nancy Hutchins, Theta Tau; Connie Latteral, Pi Mu Gamma; Rosemarie Mullin, Delta Psi; Gloria Jean Wu, Chinese Students Club; and Ann Apostolos, Associated Students.

Aspirants for the King title are Bill Buckley, Tri Epsilon; Lou Neilsen, Beta Tau; Frank Reed, Beta Phi Beta; Bill Sller, Associated Students.

Miss Wettin urged all sophomores to remember the Soph Picnic on May 25 at Adobe Lodge and also the Coronation Ball, on May 29. These are to be the last social events of the semester and the climax of the Spring social season.

AVC

Gerstung To Trace Entire UN Setup

United Nations will be taken apart and examined at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 8, in the west campus auditorium by History Instructor John Gerstung as a regular American Veterans Committee sponsor lecture.

Gerstung last week said he will trace the development of the entire UN setup, thus answering the question expressed in the announced title of the lecture, What Has UN accomplished To Date?

"The newspaper reader is inclined to concentrate his attention on the Security Council," the history instructor said; "I will attempt to show that other parts of UN, such as the World Bank and UN Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization must also be instrumental in securing world peace."

Thursday, May 22, the last lecture in the series sponsored by AVC this semester will be given by Economics Instructor William Goss on the topic, U.S. Economics And World Politics.

Coeds Concerned Over Romeo's Absence

By Avonne Stone

Romeo, a sleek sophisticate despite his small stature, once as well known at the college as the silver pole or the Book store, is today an unknown quantity. His technique was so artful that the women he escorted to and from class dubbed him Romeo, a name seemingly appreciated.

For a full semester the little mongrel spent all his time on the campus, driven on the bus each morning by an accommodating driver, flitting over the campus at the side of the loveliest students and, as the sun began to sink, he boarded his bus and disappeared to return the next day.

His favorite habitat was the women's gymnasium, where he was loved by one and all, and it is here that his disappearance is so sorely felt.

Gloria Swiecgood, archery instructor, has been wondering too what happened to Romeo, for, since the spring semester began, not a black hair of his hide has been seen.

English Department Hits Students With Required Speech Ex

In an effort to give every student the proper training in correct speech, Michael Griffin of the English department revealed today that Subject B speech tests will be given next week to students who plan to return to the college next semester.

The Subject B test must be taken by every student who will have completed 30 units of academic work by the beginning of the Fall semester, administration officers warned.

Students who are in their first semester now are not required to take the test at this time, and students graduating at the end of this semester need not take the test, Griffin said.

Test Is Oral Interview

The test, which consists of an oral interview, is designed to weed out those students who have difficulty in speaking and to place them in a speech "clinic" which will be held on an informal basis next semester.

This speech course, Basic Skills B, will be in the form of a workshop with formal classwork at a minimum.

Small Number Expected

The English department expects that fewer than one-tenth as many students will be required to take Basic Skills B as are required to take Basic Skills A.

Most of the students now enrolled in Basic Skills 10 and 11 have taken the test already and will not be required to take the test again if they have passed it. The administration further pointed out that any student who had passed a speech course, with the exception of Speech 11, with a grade of "C" or better is also exempt from the test.

Test Schedule Listed

Examinations will be given next week in Room 7, Building 19, on the following schedule only:

Monday—8 to 12, and 2 to 5.
Tuesday—8 to 10, 11 to 12, and 2 to 5.
Wednesday—8 to 12, and 2 to 5.
Thursday—8 to 10, 11 to 12, and 2 to 5.

Subsistence

Veteran Wives, Kids Aid Papa

By Raoul A. Martinez

All married student veterans worrying about the rising cost of living, take heed! Your financial problems are over, providing the little wife is also a student veteran, and providing you have a child.

In a recent test case, General Omar N. Bradley decided that couples under such circumstances are entitled to a total subsistence allowance of $180.

This is the way it works: In addition to the $90 subsistence allotted a married veteran with one dependent, the little woman, if she also is a student veteran, is entitled to an additional $65 subsistence; moreover, and this is where Junior comes in, the wife may claim the child as a dependent and draw the full $90, the same as daddy.

There were no provisions made as to who shall care for the little tike while mama and papa hang around the school room.

Council Lays Plans For Future Election

Initial preparations for the coming Associated Student elections were made by the Student Council at last Tuesday's meeting.

Tentative date for the election rally was set for Friday, May 23, with elections to follow within the next two weeks.

Associated Student President Trev Burrow assured the council that there would be no possibility of any "taint" in regard to the elections, as members of the Judiciary Force will be on duty at all times when the polls are open.

The council urged all Associated Students to take advantage of their privilege of voting.

Any Associated Student card holder is eligible to run, providing he meets scholastic and other qualifications of the respective offices.

Offices available are Associated Student president, vice-president, Associated Women Student president, Associated Men Student president, and seven council representatives each from the freshman and sophomore classes.

Symphony Forum

Noted Pianist Will Appear In Special Concert On May 13

Symphony Forum members will roll out the red carpet to welcome Maxim Schapiro, guest artist, to their first concert of the semester in the student lounge Tuesday, May 13, at 2 p.m.

Schapiro, returning from a triumphant tour in the East, will play the grand piano in the same manner and style which have made him famous.

Beethoven, Chopin Chosen

With selections by the masters, such as Beethoven and Chopin, Schapiro will entertain attending students in an impressive, three-hour program.

SCHAPIRO WILL SPEAK

Maxim Schapiro, pianist, who will appear next Tuesday in the student lounge, will discuss "Modern Music," supplementing the talk with picked selections from his repertoire. He hopes to perform the "Concerto For Two Pianos."

The Symphony Forum, with the desire that many students will attend this recital, joins with the San Francisco Music Association in the hope that students will realize the fine points of symphonic music.

Program Is Preview

The program on Tuesday will be a preview of the one that the artist from the San Francisco Symphony will give on the night of May 19 at the St. Francis Hotel.

With the observance of San Francisco Symphony Orchestra Week scheduled for May 10 through 17, students share in the offerings of the musical week. All San Franciscans benefit from the period of celebration when the observance is climaxed by a Welcome Home concert Tuesday night at the Opera House.

In welcoming home the San Francisco Symphony and Pierre Monteux from their tour, the Musical Association of San Francisco and the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce join together in this presentation.

Art Students Display Sketches In Room 160

Realistic scenes about unique San Francisco will remain on display in Room 160 for three weeks in the form of water color sketches which capture the romantic atmosphere of Bagdad By The Bay, Jene Hargens, social secretary of Alpha Delta Epsilon, said yesterday.

These sketches were drawn by the students of the college while on painting excursions in Sharp Park, Fisherman's Wharf, Hunters Point, and Lake Merced.

The exhibit is cross-sectioned along the walls of the art room in order to show the steady improvement in art technique that has taken place in the landscape painting course since the beginning of the semester, Hargens explained.

Those students featuring their paintings in the exhibit include Omar Chilli, Nada Thomas, Dona Wilkenson, Bob Hemme, Ugene Hargens, Miss King, Al Linn, Donna Belinger, Frank Gersman.

Five water color sketches, taken from this display, will be entered in the Northern Junior College Art Exhibit scheduled to be held at the de Young Museum soon.

Local Ham Contacts Texas City

Texas City's recent disaster has a personal touch for Hon Dang, college student and ardent radio fiend. Two weeks ago Dang's ham gear picked up a conversation with a Texas City ham shortly after the initial explosion in the water front area.

"We're leaving the air now to join a working party and fight the fire," were the last words Dang wrung out of his set before the Texas operator faded. In the short conversation that preceded, Dang had been told how, after the first explosion, hundreds of people had flocked to the docks to see the fire and how they had all been caught in the second blast.

Immediately after the Texan sign-off, the Federal Communications Commission ordered all amateur operators off the air as their channels were the only means of communication during the emergency.

Dang hopes to recontact his initial Texas contact and learn how he fared in the three-day holocaust.

Meantime, Dang continues to try to contact France and some old Army buddies, and such far-off habitats as China and Japan.

Mardi Gras Gaiety Rocks West Campus Auditorium Tonight; Costume Ball, New Orleans Carnival Spirit Prevail

Tonight the west campus auditorium will rock with gaiety when the Associated Men Students' Mardi Gras opens its doors at 7 o'clock.

The Mardi Gras, a carnival affair fashioned on the New Orleans style, will start then and last until 12, and dancing begins at 9 to the music of Howard Simon and band, according to plans previously revealed by Frank Nelson, AMS president.

Costumes A Must

Everyone is expected to appear in costume. A Kangaroo Court will be in session to apprehend and discipline violators of the Costume Act.

Decorations are to be themed around a crowd of multi-colored balloons and decorated concession booths.

The prizes for the best costume and the most successful booth were announced by Nelson and are as follows: dinner dance at the St. Francis Hotel for two couples donated by the St. Francis Hotel; a cup donated by Van Wormer and Rodrigues, Inc.; tickets to campus dances on the social calendar, and a money order from Roos Brothers.

Food Available

The booth concessions will offer entertainment and refreshment. Magic shows, photograph booths, games, penny arcades, and balloons for sale will be offered in the entertainment line.

Refreshments will be Chinese food and candy by the Chinese Club, cokes offered by the Theta Tau booth, food in the Hotel and Restaurant Society concession, and candied apples by Pi Mu Gamma.

FRANK NELSON, Associated Men Student president, who will preside over the Mardi Gras. The affair which promises to be a success, will be held tonight.

Hospital Day

Women Ready For City Medical Tours

In celebration of Hospital Day, Monday, May 12, women students interested in a nursing career have been invited to the St. Francis Hospital and the Mount Zion School of Nursing for two separate teas scheduled from 12 noon to 5 p.m., according to Margaret Dougherty, dean of women here.

Tours of the hospitals and nurses' residences are planned.

Women interested in attending either of these teas should immediately see Dean Dougherty in Building 2 for more information.

Hospitals throughout the city are holding open house in observance of Hospital Day. The St. Francis Hospital is located at Hyde and Bush Streets; the Mount Zion Hospital is at the corner of Sutter and Scott.

AWS Mixer Dance In Student Lounge May 14

Featuring once again a noon dance, the Associated Women Students will sponsor a Mixer Dance, Wednesday, May 14, from 3 to 5 p.m., in the student lounge.

Enthusiasm prevailed so great over the success of these dances last semester that Claire Levesque, AWS president, has made arrangements to hold one of these social affairs this semester.

All students are invited to attend this dance, Miss Levesque said.

"Gourdsman"

Guardsman Staff Steels Itself For All Out Competitive Battle With Junior Rag

By Mel Hansen

After a week of furious and frantic house cleaning within the hallowed confines of The Guardsman office, the staff of the mightiest clarion on the campus is set to do battle with its worthy, while infant, opponent, The Gourdsman.

With the immediate approval of its many readers, The Gourdsman, volume three, no less, was posted on the bulletin board the early part of this week.

Headline Scares

The headline on the new edition stated, and we quote, "Rival Sheet Folds Under Pressure."

The foregoing statement published in The Gourdsman is false! False! False! A plague on this new chronicle for printing such a libelous remark!

In the words of Fingers Underwood, Guardsman night editor, "We have not yet begun to fight," and "we, as legitimate journalists, shall not rest until this threat to our continued existence is stamped out once and for all."

Contents Described

To enlighten unlucky students who were unable to get a glimpse of the latest sheet, it contained nothing more than an editorial on the Student Council, plus a picture of Large Charge Marge, who was injured in Spring football practice, along with the announcement that Blister Blatt had annexed the local pin-ball championship after training on the rather stupendous amount of 700 beers.

In view of the rather light vein of the material published by the new edition, the members of The Guardsman staff feel that wonderful security creeping over them once more.

Ignorance & Malnutrition?

Give To Approaching Drive

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS will support a school for 30 foreign students in their country for one year.

Less than one-tenth of that amount will buy a very substantial parcel of desperately needed food to be shipped to any person or persons in any country desired.

For one-sixth of a vet's subsistence pay, or for one night of gaiety in a San Francisco night spot, some kid's stomach will be filled or, just as important, he will receive another year of education, because life without knowledge is a poor life at best.

Cheap? Brother, for the results achieved, the cost is negligible.

Now, before you argue the merit of feeding or educating the world, think this over:

While you were probably fed a lot of hooey in or about the service and you might have been lied to, lied about, cussed and discussed, been browned off at a lot of things—one fact remains clear and indisputable.

You learned that misery, strife, and heartache exist throughout the world; starvation was and is rampant, and goes hand in hand with disease and death. Some of you know the sharp pangs of hunger, and many of you have seen the results of ignorance and malnutrition.

What has this to do with you?

This college is opening a drive for funds, food, clothing, and school equipment. If you veterans lead the way, because of your first-hand experience with some of the sordidness in this world, other students will follow.

A kid, whose existence depends on the generosity (not charity) of Americans and whose education is the result of money sent by friendly students, might be a hard person for some foreign demagogue to incite against this country.

Give your full support to the drive—you might help to prevent Number 3.

After Dark

Today's Column Is By Al Kipnis

MARKED by a few highspots, The Admirable Crichton, produced by Ruth Somers' drama class, went over with a ripple of appreciation. James Barrie evidently had social inequality heavily on mind when he wrote Crichton, and the cast's attention to the spirit of the play deserves a "well done."

Jonas Harshal, as Lord Loam, was definitely outstanding, while all the female characters were well drawn. Lady Mary, played by Mary Owings, gets a bouquet—very nice. Settings were almost real, even down to the leopard skin suits. Crichton, played by Eugene Carlson, noted for admirable diction, held the pace of characterization perfectly; another bouquet.

Set against chill April sky and breeze from off the scarred hill, deep within cellar walls, drama-satire took delicate poise; Arsenic And Old Lace, presented by Lloyd Sisler's drama group, marked the ludicrous and comic in death; en rapport the cast and audience measured out life in ancient elderberry wine . . . time, time, time—attuned to clarion trumpet call, past ages of Noble Hall and the Trust Buster charged the welkin hill of Agincourt and San Juan. (But Teddy had Panama.)

Cleverly staged and produced, Sisler's troupe gave Kesselring's classic a near professional interpretation. No name may be mentioned without due respect to the other; all were good—we refer you to the programme, M'mslle.

A word about the "auditorium" (the cellar); a three dimensional factor is acknowledged in awesome respect to the cast. One must see to believe. A hopeful thought drifted in from the sea—lost perhaps in the shadows of swaying eucalyptus; pray that the fickle future might hold college productions within most regal sanctum sanctorum of the west campus auditorium—hark the asbestos curtain—come back again.

Johnny the XGI, Jenny the campus queen, and Jack the college Joe, all have the opportunity of getting a copy of the Forum Magazine which will make its debut on the hill during the latter part of May . . . remember the day. Price—has been literally done in to put in the proper price pole—only 35 cents . . . it's good, too!

Around And About

with Nagle

This Column Written By Del Pichon

BASKING in the adulation of a masochistic (self-sadism to you, petit bourgeois) mob of masculinity is a small, very small luckily enough, group of girls which is common to every campus. These genial "sweethearts of Sigma Chi" are generally referred to by the "barbarians" as the "Campus Queens."

The "Queens" are peculiarized by sharp clothes, heavy make-up, giggly inanity and an unusual gait that is not unlike that of a duck waddling out of the water. However, the prime requisites for becoming a "Queen" are complete and unequivocal egoism, unwarranted vanity and the long-practiced habit of "looking down your nose."

The girls needn't be beautiful or even cute, though one must admit that some of them are pretty nice; all that is necessary is a complete lack of that quality that is known as "being demure." Forwardness is the motto of the "Queens" and is adhered to under all circumstances, regardless of the time or the place.

CREAMERY CUTIES

The scene of the "Queens'" operations is usually the closest ice cream fountain to the college; however, if they could pass for, twenty-one in their bobby-sox, it would be the nearest pub.

In this, their native habitat, they cavort lightly across tables, scream at the top of their lungs, giggle, guffaw, gossip and make themselves as conspicuous as they possibly can.

These antics, of course, are all for the benefit of those males who find in these girls that ability for making men miserable, which they unconsciously crave in their masochistic way.

PSUEDO-INTELLIGENCE

One of the worst habits of the "Queens" is that of posing as one of the intelligentsia; they rave about Pluto, Euripides, James Joyce, Thomas Wolfe and would rave about Phineas Phlumpfklog if someone told them that he was a classical writer.

Naturally they have never read any of these authors and occasionally they are caught in their lies by some well-read male who goes down on their list as a "boorish know-it-all" and is relegated to the ranks of those miserable outcasts, those social lepers, those implacable foes of the "Queens" . . . the "barbarians." O, April. . . .

STANDBY

By Bill Riley

TWO former students, GEORGE COWIE, ex-Guardsman editor, and GORDON KULL, ex-collegiate athlete, have workable ideas and the ability to carry their ideas through. Listed among their creations is VORTEX, a smooth papered scientification magazine. Both served in Germany during the war and after receiving their discharges Kull remained in Germany as a civilian attache to the war crime trials while Cowie returned to San Francisco.

While the editors were thus separated by an ocean, the first issue of Vortex left the press. This initial number of the publication was run off in Germany under Kull's supervision, using German paper, German printers and German equipment.

Not content with his achievement, Cowie has directed his endeavors to further fields by writing an original play which will be presented next month at Armstrong College, where he is now a student. Besides authoring the play this ambitious young man also directs and acts in the vehicle.

Lajeunesse

Spectator . . .

We're At The Peak Of Our Ambition . . We Got Fan-Letter

PARDON us for turning this corner into another "Ram's Horn," but we got a FAN LETTER the other day and in true democratic spirit feel we should let our newly-found reader blow his horn with all stops out.

It seems we did a column on "I can't stand Jack Benny because . . ." the other week and it didn't sit too well with a rabid Benny fan, so he hastened to his Remington Noiseless to fire a few volleys this way.

Following a policy of printing all letters aimed at this corner, be they poison pen notes or bouquets, we reproduce our third letter in its entirety. The first was in Esperanto, the second in Profanity.

Editor, The Guardsman:

With due respect to Lajeunesse's well-written SPECTATOR, we of the I CAN'T STAND JACK BENNY CRITICS BECAUSE . . . hasten to correct a few misinterpretations in the April 29 "gripe bag."

1. Wasn't Bob Hope also cut off the ether recently, or did Allen and Skelton have priority?

2. Well, doesn't Lucky Strike Mean Fine Tobacco?

3. Is Mr. Lajeunesse hitter because HE can't plug HIS electric shaver into Ronald Colman's floor sockets?

4. Incidentally, it is Hoover Dam and not Boulder Dam.

5. Don't you wish you could "giggle inanely" an drag down the hunk of cash that Miss Livingston does?

6. So Benny is so good he has to scream "Quiet!!!" to stop his audience's applause. So What?

Who's forcing Mr. Lajeunesse to listen to KPO on a Sunday afternoon? Or is that the only station his Zenith will tune in to? No wonder he's selling that radio cheap!

Davidovitch And The Woman

Thanx, Dave, and you too, "The Woman. Your letter arrived in the nick of time. Because of lack of response we'd been considering jumping this rag for our competitor, "The Gourdsman." Large Charge Marge made us a tempting offer.

Permit us a rebuttal?

1. Ether? Is that what Hope is using these days to knock his listeners out?

2. Yes, L.S./M.F.T. means all that, plus an off-campus meaning that can't be delved into here.

3. We haven't converted our Gillette one-piece over to AC as yet.

4. Look, Republican, if it's good enough for Rand-McNally, it's good enough for us.

5. We're not "giggling inanely," we're screaming our head off for $65 a month. We see you got your check last month, D!

6. That's not applause you hear in the studio audience at Benny's shows but feet stomping toward the nearest exit.

Our Zenith is a powerful little job, Dave. We can pick up KRE in Berkeley when the wind is right and frequently tune in.

RECALLS

WITH the Spring semester drawing to a close, and the time for term papers to be in creeping up on us, we could all use a few laughs.

The first big laugh is the way student elections have been held in the past. It seems that the policy of keeping our student affairs a big, dark secret isn't a new one.

For several semesters the names of the candidates have been withheld until the last moment, then "Hurrah, we have elections TOMORROW." Last semester TWO of the student offices were unopposed because of this practice. Let's do it again. It is really so much fun this way.

TRUTH HURTS

A few years ago The Guardsman Linotype operator made a misprint that seems to tell the story pretty well. Rather than printing "The elections will be held on May 9," he printed "The elections will be HELL on May 9."

The next laugh is the way the students do their voting; (this will kill you) out of a possible 5,000 votes, far fewer than 1,000 were cast.

This practice on the part of the voters opens the back door, and as a result candidates were elected to office so that they could have knitting sessions during the council meetings.

THEN AND NOW

There was a time when student elections meant SPEECHES, CHEERS, and BABY KISSING, but now we just elect people to office and let them spend several thousand dollars while we gather around in small squint-eyed groups and laugh and laugh.

Let's not have an election this semester; let's have President Cloud appoint our student officers, and then we can get some old fruit and eggs and congratulate them. That way we could really get down to the real object of these elections—which is: Having a good laugh.

Shyness, Men's Clothing And New 'High' Standards 'Treated' By Readers

• Raisin' Standards

Editor, The Guardsman:

This college is really getting rough on students who fail to meet the high standards set by this school. According to the April 22nd edition of the college "poop" sheet, an article on readmittance said, ". . . that a person would be put on probation if he fails to pass with a minimum grade of 'C' in courses totaling at least three units."

In other words, this must mean that if a person is taking five courses and flunks four of them, while obtaining a "C" in only one subject, then he is put on probation.

That's what I call really good administration policy. Why with these difficult standards to meet, people will be flunked out of here right and left.

• Timidity Upheld

Editor, The Guardsman:

Let's lend a hand to the shy student. His lot is not a happy one. This situation is brought about by misunderstanding. Many people mistake the shy student's timidity for overbearing arrogance, and are awed and insulted by it. His awkwardness is resented as insolent carelessness, and whatever impression he endeavors to create he is sure to convey its opposite.

His want of veracity is condemned and his sarcasm is accepted as his literal opinion, while, if on the other hand, wishing to ingratiate himself he ventures upon a little bit of flattery, it is taken for satire, and he is hated ever afterwards.

All this might seem amusing to fellow students but all should remember: a shy student is a lonely one, who moves about the world, but does not mix with it!

Modesto Tabbed As Winner In Capitol City Trackfest

Ram Thinclads Are Underdogs In Meet

By B. C. and D. C.

The highlight of the 1947 track season takes place tomorrow afternoon at Sacramento when the Northern California Junior College Conference holds its annual all-conference track and field meet.

Approximately 20 Ram cindermen journey to the Capitol tomorrow morning in an attempt to retain the conference bauble they've been nursing for the past year.

Coaches Jim Jensen and Grover Klemmer, who both believe Modesto to be the team to beat, are ready to put up more than a game battle for the crown they captured last Spring.

San Mateo has proved herself to be a reckoning-factor, however, by virtue of her surprising win over a strong Sacramento squad.

The rest of the league colleges will be counted on mainly to take valuable points away from the favorite, Modesto.

With the aggregate opinions of the coaches, sports scribes, and the athletes themselves, we have made up what we believe to be the actual placings of the colleges in the all-conference meet.

Ted Marr of San Mateo has been picked in the century mainly on his unexpected :9.8 time made in the Sacramento meet a few weeks back. A repeat for him in the 220 is expected, with S.F.'s Julian Griffin pushing him all the way.

In the 440, Bob Caredio is counted on for one of the three first places taken by San Francisco. The others being Bob Brickell in the javelin and ten big points in the mile relay.

Modesto should pretty well sweep the mile and two-mile with two fine men, Bill Hineman and Don Marshall. However, the Ram's Nick Gardere shouldn't be far behind.

In the hurdles we pessimistically gave San Francisco little chance of placing higher than third or fourth. But should Serge Kordash in the lows or Eddie Bryant in the highs be up to snuff we could very easily garner some sorely needed points.

The field events will be dominated almost completely by the other conference colleges, with the red and white getting a point here and there.

RAMblings . .

By Paul Cane

LAST Saturday afternoon seemed to be fairly pleasant, so we joined the handful of student rooters who were watching our Ram baseballers split a twin bill with the league-leading entry from Salinas.

Speaking impartially, the nine fielded by Bill Fischer was much superior to the club the lettuce pickers sent here for the two games. Fact is, it is a deep, unfathomable mystery as to how this Salinas group has managed to remain in first place through such a large percentage of the season.

HAMBURGERS AN OVERSTATEMENT

In our humble opinion the term "hamburgers," as applied to their ability, is a gross overstatement.

At this point you are probably mulling the same query that entered our mind; namely, "If Salinas is so weak, why didn't the Rams cop the doubleheader?"

Now that's a good question, but we aren't certain that we are qualified to offer an adequate explanation. Of course we have meditated the cliche that "anything can happen in a ball game," but that idea doesn't seem to suffice.

Another approach suggested that perhaps we were being biased in our appraisal, but this fancy may be quickly dispelled in that we have seen and participated in too much of Abner Doubleday's sport to permit provincialism to act as a deciding factor.

COMPARISONS

In exploiting the next angle we thought we would compare the boys from this Spring's diamond representation to last year's championship nine.

Last year Fischer boasted a team composed of all but two vets. In this group the average age was close to 24, two members were married, and the roster was composed of a former Army captain and a first lieutenant, a second lieutenant from the Marines, and a lieutenant (jg) from the U.S.N.

THREE FOR FOUR

The 1947 edition from Ramville presents an assemblage of nice, clean-living kids and a few really good athletes (two of whom would have been mainstays on the 1946 club), but a ease or two of impressionism, a normal disease for most youths, seems to be detracting from the things that might have been.

Ram Diamond Men Pound San Mateo 8-3 In First Place Deadlock With Salinas

By Art Paymiller

Al Ganem's booming bat personally accounted for four Ram tallies as the Phelan Avenue mittmen pulled into a first place tie with the idle Salinas nine as they hung an 8 to 3 defeat on the San Mateo Bulldogs Tuesday at San Mateo.

The final game of the series will be played tomorrow afternoon at Big Rec at 2:30 p.m.

Dull and spiritless for the first six innings, the Rams snapped out of their lethargy in the seventh frame as they scored twice to erase a one-run deficit and put the tilt on ice with a four-run outburst in the ninth.

Mateans Lead In Second

The Mateans moved into a two-run lead in the second frame, but the visitors evened the score in the third. Bill Broderson opened the stanza with a solo to left, but was forced at second on Art Cirimele's attempted sacrifice.

After Cirimele pilfered second, Chet Anderson singled to left, sending Cirimele to third. Jim Hughes grounded out, but Cirimele dented the plate with the Rams' first marker. Anderson checked in with the equalizer on Ganem's single to center.

Bulldogs Finish Scoring

The Bulldogs pulled away as they added what was to be their last run in the fourth inning by combining a brace of Ram miscues plus a single by Gene Lovi.

Cirimele started the uprising in the seventh by driving a single to right and stealing second and third. Frenchy Allemand, hitting for Anderson, struck out on a wide pitch which Catcher Jack Sibold failed to hold. Cirimele scoring on the throw to first.

Winning Marker Scored

Hughes then bunted safely down the third base line and stole second. Ganem's three-bagger to the center field wall scored Hughes with the winning marker.

Allemand started the Ram rally in the final frame by driving a solo past third. After Hughes grounded out, Frenchy stole third and countered on Ganem's single.

Champs Start '47 Grid Practice Mon.

The Ram pigskin parade, under the tutorship of the Spring practice boss, Grover Klemmer, starts its official march for the 1947 season, when the returning college players and new potential grid bruisers meet for the first time on Monday, May 12, at 3 p.m. in the men's gymnasium.

Coach Klemmer, last year's junior varsity football chief, takes over the reins of the college's grid conditioning process this Spring semester with eleven returning hide handling specialists from last year's championship eleven to greet him.

These men are Mack Henry, Walter Ihle, Ken Schuchard, Glenn Stern, Bill Cassidy, Ken White, Stan Hardeman, John Rainey, George Maganaris, Dick Johnson, and Chuck Bless.

The specialized training program designed by Coach Klemmer, which will include calisthenics and football fundamentals, will be a tough job to handle for the returning gridders, since it is expected that a large turnout of newcomers on Monday afternoon will bolster the new college football machine.

Tennis

Stanford, Sacto On Net Weekend Slate

Riding on the crest of a three-match winning streak, the red and white racket men go south for a practice match with Stanford at the Palo Alto courts at 2 p.m. today. Tomorrow the netters seek their fourth victory of the current conference season at the Capitol City when they take on Sacramento City College.

Improving with every match, the net men should cool the Sacto team in tomorrow's tussle but the story is different for today's match. The Stanford team boasts wins over both Modesto and San Mateo, who currently lead the Junior College Conference, and should coast to an easy win over the Ram aggregation.

Getting back to the brighter side of the weekend's net play, namely the conference match at Sacramento tomorrow: the Panthers appear to be another mystery squad but from meager reports and competitive scores the local team has a slight edge, although this might easily be offset by the fact that the Senators will be playing on home courts.

Registrar

Vet Enrollment Is Expected To Reach High Point In 1950

On returning from the thirty-third annual convention of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, revealed predictions relative to college enrollments made by Dr. John Dale Russel, director of the division of higher education of the United States Office of Education.

Dr. Russel said that in the Fall of 1946, one million veterans enrolled in colleges in this country, which means that there are more than a million and a half expected to enroll in the future.

Peak Expected In 1950

Since an estimated average of three years is expected for each veteran, a total of eight million student years will be spread over a ten-year period, bringing veteran enrollment to its peak in 1950.

With veteran enrollment, the main cause of this startling increase, the second factor is the rapidly growing truth that college education is essential, Dr. Russel said.

More Prep Grads Attend

The fact that more high school graduates are entering college is another basis for enrollment increases. In 1910 the same percentage of students who then were in high school are now in college.

Dr. Russel cited the following trends which may influence his prediction. First the decrease in the birth rate of the 20's and 30's, which should be noticeable in college in 1950, will be offset by the veteran enrollment.

Military Training Influences

Adoption of military training would take four million men, postponing their education one year, but if the training would include six months of college training along with six months of basic the trend would be toward another increase, Dr. Russel emphasized.

MARY JANE LEARNARD, college registrar recently returned from the American Association of Collegiate Registrars' convention at Denver, disclosed that the peak veteran enrollment would be reached in 1950.

Placement Office

Many Students Setting Their Sights On Jobs For Which They Are Not Qualified, Says Employment Officer

Because many college students have set their ambitions higher than their abilities, they will have to drop their sights before they find a place in the business world is the opinion of Joseph A. Amori, placement director of the college.

Amori's statement appeared in his monthly bulletin which he issues to all business concerns and universities, gained nationwide acclaim and was quoted by many of the country's leading newspapers.

Labor Market Crowded

There is a great mass of young people attending college and desiring, at present, or after graduation from college, an executive or professional position with a large salary.

The business world is over-run with self-styled executives, administrators, and supervisors, according to reports emanating from the labor market.

Many students are trying to become lawyers when they should be court clerks, for example.

These students are capitalizing on their liabilities instead of their assets, and if they continue this practice they will be misfits in their work, Amori said.

By not realizing their limitations, these students are educating themselves for failure if they insist on entering overcrowded professions, Amori added.

Solutions Named

The only solution for this problem is the observation and recording of the students' scholastic abilities, and personality traits, begun in the students' earliest years, and continuing throughout high school.

The record should be kept by the school department, so that when the student enters college, the parents, student, and college will be aware of his ability, Amori said.

G.I. Bill Allows Top Expenditure Of $500

Facts concerning the acquiring of veterans' books and supplies under the G.I. Bill have been announced by Walter McCloud, veterans affairs director, in order to quell confusion created by the duplication of veterans' school supplies.

"The G.I. Bill allows an expenditure of books, supplies and equipment and incidental expenses up to a total of $500," McCloud stated, "and each instructor lists and verifies all equipment and books needed by the veteran for each course being taken."

The government will provide only for the supplies required of all students alike. There will be no exceptions made or special cases admitted, McCloud emphasized.

The veteran upon receiving his books and equipment certifies by signature that he has received the materials listed on the requisitions.

"It is important that each veteran be acquainted with the regulations governing these expenditures," McCloud revealed.

Lonely Hearts Get Break; Stag Dance Slated For May 15

In answer to all requests appearing in The Guardsman, written by collegians who seek opportunities of meeting the opposite sex, the Associated Women Students are giving a stag dance Thursday, May 15, from 3 to 5 p.m., in the student lounge, Claire Levesque, president of AWS, said today.

Bountiful free refreshments plus a larger collection of records than any college dance has ever boasted, together with the no admission charge, is sure to draw vast sums of students.

This second noon dance of the season promises to be one of the most outstanding highlights of the semester, and all students are urged to attend, Miss Levesque added.

The social committee planning the affair includes Miss Levesque, Virginia St. John, vice president of AWS; Mary James, recording secretary of AWS, and Rosemary Kapp, corresponding secretary of AWS.

Support of these dances was revived by the AWS last semester, according to a prewar custom.

Forum Offers Awards For Outstanding Work

More noticeable on the campus as the date of sale approaches, advertisements of the Forum Magazine feature such important issues as prizes afforded outstanding contribution in the field of literary achievements and art work, Dorothy Mercer, adviser of the staff, said yesterday.

At a recent meeting of the staff decision was reached which placed the awards in the hands of the two faculty advisers, John Gerstung, and Miss Mercer. This was done because most of the members of the staff have contributed to the magazine.

Official announcement has been given that the magazine will go on sale for 35 cents a copy.

Kenneth Ford, editor, expects the magazine to be ready for distribution Tuesday, May 20.

College Plays Host To World Famed Pianist Today; Maxim Shapiro Gives Concert In Student Lounge At 2 P.M.

By Paul Lindstrom

Maxim Schapiro, the famous pianist, will seat himself at the grand piano in the student lounge promptly at 2 p.m. today in order to begin his three-hour recital of classical compositions.

Symphony Forum members are presenting this program free of charge to all students and college instructors who are interested in hearing the finest in symphonic music played in grand style set to the works of such music masters as Beethoven and Chopin.

Questions to Follow

Forum presentations of the year are highlighted by this one today, and Marie Larner, acting chairwoman of the club, has made the necessary arrangements for the program.

Following the recital, Schapiro will answer any questions pertaining to music, and the audience will be free to ask any questions they wish. Schapiro would like to speak of modern Russian composers and play excerpts from their music.

Miss Larner and the other forum members have worked hard this semester to carry on the main function of the club, which is to promote greater appreciation and understanding of symphonic music.

Membership Open

Symphony Forum membership is open to interested students at all times and is a branch of the intercollegiate society of the same name, which is sponsored by the San Francisco Music Association.

Interest on the part of students in symphonic music was manifested in 1939 when a group of students started forum clubs on the campuses of Stanford and the University of California. Other colleges in this vicinity were later asked to form similar groups.

San Francisco Junior College is the only junior college that has been admitted to membership.

By attending the program today, one will receive a share in San Francisco Symphony Orchestra Week, which began May 10 and continues through May 17. The week has been

Vet Housing

Resident Facilities Swell To Capacity

Twenty-eight veterans of this college and their families fill the new housing units adjacent to Hurley Village which were completed early this month, Dean Edward E. Sandys revealed recently in a statement emphasizing the satisfaction gained by those living in the new quarters and the fair methods used in placing applicants into the units.

"Without the resolution passed recently by the Board of Education, the units would have been filled from the master list of the city's housing authority. Students would have had to look elsewhere for a home. Unfortunately," he added "some applicants were disappointed for the number of names on the list came to 50, and only 28 units were offered for use."

Subsistence Continues For Summer Session

Student veterans who complete the present semester and enroll for the summer quarter will not have their subsistence allowance interrupted, F. Grant Marsh, director of counselling, announced yesterday.

"The Veterans Administration has ruled that the short intermission between the spring semester and the summer quarter will not be charged against the veteran's accrued leave and that they will receive full subsistence allowance for the month of June," Marsh stated.

Student veterans who are planning to attend the summer quarter will be required to enroll for their courses by June 20. A minimum of six units must be included in the program, it was disclosed. The quarter will start on June 23.

Student Council

Dates Set For Associated Student Elections; Petitions Due May 19

Dates for the forthcoming Associated Student elections were unanimously approved by the council at last Thursday's session. The dates were scheduled so as to allow the candidates the maximum amount of campaigning and publicity possible in the few weeks remaining in the semester.

Petitions for candidates, which must be completed and filed with the Dean's office by Monday, May 19, are available in the Associated Student President's office, as well as in the offices of the deans and the registrar's office.

Pictures Taken May 19

Election portraits must also be completed by May 19 to be available for the May 27 edition of The Guardsman.

Actual election balloting will be held Wednesday and Thursday, May 28 and 29, with the results to be presented in the Friday, June 6, issue of The Guardsman.

Burrow also announced that any candidate would be allowed to choose his own "watchers" during the tabulation of votes.

Persons signing election petitions will be required to include their student card number.

Speech Regulation Deadline Nears

Final warning was given today by administration officials that there are only two days remaining in which to take the Subject B Speech test which is required of all students planning to return to the college next semester who will have completed at least 30 units of academic work at the time of Fall registration.

The test, which consists of an oral interview, will be given this afternoon from 2 to 5, and again tomorrow from 8 to 12 and 2 to 5, and Thursday, 8 to 10, 11 to 12, and 2 to 5.

According to Michael Griffin, English instructor, the test is designed to weed out those students who have difficulty in speaking correctly and is not required of those students who have passed a speech course, with the exception of Speech 11, with a grade of "C" or better.

Students who fail to pass the oral interview will be required to enroll in an informal speech clinic, Basic Skills B, in the Fall semester.

Students are requested to report promptly at the hours indicated to Room 7, Building 19. Griffin warned that all students who will have completed 30 units by the beginning of the Fall semester and who will not graduate this semester, or who fall in the above exempt categories must take the test if they wish to register in September.

Floriculture Prize Goes On Display

The blue ribbon won by the Flower Shop for its display at the California Annual Spring Garden Show held recently will be on display this week in the show case near the silver pole in the main building with floral arrangements.

Ex-Commerce Coach Heads Guidance Center

By Raoul A. Martinez

With the opening here of a branch office of the Veterans Administration Guidance Center, a new personality appears on the campus. He is Louis F. Batmale, youthful director of the new facility for veterans.

Batmale, former basketball coach and head counsellor at Commerce High School, was assigned to the position with the opening of the new section on the west campus, last week.

Attended Local Schools

A true San Franciscan, the new Veterans Administration counsellor was born and raised in the city and attended local schools. While a student at the University of San Francisco, Batmale majored in history.

He was also a member of the varsity quintet there. Later as a teacher at St. Ignatius and Commerce High Schools, Batmale taught history, French, English and also served as counsellor.

At Commerce, Batmale was known throughout the bay area for his perennially competent teams.

With the outbreak of war Batmale enlisted in the Navy in June, 1944, and saw action as a lieutenant in such places as Okinawa and in the Philippines. The end of the war found him with the Army of Occupation in Japan.

Discharged in February of last year and anxious to get back to his job, Batmale went back to Commerce, where he was assigned to head the vets' counselling section at the high school.

Center Will Grow

After teaching, coaching and counselling there for five years he has been transferred, but he isn't sorry. He said, "I heard much favorable mention about the college, and there is such close co-ordination and cooperation between the administration at Commerce and the faculty here I feel right at home." Counsellors from the college, he revealed, constantly keep in touch with the various graduating classes.

Commenting on the guidance center, which he considers an important facility and which he thinks will grow with the increasing need, Batmale urged all veterans who need help in selecting or in verifying a course to contact the counseling center.

Yet Another Test

English A And Speech B?

SOME furor has been caused by the inauguration of a new requirement for graduation from this college. Students have raised a fuss about having to take more tests, and possibly more courses.

They feel there is little enough opportunity to take their electives as it is.

The tests in question are ones which will determine whether or not a student should be required to take a course in Subject B Speech.

Officials in the college feel that students need a working knowledge of the fundamentals of speaking in order to meet certain occasions which are likely to arise in later life.

This as it stands now is a sensible idea, but as first stated was bordering on the ridiculous.

At first it was announced that all students would have to take a test in speech in order to graduate.

This ruling would be retroactive.

While this is still true, it has been slightly modified.

It is required for those in their second and third semesters, but not for those who will graduate in June.

Contrary to first impressions, the test will consist simply of the reading of a few lines and of a short talk with the person conducting the test.

If this system is adhered to, only those students who are actually in need of correction or assistance in speech will have to take the course in Basic Skills B.

It will eliminate the possibility of one, who is nervous at the time, being roped into something he doesn't need.

This answers the students who were justifiably aroused at the thought of an added burden and an additional restriction to hold them back from taking the courses necessary for their major or transfer to another institution.

As long as it stays in this category, there can be little complaint about the test, but if it should go beyond these bounds, the students will have a legitimate complaint.

Ford

After Dark

THE MACOMBER AFFAIR: another of Ernest Hemingway's short stories originally called The Short Happy Life Of Francis Macomber, has been made over, via Hollywood, for U.S.A.'s cinema consumers. The picture stars Gregory Peck, Robert Preston, Joan Bennett, one lion, and a herd of African buffaloes.

Foster, who plays the part of the jaded Macomber, is the real star of the film and turns in an extraordinary performance of a successful white collar joker, struggling to win back his wife's respect and his own integrity.

At the crucial moment, with one of those ex-African lions leaping into the camera, Preston decides to let past environmental factors have their sway, chucks his quad forties into the brush and runs like a bat out of hell. His loving wife, little Joan, finally decides the whole thing is too, too macomber and lets Macomber (who, incidentally has won back his integrity chasing buffaloes) have an elephant slug in the back.

While this domestic pathos has been going on, Gregory Peck, a safari guide of sorts, has been belting straight shots, shouting Sanskrit, wandering into stray tents, and knocking about the Wasteland in general.

Another pic of pre-war Austrian origin, Bel Ami, is currently at the Larkin Theatre. This is the original film and not to be confused with the Sanders farce masquerading under the same title, or with America's favorite cleansing powder, however, both films (not the powder) stem from Guy de Maupassant's story of the same name.

A charming chap, Bel Ami really makes out. Not only does he have half a dozen Parisian Restoration femmes on the string, but, by the end of the picture, the audience as well. Although the photography is a little shot, the film is well cast, well acted, and on top of these virtues it would never pass the Johnson or Hays office . . . He flies on two nails. Great Eyes, lived all night?

Around And About with Nagle

LEAVE us not split infinitives nor dangle participles no more. If you do, an instructor will leap out from behind the Silver Pole, and before you can say "huh" you'll be enrolled in a speech class.

The speech class is something new devised by the administration to assist them in turning out well-read, well-spoken, half-way intelligent citizens.

YA DON'T SAY

No longer will open-mouthed, jaw-sagging individuals be seen lopping around the campus mouthing such utterances as "yeah," "no kiddin'," "shuddup." The newer, more educated student, bright-eyed, close-mouthed (except when he has an interesting, intelligent bit of meat to toss into the conversational goulash) has replaced him. Or at least will by next semester.

The days when readin' and writin' were the only mark of distinction have passed. A man planning to be a success now needs only a good speaking voice. His writin' is taken care of by a secretary, his readin' by a flunky, who briefs all important documents for the "chief."

The voice is the important factor. If it isn't properly trained, how can a secretary, no matter how competent, convert mumble-jumbled words into a finely typed manuscript?

LOVE ORATIONS

Speech is important in the fast-moving world of today. Human love-birds no longer write flowery, sweetly scented notes to the dear absent one, but pick up the telephone, call papa's house collect and speak their sweet nothings in person.

One who is not adept at the gentle art of public (or private) speaking will pay a telephone bill for "What was that, dear?" "I can't understand you, honey," and "Speak louder, Cookie." Truly, love cannot bloom there.

Think kindly of the administration who has only your best interests at heart. They want their students to be able to SPEAK . . . Speak up for their transfers on the bus so the transportation problem won't be hampered . . . Speak up for their "One chocolate-milk shake, please," instead of the "Hayuh cho' sha', huh?" which is so prevalent among the cafe society . . . AND call their alma mater San Fran-cis-co Jun-yor College and not 'sfjavee alone.

STANDBY

By Bill Riley

AS EMCEE at the homecoming variety show last week, HAL HARRIS, music major, did such a noteworthy job that he has received offers to engage in casual emcee jobs throughout the hay area.

During the evening performance of the show, GERTRUDE NORGARD was playing DESTINY WALTZ on the piano when middle C went dead. As the middle C plays an important part in the melody GRACE MAYFIELD, pianist, supplemented the missing note on a higher octave.

Recently a Junior College Music Conference was held at Stanford University in Palo Alto. Two buses were hired to transport this college's choir and chorus to the affair. The drivers, being new to the locality, became lost on the Stanford campus.

To add insult to injury, the choir broke into an unsolicited rendition of Show Me The Way To Go Home. Coming to a dead-end street the choir then added Don't Fence Me In. Latest reports are that the cavalcade arrived safely home.

Women Have Best Interest Of Vets At Heart; Letter Writer Likes Guardsman

• Not Money Hungry

Editor, The Guardsman:

In last Tuesday's paper, the column called Around and About certainly showed the mercenary qualities of the writer, one Miss Nancy Nagle.

I am sure Miss Nagle was only joking, as the article seemed to give the impression that we girls were only after the veterans' money, which is absolutely false.

Even if our date can't take us to the Mark or the St. Francis, and even if we have to ride a street car, well, we are still happy going on a date with a vet, because we know what he has been through, and we want to make the veterans feel that the people here at home have their best interests at heart.

• No Ambiguity

Editor, The Guardsman:

At last The Guardsman has some competition, thank God!!! I was wondering how long I would have to endure reading about another tea-pouring session, or another listless meeting of the Student Council, or how many new bulbs the Horticulture Department will get next semester.

I am speaking, of course, of THE GOURDSMAN, the hottest sheet that has hit this campus in many a term. In The Gourdsman we get the straight dope rather than ambiguous remarks by some student third vice president of the junior disassociated students, and above all the thing is funny.

• No Blue Jeans Dwight Egan

Editor, The Guardsman:

The men of the college have triple fits when women wear "rolled down" bobby-sox, but does anyone ever complain about the attire of the men? Certainly dirty jeans are no sign of "cultured college men." The women, too, have cause to complain.

Freedom Of Press Being Throttled On Campus

IT CAN'T happen here! But it has! Once again the forces of Puritanism are riding herd over the Fourth Estate, and on this very campus!

Pressure groups, that The Guardsman is not prepared to reveal at this time, have thrown the iron curtain of censorship over its rival sheet, "The Gourdsman."

Last Monday, after three successive issues were posted on the south bulletin board of the main building, "The Gourdsman" was brazenly stripped from public view under the weak excuse that the board was being "cluttered."

But this is not the case! From unimpeachable sources comes the news that this act was a deliberate, malicious attempt to throttle the very freedom of the press.

And, as such, the staff of The Guardsman is willing to throw its entire efforts into the cause of unshackled journalism and will back its rival to the very limit.

In the words of Joseph Pulitzer, celebrated newspaper pioneer of another era, "Our republic and its press will rise or fall together."

Thus The Guardsman goes on record as offering its full facilities for the continued publication of its arch rival, "The Gourdsman."

If the editors of this mighty clandestine herald arise from this whiplash of tyranny and resume printing once more, there is a space on the window of The Guardsman office that is theirs for the asking.

The anonymous editors, if they wish to remain so, can mail in their next copy of the sheet and it will be faithfully posted in the window space for the whole college to gaze upon.

The Guardsman firmly believes "The Truth Shall Make Free" and is ready to go to bat for the competition in the very interests of democracy.

For those who have not seen an issue, "The Gourdsman" appeared mysteriously on the bulletin board sporting a fine grade of butcher paper and a five-column spread.

Featuring a strong editorial policy an "indoor sports" column, frat and sorority news, playing up that famous campus heroine, "Large Charge Marge," president of Alph Alpha Sorority (who is reputed to be a candidate for Soph Queen in the coming elections), "The Gourdsman" was an instantaneous success.

Deriving its source of "revenue" from such advertisers as "Drool" cigarettes (THEY ARE WILD!), and "Bourbonated Water," the paper was off to a flying start as a healthy competitor to the official college publication.

In the last issue it performed an excellent service to veterans by offering them priority on a deluxe, one-room, detached home. A home considerably more within reach than those currently on the market.

It is such sterling journalism that this paper stands for and is prepared to fight for, side by side.

Hilltop Manner

A SURVEY of the college these days brings the casual wanderer to two very popular focal points—bustling centers of interest, where people who know what they want come to cast an inquisitive eye.

One center is located on the first floor of the main building, and is known popularly as Confetti Corner. This name has been bestowed on the site because, as one comes up against it unaware, he seems to be thrust seven months forward, smack into New Year's Eve.

On further examination, however, it may be seen that the bits of varicolored paper are tacked at odd angles into an ever-suffering base board, and that each has its own little message to convey to its pop-eyed audience.

Lovely bits of scrap with all sorts of hieroglyphics may be viewed—some typed, some painted; green and purple hues; and with the prettiest pictures!

Anybody want a '30 Ford at the give-away price of a mere $3,137, huh?

Girls! Girls! Girls!—Live two steps from the college. A seven-room home, furnished; three baths and a sun porch—all for $25.

And who will buy my pretty little violets, hmmmm?

The other information axis has the west campus revolving around it, and is just a few steps, straight up, from the student lounge. Here, benches are thouchtfully provided for people who would be much happier pacing up and down while waiting for a little calling card which will introduce them to a prospective employer.

The reading material pinned to the wall here gives the hrooders little hope. Man Wanted: Sell Dr. Shiftless' Shoe Shiner. Commission. Shepherdess, experienced. Herd sheep on Mt. Davidson. Good pay.

Violets. VIOLETS! VIOLETS!

ED "TEX" McKEEVER, who has taken over the reins of the USF football machine, unveiled to the public a reasonable facsimile of what to expect next season, a week ago Saturday. He held an open house for Don followers and a practice inter-squad game.

Now, we don't want to put the whammy on Tex, but it is our opinion that they shouldn't fare too badly next season. While watching the practice session, we sidled up to McKeever and asked him a few pointed questions. So for posterity we set down his answers.

INTERVIEW

Question: "Mr. McKeever, what are the Dons' chances next season?" Answer: "We will try to make our followers happy." Question: "Have you made up your mind who will play on your first string?" Answer: "I haven't made up my mind; all the boys are trying hard." Question: "Is Ray Poznekoff (former SFJC all-conference end, now at USF) making good?" Answer: "He is a fine boy and a good competitor; we are expecting great things from him."

So you see, everything is clear as mud at the home of the Dons.

WASHINGTON STADIUM

It is now official that two of three home games to be played by the Rams' football team will be held at the Washington Stadium. As we stated before, this stadium is ideal for the college's needs.

Where the third game will be played is still a mystery, but expect an important announcement regarding this matter to appear in this column in a few issues. We want to congratulate the officials of the college who made it possible that Washington Stadium to be used.

A late flash has just come to our ears from a good friend of ours. Carter Corey, halfback on last season's team, has just withdrawn from the University of California and will register at the University of San Francisco. Tex has been at work again.

May 20 Date Set For Gigantic Boxing Show

The rings, bells, towels, and gloves for the annual Associated Men Students' boxing show to be held Tuesday, May 20, at 8 p.m. in the men's gymnasium is being set up, while the leading showman of the campus affair, Tom Wilson, continued to make strenuous plans for what he hopes will be the best-in-the-west of pugilist ring battles presented here.

With awards to be given to the winners of the year's biggest gathering in athletic events on the campus, the search for adventurers in the ring game continued, but Wilson wants many more candidates for the show to sign up.

Hopeful pugilists can affix their signatures to entry blanks in the men's gymnasium.

Women Softball, Aqua Squads Vie At T.I.

Members of the softball club and the swimming club of the Women's Athletic Association competed with the WAVES at Treasure Island last Friday, Frances Scilipoti, WAA president, announced today.

There will be a dance demonstration on Wednesday, May 28, in the women's gymnasium, to which all women students are invited.

Five Ready To Go

The five faculty stalwarts possessing the temerity to engage the peach-fuzz brigade in a net battle are Wild Bill McKenzie, Tiger Mike Monaco and Robin "Slinger" Dunn of the Mathematics Department, and Ralph Hillsman and Tom Wilson of the Physical Ed Department.

Just how so many math teachers got into the act is really a question. It will be interesting to see how they use their slide rules to come up with the answer to the difficult question of how in blazes to beat the first string net squad of the college, composed of Pat Heaggerty, Bud Langton, Frank Reed, Bill Covall, Joe Barton, and Mel Hansen, if six men are used.

Pulmotor "Needed"

Not that the good tutors are exactly ready for the glue factory, but it might be playing it safe to have a pulmotor squad standing by, just in case.

As far as Hillsman and Wilson are concerned, they too have been away from the courts for many a month, and just the other day an old lady with a cane beat the Gym Department's pride and joy to a seat on the street car, because Tom folded up the last ten yards, when he should have displayed a classy finishing kick.

Softball, Yet!

The clincher to this gag is, what are the boys going to do when the softball game comes up almost immediately after? If they are fortunate enough to get through the tennis tournament without stopping off at the blood bank, they had better travel to the ball park with their oxygen tent in the back seat.

Weekend Roundup

Cinder Crown Won By Modesto; Nine, Netmen Victorious

By Sam Goldman

The NCJCC track crown last Saturday eve switched hands when the favored tracksters from Modesto overwhelmed their junior college opponents in the final conference meet of the 1947 season by accumulating a total earnings of 45 points.

The San Francisco Rams, possessors of the 1946 trophy, trailed the Modestans with a collection of 30 points; San Mateo 27; Menlo 20; and Sacramento 20.

Wyatt, Relayers Win

The only city individual registering a first place was the speedy Jim Wyatt in his 440 event victory. The college relay team clocked in a fast 3:26 time to tape the firster in the mile relay.

George Stanich of Sacramento broke the conference high jump record by eight tenths by jumping 6'4½.

Basemen Defeat Mateans

Battering three San Mateo pitchers off the mound for a total of16 hits, the first place tied Fischer baseballers pounded across their eighth win of the season by dumping San Mateo, 14-3.

Perfect pitching of big Jim Hughes along with the booming bats of Herb Markell, Al Ganem, Bill Kenna, Chet Anderson, and Zane Kaplan sent the basemen on to victory and into their final nine inning contest of the year to be played tomorrow afternoon against Santa Rosa.

Tennisers Smother Sacto

It was win number four for the tennis batters when the Covall, Heagerty, Langston, and Barton combine smothered Sacramento 6-1.

The Wilson tennis players by downing the Saeramento squad are now in the fourth place spot in the tennis race.

Klemmer Leads Gridmen Through First Rigid Conditioning Process Today

Sit ups, push ups, jaunts around the track half-dozen times, all of these and many more such conditioning treatments begin this afternoon, when Spring practice coach, Grover Klemmer, takes his gridiron venturers to the college's football field today at 3 p.m. A series of hard workouts are planned to ready the men for next Fall's grid season.

Yesterday's meeting of the boys in the men's gymnasium ushered in the practice sessions for the remainder of the term. The largest group of ambitious gridders in the college's history were present, and all expressed hope that they will be effective in holding the NCJCC grid crown for the college for another year.

To date the new boss for the Spring practice has not released any information about the Fall season and its prospects for the college's chances.

"Dutchman" Klemmer in his new assignment of Spring practice coach has not yet decided what types of formations, plays and football tactics will he specifically given to the players. However, yesterday's large group could possibly decide the grid coach's strategy for the remaining period of the semester on the use of the various pigskin plays.

Nations Best Cinder Men At Fresno Sat.

Next Saturday will find many of the nation's outstanding cinder performers competing in the famed annual Fresno Relays, with Ram Track Coach Jim Jensen sending a picked group of his charges to vie against the best in the junior college class for fame and glory.

The trackmen of the red and white will have a chance to show their stuff to the junior colleges of the southland when they pit their talents against the nation's two top Jaysees in Compton and Los Angeles City College.

The following weekend the hilltoppers finish up their highly successful season by competing in the Modesto Relays.

The spectators might well be sitting in when a world's record is broken at the Fresno clambake when eight men capable of :9.8 century or better go against each other on the world's fastest track.

Jeffersons Topple Sugar Mt. Boys To Take Intra-Mural Basketball Gonfalon

A contest that was expected to produce an exemplification of the David and Goliath routine backfired last week and resulted in the Jeffersons being crowned intra-mural basketball champions by virtue of their dynamic 45-37 upset victory over the Sugar Mountain Boys.

From the initial tip-off it was apparent that the superior height of the Jefferson club was a factor to be reckoned with, and despite valiant and forceful competition offered by the speedy Chinese boys, the altifude advantage was never overcome.

Fricke Adds 16 Points

Don Fricke, hot and cold forward of the winners, added his 16-point high score total to the 13 made by Bill Wisecarver to give the Jeffersons a strong hand in the point tally department.

For the Sugar Mountain Boys it was Charley Lum, all-college forward, who did the most damage. He dropped in six field goals and two free throws for 14 points, but couldn't hold the victorious underdogs in their championship surge.

The story of the game can be best expressed by relating the back board work of Fricke and Wisecarver. Twenty-two of their total 29 points came from tip-in shots under the bucket.

Six-Footer Needed

Had the little Chinese lads, who hadn't lost a single game previous to this one, possessed even a junior-grade six-footer, it is most conceivable that a different tale would be appearing in print today.

Half-time score stood at 19-15, with Lum and Company trailing.

The win was worth 250 points toward the Dr. A. J. Cloud memorial trophy, and if the Jeffersons are even mildly successful in the coming softball and volleyball tournaments they should manage to receive the coveted award without too much difficulty.

The Sugar Boys won themselves 175 points for their second place effort.

Baseball

Santa Rosa Nine Steals Loop Lead

SANTA ROSA, Calif. — The Santa Rosa Junior College baseball squad, under the mentorship of Cook Sypher, took over the Pacific Coast League lead by a scant half-game margin as they hung a 16 to 5 defeat on the Menlo Oaks. An unlooked for streak of four consecutive victories, including twin wins from Vallejo and a 28 to 6 pasting of Menlo turned the trick for the Cubs.

Only one game remains on the Cub schedule, that a postponed tilt with the San Francisco Rams. If the Cubs drop the decision to the Rams, a three-way deadlock for title honors is possible.

Al Ganem's four for four at the plate against San Mateo last Tuesday boosted his batting average to .433 to give him the lead in the local batting parade.

Menlo, Santa Clara Toughies For Netters

Another full week of tennis faces the racketmen of the red and white when tomorrow they take on the Santa Clara Broncos, the following day do against a "tough" faculty squad, and then finish up on Saturday in a match with Menlo's league-leading team.

The Broncos trimmed the hilltoppers, but good, the last time out, and a repeat performance is in prospect.

But then, the Rams have no doubt that they will return to the win column when they match strokes with college's men of distinction.

Sororities Combine Ideas And Efforts To Produce Starlight Rhapsody, First Semi-Formal Dance Of The Semester

Production of the "biggest dance" of the semester will be brought about by the combination of ideas and efforts of all sororities of this college for Saturday, May 17.

Starlight Rhapsody, the name of the intra-sorority dance, will take place in the Gold Room of the Palace Hotel, Roberta Robb, chairman of the committee, told reporters this week.

Tickets Placed On Sale

Dress for the 9 to midnight dancing will be semi-formal, tuxedos not required. Music will be by Art Weidner's orchestra. Tickets, on sale this week at the Silver Pole, will go at $2 per couple, tax included.

Miss Robb was confident that the dance would provide the semester's most important social event and would establish a tradition looked forward to by all students.

"The co-operation of sororities is going to result in a dance, which, with its distinctive starlight decorations, the smooth orchestra of Art Weidner, will meet with full student approval."

Committee Membership Named

A list of the committee, consisting of the presidents and one representative from each sorority, follows:

Roberta Robb, Jane Doran, Kappa Phi; Betty Davis, Alpha Lambda Chi; Nancy Cunningham, representative; Irene Brislawn, Delta Psi; Frances Thollander, representative; Jackie Faxon, Phi Beta Rho; Dot Stoleroff, representative; Millie Laube, Theta Tau; Lois Hopkins, representative.

Group Preps New Variety For May 21

Another gala musical extravaganza is in the making. Overwhelmed by the enthusiastic reception given the big Homecoming Variety Show, Lambda Alpha, the college's music honor society, is out to follow up the May Day program with another outstanding Variety Show Wednesday evening, May 21.

The new production will feature most of the big names of the first varieties, plus a bevy of new stars and routines.

Favorites On Hand

Listed on top billing are old campus favorites such as Elmer Dickey, the college's Paul Robeson; Bob Sherrat, Jane Swendson, Gloria Orzaneo, Jim Finley, Peggy Gay, and Roy Abad.

These veterans of the first successful Variety Show will be abetted by a fresh ensemble of talent, including Jadoo the Magician, Jackie Bobbett, lovely chanteuse of popular ballads, and as a special attraction, a contingent of visiting glamorous chorines from the world famous precision dancers, the New York Radio City Rockets. The troupe will present several specialty dances.

Accordion Trio To Play

Miekey Coco, Miss Gay, and Abad will give out on their "stomach Steinways." The popular accordion trio has just successfully concluded a tour of veterans' hospitals, entertaining the wounded GI's.

Unlike the variety program recently held at the west campus auditorium, the new show will boast an air of intimacy and will be staged in a night club atmosphere in the student lounge. Hal Harris, who MC'd the Homecoming program, will also officiate in the new production.

Most of the leading lights in campus entertainment circles are members of Lambda Alpha, the music scholastic organization established here last semester.

More Symphony Forum

set aside in honor of the San Francisco Symphony and its conductor, Pierre Monteux, who are returning from an extensive tour of this country and Canada.

Welcome Home concert climaxes the week observance tonight at the Opera House. The Musical Association of San Francisco and the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce are joining forces for this presentation.

Persons who desire to attend this gala affair tonight should contact Miss Larner (Hemlock 3278) for tickets at greatly reduced prices.

Latin American

South America Takes It Away As Club Sets Rhumba Night

With the first swish of the characteristic gourds scheduled for 8 p.m., the Latin American Club will present their contribution to campus social life in the form of the Tropical Fiesta, which is to be held in the west campus auditorium Friday, May 16.

Students attending this celebration will witness a novel method of distributing the refreshments, according to Oscar Reyes, club president.

Rhumbas Top Bill

Lovers of Latin dance styles will find the evening to their liking, as one of the featured events will be a rhumba contest.

The winners of the above mentioned contest will be the lucky couple that breaks the "pinata," traditional South American custom.

The "pinata" is a large container, the contents of which will serve as refreshments for the remainder of the dancers present.

Music Has Latin Flavor

Musical syncopation for the evening's festivities will be provided by Alonzo Polio's Latin orchestra, along with the dancing of Blanca de Los Rios.

Chairman for the affair is Fred Behrens and he emphasized the fact that the dance is to serve a two fold purpose, that of providing entertainment and also to acquaint students of the college with the club and its activities.

Tickets are on sale now and may be purchased from any member of the organization. The fee for the evening's entertainment is $1 per couple.

Naval Reserve Seeks New Men From College

In an effort to gain more members for their organization; two members of the United States Naval Reserve will be in Building 2 on the west campus through Monday, May 26, according to a Twelfth Naval District memo released this week.

According to the release, men meeting the following requirements are eligible for Naval Reserve membership:

A. Navy, Coast Guard, and Marine Corps veterans of World War II of any age who served honorably for more than six months.

B. Veterans of any other U.S. military service and non-veterans between the ages of 17 to 30, inclusive.

Soph Formal To Be Held In East Bay

In an announcement released this week, Astrid Wettin, sophomore class president, revealed the Sophomore Formal will be held Thursday, May 29, at the Scottish Rite Temple in Oakland.

The announcement, which served as an invitation to officials and faculty of the college, stated that the dance committee plans for dancing from 9 to midnight. No further details were given this week by Miss Wettin.

Korean Difficulties Explained By College Instructor Now Teaching There

By Ann Land

Recently in a curio shop in Seoul, Korea, Glen Noble, biology instructor of this college, was recognized by two Korean women, who explained themselves to be friends of himself and his family, who had last seen him about 20 years ago.

The above information was taken from a letter written to Mrs. Noble by her husband, who is at present a civilian in the War Department of the United States, performing services under the title of consulate in biology, and is instructing Korean professors the modern methods of conducting laboratory science courses.

Unrest In Korea

In writing to his wife and friends, who include many of the college faculty, Noble disclosed that there is much political unrest in Korea.

"The Koreans want independence, and cause uprisings to gain recognition from the present government, but the United States is doing its best to maintain peace, and educate the population," Noble wrote.

Noble also wrote that he had seen many of his friends in Seoul, Korea, and at least 50 from the United States.

The War Department asked Noble, along with other men of science from the United States, to observe scholastic conditions, especially in the high schools and colleges of Korea, and to advise courses of improvement.

Noble is instructing Korean professors the modern methods of conducting laboratory science courses, while also helping a Korean professor, who was educated in the United States, to write a biology textbook in Korean, the first of its kind to be published.

Returns In October

With all his official duties, Noble who is chairman of the biology department of this college, and who is on a year's leave of absence, claims to be enjoying himself, but is anxious to get back to the college, which will be some time in October, 1947.

Noble, born some 38 years ago in a town in Russia, was raised from an early age in Seoul, Korea, and left that country at the age of 18 for the United States, where he obtained a college education at the University of California.

Now after an absence of 20 years Noble is once again observing the familiar scenes of his boyhood days.

Inter-Sorority Dance Set

STARLIGHT RHAPSODY, is the name given to the formal intra-sorority dance to be given at the Gold Room of the Palace Hotel tomorrow night. Shown here are the women who plan to make this the biggest event of the social season. Starlight Rhapsody Tomorrow Night At Palace Goldroom

A headliner in social events with the semester's first semi-formal dance is the Starlight Rhapsody, presented tomorrow night, May 17, in the Palace Hotel's Goldroom, Roberta Robb, dance chairman of the intrasorority committee, revealed today.

Tickets for 9 to midnight dancing to the music of Art Weidner and his orchestra are on sale throughout the campus at two dollars per couple, tax included.

Tuxedos Not Required

According to Miss Robb, lavish preparations mark the extravaganza which will feature semi-formal wear though men are not required to wear tuxedos.

Members of the intrasorority committee, made up of the president and one representative from each sorority, will serve in the reception line. Faculty sponsors will be patrons and will also be in the reception line.

Sororities Combine Efforts

Miss Robb stressed the fact that the dance would be the best planned innovation in college history.

"Starlight Rhapsody cannot fail to be the most distinctive dance of the social semester," she said. "It is the first semi-formal affair of the year. In addition, this is the first time that the sororities have pooled their efforts toward one dance. Our theme is tastefully carried out with star effects in a blue background which is carried through in the lattices designed for the dance."

A list of committee members follows:

Miss Robb, Jane Doran, Kappa Phi; Betty Davis, Nancy Cunningham, Alpha Lambda Chi; Irene Brislawn, Frances Thollander, Delta Psi; Jackie Faxon, Dot Stoleroff, Phi Beta Rho; Millie Laube, Lois Hopkins, Theta Tau.

A Cappella Choir To Sing At Opera House

In the all-city choral festival at the War Memorial Opera House tonight, the A Cappella Choir will have a prominent part, Flossita Badger, choral director, disclosed today.

Tickets for this program may be secured from members of the choir free of charge but only while the limited number of available ducats last.

Individual choirs will present their selections, and the finale will occur when all of the choirs join in singing the cantata, Land of Our Hearts, which the American song writer, George Chadwick, composed.

Advisers Strain To Analyze Schmer

By Hank Weiss

"Who needs to be psychoanalyzed around here?" sez the news editor with a venomous gleam in his eye . . . "Hey, you, Schmer! Romp over to Building Three and get psychoed and get back here with some bright remarks about it!"

So it was with little purpose and an utter disgust of the news editor, that our hero, Schmorgus Schmer, reporter extraordinary, ambled over to the laboratory, for what he expected to be a boring inquest into his lurid past.

The Usual Expected

A maze of intricate tests involving square blocks and round holes —all culminating in the final intelligent report that his analyzer found him one grade below a moron and unsuited for any gainful occupation yet devised by man.

But Schmorg was in for a surprise—no holes, no boring inquiry, and no cryptic comment that he should give up and join the Foreign Legion.

Instead, Schmer got a thoroughgoing analysis of his aptitudes and inaptitudes and a comprehensive review of the fields to which his peculiar abundant lack of talent was best suited.

Future All Set

By juggling our hero's scholastic record and gleaning pertinent facts through interview and several objective tests, the counsellor was able to come to some pretty solid conclusions concerning Schmor's future.

It was certainly more than our little man had expected. Schmorgus Schmor had applied for the survey, cynical and cock-sure that he was entering into one of those episodes that inevitably get written off as just a big waste of time.

When asked to comment on the utility of the campus advisory unit, he replied, "Any veteran not taking advantage of it is either solidly sure of his chances in the cruel world or a big dope!"

All-Americans

Guardsman Cops National Honors

Highest national honors for achievement in the field of college journalism last week went to The Guardsman for the tenth time when the Associated Collegiate Press awarded the paper the All-American Honor Rating.

The rating was given on the basis of papers submitted to ACP last semester.

The college newspaper pushed its way to the top under the leadership of Robert A. Catudio, editor-in-chief; Carmel Gannon, managing editor, and Joan Nourse, faculty adviser.

Record 10 Out of 12

During the 12 semesters The Guardsman has maintained ACP membership, it has received this award 10 times.

ACP is a nation-wide association of college newspapers, headquarters of which are located at the school of journalism in the University of Minnesota.

Each college which is a member of ACP submits a complete file of its publication, which is judged by professors of journalism and active newspapermen. They judge the papers on the basis of news values and sources, writing, editing, features, headlines, and format.

Papers Judged By Scorebook

Comments and criticisms are noted by the judges in scorebooks which also include point scores for the various items on which the papers are judged.

Analyzing the style of The Guardsman, one judge wrote, "The dynamic, breezy style of most of the copy is admirable and well written."

Highest scores were run up on style, creativeness, and sports writing.

Editors under Catudio and Miss Gannon last semester were June Sheehy, assistant managing editor; Nancy Nagle, feature editor; Trev Burrow, news editor; Bill Covall and Don Cowderoy, sports editors, and Donald Lum, photography editor.

Registrar

Leave Of Absence Must Be Filed Today

Applications for leaves of absence must be filed by 5 o'clock today, Registrar Mary Jane Learned warned this morning.

Any application which is issued today must meet this deadline, Miss Learnard emphasized. Failure to file an official notice with the registrar's office will result in automatic F's in all courses in which a student is enrolled.

Of the 5200 students registered at the beginning of the spring semester, 583 have withdrawn as of last week.

Boleros—Rumba—Samba!!!

Latins Samba Into West Campus Auditorium Tonight In Colorful Pan-American Tropical Fiesta

The cracking of the characteristic and colorful "pinata" following a rhumba contest will be the featured event at the Tropical Fiesta, Latin styled dance festival to be presented by the Latin American Club in the auditorium tonight, club president Oscar Reyes disclosed yesterday.

Club wielders for the smashing of the 30 pound gift filled oval will be the winners of the dance contest, Reyes revealed.

Polio's Orchestra To Play

Bolero, rhumba, and samba music for the eight to midnight rhythmical extravaganza will be furnished by composer Alonzo Polio's Latin orchestra. Dancer Bianca de Los Rios, will perform before the footlights, Fred Behrens, dance committee chairman, said.

"The members of the Latin American Club have spared nothing to make this affair, our first social event of the season, a true typically styled Latin dance festival," Behrens emphasized, "and we hope to acquaint the students with Latin social activities."

Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the semi-formal celebration, which are now being sold by members of the Latin American Club, are one dollar per couple.

Palms, spring flowers, and a bevy of flags depicting every North, Central, and South American country will be used to decorate the auditorium. The elusive "pinata" will hang in the center of the building, Behrens said. Refreshments will be sold at the "coke" bar.

Shapiro's Concert Is Given Warm Reception

Maxim Schapiro, nationally known pianist, presented a recital before a capacity audience last Tuesday in the student lounge, for the promotion of a better understanding and appreciation of symphonic music. The Symphony Forum sponsored the program.

Following his recital, Schapiro gave a short talk on modern music. He expressed his belief that words cannot cover music, that music must speak for itself. With the question "What is modern music?", Schapiro explained, "Modern music is the music of our day."

Science Theory?

Local Instructor Explains How Sex Boils Down To Simple Wave Lengths

By Mel Hansen

Martha Scott, of the local science department, elaborated on a pet theory of hers at a recent interview, that had to do with wave lengths controlling the liking and disliking of other members of the species. It is just a theory and not a fact.

"Has that little blonde you have been ogling for the past three months just given you the cold shoulder again?"

"Are you unhappy with your social successes, or failures?"

Need A Large Charge?

If the above questions pertain in any way, then perhaps the following will indicate what is wrong with the old approach.

If this new theory is proved, then the subject is tuned in on the wrong wave length making impulses sent toward the object of his affections disagreeable.

Cats Power Houses

Miss Scott also mentioned an experiment conducted at Harvard by a science student that proved that the nerves of animals conduct electricity in surprising quantity.

This student, through an operation, attached the wire from a loud speaker to the auditory nerve of a cat. Then, after placing the speaker in another building on the campus, he whispered in the cat's ear. To make a long story short, there was enough electricity in the auditory nerve of the cat to operate the speaker in another building.

Answer To Romance

It is hoped, for the benefit of the myriads of unhappy in-love students here, that more will be discovered about this question.

Perhaps after study by the country's scientists, instead of wasted speech there will be wave lengths resulting in happy marriages.

Elections

Enter Student Office Race

ONCE more it is election time at this college.

Again students are being urged to enter the campaign for the office of their choice.

Unaffiliated students, however, have never entered election races in any great numbers and they have seldom conducted well organized campaigns to gain office.

This might be the result of unethical election practices on the behalf of a few students who felt that the student government should be composed only of the "select" groups, and, hence, conducted the election in a manner precluding possible strong opposition to their candidates.

There are some who believe that only fair elections have been conducted on this campus in the past, but these overlook evidence of power politics employed by certain students.

Here are some of the things you should watch for in any student election:

Rules which favor one candidate over another (publicity, methods of campaigning and others), lackadaisial inspection of Associated Student cards (permitting some students a second or even a tenth vote), enforcement of strict election rules for one group while liberally interpreting the same rules for another; staffing the election committee with only those students who favor a single candidate, and, in the case of written ballots, stuffing the ballot boxes, or worse, destroying the results, before opposing candidates have had an opportunity to verify the vote.

At one time or another, every one of the above has been used by students on this campus to swing elections.

The odd thing about this sad state of affairs is that the general student body has seemingly accepted the situation and done nothing to alleviate the problem.

If you are interested in honest, above-board elections here, take an active part in the elections.

Ford

After Dark

IF the American people are prepared to take the DUZ Sequence, as prescribed by the Duz Suds Company, i.e. Duz does everything, there is still hope of a cultural integration between the soul of the machine and the soul of man. This, of course, will entail certain revisions within the frame of government, and the addition of a 22nd Amendment, the Duz Amendment, to the constitution.

Consider, if you will, the far-reaching effect of such a philosophical turnover. First and foremost, it will alter the existing theological forces within the network of American religion. Temples, shrines, and all of the churches will be torn down, and in their place, on a soapy dais raised high above the general congregation will rest the all seeing universal concept—a package of Duz!

The Duz Sequence, if literally carried out by the individuals that form the mess of this great nation, will found a new individual determinism not unlike that founded by Mohammed and the sundry tenets of Pre-Destination.

All of this is by way of saying that the individual, when taken with an idea, say, to be Super-Suds Chief, will hie his frame to the Duz Sanctum, mumble "Duz does everything . . . everything" 30 times, and then, presto! Go out and get the job! Good American Duz know how . . .

Under the provisions of the Duz Theory the common man (as clarified by Philip Wylie) will cease to be. There will be no common men in such a state as every man will have the means to fulfill his highest aspirations.

Take Joe Doakes, common American, for instance. Doakes has been frustrated punching the holes in doughnuts for 20 years. Comes the Revolution and Doakes, under the new determinism commences his long hoped for study of the symbolism of LS/MFT (in all of its phases). The result?

Joe has integrated himself to the new order, all signs of neurosis have disappeared, and, for Joe Doakes, Duz American, a new and brilliant sign winks into the evening sky.

Around And About with Nagle

This Column Written By Del Pichon

OUR brother cynic who runs Spectator across the way invited us over today for a little chit-chat so we've asked him to sit in on this kaffee klatch for awhile. So now begins the interview wherein we shall attempt to lay bare the deep, dark secrets of his stoic soul.

Entre'z vous, M'sieur George!

I see you're getting fan mail, too, these days. You got racked over the coals for panning the Jack Benny program . . . still listen to him or have you thrown your Zenith away?

"No, I don't listen to anything but the Manhattan Merry-go-round anymore; best damned program on the air."

You're the political oracle on this rag . . . what about the political merry-go-round on the campus?

"Well, the Judiciary Committee ought to shelve their anti-smoking campaign and get down to some real legislating. Say, for example, making the bobby-soxers wear nylons three days out of the week. That would pack up morale considerably on this post."

Good enough. But don't you think they could go a step further and issue hunting licenses to the Queens? The way it is now it's open season on all males.

"You're the sorority expert, Del, aren't the Beta Getcha Gi girls taking care of that little matter?"

I read one of your articles recently on women who open men's wallets; what's the gimmick? Afraid they might find something revealing, or is your life an open book?

"I've been banned in Boston, if that's what you mean. There's nothing in my wallet that can't stand the open air. I'll match the contents of my hip suitcase with the skeletons in any wench's satchel."

Word has come in from the San Simeon kennels that you stirred up quite a row with that satire you did on vivisection. Have you heard anything from Willie on this?

"I got a 14-karat, engraved dog license, a year's supply of Red Heart, and an invitation to drop dead."

Thanks for the interview, George; I can see you're going far in the journalistic world.

"Yes, I'm negotiating for an exclusive lease at Third and Market St. If I can't sell papers, there are always apples."

STANDBY

By Bill Riley

NOW that Associated Student elections are drawing near, here is a prediction concerning the top contestants for the top office. In all probability, the candidates for student body presidency will be FRANK NELSON, AMS president, whose recent Mardi Gras was a huge success, and DON BURGER, former Judiciary Force Chairman, who did a splendid job in difficult task. This may be wrong, but one guess is sometimes as good as another.

Congratulations to Beta Tau's BOB WINEGARDNER and Theta Tau's MILLIE LAUBE whose impersonation of an organ-grinder and his monkey won first prize for best costumes at the Mardi Gras.

Returning home to San Francisco are GORDON KULL and his German bride. Kull, a former chemistry major at the college who expects to resume training here, served in Germany during the war and after discharge was a civilian attache to the War Crimes Trial.

Columnists Bare All Secrets In Office Gab-Fest

IN our policy of keeping a finger on the pulse of the public around this asylum we have arrived at the conclusion that the guy that now and then writes Around and About next door to us is in a perpetual jam.

He has the fraternities and bobby soxers in a constant turmoil and, in an effort to get at the bottom of it we have invited him over here today.

Hello, Pichon! You're looking as neurotic as ever today . . . rough weekend, eh? Pull up a typewriter and sit a spell.

What's this we hear about you calling the frats and sororities "Greeks?" We got a stack of poison pen letters on that one . . .

"Letters, letters, letters! And they're all squawks . . . doesn't anyone appreciate me? The 'Greeks' do all the writing . . . why don't they go open a restaurant somewhere and leave me alone? I don't do anything to them, huh?"

Anti-frat man, eh? And how about the women around this college . . . the bobby soxers, or does your taste run to the nylon-soxers? We mean those "Campus Queens" and husband-hooking women that you allege are swarming about the premises?

"Don't misunderstand me, George, I'm not a misogynist. It's just that I can't see the giggling girlies around this firetrap. They seem to be all body and no brains. Take the "Campus Queens" fr'instance . . . they're stacked like atomic piles, but radiate no more emotion than a wet firecracker. Speaking from experience, of course."

Yeah? And where do you do your research? Do your wenches all carry I.D. cards with them or is there a female over 21 on the campus? Do you care to answer this query, or shall I carry on?

"No soap. If I gave you names you'd horn in on my harem."

You've been giving the vets a bad time, too. By the way, what outfit were you in during the war?

You mean the BIG WAR? I did three years in the 183rd Mess Kit Repair Battalion . . . we had it rough . . . only got into Paris three nights a week."

Is it true that you've won the spaghetti stringing and meatball rolling championship over at Al's for three weeks running?

"I prefer the Chinese atmosphere at the Zanzibar for studying my German. As for my spaghetti and meatballing I'm taking night courses out at New Joe's."

Speaking of atmosphere, how are they running out at China Beach these days? I hear you comb those sands pretty regular.

"You mean the bathing beauties? They're running all right, but not in my direction, the baskers!"

Where are you going when you get out of here?

"I'll tell you one thing, it won't be where everybody is telling me to go."

RECALLS

EVERYONE has memories connected with songs of the past, and without a doubt Bing Crosby is well represented in these memories. For instance his recording of I'll Be Seeing You, which was made in 1944.

On the other side of this record was another great memory tune, I Love You. Remember Holiday for Strings, recorded with a vocal by Fred Waring, not to mention some of the great Gershwin melodies such as I've Got Rhythm, Embraceable You, and Bidin' My Time.

It isn't hard to feel the throb and the tempo of the past when you know its music. Perhaps we could best record our memories if we connected them with a tune, give each happening a theme song.

The Spring Music Festival of 1944 like the one this year could very easily be connected with the song A Pretty Girl is Like A Melody. Hello Walk could be thought of with Strolling Through the Park, and the term chemistry exams with Moonlight Cocktail.

In '44 the girls were leaving the time honored profession of baby sitting and were becoming interested in the job of building ships. The men who were leaving the States in droves were sure that the fair sex would include a welding torch in their makeup kits after the war.

Some of the fellows even went so far as to say that the men would become the animals of domination. This has been true—so this prediction was a safe one.

One thing that has lasted through the years from '44 till today is the G. I. issue clothing, trousers without a cuff, leather jackets, "sun tans," and some remnants of those wonderful officer "pinks." The Navy has the style, and it seems that the students don't want to wear out their "bell bottoms," and the 13 buttons.

Nothwithstanding the assumed or real following accredited to columnist Ford, I, nevertheless, a confused waysider, read Ford's column fluently.

Ford, being one of the all too few intellectuals, has succeeded in swelling their ranks tremendously with his erstwhile column. To borrow a Descartesian theme: "Alas! Too many here do not think, and are as poor dust, —long dead."

With tangled metaphor, twisted simile, and frayed allegory; with cute stringy wording he has woven a market-basket to hold "original" Fordian concepts,—wrapped with the glossy pink ribbon of culture.

ON another occasion we find our opus directed in the line of baseballing activities, and for such thoughts we make apologies.

The idea, however, is too prominent to pass over to another issue, for today we are discussing the baseball future of one of the best looking young ball players our eyes have ever gazed upon.

Not wishing these ivory hunting tactics to be victimized by "second guessing," we approached our amiable friend, the successful head scout of the New York Yankees, Joe Devine.

Joe, not one for passing bouquets, concurred with our prognostication.

"I'll tell ya'," the big league chieftain remarked, "the kid is a good ball player. If he were a few inches taller there wouldn't be any doubt as to his pro future."

PROSPECT STILL "GREEN"

Well, we mused the qualifications of Devine's statement, thought of the repercussions in the event that we had guessed incorrectly, and still decided we had a "find."

The boy in question is 21 years old, a mildly ancient age for a beginning athlete, for this fellow has never been exposed to the elements of professional baseball. He hits well and often, and gives the impression of being a "dangerous out."

Playing the infield, the kid is terrific, especially when given an opportunity to display his magnificent arm; and he really owns one!!

QUICK ON PATHS

Looking in our schedule we learned that, aside from hitting and throwing, a diamond prospect is required to possess ahility at running the bases as well.

Our boy can do that too!

So it is, that we, sitting in the comfort of a spectator's chair, feel "moved" to offer this boy as potential timber for the American national pastime.

Despite the fact that we are an advocate of higher education, we feel that Al Ganem, third baseman of the local Ram nine, should accept one of the many contracts offered him, forego his college "book larnin'," and develop the talent an almighty power threw in his direction.

We think the kid's a sensation.

Cinder Gigantica At Fresno Saturday

Virtually every track and field star in the state will converge on Fresno tomorrow afternoon and evening for the running of the 21st annual Fresno Relays.

Here right among this imposing array of cinder men will be 16 of Coach Jim Jensen's best to carry the San Francisco banner into battle. Fresh from an imposing victory in the all-conference relay event, the Phelan Avenue speedsters are expected to more than hold their own in the valley town extravaganza.

Compton, L. A. Threats

The main threat for supremacy of the junior college class will come from the southern two year colleges represented, Compton and Los Angeles City College.

The Ram relay team of Bob Zarick, Ty Mills, Jim Wyatt, and Bob Caredio shattered the colleges best previous time by 3/10 of a second by traveling the distance in 3:26.7 in Sacto last week. But they still are nearly five seconds behind Compton's best mark this year, 3:23 flat.

Now a few notes on last week's all-conference gigantica.

Stanich Outstanding

Orchid of the day goes to Georgie Stanich of Sacramento for his just short of amazing 6 ft. 4¾ in. high jump, a leap which broke the NCJCC record. Feeling that this was not enough, he came back to cop the high hurdles with ease.

One of the nicer features of the event was the way in which the medals were presented. The winning athletes were marched in front of the victory stand, showered in kleiglights, and personally presented with their awards by four of the capitol's loveliest females.

Sherlock Holmes would have been baffled by the strange disappearance of the entire track team including Jack Stivers, defending Century champ.

Baseball

Rams Annex Coast Division Crown As Long Blows Sink Santa Rosa 6-2

By Art Raymiller

Five extra base blows provided the margin of victory as the Ram mittmen defeated the Santa Rosa Cubs 6 to 2 to garner title honors in the Coast Division of the NCJC Baseball Conference before an overflow crowd at Santa Rosa Wednesday.

The Rams will meet the winner of the Valley League in a three game series to determine the Conference champions in the near future.

Hughes Masterful

Righthander Jim Hughes gave a masterful exhibition of pitching skill as he limited the Cubs to three scattered hits, a triple in the eighth frame depriving him of a shutout.

The visiting nine from Fischerville tallied their first marker in the fourth stanza on a walk to Hughes and Zane Kaplan's two-bagger to left-center.

Another pair of runs were picked up in the fifth as Bill Kenna and Art Cirimele singled and ended their tour of the basepaths on Chet Anderson's line drive triple to left.

Kenna Hits Homer

Three more tallies were added to the Ram side of the ledger in the sixth frame. Al Ganem drew a walk to lead off the inning and dented the plate on Kaplan's triple to center. With two down, Kenna packed a four-ply swat into center scoring Herb Markall ahead of him.

The Cubs annexed their only scores of the tilt in the eighth inning on a walk, Harwood's three-bagger and Markall's miscue.

Appeal Issued For All Swimmers To See Coach

With Saturday, May 31 the date, Stockton, California the place, Jim Jensen the coach, swimming the sport and an NCJCC meet the occasion, the only question unanswered is the participants from this college.

At present mentor Jensen is uncertain about how many are making the trip. To he sure he has a sufficient number of good men, and he herewith issues a call for all male swimmers and divers who are egotistical enough to consider themselves fairly good.

This doesn't mean a candidate has to be another Johnny Weismueller, although one of his ability would certainly bolster the Ram's chances.

AMS Boxing

15 Bouts On Sked For Tues. Show

With chocolate skinned Johnny Fischer heading an impressive list of fistic talent, and with his three round bout against able Ken Unmack scheduled as the event holding main interest, intramural director Tom Wilson announces his bi-annual boxing show ready for public consumption.

The card, starting promptly at 7:45 on next Tuesday, May 20, will feature the participation of 30 boxers who have withstood rigorous elimination competition, and have showed themselves as the "cream of college fistiauff society."

Fischer Billed Top

Top billing was offered Fischer, the brown bomber, junior grade, in lieu of his successful venture in the Modesto Collegiate Tournament, and he will enter the ring on Tuesday sporting the crown of the Northern California Junior College Champion — 125 pound class.

The final bout of the evening brings together Hiram Short and Walter Mattson in the light heavyweight affair. Short has looked impressive in his training drills and may not have too much difficulty copping the nod over the aggressive Mattson.

Brock vs. Mancuso

The 130 pound match between Leroy Brock and Dominick Mancuso should prove one of the fastest on the program, as Brock is a perpetual motion type of fighter who doesn't believe in wasting time once he gets gloves on his hands.

Wilson stated that the badminton and ping pong finals will precede the boxing show; these events getting under way at 6:45 p. m.

Campus Profs Corner Linament Market In All Out Attempt To Cop Sportsfest

By Dayton Lawson

Given half a chance, this recent innovation of pitting faculty teams against students' in college sports activities could result in gigantic repercussions.

So far, the experiment is starting out mildly, all action being confined to a friendly tennis match, and later next week, a snappy game of softhall. But ayc, therein lies the rub.

Bigger Game Discussed

Consider for instance the good professors, flushed with a recent ping-pong victory over the student team, getting together after the match and over a cup of nescafe discussing the possibilities of bigger game.

It's a safe bet that not for long will they stay content to he relegated permanently to the field of minor sports. Nothing will do but to organize a basketball team, a track team, maybe even a foothall team. It could assume fabulous aspects.

The aftermath as anyone knows, could easily take place in the classroom the following Monday.

Midterm Changes

This being midterm week, and the kid, never known to muff a cue when it comes king-size like this, immediately heads for the office to (1) change his major; (2) change his body block; (3) change schools; (4) referee.

The professor, still somewhat chagrined over being rendered hors d'combat so early in the first quarter without even a chance to unveil the flying wedge routine he's been saving up for 30 years, temporarily forgets the pressing matters at hand.

Netters Face Menlo Tomorrow Morning

Seeking their fifth consecutive conference win, the Phelan Avenue netters tangle with Menlo Junior College at Stanford tomorrow morning at 10 a. m.

The Menlo team, atop the conference standings, rule as favorites to snap the Bay City team's winning streak, but the always improving Ram team may pull the upset of the year in tomorrows fray.

Putting forth their season's best effort last week, the locals swept through Sacramento by winning 5 of the 6 singles and all 3 doubles for an 8-1 victory:

Heaggerly (SF) def. Wichert (S) 6-0, 6-1.
Langton (SF) def. Schneider (S) 6-4, 6-2.
Cox (S) def. Reed (SF) 1-6, 6-4, 6-2.
Covall (SF) def. Lyons (S) 16-14, 6-2.
Barton (SF) def. Smith (S) 6-2, 6-2.
Heaggerly-Langton (SF) def. Wichert-Wallcot (S) 7-5, 6-1.
Reed-Langton (SF) def. Cox-Lyons (S) 6-1, 6-2.

Entertainment

Variety Show Rolls Casbah, Diamond Horse Shoe, Earl Carrolls Into One

As intimate as the Casbah, as sensational as Billy Rose's Diamond Horse Shoe; as revealing as Earl Carroll's Hollywood theatre—all this is slated right here on the college campus in the forthcoming varieties night club show slated for Wednesday evening, May 21, with admission 35 cents.

Top talent on the program is currently knee deep in rehearsals; Elmer Diekey, the college Paul Robeson; Gloria Orzanco; producer Roy Abad, Bob Sherrat—all the famous names of campus productions plus the added talents of Johnny Morton, alias Jadoo the Magician.

Officers of Lambda Alpha, sponsor of the coming music-fest, reveal that production is moving along smoothly except for one flaw. A special contingent of lovely females from New York's famed Radio City Rockets hasn't arrived yet and probably won't until just shortly before the actual program date.

However, rehearsals will continue. Directors of the production scheduled for the student lounge, are assured that the Rocket contingent will present a performance commensurate with the high cost of obtaining such notable dancing talent.

Lack Of Space Wreaks Havoc With Thespians

By William Franklin

Future productions of one-act plays and dramatic readings by the veteran Arsenic and Old Lace troupe, under the direction of Lloyd Sisler, will be hampered by the confiscation of their little "cellar" theater.

The college building will undergo a 36,000 thousand dollar facial treatment in the near future, and Room 28 is to be used for the storing of the necessary "cosmetics."

When the housing problem is solved, Sisler's drama class may produce the original plays by Students Terssie Groesbeck and Ed Heyman.

Transportation

Sandys Announces Bay Bus Service

Bus transportation between Richmond and this college was promised for next semester by Dean Edward E. Sandys in an announcement released this week.

Tickets for this service will go at ten dollars a person on a monthly basis. Where students will be able to purchase these tickets is as yet unknown. Sandys warned that at least 12 passengers would have to be standees.

Operating on a Monday through Friday schedule, the buses will leave a central point in Richmond at 8 a. m. From this central point, location of which is undecided, the buses will follow San Pablo Avenue with stops at Albany, El Cerrito, and Berkeley.

The buses, under ownership of the Sequoia Bus Company, are tentatively set to leave the college at 3 p. m. or 4 p. m.

Editors Promise Best Edition Yet; Flashy Cover Will Bind The Best By Leaders In Campus Literary Circles

With the final revision of proofs for the Forum completed the magazine will appear on the campus for sale on Wednesday, May 21, rather than Tuesday, May 20, as previously announced, Kenneth H. Ford, editor of the magazine, said yesterday.

Although there were a few corrections in order, Ford continued, the proofs as a whole indicate a very successful magazine. The art work especially, he said, was outstanding in quality.

Paper Stock Heavier

The cover will be composed in black and white shadings, on Kromkote material (a heavy gloss stock), and the body of the magazine will be produced of heavy stock paper which differs from the lighter weight paper used in previous issues.

The magazine will be distributed by members of the staff as well as members of the Forum Club, Dorothy Mercer, adviser to the staff said, and will be sold in the main building and on the west campus.

Contributions Outdo Space

Ford extended the gratitude of the staff to the many contributors on the campus who have offered their work to the magazine for publication, although all submissions of fine quality, could not appear in the magazine because of space limitations.

Ford added that, every contribution received equal care and criticisms by the staff. Rejection and acceptance slips will be mailed to all contributors, Ford added.

Students Are Starred In Professional Play

The slopes of Mount Tamalpais offer a natural setting for Lewis Carrol's Alice in Wonderland, to be presented by the Mountain Play Association, Sunday, May 18.

Local students participating in the production are Jimmy Kard, Adam Coutts and Charles Wagner.

The theater is the only amphitheater of its kind in the world. The stage is 2,000 feet above sea level. A panoramic view of San Francisco Bay and the Coast Range Mountains offers a natural backdrop for the setting.

Natural stone seating is offered for patrons. Tickets for the production are on sale at Halliday's, 37 Powell St., San Francisco.

Listening Hour Has Music Both Old, New

Symphony: Old and New is the title designating the theme for the Listening Hour programs of Monday, May 19, and Wednesday, May 21, in Room 200 at 12 noon.

The symphonies and their composers are as follows: Surprise Symphony by Haydn, G Minor Symphony by Mozart, Fifth Symphony by Beethoven, and the Classical Symphony by Prokofieff.

Ten New Courses Are Added To Summer Plan

In response to student demand, 10 additional courses were added to the summer curriculum listed in the April 29 issue of The Guardsman, Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to the president, revealed last week.

New offerings for the Summer session are as follows: Chemistry 28; geography 21, 25a; mathematics 24a, 24b, 27; psychology 10; physics 24a, 24c, and zoology 30.

Group Will Discuss Racial-Bigot Problem

With the idea of "working together for the good of all" in mind, a Committee of Race Relations, recently approved by the Student Council, will meet at 509 Fulton Street tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, Leo Greenfield, chairman of the committee, said last week.

Elections

Candidates Swarm To Beat Deadline

Anticipating a hotly contested race, judging from the number of petitions submitted, Chester Fong, chairman of the election committee, disclosed yesterday that nominating petitions for the Associated Student elections bearing the names of 10 student backers for each proposed candidate are pouring in.

Deadline for filing petitions is tomorrow, May 21, at 11 o'clock, an extension of two days.

Election of student administrative officers for the coming fall semester will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, May 27 and 28. Voting booths situated in the main building, and on the west campus will be open to anyone holding an Associated Student card.

Committee Named

The election committee, composed of Donald McKelvey, Johnny Enomoto, Nelson Baxter, Elmer Benedict, Donald Carter, Robert Hanson, Bob Winegardner, Pat Bolster, Barbara Larson, Mary Lee, Fred Bentley, Beverly Thompson, Irene Brislawn, and Donald Frost, is currently engaged in listing the candidates nominated in the petitions submitted and expects to announce the complete ballot by the end of this week.

Positions open for election include the student presidency and vice-presidency, Associated Men and Associated Women Student presidencies, and 14 council posts.

Rules To Be Posted

Chairman Fong expects the campus campaign to have all the verve and excitement of any national election. This semester plans call for having each candidate allotted a maximum of 10 posters on or about the campus as compared with five posters allowed last semester.

There will be no specific warrant against crowds converging near or about the voting polls so long as no member of that crowd engages in active electioneering.

Committee members intend to publish a complete list of election rules along with the names of candidates running. Infraction of these regulations will automatically promulgate the candidate's disqualification for office.

Sophomore Class

Polls Open Thursday And Friday For King-Queen Vote; Student Card Needed

Voters will go to the polls this Thursday and Friday to choose the most handsome man and the loveliest lady to reign respectively as King and Queen of the sophomore class.

On both days the polls will open at 9 a. m. Any student who holds an Associated Student membership card will be allowed to vote for the candidate of his choice, the women voting for the king, and the men for the queen.

Polls Close At 4

The polls will close at 4 p. m. on each day.

College tradition prevents the winners from being known until Thursday, May 29, at the soph formal, this semester dubbed the "Coronation Ball." Astrid Wettin, sophomore president, remarked that highly unusual plans have been made for the dance, which is to be held at the Scottish Rite Temple in Oakland.

Queen Vote Traditional

The history of the royal elections dates back to the early days of the college, when it was decided that a queen would be selected each semester as a typical representative of the sophomore class.

In the fall of 1945 the position of king was added to the ballot, so that the male members of the class would get a chance at the glory which goes with the honor.

Miss Wettin urged all sophomores to remember the sophomore picnic next Sunday, May 25, at Adobe Creek Lodge.

Social Calendar To Be On Student Cards

To facilitate the printing of next semester's Associated Student cards, Student Council members at last Thursday's meeting voted that the college social calendar be prepared a semester in advance.

Heretofore the social calendar has been prepared by the social committee of the concurrent semester. Associated Student cards to be distributed at the beginning of next semester will include the calendar of social dates for the fall semester necessitating the advance planning of affairs.

Associated Student President Trev Burrow asked that presidents of organizations desiring dates for next semester be present at the next president's meeting, Tuesday, May 27, of this month. The social schedule will be compiled at this meeting.

The council underwrote $500, if the money is available, for the publication of next semester's handbook.

Lou Neilson, chairman of the World Student's Service Fund, announced that a dance to raise funds would be held at the college auditorium on the 24th of this month.

The council extended the deadline for the filing of petitions to Wednesday, May 21, at 11 o'clock.

Tickets Available For Symphony Season

President Marie Larner of the Symphony Forum announced today that she will take orders for seasonal tickets for next season's symphonies held in San Francisco.

These tickets are available to students and faculty members at reduced rates; the season rates are set at $12.75 and $18.50, which is about half price for the usual season ticket.

Anyone interested in this bonanza to symphony lovers can inform Miss Larner or Flossita Badger in Room 336, main building.

College Hour

Aspiring Politicos Will Mount Rostrum

Candidates for the various Associated Student offices will appear before the Associated Students to state their platforms during an extended college hour meeting in the west campus auditorium this Friday, May 23.

Eliminating the 10 o'clock class, the college hour will be from 9:50 to 11:20, a full two hours of vigorous campaigning.

Students will be excused from their regular 10 o'clock classes to attend the registrar's office ruled. Candidates for elective offices next fall semester are expected to speak before a full house. Professional entertainment from downtown San Francisco will also be on hand to spark the rally.

WSSF Asks Clothes For Foreign Students

Attempting to relieve the dire clothing needs of European college students, the World Students' Service Fund of Geneva is conducting a drive in the main building of this college to receive contributions through Friday, May 23.

The committee set up for this purpose will collect any type of clothing at a booth in the old book exchange located on the first floor of the main building.

The committee, headed by Byrne Davis and Mark Atwood, urged all students to contribute any type of discarded clothing for the men and women who are attempting to go to foreign colleges under the most adverse circumstances. Any GI clothing is especially welcome.

Winners Named For Poetry, Prose, Art; Copies Will Hit Sales Stands At 9

With prizes going to James Kershaw for poetry, Roy McCoy for prose, and Charles Scott for art work, Forum magazine hits the stands tomorrow morning, Kenneth Ford, editor of the magazine, said yesterday.

Awards were made by faculty sponsors Dorothy Mereer and John Gerstung. As previously announced, staff members were not considered eligible for the contest in poetry and prose, with the exception made in art submissions, Ford added.

Prizes To Be Awarded

Prizes, which will constitute five dollar checks each, will be given to the winners within the next two weeks, Miss Mercer said, while letters of acceptance and rejection will be personally written by Editor Ford to the remaining contributors.

Crowning a period of extensive preparation, the Forum will be sold by members of the Forum club and the magazine staff, John Turner, business manager for the magazine, said.

Points of distribution will be located in the main building, beside the silver pole, and on the west campus in the sentry box and beside the student fountain, Turner added.

Marked By Changes

To stimulate interest in the magazine, Turner plans a special announcement series to be broadcast over the public address system in addition to banners and posters placed about the halls of the main building and on the west campus.

Students familiar with the past issues of the Forum will recognize the radical changes in design marked by the new Forum; such innovations as an abstract cover design by Jonas Harshal and outstanding art work by Charles Scott mark a decided change from the traditional woodcuts with which the reader is familiar. Included is a photograph which blends with Kershaw's "Sea Story."

Art Work Praised

Omar Chili's dancing lady, which illustrates Ford's Diamond Point, is another illustration of artistic experience, Charles Scott, one of the art editors of the magazine, said.

Roy McCoy explores the wonder of Thomas Wolfe in his prize winning essay, Alone on a Wide Wide Sea, and his well turned short story entitled Let's Burn The Books.

Miss Mereer expressed high opinion of Scott's abstract theme of Frustration and his unforgettable scene of Colt Tower mirrored in an overflowing sewer.

Vets Become Sign Shop Entrepreneurs

By Robert Tatam

Five veterans here, co-owners of Vets Sign Service, are now building a one-story shop at 1401 Ocean Avenue. Work on the building is being done by the partners themselves, using scrap lumber, a pile of gravel, and 15 bags of cement.

The student-partners are Bill Guiles, Geri Cardinale, Chuck Biess, Nelson Jones, and Bill Agin.

Last week they finished pouring concrete for the foundation; this week the building itself has been going up. The shop will open late this month.

Equipment Complete

The finished building will measure 12½ by 25 feet, in which space there will be a long work table, a device for printing signs by the silk screen process, and facilities for making wooden signs. Working together, all partners drew plans for the building.

The partners are hiring commercial art students here to paint signs on a 25 per cent commission basis. Like the owners of the business, the art students will work when they are not attending classes.

Hard-working production manager of the group is Guiles, who worked in 1942 and '43 as a sign-painter in Rochester, N. Y.

Sales Finance Building

Guiles has been painting signs at his residence at 154 Westwood Drive for the past five weeks, the signs already sold having taken care of financing the building. Investment of each partner to date has been $2.

With Guiles and the art students doing the sign-painting, the other partners handle sales, doing purchasing and accounting also.

The four salesmen have written up more than $1000 worth of orders, which will be filled as soon as the partners open the new shop. They are working hard at building it fast.

Constitutional Amendments

It DOES Concern You

JUST a year ago the constitution for the college was rewritten to provide a perfect set of laws.

It has now been found that that perfect set of laws is not so perfect after all.

Certain parts of the document are still ambiguous, and in need of revision and correction.

One instance of its ambiguity was evidenced only a week ago in a Student Council meeting when a discussion arose about the proper interpretation of a two-thirds majority vote. It was found by consulting Robert's Rules that there are three possible uses of the two-thirds majority.

The drafters of the constitution neglected to state which should be utilized by the Student Council.

A committee is now working on some new changes and additions to be incorporated, to be approved, or disapproved by the Associated Students.

If drawn up in time these corrections will be placed before the students at the elections scheduled for the end of this month.

It is the duty of the students to read carefully the amendments proposed and vote intelligently on them.

The only way the student government will ever disentangle itself from the existing confusion of the standing constitution will be with the cooperation and consent of a thinking body of students.

Don't put your head in the sand and say it doesn't concern you. It does concern you. You are the ones who will profit or lose according to the good or evil of the constitution.

Form some concrete opinion and vote—yes or no to show your good faith in and backing of the students you elect to conduct the government.

Ford
After Dark

AS today's headline will tell you, Forum Magazine, the college's literary publication, hits the stands tomorrow morning. The price was originally set at 50 centavos but has been lowered to 35 cents for economical and ideological reasons, however, the material will remain the same and the magazine, without doubt, is of very high calibre for a college publication.

Much to the regret of the sponsors and editorial staff, however, three of the best contributions could not be printed because the authors, J. A. Kershaw, Daniel A. Devinney, and James Dennis elected to turn in manuscripts on the basis of artistic merit and not restricted subject matter.

Kershaw, in stream of consciousness, treated the sexual ramifications from the norm in a decadent society, much the same as Ernest Hemingway, Thomas Wolfe, Radcliffe Hall, and John Steinbeck have done in the past. It is gratifying though to be able to print three very excellent free verse poems by Kershaw.

Devinney, in an unusual treatment of human passion, unbridled, fierce, savage, fundamental in all its aspects, elected to present an artistic treatment of people, living high in the mountains back of Santa Barbara, and of their desires, a symbol of racial introversion, which eventually lead them to a form of self destruction. It might be added that Devinney's contribution has much the same quality as writers like Ben Maddow, James Joyce, Robinson Jeffers, and certainly, the classic Greek dramatists, and a well known contemporary poet and author of Fourth Umbilical Rondo.

Dennis, in an excellent impressionistic bit called Echoes, presented a very realistic and somewhat macabre cross-section from a typical Chicago Street. Even as with James T. Farrel and William Saroyan, Dennis created all the elements of the lostness, the pity, and pathos of the scene, and in so doing, created a piece of work that could not be printed.

The source of that unseen censorship lies completely outside the realm of the faculty, the sponsors, and school authorities, in the form of inane literary judgment and reading into the artist's work the vulgar meaning that isn't there. It might be well for such people to read Romans XIV:14—"I know and am persuaded by the Lord Jesus that there is nothing unclean of itself, but to him that esteemeth anything to be unclean, to him it is unclean."

Around And About

with Nagle

SYNONYMOUS with the AM coffee is the morning news sheet, which is digested bit by bit with each gulp of caffeine. The digestion process begins by chewing up the latest developments on the Bay-Bridge set-up, the Russian situation, and the weather.

And then biting into the second page and hoping to solve the "Whose on strike today" mystery. We do! To the extent of finding out what each leading picket wore on his rounds.

Another bite is attempted in the third page. This sends shivers up and down our spine as we read how the police nabbed a poor, innocent-appearing old woman for stealing corsage pins from the lame flower vendor on the corner.

SO GOOD, TOO

An emotion-packed story relates how the old woman crept out quietly every afternoon, captivating the old man with her rasping voiced-tales, while she shoveled pins into her satchel. An accompanying picture shows 11 small kiddies weeping outside the jail house, waiting for their "ma, who was always a good ma," to come home.

More stories like that and the effect of the caffeine will wear off. So we embark on another page—the Society Round-Up.

Here three lovelies are proudly displaying their medically-approved tooth-paste smiles, while they pass candy to advise the male population to scratch their names from the black book—they HAVE a man now.

After noticing that there's good news ahead for anyone born today (under the sign of Boreus, that is), we turn to the entertainment page.

LAST TIME TODAY

Amid excessive superlatives and enticing pictures, we dig out about 55 pictures that are here for "Positively the last week" and which we must see . . . but worst of all, a tear-jerking story tells how the studio recalled Jean Arthur, the movie actress, from her studies at Stephens College. At a time when a college education is important for a woman, too!

Before completing the newsprint meal, we notice the clock is ticking away minutes which should be spent in class—so we grab the quickest means of transportation, the pogo stick, and rush off to class—hoping for a dull lecture and a chance to finish the green sheet and the "funnies."

STANDBY

By Bill Riley

A RECENTLY announced engagement was that of JOHNNY COATES of Beta Tau and CLAIRE DICKENSON of Theta Tau. Within the past year three active members of Beta Tau have married, and five members have become engaged. Evidently the Greeks are in favor of lifelong companionship.

In the University of San Francisco's production of Joan of Lorraine MARGARET NAGLE, sister of this college's NANCY NAGLE, took a leading role as did WILLIAM GARGAN, JR., son of the cinemactor, Gargan, Sr. was present at last week's production to watch the efforts of the group.

All students should take the time and trouble to know the candidates running for the various offices in the forthcoming elections. Nearly every office will be heavily contested so the voters will have a large choice.

It is very confusing when a CANE, CAIN, or CAINE enrolls in the same class. When roll is called there is always a chorus of voices saying "here," and then there's the trouble finding out if the instructor means Paul, Jo Ellen or Janet.

Plug, Plug, Plug! Forum Mag Hits Stands Tomorrow

AS gently hinted from time to time within the pages of our little college twice-weekly, tomorrow is D-Day for Forum Magazine.

If there is one collegian left on the campus who is unaware of Forum's function, it has served for years as the annual literary publication of this college and has done a notable job as such.

Notwithstanding the fact that we are one of the 27 odd assistant editors, we feel a plug is in order to help in small measure to boost the sale of a home-grown product that carries a true professional touch.

Hilltop Manner

PROGRESS is a proud word, but it would seem that those who actually participate in living improvements are few and widely scattered.

It takes the average mind an age and three-quarters to grasp a new idea, and a lifetime usually passes without some minds conceiving a single unique thought.

All the same, we haughtily raise our smug noses into the air and say, "look at progress!"

Those radical "widely-scattered" ones, the leaders, virtually govern the lives of each of their little stray lambs, yet they usually must go through a period of ostracism before even the traditional fence-jumpers will jump. Even the innocent lambs are skeptics; in fact, the more innocent, the more skeptical.

When the typewriter was first invented, it was considered entirely impractical — and anyhow, who would break social custom and write a letter with a machine?" Horrors!

During the last century, people were afraid that telephone wires would eventually ensnarl traffic, so that no one would be able to walk or ride through the streets.

Males were scandalized, back in 1895, when suspenders appeared in Paris for the first time. They said it would be just like being attached to a portable crane.

Today, we still come across a person with a new idea once in a while; and still, we are afraid to accept this contribution. A small voice in the night frightens the inhabitants of the haunted house, and they nail their shutters down more securely.

Perhaps, 25 years hence, the name of this college will be changed; perhaps the lawn will be weeded; impatient youth — "Just leave them alone, and they will come home, dragging their tails behind them."

CAN BE HAD FOR 35 CENTS

It goes on sale in the main building and on the west campus tomorrow and will be available to one and all for a mere 35 cents.

The 35 cent price tag on Forum is just 15 cents less than Esquire charges, and Forum's 32 print-packed pages contain nary an advertisement to clutter up the content.

In other words, Forum is strictly all meat and no potatoes. The reader isn't asked to wade through a barrage of ads to get at the cream of the reading matter.

AN ON-THE-BALL EDITOR

A lion's share of the credit for getting the magazine out goes to one Kenneth Ford, a colleague of ours on this page, who, as editor of this year's issue has put in plenty of his own time toward making it the best example of student talent yet to be seen on these premises.

Ford, in addition to grinding out copy twice a week for his After Dark, has gotten together the best the college has to offer in the way of art and literary talent, and advance proofs show his hard work on the magazine hasn't gone in vain.

TRANSPORTATION NOTES

Utilities Manager James Turner who has full charge of the 509 square wheeled chariots that frolic about the city's streets said last week that 196 of 'em still had "many years" left in them.

He outlined plans for completely "modernizing" that many of the cars by installing new fenders and new rubber lined doors.

By slapping on a fender here and a door there at a cost of $3000 per car, this program is supposed to give S. F. the rapid transit it deserves out of a 100 per cent increase in fares.

Turner mentioned nothing about working over the tired Westinghouse electric motors in the cars or putting in new springs, or patching the upholstery or even washing the windows every so often.

He did, however, promise more new buses to replace some of the old cars, and if they're anything like the new "hill-climbers" they have on the Castro-Diamond run, the city can stop worrying about its daily travel problems.

The new, twin-engined Fageols are the last word in motor coaches and can take S. F.'s hills without drawing a deep breath.

Mardi Gras Expenses and Allotments Questioned; Terpsichoreanism Nixed

• Pay Or ?

Editor, The Guardsman:

The Mardi Gras, held last week, was advertised as an Associated Student dance with students holding cards being admitted gratis.

Many of you no doubt found this to be anything but the case.

If a certain fraternity decided that you were not clad in a costume befitting the occasion, you were notified in no uncertain terms that either you pay a quarter or turn tail and scram.

All the other organizations represented by booths sold something or other. This society gave nothing but took in more American Lire than any of the legitimate deals.

A sudden thot! AMS sponsored the Mardi Gras, the officers of the AMS are all in a certain frat . . . A tie-in mebbee? . . . .

• No Dancing Masters

Editor, The Guardsman:

Glancing through a recent issue of your rag I discovered that there were fully four dance stories, which took up a great deal of space that might have been used to advantage. Dance, dance, dance! Is that all the students at this "institution" do?

It looks as though, (If the present trend keeps up) this joint will turn out students who will be terpsichorean travesties of what we call true learning. No doubt everyone will go to work for Arthur Murray with an Associate of Arts degree from this college.

16 Bouts Feature AMS Ring Show

Pugilistic Hopefuls Scrap In Squared Circle Tonight In Men's Gymnasium; Fischer, Unmack Clash In Main Event

By Paul Cane

Pugilism with a college education goes on display in the men's gymnasium tonight at 7:45 o'clock with Northern California Champion Johnny Fischer heading an impressive array of 32 boxers who have survived the rigorous elimination trials.

Similar information will be voiced by Announcer Herb Markall this evening, when he introduces Fischer, the dynamic machine of the ring, to some 2,500 anticipated fistic filberts.

As has been the case in the past, the majority of public sympathy will probably go toward Fischer's opponent, Kenny Unmack, for local fight fans seem to derive great pleasure in rooting home the underdog.

Regardless of his role as the short-ender, Unmack is an aggressive, capable fighter, and should extend Fischer's talents in what looks to be a spectator's type of fight. The thought of trading blows with the champion hasn't caused Unmack to lose any sleep, and he will very definitely "show up" for the contest.

FINAL BOUT A CROWD PLEASER

The final bout of the evening should prove a crowd pleaser, and may send many of the customers home nursing an irritated throat. This match features the cocky Hiram Short and Walter Mattson.

Short's antics in the ring do anything but make him popular with the fans, while Mattson is a tough, easy-going fighter who doesn't become stimulated to his best effort until riled. After Hiram lands two or three of his jolting right hands, Mattson should respond and turn in the exhibition his capabilities warrant.

Another contest which promises to produce an emotional gallery is the 130 lb. fracas between Le Roy Brock and Dominick Mancuso.

BROCK MAY WIN BY KO

Brock has looked particularly adept in his training drills and may stop his opponent by virtue of a KO. Off past performances, and allowing that Mancuso doesn't upset the dope, more leather should be thrown in this heat than any of the other 15 matches.

Basing predictions on past successes, the entertainment tonight looks to be the biggest and most dynamic program ever attempted. Boxing festivities begin promptly at 7:45, with a prelude of badminton and ping-pong starting at 6:30.

Admission, with Associated Student card, is gratis; for others, it's 60 cents.

LONE RINGMAN returning to do battle in tonight's AMS glovefest is Varthes Miroyian, who in his last pugilistic outing was decisioned by Van Critchfield in the 150 lb. class. This semester, with 5 lbs. added, Varthes will "try, try, again" against Sakaye Yoshida with The Guardsman picking the veteran to come out on top.

Intra Grid, Softball Entries Due Tomorrow

Tomorrow, Wednesday, May 21, is the last day on which applications will be accepted for the intramural softball and touch football tournaments.

The softball registrants are expected to field an eleven man team, while the football squads are to be composed of eight regular members and two substitutes.

A FELLOW by the name of Rube Samuelson, who writes a weekly column about sports in Southern California in a local morning paper, gives out with the dope that women will henceforth be barred from the pressboxes of Pacific Coast Conference football games.

Zounds! This is 1947, not the dark ages; don't the officials of the PCC realize this?

This may be out of place, but in defense of women's rights, we hereby offer seats, to any San Francisco Junior College football game, in the pressbox to any lassie of the press.

It has come to our attention that great stress is placed on the sport of boxing in the various colleges, this one included. Now we have no complaint on this field at all, but we do want to know why the colleges do not give to the world any great world champions, or to be specific, any champions in the professional sport.

The colleges have given us great professional baseball players, Frankie Frisch, Sam Chapman and many others. Ninety-nine per cent of the professional football players are former college men.

Almost any sport that you can name has its share of college men who star in the professional sport. That is, except boxing. As we think back only one man with a college education has ever made headlines. We are speaking of Lou Nova, who, if our mind serves us right, attended California Aggie college. If Mr. Nova is the best the colleges and universities can turn out, they'd better drop the manly art of self-defense from their curriculum.

90 Pigskinners Turn Out For Initial Practice; Gaddy, Fischer Assisting

Grover Klemmer, the spring practice coach for the Ram grid ensemble, continued to workout in the basic fundamentals of the pigskin art, the 90 football men who turned out for the preview 1947 pigskin session.

Last week's early aches, pains, and moans were released from the players' joints, and the players hardened themselves during the daily two hour sessions for the coming team scrimmages.

GADDY, FISCHER ASSIST

Valuable assistance during the preseason test period is coming from physical education mentors Jack Gaddy and Bill Fischer.

While Klemmer kept his worries with the backfield hopefuls, "Giant Jackson" Gaddy has taken over the development of the end positions. Gaddy, at one time the star end for the University of San Francisco, busied his ends both on defense and offense practice.

Last season's line coach, Bill Fischer, takes over the tutoring of the forward ramp of the college gridders, when the linemen receive the Fischer football fundamentals. The former Moraga All-American will work the college liners for speed and power.

KLEMMER SECRET INTACT

The formations and plays for the collegians still exist as the "Klemmer secret" and will probably remain that way until the sideline discussions of the "Big Three" have decided and formed the scrimmage teams.

Klemmer still is in hopes for new and more men to become new members of the college football training program. Prospective signups can see any of the three coaches during the day in the gymnasium or on Balboa Park Field after 3 p. m.

Ram Runners Junket To Modesto Saturday

Jim Jensen's second place Ram cinderhurners, 15 in number, get one more crack at the Modesto supermen next Saturday when the Pirates entertain most of the schools in the conference at their own brainchild, the Modesto Relays.

Boasting a very fast track, the valley hosts expect to set the pace in an extravaganza which may well see some records fall.

The mile relay mark has been teetering on the brink all season, with the Ram quartet running a surprising 3:26 to win at Sacramento.

This isn't too far away from the 3:23 figure recorded in the books, and given a good day, the Red and White four-man wingfoots might turn the trick.

The 440 should furnish some good action, with stablemates Jim Wyatt and Bob Caredio out for each other's hide again. Wyatt won by a whisker

Ram, Modesto Pennant Series Evenup; City Nine Wins 8-7, Then Dumped 7-2

By Sam Goldman

Modesto Junior College's valley champs and the coast leading San Francisco Rams remained deadlocked for the NCJCC baseball crown, when the hosting fog-hill players snagged the opening win of the playoffs 8-7, but the Pirates reiterated their batting power by taking the nightcap 7-2, last saturday at Big Rec diamond.

Trailing in the lower half of the eighth inning, the Rams scored three runs on Jim Hughes' walk, Al Ganem's infield single, Zane Kaplan's sneak to first base on an error, and two more successive errors scored Hughes, Ganem, and Kaplan.

Ciramele's Double Wins Game

Lone Ram twirler Hughes was relieved in the ninth by pitcher Bill Kenna. The Modestans paced Kenna's pitches to the plate and tied up the ball game on a pair of scoring walks.

In their ups in the ninth, Ram first sacker Art Ciramele doubled to right-field, and a wild pitch by Modesto pitcher Tamo tallied Ciramele across the plate with the winning run.

Modestans Slam 11 Hits

After having pitched to only one man in the opener and still given credit for the win, Kaplan once again had to relieve B. Kenna on the mound but failed to be effective in his efforts as the visiting Bucs banged across a total of seven runs on eleven base hits to win the second contest, 7-2.

Bill Covall and Joe Barton were the only match visitors for the college netmen as the visiting San Franciscans were handed their fifth seasonal defeat by the Menlo squad on the Stanford courts, 5-2.

Bear All American To Teach Economics

Lee Eisan, head football coach at the College, after reaching the peak of his career, officially announced today that he will retire as coach at the end of the semester.

Eisan, coach for two successive grid championship teams, announced his decision to resign his post in favor of younger blood.

All American in 1928 and '29, Eisan was star quarterback for the University of California before beginning his coaching career at the college in 1935. Eisan, originator of the shovel pass, a quick short pass over center, was made head coach of the Rams in 1939.

According to Eisan, who will remain as economics and hygiene instructor, spring training is now in the hands of Grover Klemmer who, up until now, has concentrated on the backfield.

As yet no successor has been named by the administration for the head position.

Pest Control Service Hoists Rat Warning

Because of careless habits by students in blanketing the campus grounds with luncheon papers and food particles, an exterminator of the pest control service representing the Board of Education is demanding of the caretakers of this college more cleanliness from the students.

Otherwise the results will be an infestation of rats and mice spreading disease, plus a bad reputation of the college, P. L. Schlesinger, assistant supervisor of building maintenance, warned yesterday.

"With the expenditure up to hundreds of dollars a day on water and labor, the expectation that students will take care in discarding papers and food particles is not too much to wish for," Schlesinger said.

Vet Affairs

Summer School GI's Must File With VA

All student veterans desiring to attend the summer quarter under the G. I. Bill must file a Declaration of Intent form with the Veterans Administration Office in Building 3 in order that their subsistence allowance will not be terminated at the end of the present semester, William I. Olsen, training officer, revealed yesterday.

This form should be completed before May 26, 1947, by all veterans who desire:

1. To continue during the summer session in this college.
2. To transfer elsewhere for summer session.
3. To enter some other type of training.
4. To apply for annual leave.
5. To change their mailing addresses for checks due July 1.

Upon receipt of the declarations, the Veterans Administration will continue the subsistence allowance payments of veterans who intend to enroll for the summer quarter here.

The administration also will issue a special supplemental certificate for three months to veterans who wish to attend the regular academic summer session of any other accredited college or university.

Requests for accumulated leave of absence and for changes of address will receive prompt attention, Olsen disclosed.

Beta Phi Beta's Hold Beachcombers Party

The curtain will go up on Beta Phi Beta's Beachcombers Paradise, Friday, May 23, as their contribution to the semester's social activities, according to Frank Reed, chairman for the affair.

Students who deplore dress clothes will find this evening's entertainment to their liking, as the order of the day stresses garb of informal nature, just so it is casual. Levis and plaid shirts, and gingham dresses form the basic costumes desired, Reed said.

To the persons sporting the best get up in the opinion of the judges, will be presented an appropriate prize.

The festivities will take place at the Ariel Rowing Club, Aquatic Park, and Reed expects the first strains of Bob Harrison's music will come forth promptly at 8 p. m. The curtain drops at midnight.

Reed added, "We expect next Friday's dance to be one of the best in the history of the college. Tickets are on sale for the nominal fee of $1.50 and may be purchased from any member of Beta Phi Beta."

Richmond Bus Route Possible Next Fall

Calling on all interested students to inquire at his office in Building 2, Dean Edward E. Sandys announced tentative bus service between Richmond and this college for next semester.

Whether the service is begun will depend on the number of students who go to his office, Sandys stated this week.

Tickets for this service will go at ten dollars a person on a monthly basis. The Student Bank may handle the selling of tickets, Sandys said. He warned that at least 12 passengers would necessarily be standees.

Operating on a Monday through Friday schedule, the buses will leave Richmond at 8 a. m. From this central point, location of which is undecided, the buses will follow San Pablo Avenue with stops at Albany, El Cerrito, and Berkeley.

The buses, under ownership of the Sequoia Bus Company, are tentatively set to leave the college at 3 p. m. or 4 p. m.

All Lockers Must Be Emptied By June 6

Announcing that all student lockers must be cleaned before Friday, June 6, Assistant Dean Jack Brady today issued warnings that following that date all combinations will be changed and articles taken out during the week of June 7 to 14.

Meeting the June 6 deadline is of great importance to the students, for the administrative staff removes all clothing, books, binders, and combinations will be different, Brady said.

Variety Show

Lambda Alpha Springs All-Star Show Tomorrow Night Direct From Broadway

Lambda Alpha, campus music honor society, will take over the student lounge tomorrow night and convert it into a typical Broadway night club for their gala Variety Show—admission only 35 cents.

The entire ensemble will open the show chanting Hi Neighbor!, and from there the production will move on in high gear spotlighting such popular campus entertainers as Elmer Dickey, highly acclaimed as the Paul Robeson of the college; Bob Sherrat, Jane Swendson, Gloria Orzanco, Jim Finley, Peggy Gay, and Roy Abadi, all veterans of the successful first variety show.

"Rockets" On Program

These stalwarts will be abetted by a fresh and equally talented contingent including Johnny Morton, alias Jadoo the Magician; satin-voiced Jackie Bobbett, and a bevy of visiting chorines straight from New York and the Rockefeller Center line-up of precision dancers, the Rockets.

The Rockets, well known for their precision dancing, have graduated many famous movie stars from their ranks, including some who have been compared with Ruby Keeler and Eleanor Powell.

Harris Will Emcee

Abad, program director, will also conduct the orchestra for the evening. Hal Harris (just as good — but still not to be confused with a Tommy Harris from some competing night spot) will MC the program.

Lambda Alpha officials promise an active evening; the society, first organized last semester, is a mecca for outstanding musical talent on the campus.

Student Body

Large Enrollment May Create Havoc

By Jack Hulse

"Chaos will mark next semester's activities."

Those horrow stricken words came from the well-known lips of a college official (whose name cannot be revealed) when he got the news that next semester might see a peak enrollment of 7,500 students at this college.

Classes In Student Store?

The student store is in danger of being turned into a classroom and will probably feature a new course, namely, Card Sharp 21A.

The Guardsman and Forum may be forced to occupy the same west campus building. It is feared in press circles that the quality of both will be sadly impaired.

Goes Coed?

Gym classes might undergo drastic revision with physical instruction on a coeducational basis. This step would be necessary if one of the gym buildings is used as a class in plant culture.

The other gym would be divided into two parts for the two sexes. How the division will be accomplished is not known but will probably be affected by a system of drapes or screens.

A suggestion from the plant culture department that the gym be divided by trellises and vines was turned down at once by officials who fear that students will hide in the shrubbery and, to quote the same official, "stuff like that there."

Campus politicos may hold meetings to find ways and means of controlling the deluge of office candidates resulting from the influx. Revision of their entire set-up may be needed to handle as many as three contestants for each post.

Constitution Changes

Yell Leader, Three Cabinet Posts Go On ASSFJC Ballot

Proposed amendments to the constitution and by-laws of the Associated Students will be accepted or rejected in the elections set for Wednesday and Thursday, May 28 and 29, having already been passed by the Student Council.

A two-thirds vote will be required to make the proposed constitutional amendments law.

Drawn up by a committee under Roberta Robb, the proposed constitutional amendments provide for election of a cheer leader by the Student Council "after tryouts, notice of which shall be published at least two weeks prior to the date of the tryouts." As the constitution now stands, the cheer leader is appointed by the Rally Commissioner.

Three Added to Cabinet

Another recommendation of the committee necessitating a change in the constitution is that the Club Advisory Board president, the Judiciary Force chairman, and the Finance Committee chairman be added to the president's cabinet.

Recommendations of the committee are posted on a bulletin board in the lobby of the main building, in accordance with a provision in the constitution that proposed amendments be posted at least a week before elections.

Council Approves

The Student Council approved the above recommendations, as well as several changes in the by-laws, last Tuesday. The changes in the by-laws do not have to be submitted to the Associated Students, according to the constitution, but are being so submitted as a referendum.

Committee under Miss Robb included Don Burger, Dan Goldman, Lou Nielsen, Frank Nelson, Pat Pollack, and Bud Marble.

Psychology Of Stage Fright Aired Tonight

Phyllis Haley of the college psychology department will present a lecture on the psychological approach to stage fright in Room 200 on Tuesday, May 27, at 10 a. m.

Miss Haley will give the talk principally for the members of Flossita Badger's voice class; however, all interested students are invited to attend. This lecture should be invaluable to persons who appear before the public in any capacity.

Beachcomber Costumes Feature Dance Tonight

The social spotlight which focuses on the best of local entertainment will be turned on the Ariel Rowing Club tonight at 8 p. m. as the curtain goes up on Beta Phi Beta's Beachcombers Paradise, a different evening of dancing, according to Frank Reed, chairman for the affair.

Costumes, basically ginghams and levis, will be in order for the dance, and the committee hopes that everyone will cooperate, and by doing so, be eligible for the mysterious door prize, which will be awarded to the couple displaying the best "garb" as judged by the overseers of the affair.

Music for the evening's syncopated gyrations will be provided by Bob Harrison and his popular orchestra.

Ducats for the Paradise can be obtained from any member of Beta Phi Beta for the nominal sum of $1.50.

Special College Hour

Candidates For Associated Student Offices To Spark Auditorium Program; Two Hour Program Will Start At 9:50

Introduction of candidates for Associated Student offices will spark the semester's last rally program in the west campus auditorium today. The registrar's office has announced that the 10 o'clock class will be dismissed to enable students to attend the entire rally.

The program starts at 9:50 and runs through the regular college hour that ends at 11:20 o'clock. Ten o'clock classes will not meet.

Designed as a continuous program with a fast pace the two periods will provide time for a twin-featured program, Assistant Dean Jack Brady said Tuesday.

Half of the twin-featured program will be a group of professional entertainers from down town San Francisco, Rally Commissioner Jim Mann definitely promised.

The other part of the twin will feature the opening of the political campaigns for the various Associated Student offices.

This twin-billed college hour program has been planned partly to stimulate interest in the Associated Student elections to be held Tuesday and Wednesday, May 27 and 28.

Graduation Rehearsed In Auditorium June 13

Rehearsals for student commencement will take place in the Waves Auditorium, Friday, June 13 at 10 a. m., Lloyd Luckmann, chairman of the graduation committee said today. Luckmann said that all graduates will be notified this week of their eligibility by mail from the registrar's office.

Students who applied for graduation last summer, fall, or this spring, will be included in the ceremony.

He added that only those students holding Associated Student cards will receive their caps and gowns free. Students without the student cards must pay a nominal rental fee.

Long Beach To Curb All Non-Card Holders

LONG BEACH CITY COLLEGE, May 2—Students who do not hold student body cards will not be allowed to participate in intramural sports, club or social activities at the City College, according to a recent bulletin from the dean of activities' office.

Check on students who are active in any Associated Student group will be made this semester, and a complete list of ineligible students will be posted early in the fall semester. Lists of club members not holding student body cards will be sent to all clubs.

Poll Rules

Election Committee Issues Do's, Don'ts

Rules governing the conduct of candidates and their supporters during the election period were issued yesterday by Chester Fong, election committee chairman.

Fong announced that campaign regulations effected by the committee will limit election activities as follows:

1. All publicity stunts must be sanctioned by either the office of the Dean of Men or the office of Dean of Women.

2. A total of nine posters, five on the campus and four for each one of the stores surrounding the college, will be allowed, provided they are approved by Fanchon Gary of the art department. Candidates will be held for the posting and removal of their placards. These placards are not to exceed 22 by 27 inches in dimension.

3. Active electioneering of any sort is to be prohibited in the vicinity of the polls.

The election committee has set voting time and dates for Wednesday, May 28, 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.; and Thursday, May 29, 9:30 a. m. to 3 p. m.

West Campus Ram Finally Gets New Spring Garb

By Mnx Call

Termed as the ghost of the college by a passing truck driver, and receiving the attention of Curtis Shoemaker who is painting it, the Ram is now being given its new spring suit.

It is taking approximately two quarts of paint to cover the specter of the campus. There is not, at present, any set color scheme for the monument.

Final Color Undecided

Through arrangements with Dean Edward Sandys, Shoemaker spent three hours last Saturday and a few hours Monday morning applying the first coat of paint. The remainder of the task will have to wait until a color plan is decided upon.

Shoemaker was given the privilege of doing the job because he owed Dean Sandys some time from another job. He is a student of the college and a major in engineering.

May Become Target

There is a great deal of speculation concerning the future position of the Ram in the college functions. It has been attacked by the students of San Mateo in the past, and it is this paint job which is covering the scars of that episode. Some expect the monument will become a symbol of the college spirit, or a point of tradition connected with the rivalry with San Mateo.

The defense of the Ram will be comparable to the session of the big "C" on the California campus. It will mean midnight watches by fraternity pledges during the weeks of football season, and an annual cleanup of the symbol each spring.

LOTS OF ENEGRY—but not enough paint—that was the story last Sunday afternoon when Curtis Schoemeker, student at the college, applied the first coat of glossy white to the Ram on the west Campus. Photo by O'Reilly

Class Will Hold Picnic At Adobe Creek On Sunday

As the opening gun in an entertainment packed period of sophomore class events, the Sophomore Picnic is scheduled for Adobe Creek Lodge, near Los Altos, this Sunday, May 25, Astrid Wettin, sophomore president, said today.

Admission to the day long vacation can be gained by payment of one dollar per person at the entrance of the extensive park.

Car Pool Will Be Formed

Dress will be sports wear and guests should bring their own equipment and lunches for a day beginning at 9:30 a. m. and featuring varied activities, which include tennis, swimming and dancing from 6 to 10 in the evening, Miss Wettin, stated.

Miss Wettin asked all car owners to help in the formation of a car caravan which will form in front of the college and leave at 9:30 a. m.

Directions to Picnic Given

For the benefit of those students who are not familiar with the lodge's location, Miss Wettin gave the following directions:

"Go north down Ocean Avenue to Junipero Serra Boulevard, continue on the boulevard past Daly City until U. S. 101 (El Camino Real) is joined. Go south towards Stanford University. Turn right off 101 at San Antonio Road, go through Los Altos, and continue until El Monte Road is reached. Turn right on El Monte for a little over three miles where the Adobe Creek Lodge can be found on the left side of the road."

Coronation Ball Climaxes Season

As a climax to the college social season, the sophomore formal, themed Coronation Ball, will be staged next week, Thursday, May 29, at the Scottish Rite Temple in Oakland.

Details of the traditional, semi-annual dance were given by Astrid Wettin, sophomore class president, who revealed, this week, that admission would be two dollars per couple, with tickets on sale throughout the campus by members of the Social Committee, and at the doorway to the dance located at 1547 Oak Street, by the shores of Oakland's lovely Lake Merritt.

Music for the 9 to midnight festivities will be provided by Bob Emerson and his orchestra.

Dress will be formal; however, because of the present tuxedo shortage, business suits will not be out of order. Corsages will be in evidence with the dropping of the college's no corsage rule for the purposes of this dance.

Quota Not Filled For Richmond Bus Service

A last call to all students interested in signing up for the proposed bus service between this college and Richmond for next semester, was issued by Dean Edward E. Sandys from his office in Building 2, this week.

"We urgently need 40 more students to sign up for this service at my office if we are to continue planning for it. Any student interested should sign up at once."

Tickets for this service, if it is carried into effect, will go at ten dollars per person on a monthly basis. The student bank may handle the selling of tickets, Sandys said. He warned that at least 12 passengers would necessarily be standees.

Student Complacency

Voting A Waste Of Time?

THERE has been the usual attempt made by some righteous people in the past few weeks, to get the general student body active in the coming student elections.

What a waste of time!

If these people would only realize that most students are not only not active, but totally lacking in interest in elections on this campus, they would cease their efforts immediately.

Evidence of previous elections would indicate that not more than one-third of the Associated Students will even bother to vote, much less take part in the electioneering.

Therefore, the righteous ones should stop their drive now, before they become too boring.

If the students don't want to vote, why bother them? Especially, why try to make them cognizant of their so-called responsibilities?

After all, the people elected have little authority. They merely hold the purse strings of the Associated Students and set policy for student action and behavior.

The fact that these small powers and a few others might be, nay, have been, misused, need not be considered.

In time, perhaps the complacency of the average student will change, but in the light of former events such a change is improbable.

On the other hand, it is up to them. It is still within the realm of possibility that more students will want a part in campus politics which affect them so much and that these students will become actively interested, even to the point of casting a ballot on election days.

After Dark

Today's column written by Nell Sullivan

FRANK Yerby's The Foxes of Harrow has cast a shadow—The Vixens, but as at noon when the shadow is feeble, so is this author's second attempt.

The Vixens is a novel of the vivid reconstruction of the old South. The story itself is a continuation and complement of The Foxes of Harrow, which deals with the decade up to the outbreak of the Civil War.

The principal character, Laird Fornois, persists in contorting himself into the character pattern of his successor, Stephen Fox, and the contortion is not pleasant.

The locale of The Vixens is in and about New Orleans, centering mostly upon the plantation of Plaisance, which is the inheritance of Laird Fornois, an elder son of a Southern planter, who, incensed by the treatment of the negroes on his father's estate, migrates to Pennsylvania, where he disgraces his family by joining the Northern army.

Now, his father dead, he returns to his legacy. There he meets his future wife, Sabrina, a typically beautiful belle of the old pattern. Sabrina later loses her mind upon their wedding night, as a result of her father's death at the hands of the negroes in a rebellion chiefly induced by Hugh Duncan, an almost womanly handsome man, with a cold streak of cruelty.

Hugh Duncan features largely in the story, playing the part of the villain, instigating the forerunner of the Ku Klux Klan, and bringing disaster upon all in general, as all good villains should.

Laird Fornois acquires an extracurricular interest in Demise Lascals, his distant and very arresting raven-haired cousin, and things become more complicated from that point on.

The Vixens is a frame for what might have been an interesting novel. Frank Yerby's knowledge of the South and its negro problem is very extensive, and should predict a manuscript more like his first book, while his experience as a Southern negro should lend an understanding depth, which a white man lacks. But The Vixens lacks the lusty vitality and the aliveness to make it an extensively read work, while the plot smacks too much of a prototype to carry any great deal of sincerity.

Today's column written by Del Pichon

IN case you happen to be interested, student elections are going to be held next week. Those of you who are convulsed with burning ardor by this earth-shaking announcement should be interested in knowing something about what is coming off. So would we.

Are you a Greek? Are you a campus Queen or a rambling wheel about this college? . . . No? Well, if you aren't, you don't know anything about the elections. You don't know who the candidates are and you care less!

YOU have no interest in YOUR government at this college!

My . . . Hang your head in shame! To think that you know nothing about the people who lay claim to knowing everything about you, how to govern you with patience and benevolence. Don't you even know that a student government exists? Ah, you poor soul, you don't know what you're missing!

Soon, perhaps even now, you will see posters appearing about the college proclaiming the merits of candidates about whom the greater part of the students know nothing. Candidates are nominated by the campus caste who are known as the wheels or the cogs of the social merry-go-round on these venerable premises.

The posters usually contain sonorous and trite phrases which resound with studied vacuity of thought, but they do sound good. They run something like this. "You'll get no Spam, if you elect Sad Sam!" . . . "You'll be up a tree, if you don't vote for sweet Marie!" Quaint aren't they?

During all this hubbub you remain blissfully unaware of the powerful Ramifications which will result from this major event. You just don't give a damn!

But you are content to let the "happy little Greeks" putter around officiously with their new-found importance. You're happy in your little enchanted forest. Who are they to shatter your dream?

Let them play while they may; you can have consolation, if you wish, in recalling that as history shows, eventually the "Greeks" were overcome by the "barbarians."

They say that history repeats itself, and if you are interested in this vital topic you might find out for yourself . . . barbarians, that is.

STANDBY

THE American Veteran's Committee chapter at the college has chosen three delegates to represent the college at the A.V.C. National Convention to be held at Milwaukee, June 19, 1947. AL DEUTSCH, DAN GOLDEN, and WILLIAM JONAS were the delegates with DON FROST, LEO GREENFIELD, and CHARLES KAHN serving as alternates.

Terminating the college's contributions for hospitalized servicemen for this semester, will be the talent offerings of MARJORIE FULTON and LINDA PATTON, campus thrushes, who will entertain the boys at LETTERMAN HOSPITAL on Thursday, May 29. The various college entertainers who have appeared at hospital shows through the sponsorship of FLOSSITA BADGER, choral director, have received high praise from such organizations as the Red Cross.

PAUL ELLISON, English instructor at the college, who had vast experience on the London stage, recently gave a short talk to the dramatic classes of Ruth Somers and Lloyd Sisler.

Delusions: We Used To Labor Under Them

EVER since that day 'way back when we peeked through the front room keyhole and caught the old man hiding a scooter behind the Christmas tree instead of one K. Kringle, as expected, we've suffered one disillusionment after another.

Or, a little later in the early thirties, when we used to stand on Chattanooga Street hill and watch huge trucks loaded down with grapes plodding up the grade.

Scratching our heads in consternation . . . wondering why so many people suddenly developed a craving for purple grapes, and why, instead of appearing on the dinner table, they would end up in a big wooden barrel out in the backyard.

RECALLS

PLANS, plans, and more plans, the past is full of plans, and very little action concerning some of them. The time is ripe to propose the construction of a football stadium.

Consideration is being given to a change in the college name, so why not consider the stadium problem, which has been part of the college since its beginning, at the same time.

What with the possession of an alumni group, it is possible for the students to act with those graduates in an effort to gain a profitable athletic organization.

MORE SPORT SUPPORT

The college sports have operated in the red long enough. They have never realized a profit in a single past season. Although there have been championship teams, they have received darn little student or alumni support.

Perhaps a few bleacher seats constructed on the hillside next to the present practice field, and the development of a better track set-up will tend to create a little more interest in our games and contests.

Everyone is taking a swing at the college name; it needs swinging at. Los Angeles City College made the step a long time ago, and at almost the same time, 10 years ago, this college tried to make the change also.

ENLIST AID

The college is building a rivalry with L. A., and this rivalry is really a result of that engaged in by the two cities' Chambers of Commerce. We should be able to enlist the aid of that organization in this city.

Let us recall a bit of that old college spirit and give ourselves a wonderful time along with a wonderful education, lets get together and make a few memories for ourselves.

EVER SINCE

We began to suspect that life wasn't all it should be the day that new "Wallpaper" store opened up under the flat across the street.

Everybody that went in there came out with a roll . . . but it wasn't wallpaper.

When the old man mentioned something about a "blind pig" we were still naive enough to think he was bringing home some sort of a pet for us.

BIRDS & BEES DEPT.

The time we heard that the cute little brunette we had a crush on wasn't entirely sugar'nspice'neverything nice was quite a jolt too.

We stood up well under the impact of the news that the stork was, in reality, just a big, silly looking bird carrying nothing but a beakful of dead fish around.

In the years to follow we were introduced to the "hooray for me, to hell with you" school when we did a hitch in a CCC camp.

At the very first meal in the big mess hall we innocently reached for a slice of bread when the dinner whistle blew.

We still bear scars from fork lacerations.

Time tromped forward, and we went along with it to find ourselves encased in a size 38 OD blanket and packed off to the wars.

THE EAGLE AND I

Bearing malice toward none, however, we did what was told of us in the Army and soon learned to salute everything that moved and to look upon all Army officers as masters of our soul.

We put 'em all up on pedestals. From the lowest of the 2nd lieutenants to the brassiest of brigadiers, we highballed everyone of them.

Particularly we held nothing but high esteem for the all-mighty colonels—the company commanders . . . there were the men of the service!

Lately that old feeling is back on us again . . . we just learned another colonel, the third, is up for court martial on a smuggling charge.

We're still kicking ourselves for bringing a duffle bag of dirty laundry through customs. It could have been 50 pounds of Chinese opium.

Lawn Disappearance Noted; Suggestion Box Suggested; Site Ok'd

• Bird Bath Campus

Editor, The Guardsman:

The lawn(?) around the buildings of the west campus is slowly being reduced to irrigation ditches. Or is the grass being destroyed, so that desert plant life may be planted? It doesn't seem plausible to me that so much water should be put on the lawns so that birds can splash around in it. Can't something be done about it? Hopeful

• N.B. Instructors

Editor, The Guardsman:

I am one of the many students who would like the use of suggestion boxes. Sometimes students have good ideas on various school activities and they hate to run down to The Guardsman every time an idea comes to their head. Also through these suggestion boxes they can inform some of the instructors of their bad faults and how they can present their courses and make them more interesting.

I realize that all instructors cannot be A-1 but there is plenty of room for improvement.

Editor, The Guardsman:

Maybe I'm prejudiced because this is my third term at J.C., but I've become very bored of having the Soph Formal, the most important dance of the year, at the Colonial Room. I practically jumped with joy when I heard that this term it was being given somewhere else—especially when that somewhere is the Scottish Rite Temple in Oakland. It is a fine place—beautiful and large (also right next to Lake Merritt!).

Anyway, thank you Astrid Wettin or Ozzie or whoever is responsible for planning a dance that will be different and not in a stuffy hotel room. Third Termer

Vol. XXIV, No. 22 FRIDAY, MAY 23, 1947 Page 3

RAMblings . .

By Paul Cane

LAST Sunday was a typical lonely San Francisco day (Dale Carnegie never mentioned just what a columnist should do to win a friend), and we had loads of time to think about the epic that would appear in print today.

Since the last two Friday issues have been devoted to baseball and baseball players, we thought it wise to discuss an activity with another title lest we find all of our readers (such conceit!) connected with the Ram horsehide enterprise.

GURGLE, GURGLE—IDEA!

Between slps on the "Fortunate Lager" a sudden thought struck us . . . why not, we mused, talk about Lee Elsan?

Good ol' Lee has been directing porkhide ventures on this windblown hill since 1939, won two championships during the interim, but has had his moniker mentioned only casually during this spring semester.

So today, cousin, Elsan it is!

We spoke to the hero of this epistle less than a week ago, and were most startled to learn of his lately mentioned resignation.

NO ONE LIKES DOUBLE WING

"Lee, ol' buddy," we queried, "what made you do it? We're 'gona' miss your 'hands - in - pockets - shoulders - slumped-walk' back and forth in front of the alma mammy bench."

"Hated to do it," was the erstwhile mentor's retort, "but this 'T' formation stuff is drivin' me nutz. Guess Pop Warner and myself will die by our guns."

And that's the scoop, fellow sports fans; California Lee would rather hang up his dirty old cleats than teach an offense he didn't have faith in.

We're kinda' sorry though, 'cause Lee was a very competent guy.

Boxing

700 See Upsets In AMS Fight Show

With the favored selections losing six of their 16 bouts, Tom Wilson's AMS Boxing Show was run off Tuesday evening amidst a gathering of 700 of the fistic faithful.

Johnny Fisher supported his press clippings by copping the nod over an aggressive Ken Unmack in the fast three round main event.

Judges Undecided

While Unmack put up a good contest and proved himself a capable opponent for the Champ, we thought that Fisher won each round. The three judges, however, were split in their decision, two calling the fight even, and the third giving Fisher the decision.

In the 145 pound class, shrewd John Enomoto had too much ability and know-how for Bob Knefke.

Other results follow: Monroy dec. Chang; Joe Hanlon won over Carlos Hoyos in a stinker; Fong lost to Kolos; and Dominick Mancuso upset the heavily favored LeRoy Brock in a fast match.

Brown Runs Fast

Broussard beat Rodden; Ken Brown set a new record for the 100 dash when he out-tracked Ed Lui; Pickens had too much right hand for Kitta; and John Bay won over Bob Piva.

Yoshida out-wrestled Miroylan; Allemand beat Yoon in a good fight; Harry Wong TKO'd Al Richardson when the latter quit; Koch dec. Pierce; Hal Stone won a close one from Larry Wolfe; and, in the evening's final, Hiram Short's arms were a little too long for Walter Mattson.

Profs Flunk Tennis Midterm 5-2

"With a "this hurts us more than it does you" spirit prevailing, the varsity tennis team of the college proceeded to administer a mild shellacking last Thursday to their distinguished opponents from the faculty on the Golden Gate Park courts, with a 5-2 win.

Although not figured to do much more than show us, the profs got in lots of good licks during the afternoon. Coach Ralph Hillsman proved that the pulmotor squad standing by for an emergency was strictly there for laughs as far as he was concerned, when he rang up a singles victory over the varsity's Joe Barton.

The faculty's doubles team of Wilson and McKenzie also showed that they're not ready to hang 'em up yet when they drubbed the favored duo of Pat Haeggerty and Frank Reed of the student team.

Having proved themselves worthy in the trial-by-fire test, the good instructors are looking forward to more of the same kind of recreation next term, and promise their younger opponents that whichever way the scores add up, there will be no hard feelings in class the following week.

Nine Battles Modesto For NCJC Crown

Cinder And Net Teams Hit The Road; Harriers In Season Finale At Modesto As Racketmen Face Marin At Kentfield

Hoping to wind up the current track season with a bang, the Ram gladiators of the cinder paths take to the highway tomorrow morning for the long journey southward to the valley town of Modesto for participation in the famed annual Modesto Relays.

Though the boys will not be in the best physical shape they will no doubt make formidable showing in the butter town extravaganza.

The reason for these physical defects has been the almost unending stream of pulled muscles plaguing the team.

Bob Di Grazia pulled up with second strained legs of the semester during the running of the half mile relay, forcing the red and white entry to be removed.

With two members of the mile relay squad, Jim Wyatt and Bob Zarick, on the "sick" list, the Hilltop cindermen consider themselves lucky to grab a third place far behind the strong Compton and Los Angeles aggregations.

With the southern colleges absent tomorrow the Ram runners will be pointing for the top spot come the finish line.

With a 4 win, 4 loss record behind them, the Bay City racket men tangle with Marin Junior College on the Mariners' courts at Kentfield tomorrow morning.

The contest will be the season finals for the locals as far as match play is concerned, however the entire team will participate in the Northern California Junior College Conference meet to be held at Stockton the following weekend.

The Mariners boast only a so-so net aggregation and hopes that the locals will end the current season with one better than a 50-50 record are high.

The race for the conference championship is as jumbled as humanly possible and at this writing only one thing is definite. The local team will not be on top of the heap when the smoke clears away. Menlo and Modesto are running neck and neck with San Mateo and Salinas just a few percentage points off the pace for the conference title.

Sac'to Mentor Named Regional Jaysee Head

SACRAMENTO, Calif., May 21—(AP)—Eight regional vice-presidents were named today by Captain E. P. Coleman, president of the National Junior College Athletic Association to direct the activities of the associations in various sections of the country.

They included Earle J. Holmes, Compton College for the Western region and Ned Key, Sacramento City College for the Pacific Northwest.

Fall Soccer Depends On Amount Of Signups

Whether the Red and White will field a soccer team next semester hinges largely on the results on the signup to be held on Wednesday, May 28 in the Men's gymnasium. Ralph Hilisman has been named as coach of the first prospective postwar varsity soccer squad.

Hilisman stated that if a sufficient number of men signup, the college will compete in the regular NCJCC round robin schedule.

Ram Diamond Men Journey To Valley For Crucial Rubber Game Tomorrow

Tomorrow is the day.

With spirit and determination in their hearts, the title-defending Ram nine pack their spikes and gloves to Modesto tomorrow to play the Pirates in the deciding game of the 1947 NCJCC baseball playoffs.

CHET ANDERSON, uppar picture, is shown taking a heavy cut at the horsehide. Anderson, who is a outfielder, is a heavy hitter and his bat is expected to help lowar the boom on Modesto, tomorrow in the NCJCC championship game, at Modesto. In the lower photo is Bob Nard, a shortstop, a sharp fielder and hitter, and greduate of Poly High in San Francisco. —Photo by Davis.

Tied in the series at one game apiece, the winner of the tilt will receive the conference laurels. Probable starting time for the game is 12:30 p. m.

Bill Fischer, mentor of the Coast Division champions, will send big righthander Jim Hughes to the mound in an effort to capture his second conference crown. Hughes, who has a hurling record of seven wins and one defeat, is the workhorse of the Phelan Avenue squad.

While he was not his usual effective self last Saturday, that failing can be laid to the fact that he has pitched 42 innings in the past 15 days, racking up four wins and no defeats, but the strong armed hurler has been given a full week's rest in preparation for tomorrow's contest and should be able to give one of his better mound performances.

The ersatz Valley Division champions exhibited a well balanced club in their twin-bill here. Coached by Ralph Johnson, the Modestoans finished their season in the runner-up spot behind the Sacramento entry, but were boosted into the top position when the undefeated Panthers were found to have used ineligible players.

Although somewhat on the small side, the Pirates showed ability to hit a long ball. Defensively, the men from Modesto have one of the best infields in the conference, with Bernard Sousa at shortstop and Hal Santos at the keystone position.

The main Ram hitting chores will fall on the bats of thirdsacker Al Ganem and centerfielder Zanc Kaplan, both long hall hitters. In his last 15 trips to the plate, Ganem has collected 9 hits, including a double, two triples, and a homerun.

The committee has also recommended Mary Perrano and Mary Evans for secretary, and Anne Chestang, Jean Sliter and Annette Lowe for treasurer.

Results of the election were disclosed at the WAA banquet which is to be held at Lake Merced last night, and with the names of block award winners will be released soon.

Luckmann Discloses Tentative Courses For Quarter Of June 20 To August 22

A complete list of course offerings for and information about the college summer quarter, beginning Friday, June 20, and terminating August 22, was released this week by Lloyd Luckmann, director of the summer quarter.

Any of the courses which fail to enroll sufficient students to warrant instruction will be withdrawn before the end of the first week of the semester.

"Students enrolled in Physics 24a, 24c will not be allowed to take another course, and those enrolled in chemistry should not take another lab course," Luckmann said.

Students must meet the following requirements to be admitted to chemistry 21a in the Summer semester:

(a) Completion of chemistry 17 with a grade of C or or better.

(b) Completion of chemistry at this college with a grade of C or better.

or (c) Satisfactory performance on an entrance test. This test will be given on a date to be announced, prior to the final examinations this semester, and also during the summer quarter registration period.

If a minimum of 15 students request a course, additional listings will be added.

A printed schedule showing the hours of classes for the following summer semester courses will be available after June 1.

Polls Open Tomorrow For Elections

In This Corner—Don Burger

A CONTINUED FIGHT for reform and non-partisan politics and adherence to the wishes of the majority will be the basis for my participation in student government, if elected in the coming election.

In addition to this, I hope to gain student support and faculty cooperation in maintaining a liberal atmosphere on the campus.

As for other student government action, I will ask for student support in the administration's plan to provide a stadium for our college, and until it is achieved, I will seek adequate, decent locations for our sports events.

I shall work with the junior college student government conference in its fight to provide veterans with student body cards under the GI Bill.

"Junior" is a misnomer for this college. I shall continue working for the more dignified name: San Francisco City College.

In closing, I wish to reaffirm my promise that each student will receive an equal degree of representation in student affairs, regardless of affiliation, and that if I am elected, there will be a complete absence of the "Spoils System."

—Don Burger

Sophomores

Lavish Plans Set For Coronation Ball

Final plans for the coronation ball, coming this Thursday, May 29, were carried out by the sophomore formal committee, to make the dance at Oakland's Scottish Rite Temple the season's crowning event, according to Astrid Wettin, sophomore president.

Melody for the 9 to midnight dancing will be provided by the orchestra of Bob Emerson.

Tuxedos Not Essential

Tickets for the traditional, semi-annual occasion sell at two dollars per couple and can be purchased at the student bank or at the entrance of the Temple at 1547 Oak Street, overlooking the west shore of Lake Merritt.

Dress will, of course, be formal. However, because of the tuxedo shortage, business suits will be in order. Corsages will be worn, if possible, as the college's no-corsage rule is traditionally dropped for this affair.

Miss Wettin painted a lavish picture of the dance's many features.

Moonlight Cruise On Lake

"Besides dancing to the well-known rhythm of Bob Emerson, guests will be offered a buffet supper," she said. "Outside, on nearby Lake Merritt, our chartered launch will make moonlight cruises."

"Climax to the evening will come when the king and queen, chosen in last week's elections, are presented with their crowns and trophy in the time-honored coronation ceremonies."

Praise was accorded members of the dance committee by Gloria Haueter, committee chairman.

Large Floor Available

"The biggest and loveliest dance floor we've ever engaged, five times as big as any hotel ballroom, is available only by the efforts made by members of the committee. The boat ride arrangements, the buffet supper, and all the activities of the dance, also represent a fine job by these members."

Members of the committee include the following:

Miss Wettin, Miss Haueter, Ted Briones, Hilda Ghio, Nancy Cunningham, Neil Sullivan, and Ken Romanoff.

Students Get Set To Name Officers For Fall Semester

More than three thousand eligible Associated Student card holders will step out tomorrow to cast their votes for next fall's officers.

Chester Fong, election committee chairman, has announced that the voting booths situated in the old cafeteria, main building, will be open tomorrow from 9:30 to 5, and on Thursday from 9:30 to 3 p. m.

Don Burger and Frank Nelson will head the list of candidates in contesting the executive office of Associated Student President. Jo Ellen Cain and Marilyn Gray will vie for Vice-President.

Three candidates, Byrne Davis, Frank Grant, and George Karahadian, have entered the race for the Associated Men Student presidency; while two, Beverley Huddleson, and Carol Schutt, will apply for the Associated Women Student presidency.

Candidates for Sophomore Class president are Ralph Bergendorf, Alice Clayton, Nick Diertiman, Phillip Silberman, Vale Tuska, and Wayne Zenger. Freshman presidential candidates are Gilbert Morgan, Jean Myers, David Perrine, and James Stell.

Twenty-three students, three more than listed Friday, will seek council posts as Sophomore representatives: Patricia Arensburg, Mark Atwood, Lois Brewer, Allen Broussard, Donald Buckley, Hamilton Chin, Pat Eddy, Clare Erwin, Barbara Larson, Roy Llenau, Louis Luna, Paul Maide, Beverly Mayers, Walter Mooromsky, Audrey Morris, Rosemarie Mullen, Gale Newcomb, Donald O'Hare, Bill Riley, Regina Stewart, Colin Tooley, Earl Winkler, and Horace Wong.

Fourteen freshmen have turned out to represent their class on the council: Mario Aldana, Jim Alt, Patricia Bolster, Max Call, John Daly, Al Deutsch, Leo Greenfield, Pete Isola, Beverly Moen, Robert Reilly, Delores Schilbred, Dorothy Stalaroff, Robert Tatam, and Regina Warchot.

Regulations

Campaign Rules To Govern Balloting

As announced yesterday by Chester Fong, chairman of the election committee, the rules governing the conduct of the forthcoming election, are as follows:

1. Publicity stunts must be sanctioned by either the Dean of Men or the Dean of Women.

2. A total of nine posters, five on the campus, and four for each one of the stores surrounding the college, not to exceed 22 by 27 inches in dimension, will be allowed, with the approval of Fanchon Gary. Candidates will be responsible for the posting and removal of placards.

3. Electioneering will be prohibited in the vicinity of the polls.

Set for tomorrow, the election committee has placed the voting time at 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.; and Thursday, from 9:30 a. m. until 3 p. m.

Fong added that the voting booth will be situated in the old cafeteria, main building, and will be open to all students holding Associated Student cards.

English Citizen Preps Here For Oxford Univ.

By Clarence R. Hurlbert

Countless individuals go all out to secure an education, but few have experienced the rigors and travels in pursuing the same as has student Thomas Heather, an English citizen, who is now attending the college.

Heather intends to enter fabulous Oxford University on completion of preparation here in June and a final tune-up at Jamestown University in New York this fall.

Will Settle In Latin America

Born in Mexico, he was educated at the Seven Oaks School in Kent, England, until he was forced to evacuate in the Blitz of '40, thus interrupting his instruction which he later completed in Mexico.

A fluent speaker of Spanish and possessor of an inimitable British accent, Heather hopes his foreign trade major will lead to the establishment of his business in the land South of the Border.

Was Wartime Pilot

Joining the RCAF in 1942, he piloted 103 missions over enemy territory as a Flight Lieutenant on a Lancaster bomber, a duty warranting him the Distinguished Service Order bestowed by King George.

Discharged last year, Heather returned to Mexico where he flew an air service to Guatemala prior to his entrance here in February.

Memorial Holiday

Friday College Hour Postponed Till June 6

According to the college hour schedule released by Assistant Dean Brady in the early part of the semester, with Friday, May 30, a holiday, the last college hour will be held on Friday, June 6.

The last college hour of the Spring semester will be used for a club meeting period, Dean Brady said last week when he confirmed the validity of the college hour schedule that was published at the end of the first mid-term period.

The next, and final, issue of The Guardsman will be Friday, June 6.

Pat McVey Will Star In Concert June 2

Pat McVey will be presented by the music department in a song concert in the student lounge on Monday, June 2, Flossita Badger, choral director, announced today.

Although the program is being presented mainly for the Listening Hour students, all students and instructors will be welcome.

McVey, a music major here, has been appearing in concerts off the campus and is capable of presenting a worthwhile program.

In This Corner—Frank Nelson

FROM THE MAZE of names appearing on campaign posters displayed in the most conspicuous place on the SFJC campus, you, the student voters, are expected to choose a candidate for his or her respective office.

As a candidate for the office of president, I offer a platform which includes:

1. Representative and cooperative student government that expresses the opinions of the majority of the students at this college.

2. Continuation of what was so prevalent at the recent Mardi Gras—the work-together attitude and mutual understanding among all groups.

3. Furthering of college prestige throughout the city and state.

4. Campaign for the changing of the college name to S.F. City College and obtaining suitable places in which to hold the athletic events until our stadium is completed.

Democracy is representation of the people and by the people and it can only be accomplished by intelligent voting. Vote for me or for my opponent, but by all means vote.

—Frenk A. Nelson

Constitution

Elections Include Amendments Vote

Proposed amendments to the constitution as approved by the Student Council will be presented for vote in the election tomorrow and Thursday, May 27 and 29. A two-thirds vote will be necessary to make the amendments law.

Details of amendments are posted on a bulletin board in the main building as directed by the constitution.

Included in the referendum drawn up by a committee under Roberta Robb are the inclusion of the Club Advisory Board president, the Judiciary Committee chairman, and the Finance Committee chairman as members of the president's cabinet.

The power to elect a cheer leader would be taken out of the hands of the Rally Commissioner and made the responsibility of the Student Council under the provisions of the proposed amendments.

Local Radio Neophytes Visit NBC Station

Aspiring radio script writers, sound-effects men, and other neophyte followers of commercial radio at the college, visited the National Broadcasting Company's station KPO yesterday, May 26.

The group, students of Marie Weiler's radio classes, through the courtesy of James Day, public service division of KPO, were shown the mechanics and uses of sound effects in radio programs, the functions of the Sales Department and the News Department.

With a note to the future, the students, 35 in all, listened to the discourse given for their benefit. The News Department showed how the news was presented over the air, from gathering to the broadcast.

Commencement

Deutsch To Speak At June Ceremony

In the largest commencement in 12 years of college existence, President A. J. Cloud will confer 410 Associate of Arts degree upon graduates of the college at the War Memorial Opera House Friday, June 13.

Dr. Monroe E. Deutsch, vice-president and provost of the University of California, will be the guest speaker at graduation. Dr. Deutsch will be introduced by Curtis E. Warren, superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools.

Five Scholars Top List

Roy Abad, Pauline Louie, Dorothy Mugele, Eleanor Newell and Nancy Stookey are the top five graduates, and on the basis of their high scholastic record at the college, student speakers will be chosen from among them, Lloyd Luckmann, commencement chairman, said.

Rehearsal will be Friday morning, June 13, at 10:30, in the west campus auditorium. Graduates will report to the Opera House Friday evening at 7:15, Luckmann added.

Non-Card Holders Pay

There will be no rental charge for caps and gowns to graduates holding Associated Student cards, but a nominal fee will be charged to non-card holders.

No charge will be made for invitations, which are now available in Dean Margaret Dougherty's office, Building 2, west campus.

Music On Commencement Program Will Keep In Vogue With California Centennial Celebration

By Paul Lindstrom

Since the California Centennial celebration will be observed next year, the music department is jumping the gun a little in using the romantic development of the state as the basis for the musical portions of the commencement exercise at the War Memorial Opera House on Friday, June 13, 8:15 p.m.

The coming of the padres, the Spanish settling, the gold miners of 1849, the spirit of the gay nineties, and the elements of the modern day period will furnish musical atmosphere for the repertoire.

When this graduating class of Spring, 1947, marches down the aisle to receive associate arts degrees, it will be to the tempo of the conventional processional, Pomp and Circumstance, which will be played by the college orchestra under the direction of Madison Devlin.

Musical highlights of the exercise will be songs by the 60 members of the A Cappella Choir under the direction of Flossita Badger.

The male quartet, Dave MacDade, Gene MacGowan, Bob Sherratt, and Joe Fraser, will share the featured vocal spots with soloists Jane Swendsen and Emery Mellon.

Waste On West Campus

Lawns Need Rejuvenation

ONE of the best examples of waste at this institution is the method, or lack of method in watering the alleged lawns on the campus.

In a recent statement by a member of the administrative staff, it was disclosed that hundreds of dollars worth of water are used each day.

No wonder!

The sprinklers are left in one spot of grass till the area is flooded.

If this keeps up it won't be necessary to build a swimming pool.

Anyone who has done a turn at watering the family lawn knows what harm such flooding does.

It uproots the grass, instead of aiding it.

Its sole value is the excellent bird bath provided for our feathered friends.

The once soft, green grass in back of the main building is no longer anything but tufted, barren earth.

The lawn(?) on the west campus is completely hopeless.

It was never anything but glorified hay, but at least it was green.

Now it resembles any field of brown weeds.

As stated in a letter to the editor last week, the lawns are being reduced to irrigation ditches.

In fact, the only actual lawn worth mentioning is the one surrounding the west campus flag pole.

With the long summer stretching ahead and plenty of time in which to do it, it would seem advisable to turn the ground over the sorry remains and start from scratch.

Ford

After Dark

THERE have recently appeared a number of magazine and newspaper articles accusing Henry Miller, a contemporary writer and painter living atop a mountain in the Big Sur country of California, of spreading an escapist, anarchistic, destructive hate doctrine, and of corrupting the shot morals of the pure young things fresh from the ranks of Uncle Sam.

In a word, this is a lot of you know what! It is indeed strange to watch the machinations of the commercial writer when he takes it upon himself to judge, and subsequently condemn something he doesn't know a thing about!

We have been reading Miller for a long time; such reading including ALL of his New Directions publications, the various circulating pamphlets concerned with the status of money, murder, and the plight of the creative artist in America.

We are not anarchists, communists, or hate-cultists; however, we are interested in the condemnation of Miller and his followers from a purely artistic standpoint.

If this blasting chap had taken the trouble to read Miller he would have run across the underlying philosophy that permeates all his works, "Peace! It's Wonderful!" and he would have also found that Miller advocates a pacifistic philosophy which holds the creative instinct to be of prime importance. Such philosophy is much after the manner of Whitman, Jeffers, Freud, and other inconsequentials.

If anyone cared to look into the matter a little deeper, he would find that Miller is advocating a type of spiritual-philosophical anarchism and that the recurrent theme is used as a shock device; not in the interest of obscenity . . . please!

We are not suggesting that Miller is a top writer. Far from it, and Miller, upon comparison with his idols, Nietzsche, and Dostoevski, wouldn't be only too willing to admit it. However, the man is an artist and making a valid contribution to literature, and regardless of his views or social theories, he is at least sincere in his approach.

Integrity, sincerity, and honesty in art have a high price in this world where mechanism has stultified the meaning of such words to brittle little nothings. Miller has paid that price and stood up under it. The artist is a vehicle on which the work, not the man holds the reins. This is the only basis on which Miller can be judged. Peace! It's Wonderful!

Around And About

with Nagle

INSTRUCTORS at the college are getting a break at last. Students are taking it upon themselves to show the profs how, what and why to teach.

Once the instructors worried about Senor Tenney and his bits of legislation cramping their teaching style . . . now they worry about the students.'

It all happened last week when one faithful reader of The Guardsman took his pen in hand and instead of panning one of the columnists for his derogatory remarks, requested a suggestion box be placed in the main building so that eager students might drop suggestions to their instructors on how to improve their courses and their teaching.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

At the beginning of the college term, the head of the department, history, for example, would hand out outlines listing the topics he had considered discussing.

The students would scrutinize the outline and after a bit of head-scratching, blue-pencil the outline and drop it in the suggestion box.

If they decided they would rather spend more time studying the life and loves of Henry the Eighth, than the historical importance of a lad named Napoleon—well, OK! Student (and suggestion box) government, y'kno'.

THESE TOO SHALL PASS

Via this red and white box with the hole in the top, certain instructors would be reminded that little idiocrasies such as drawing immense circles on the board while stressing an important point causes the important point to go over the head rather than into it.

Tie-twiddling pencil balancing, coin-jingling (especially at the end of the month), personalized lectures, e.g., directed particularly to the blonde in the back row, or the hand-holding couple in the third row center—these also should be enumerated for the knowledge-peddlers' elimination.

Well, faculty, a recommendation has been made. Do you want it seconded? You have nothing to lose but your notes, so act immediately before the students start suggesting in earnest.

STANDBY

By Bill Riley

The following bit of information was turned in to your columnist:

"The delicious, permeating odor of hot cakes neutralized the attention of one instructor and 12 students in Room 13a, Thursday last. Review of THE NATURAL HISTORY OF NONSENSE took second place to the thoughts of a chef's masterpiece. Investigation was foregone, however, for fear of finding Joe College cooking while the Little Woman was completing hubby's English Theme."

Evicted: The Drama 42 class, under the direction of Lloyd Sisler, is in danger of losing its Room 28 "CELLAR PLAYHOUSE" to the Paint Technology class. It seems that the fireproof room is needed to store highly inflammable concoctions.

Students are requested not to pray for sunny weather for the week of finals. According to JANICE KREUTZMANN, women's hygiene instructor, sudden rises in temperature result in marked mental sluggishness.

Realism As Shown In British And American Movies

EVER since British film actors and actresses learned to speak English their pictures have been going over big in America.

It is hard to believe that a public trained for years in the digestion of technical plots as boy meets girl, boy loses girl, boy gets girl, is actually sitting through such English pictures as Odd Man Out and This Happy Breed.

Up until recently, any movie that required the slightest amount of thinking on the movie goer's part was shunned like a plague.

Now they're banging the doors down to get in to see foreign films that are made with an eye a little toward art and less toward the box office.

DOWN TO EARTHISM

Sheer realism is the new weapon the British are using in competing against the fairy-like phoniness of the homemade movies.

If Hollywood is going to keep up with the fast pace set by the newest of the British pictures they're going to have to revise some of the more worn out plots in a hurry.

They should start with the Andy Hardy series . . . now there's an out of focus serial of an American family as it never was.

THE HARDYS, REVISED

If the Hardy pictures were made with the British touch of reality they would come out something like this:

First of all, Andy would be in about his seventh semester at an unnamed little junior college in Anywhere, U.S.A.

He'd be a rip-snorting little hellcat who flunked Math 51 four straight times, got thrown off the football team for drinking and necks every night in the neighborhood theater balcony.

DRAMA IN THE KITCHEN

The picture opens up with Andy staggering home at two o'clock Monday morning after a helluva weekend up the River.

Judge Hardy, that pillar of wisdom in the tiny community, who just beat Andy into the house by ten minutes, is out in the kitchen ransacking the refrigerator for some tomato juice.

Andy makes a beeline for the kitchen sink and gets a bottle of Alka Seltzer, placed on the shelf knowingly by Mother Hardy, who is steeled to this sort of thing by now.

MOTHER STEPS IN

Presently the good Judge gives up his groping and joins Andy in a fizzling toast and they go into a man-to-man talk; comparing hangovers.

Mother Hardy, now awake from the commotion and urged on by Andy's nagging Aunt Millie, breaks up the little chat with a well-aimed Acme bottle, quart size.

This takes up the better part of seven reels. The last reel shows Ma Hardy and Millie in Reno, the Judge placing a bet down at the cigar store, and Andy riding into the sunset . . . heading for the River.

Hilltop Manner

SEVERAL months ago a front page editorial in The Guardsman carried the headline "ASSFJC Faces Financial Crisis." The same evening the San Francisco News' front page flared, "S. F. Running Out of Cash."

Immediately, some students protested against the injustice of having to pay living expenses and also purchase Associated Student cards. The more spirited and more financially secure groups maintained that unless the membership was greatly increased, a sharp reduction in student activities would result.

Congruously, city residents were presented with the alternatives of having their taxes raised or doing without some city services which had become necessities.

Four months have gone by; three-fourths of the students here are now members of the Associated Students; city supervisors last week voted to increase the tax rates. Both organizations met their difficulties with characteristic efficiency, but many people are still grumbling—without bothering to suggest any solution themselves.

Students here are only required to keep a certain average and preserve the peace in order to remain. City dwellers who pay their rent and taxes and are not too rowdy will not be ousted.

Neither group is under any further obligation, and few go farther out of their way; yet gripes are everywhere! Neither group is FORCED to vote, yet criticism of the government is continually heard.

In America, under a government controlled and run by the people with a free choice of officials, it is the right and duty of each individual to fully condemn or to fully support his peers, who are also his rulers.

Vote is the word, and elections are this week—and next November.

Imbecile Finds Forum Too Deep; Reader Asks Information By PA System

• Friend Of Forum

Editor, The Guardsman:

I have always been under the impression that I am a person of somewhat average intelligence; however, my impression was rudely shaken when I purchased a copy of the much-vaunted Forum Magazine.

After reading, and re-reading, the entire book I came to the conclusion that I was an imbecile. For out of the entire magazine I only understood two or three well-written parodies. The rest was a mumble-jumble of pedantic, surrealistic tripe!

"Literature" is written to be READ and UNDERSTOOD without having to wander down the channeled labyrinth of the author's mind trying to figure out what the hell he is trying to say.

Editor, The Guardsman:

What has happened to the Public Address System which was used so frequently last semester? A class could never begin without being interrupted with a special bulletin from the President, Dean of Men or the Janitor.

This semester important announcements are passed by; students miss speech tests, plays, meetings, etc. Can't a happy medium be struck somewhere along the line to inform the students of coming attractions—between issues of The Guardsman, of course.

Trackmen Slice Two Modesto Relay Records; Caredio Wins Top Honors

By Sam Goldman

In their last seasonal outing for the 1947 Spring era, the collegians brought back to the Hilltop Manner more victory booty than either victorious Coaches Jim Jensen or Bill Fischer could count.

The whole festivities of junior college capturings started Saturday afternoon, when the 1946 defending champs on the baseball diamond came out of their temporary batting slump and battered in the second successive NCJCC baseball crown for the college with a 15-5 win over the Modesto Bucs, at Modesto.

Kaplan Slaps 410-Foot Homer

Led by hitting Pitcher Jim Hughes, the entire nine, Bill Kenna, Bill Broderson, Zane Kaplan, Chet Anderson, Bob Nard, Art Cirimele, Al Ganem, and Herb Markell, blasted three Pirate twirlers, for a smooth collection of 20 hits. The baseball pill took the farthest journey of the day, when Centerfielder Kaplan peeled off a 410-foot round tripper in the second inning.

Cindermen Take Second Spot

Coach Jim Jensen and his visiting tracksters had themselves a wild evening of trophy, medal, and belt buckle snaggings on Saturday night, when the speedsters took second place in the Modesto California Relays, broke two relay records, collected 13 belt buckles, secured two trophies, and still won three relay events.

The speedmen taped in two new record holdings for the junior college division with the 880 team of Ed Bryant, Bob Caredio, Julian Griffin, and Jim Wyatt timing 1:29.2, and the mile relay four of Bob Zarick, Wyatt, Jim Mills, and Caredio clocking in the new record at 3:26.7.

Not to leave themselves without another win, the 440 quartet of Bryant, George Ow, Griffin, and Caredio won that event, while Jim Barnes took a second in the high pump.

Caredio was voted the "top man" in the meet while Griffin and Wyatt were second and third place honor holders, respectively, in the Modesto Relays.

BIG GAME HURLER was Jim Hughes, Ram stalwart during the concluded diamond campaign.

Intra Football Starts Today; Softball Next

With the season rapidly coming to a close, director Tom Wilson has but two more tourneys to run off in intramural competition.

Today marks the initial tilt in the always popular football get together. With just seven teams entered Wilson has hopes of naming the victor in one short week. Undoubtedly the high point in the pigskin tourney will be the return match pitting the runner-up Beta Tau fraternity against last year's champs, the Poly Alumni aggregation.

The last medal tempter on this term's agenda is the softball. Only three teams have announced their attention to compete and if a fourth club is not formed the trinkets will have to be stowed away for another semester.

Tennis

Rams Blast Marin 7-0 In Net Finale

Finishing the regular NCJCC round robin schedule by displaying a burst of winitis, the college racket-wielders soundly thumped the Marin Junior College tennis aggregation by a 7-0 score.

It was evidently just San Francisco's day as the locals completed two straight set wins in singles and eked out three singles and two doubles matches that went the three set limit.

The victory in the tennis finale left the bay city club with a five win and four loss record and fourth or fifth spot in the league standings, depending on how Salinas and San Mateo fared over last weekend. Individual records show 32 match victories against a total of 31 losses.

The overwhelming triumph, the Rams' best effort of the season, was not at all indicative of how tough the Mill Valley squad really was.

Rams Bud Langton, Frank Reed, Mel Hansen, and Bill Covall all had to come from behind to garner the victory for themselves.

By Arnold Wechter

TODAY we are devoting part of this column to a letter received by us from a member of the Associated Students. We are neutral in this matter, and this letter represents Mr. Sam Goldman's opinion, we quote:

"When the sororities, fraternities, and club organizations of the college at the end of this spring semester finally tally up what contributions they have done either to add to the confusion to the existing disunified attitude that surrounds the atmosphere here on the campus or the benefits they have brought in cooperating with the Student Council and the faculty administration in its Spring program there is no doubt in my mind, but the Dumbo trophy should be handed with flowers to the Block SF Society.

"Certainly no one is to blame for the confusing condition that now prevails within the athletic organization, but the big bruisers of sports themselves. The only organization that receives its sole awards and sweaters from the school treasury, the Block "SF" Society (except for its slight revival of school spirit during last year's football era) this semester proved to be as active as the 20 year snooze of Rip Ban Winkle. Not even this term's Saturday eve dance sponsored by the big boys was a successful affair.

Lack of Cooperation

"This semester's student leaders anticipated some cooperation and help from the "boys" in the administrating and boosting school spirit, but the assistance failed to come from the SFers. Next term from the latest gossip, the new hopeful leaders for the coming period would like to have the Block "SF" Society as one of the leading groups in selling Associated Student Cards, and help in bringing in the new term with the "old rah-rah" school spirit that should exist in this college. But as far as can be seen through these eyes, the same cooperation the Block SF Society gave out this term will be awaiting the new school leaders."

Conference Climax

Curtain Falls On NCJC Sports; Netters, Golfers, Mermen Compete At Stockton

Approximately 15 Ram athletes trek to Stockton this weekend to represent the Phelan Avenue institution of learning in three Northern California Junior College Conference Meets.

Tennis players, swimmers, and golfers from all over the northern division will congregate at Stockton to do battle for fame and glory for their respective schools and selves.

For the tennis team the All-Conference meet will be the final chapter of a mediocre season that saw the locals fare better than even in conference competition after having a disastrous practice season.

The tennis varsity with Pat Heagerty at the number 1 spot, and Bud Langton, Frank Reed, Bill Covall, Joe Barton, and Mel Hansen rounding out the varsity, played a fine brand of ball against some top notch competition.

The racqueteers dropped practice matches to Santa Clara, St. Mary's, San Jose, SF State, Stanford, and the all powerful USF team. In conference play, matches were dropped to Salinas, San Mateo, Modesto, and Menlo, while victories were rung up against Yuba, Stockton, Napa, Sacramento and Marin.

The tennis title will be decided on COP's courts and according to Net Coach Tom Wilson, if the locals can stand Stockton's dry heat they should hold their own in the conference "Biggie."

Meanwhile, Jim Jensen and his band of mermen will be striving for other honors, aquatic honors and simultaneously Ram golfers will be vieing for the title.

Student-Faculty

Softball Pits Age Against Ability

The second of the two faculty-varsity athletic contests of the spring semester comes to a sharp focus tomorrow afternoon at Golden Gate Park, when Bill Fischer's successful band of mittmen break out their softball togs and take on a team composed of faculty members.

Although not too lucky in the tennis tournament held last week, the professors expect to put up a much better showing this trip, as the bulk of their crew will be made up of Physical Ed instructors. The coaches, seven in all, will probably draw the Messrs. Monaco and Dunn of the Math Department to make it an even nine.

It seems hardly likely that the profs can do much damage as they are facing what amounts to the cream of the NCJCC crop in anything at all pertaining to a ball and a bat. Fischer himself will be absent from the helm for the first time, however, as he is lending his talents to the faculty for this particular occasion.

Chinese Club

Hotel St. Francis Site Of Last Prom

Late entry in the parade of this college's dance semester, the Chinese Club's semi-formal dance themed This Time, appears at the Colonial Ballroom of the Hotel St. Francis on Saturday, June 21, Wilbur Lee, dance committee chairman, commented this week.

Edward Harkness and his orchestra will supply music for the dance, to which all students are invited, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Attire will lean toward dressiness, but business suits will serve better than tuxedos. Women will wear dressy afternoon gowns.

Tickets are on sale at the Silver Pole and throughout the campus by club members, who will sell them at $3 per couple.

Lee gave details of the dance:

"We were fortunate in obtaining the Harkness orchestra, for they have just left long engagements at the St. Francis and Mark Hopkins. Invitations to the dance were sent to every college in the state. We only hope that you make sure 'next time you dance should be at This Time'."

West Campus Renovation Delayed; Reconstruction Work Awaits Navy OK

Delay of west campus reconstruction, originally scheduled to begin the middle of this month, is due to the necessity of having the final lease approved by the Navy Department in Washington, Oscar E. Anderson, coordinator of educational management, revealed recently.

The lease has been approved by San Francisco authorities, school and college control of west campus grounds has been obtained by signatures of various administrative branches.

Since the contract is completed and all plans drawn up, reconstruction will probably begin within one week after the college receives a wire of approval from Washington. Anderson hopes that actual work will begin around June 1, and continue through the summer.

The major reconstruction project will be the modernization of the cafeteria for the purpose of training rather than production.

In the auditorium, a new stage will be built, and the building will be made fireproof.

The barracks will undergo many improvements in lighting, ventilation, and appearance, with new furniture to be bought and fire escapes to be added.

Requirements

U of C Clarifies Pharmacy Rulings

To clarify entrance requirements for the College of Pharmacy, University of California, T. C. Daniels, dean of the college, stated last week that the Admission Committee will select those applicants who are best qualified for admission irrespective of where the first year requirements were completed.

"Apparently, the erroneous impression has been gained that students registered for the freshman year in the University (of California) will be given preference over students taking their freshman year in other institutions," Daniels said.

Applications for both the University and the College of Pharmacy must be made before August 1 for the class entering September, 1947.

Students are requested to file the applications as soon as possible to facilitate processing. Transcripts of record should be sent to the Director of Admissions at the University, not to the College of Pharmacy.

Flower Shop's Fame Deserves Invitation

As a result of the floral display at the California Annual Flower Show held in Oakland recently, John Lawrence's Flower Shop students have been asked by the manager of the San Mateo County Floral Association, Norvell Gillespie, to enter an exhibit in its Floral Fiesta this fall, according to Harry Nelson, head of the Ornamental Horticultural Department here.

The San Mateo show, financed from the revenue of state controled horse racing, will be the second such show for the students of the shop. The first showing since the war at the California Spring Show won first place

The blue ribbon display came to the attention of Gillespie, also Garden Editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, when he was a judge at the show.

Cruel World

Adversities Mangle Student Ambitions

By Jack Hulse

"It's a—— of a life for an engineer."

That's the opinion of haggard, once-healthy Leland Kearney, engineering student, who recently took the entrance examination of the U. C. College of Engineering.

If you have no taste for blood, sweat and tears, or if you are not an engineering student—read no farther. It isn't funny, anyhow.

According to Kearney, the best prepared among the one thousand or so students there were those who had taken Engineering 34, 28 41, and more work in Chemistry than 21 a-b.

Kearney said that the test stressed definite knowledge of the field and reasoning ability. At all times, he stated, those taking the test worked against time. The test, consisting of mathematics, physics, chemistry, English and drawing, took seven hours. Next test—August.

Take it from there, future builders of the second Bay Bridge!

Vol. XXV | SAN FRANCISCO, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1947 | No. 1

The Spectator

George Lajeunesse

AFTER three months of intensive research while on vacation, taking the world's problems and analyzing them with piercing intellect, this column can come up with one sage observation: Rio Nido succeeded this Summer in upholding its reputation of old.

We took off from San Francisco with a portable typewriter with every intention of hibernating in the hills and solving the world's troubles amidst the quiet and peaceful atmosphere of the Russian River country.

Somehow every night that big September harvest moon would creep up over the tall timbers, our typewriter would languish in a corner picking up cobwebs, and we'd creep into Guernewood Park or Rio Nido looking for "human interest," as it were.

Human interest abounded in wholesale quantities too, especially on the spacious beaches during the height of the afternoon.

To keep any feminine readers we might have, in tow, or any readers for that matter, we might report that tans and two-piece bathing suits seemed to be the rage this season.

The men will find interest in the news that said two-piece bathing suits were very well filled, as we carefully noted, with a preponderance of local college students.

In the beautiful evenings of early Indian Summer we also made a detailed survey of the "New Look" we'd heard so much about.

We're glad to reveal that the old look still holds sway. A "little below the knees" is still the vogue and this is in keeping with our new campaign advocating nylons only on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays on the campus throughout the coming semester.

In short, we took a VACATION this year, next week gives more of the world's troubles, but leave us have our moment of blissful reminiscing.

Smoking Legalized For Trial Period

Smoking on campus is legal now as a result of action by the California State Legislature in amending a state law which formerly forbade smoking on junior college campuses, Dean Edward F. Sandys told students yesterday.

Sandys said that the college is on six month's trial, during which time smoking will be allowed in areas around ash receptacles, including certain parts of the main building.

"If the college is not kept clear of cigarette and cigar butts during that period," he warned, "smoking privileges will be rescinded with severe penalties meted out to those caught smoking."

DR. ARCHIBALD J. CLOUD, president of the college, welcomed the first group of new students on August 26, 1935, twelve years ago. This group numbered a mere 1500 people. Today, Dr. Cloud's message, which will be found on Page 2, is directed to all newcomers to the college whose enrollment is now record-breaking.

Revived College Band Seeks New Musicians

Meyer M. (Mike) Cahn, new college band and orchestra instructor, will still accept musicians to augment the 30 persons now enrolled in the college band."

Recently from Hollywood, Cahn decared, "I will not be satisfied with fewer than 70 musicians, and when they march down the field in new uniforms, Cal and Stanford bands will look like refugees from a bad dream."

Instruments will be supplied to students interested in the band or orchestra, Cahn promised.

Choruses Assure Yule Concert

December presentation of the college's traditional Christmas concert was assured yesterday by Gertrude Norgard, women's chorus director, and Harold Cunningham, acting choir and men's chorus director.

A Cappella Choir membership is near capacity, but openings remain in both choruses. Applications are accepted in Room 200.

Mrs. Norgard and Cunningham assume direction of the concert in the absence of Flossita Badger, choir director, who left last Sunday by plane for New York.

Miss Badger is on Sabbatical leave and will fill singing engagements in the east, visit eastern colleges and schools of music for observation, and study at Columbia University.

Meyer Cahn, new band and orchestra director, will assist Mrs. Norgard and Cunningham, and expects full orchestra participation in the annual concert.

Cahn replaces Madison Devlin who is organizing a department of audio-visual aids for the college. Cahn is a graduate of San Francisco State College, with a master's degree from Columbia University.

Cahn was a practice teacher here in 1939.

Basic Speech Exams For All Sophomores

An examination in Basic Speech Skills is required of all third semester students, Paul McKelvey, of the Speech Department, warned today.

Students may take the exam by applying to Lucille Meredith, Room 3, and to Michael Griffin, Room 15, Building 19.

Any student who failed to take the exam should do so immediately if he expects credit for his work during the semester, McKinley said.

Registration Hits All-Time High; Student Card Sales Disappointing

West Campus Takes On Greater Importance In New Enrollment

An eleventh hour check with the registrar's office today showed every indication of a skyrocketing enrollment figure, the highest mark yet attained in the college's history.

Unofficial estimates, revealed this morning by Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, set the unprecedented figure in the neighborhood of 5450, with the number mounting hourly.

The hilltop college, with a building designed to hold 3,000 students, literally bulged today with thousands of war veterans, and graduates fresh from high schools all over the Bay Area.

It was predicted, by reliable sources, that the final semester population tally would reach the unbelievable number of more than 6,000 students.

With all the facilities of the new west campus being utilized to their fullest, the registration flood is proceeding smoothly, according to Miss Learnard's office.

New classrooms have been added to meet the demand, and the west campus of the college is rapidly approaching the size and quantity of the main building on the hill.

Rally Outlook Good As Saunders King Plays

Big time entertainment will be the keynote of the first rally of the semester during the college hour this Friday, according to Jim Edwards, Rally Commissioner.

Edwards said that he is now making arrangements with Saunders King for the appearance of his orchestra at the initial rally. He also warned that future presentations of this kind will depend on student card sales.

3 Buses On Deck For Sact'o Grid Opener

Three Greyhound buses, bound for Sacramento and the college's first game of the season, will leave from the main building this Friday, October 3, at 3 p. m., according to Ed Gallemore, chairman of the transportation committee.

Round trip tickets, selling for $2.75, may be purchased at the college bank and in the lobby of the main building. Sales are limited to 111 tickets.

President Archibald J. Cloud has authorized instructors to excuse students holding tickets from all classes convening after 3 p. m.

Sisler At Helm In Dramatic Tryouts

Try outs for all students interested in the theatrical productions of this college, will be held in Room 28 today and tomorrow from 2 o'clock until 4 p. m., Lloyd Sisler, drama instructor, declared yesterday.

If unable to appear at that time, students are urged to see Paul Ellison, or Sisler by arrangement.

Any student may earn from one to three units of general college credit by participating in the several play readings scheduled for this semester, or in the two major productions, Our Town by Thornton Niven Wilder, and Importance of Being Ernest by Oscar Wilde.

The "lab" theatre in Room 28 will continue to use the familiar "pent house" style stage used in Arsenic and Old Lace of last semester until the scheduled work in the auditorium is completed Sisler said.

Fire Fighting Offered For Force Hopefuls

Organization of a three-fold program of fire-fighting instruction is now well under way here under the direction of Michael LoPresti of the college faculty and Battalion Chief Jesse H. McLendon of the San Francisco Fire Department.

The three phases of the program include a fire college for the training of men now in the fire department, a "pre-entry" course to prepare students for Civil Service examinations for hose and ladder men, and a two-year fire engineering course in

New Term Inaugurates Architectural Course

Architecture 22 is the first course in a program to be offered students under a new architecture department established this semester.

Answering a demand by students, the new department is being organized by William Mayo, engineering head, and Vice-President J. Paul Mohr in cooperation with officials at the University of California and will offer a two-year program paralleling courses at that university.

Student Card Sales Lagging In Spite Of Huge Population Jump

A financial crisis which may seriously curtail student activities was accredited to students who failed to pick up student cards they had ordered, Student Councilman Jim Alt said Thursday.

Alt spoke at the first student council meeting of the semester held in Building 2, commenting on the fact that only 2200 out of an enrollment of 5400 purchased cards. He made the following statement:

"Those who have not purchased cards do not realize the extent of the calamity. Without a lot more student support all student activities will have to be curtailed or cut out entirely."

The council unanimously approved an appropriation not to exceed $350 to buy insurance for 40 members of the varsity football squad, although one observer pointed out that the team might not even be able to play its game commitments unless more Associated Student cards were sold.

President Frank Nelson told council members that budgets for The Guardsman and football team alone will total about $10,500, leaving only $500 of the money thus far collected for other activities.

The council voted approval for Nelson's cabinet appointments as follows:

Jim Edwards, rally commissioner; Don Burger, finance committee chairman; Max Call, publicity chairman; Jack Nohl, judiciary committee chairman; Trev Burrow, publications board chairman; Paul Yde, athletic commissioner, and Gloria Jean Wu, secretary.

FRANK NELSON, Associated Student president, declared at the Student Council meeting last Thursday that with failing student card sales many student activities will be restricted.

Student Council Holds Confab Minus Quartet

Headed by Frank Nelson, newly elected Associated Student president, student government begins operations without the aid of four former Student Council members.

Missing from the council table are Bill Buckley, Beverly Moen, Pat Bolster, and Mark Atwood. Withdrawal from this college during the interim between semesters was given as reason for their absence. As yet, replacements have not been named.

According to this college's constitution, Nelson has the prerogative of appointing his own choices or filling the vacancies with the runners-up in last semester's elections.

Long Pants For Guardsmen As College Flexes Muscles

YOU HAVE in your hand a four page paper that will reach an audience of more than 6,000 people . . . a pretty good crowd in anyone's league.

In previous semesters, and we'll be the first to admit it, this paper has been, at times, little more than a bulletin board for social activities.

As far as constructive ideas go we could offer no more than: "There's a dance next Saturday," or "Don't look now but Forum Magazine is coming out in six months," and so on, endlessly plugging.

We of the new staff hope, frankly, to put "long pants" on the Guardsman.

More than half of our readers are adults, the other half show by their presence here that they are ready for adulthood.

Therefore it is imperative that The Guardsman should grow up.

As amateur journalists we have no worlds to conquer, no swords to wield, but we do have the responsibility of reaching intelligent readers' opinions within these pages.

"Junior"—A Stigma

THIS COLLEGE is rapidly approaching full maturity and has certainly been weaned. In some departments it equals or outranks any other college in the country.

It is in name only that the college is held back. It is still referred to as a "junior" college. What a mental picture this creates! Students are frequently asked such questions as: "When do you start college?", or "Cant you make the grade at a REAL college?"

We have a two year college, yes—but in no sense of the world a "junior" college. Get behind the drive to change the name from the stigmatic "junior" to San Francisco CITY College—the finest in the land.

If All Pay, All Benefit

WITH THE greatest enrollment of students, along with the most active sports and social calendar in the history of the college, there is a definite need for financial aid in guiding the college through this most important semester.

All incidental expenses to the football games, including equipment, rentals, and travel are paid for from Associated Student funds.

Likewise from this fund comes the costs of presenting dances and other social affairs.

The publication of this very paper depends on an allotment of money authorized from the student treasury.

In other words, to run the extra-curricula activities of this college efficiently, with equal benefits to all students, money for these expenses must be raised through the sale of Associated Student cards .

Those Enduring Ties

By Dr. A. J. Cloud, President, San Francisco Junior College

A SHORT time ago I was present at a luncheon with a number of my college classmates. The group had been called together with the object of greeting a fellow classmate who had been long absent from the state, and who had attained eminence in his chosen profession, the law. We had much pleasure in greeting him, but also in exchanging reminiscences of our days in college.

Returning to our own college halls after the reunion, I happened to notice in the main building a large sign reading: Be Proud of Your College.

It had been placed there, I was told, by representatives of the student body in furtherance of their campaign to encourage the growth of "college spirit."

The cultivation of a love of an alma mater is undeniably more difficult in a two-year than four-year institution of learning; but, in my judgment, the handicaps that have heretofore existed in that respect are fast disappearing. I find that students of San Francisco Junior College, past and present, cherish deeply the associations that began for them at the college. Make no mistake! Those associations are among the most enduring of the ties that bind throughout life.

I am persuaded that the college has been and now is worthy of the devotion and loyalty of all its students.

It is a community college relatively free from the shackles and trammels of academic tradition.

Its instructors take a human point of view, and are ever alive to the interests and the needs of the individual student and of the studi..ts collectively.

Welcome to San Francisco Junior College!

Quips About the Campus

The following comments were heard on college and student affairs:

"I request a post-registration vacation."—Ralph Granneberg, psychology instructor.

"So do I."—Robert Moss, a new student.

"To what is our school 'junior,' anyway?"—Vernon O'Reilly, in the San Francisco News, quoting proponents of the proposed change of the college's name to San Francisco City College.

"The deans' offices are here for the students' welfare. All are wecome to come to the deans with their problems."—Edward E. Sandys, dean of men.

"The junior college has made its place in the community."—Chester B. MacPhee, supervisor, and candidate for mayor of San Francisco.

"Just because I'm a photographer, people cast aspersions on my character. I'm really a nice guy."—James M. Davis, Guardsman photographer.

"An Associated Students card means the difference between being in college activities or being completely out in the cold."—Bill Riley, sophomore representative on the student council.

No Dough Equals No Nuthin'

By Jack Hulse

ALTHOUGH this space usually serves as the college's pocket edition Gallup poll, it's all pushed out of shape now because nobody has an opinion, not even the thinking minority amongst our shut-ins. Reason: A popular state of shock. ...,

If you've read this far you may be interested in knowing what brought on this mass loss of poise.

Registration—it is, was, the villain, in that it showed so many of us that there's many a slip 'twixt ideal schedule and sign-up room.

As advertised, today's communi.. covers not what you think, ..., this is so. ...thing between Associated ... Sounds fa-miliar, doesn't it? It will sound much more familiar before this semester is up. Rightly so.

THE GREAT LET DOWN

It all leads up to the fact that student leadership; they are letthe ten best colleges in the country. They are letting down an outstanding, friendly faculty; they are letting down hard-working, adult student leadership; they are letting down themselves and all of the activities, programs, and opportunities that operate for their benefit.

They are not buying student cards, and they comprise over half of the supposedly grown-up students here.

Incidentally, he who writes is a ...rently reformed student government baiter and a hater of all that went with it. That doesn't go now, because none of the local busy boys, none of the junior politicos play for marbles any more.

Or, as many love to say at the drop of a hemline, "Rah-rah days are over."

IT HITS ALL

Oh, we're going to have a lot of fun this Fall. No dough, no dances, no nuthin'. It will hit all of we'uns, grinds and social flutterbies alike.

Seriously, you can help by doing you-know-what.

This Thursday your feelings on important issues will be gathered by our man who does nothing but feel around for student feeling. Don't be surprised if he sidles up to you and asks what your outlook is on long skirts, and what looks good in the fourth race at Albany.

Ram's Horn

Letters to the Editor

Wanted: Gripes, Groans, Sighs, and Moans for the Guardsman

HOW would you like to have six thousand people listen to your troubles the next time one of those little things in life rub you the wrong way?

That's twelve thousand shoulders to cry on whenever you feel like blowing your top or snapping your cap.

This is the "Ram's Horn," exclusively YOUR private corner of the paper to do with what you will.

We want you to "sound off," "blow your horn," about any subject under the sun. No holds barred, we'll print any and all letters received . . . that's a solemn promise.

We may have to shorten some a bit to fit, if they're too long, but we will not revise the wording. You'll still recognize your own creation.

Surely college life is not so serene and quiet as to leave you calm and unruffled throughout the day.

Sometime during the semester things are liable to get out of hand. In that event don't go about the campus gnawing your nails . . . sit down and tell the whole population about it.

Perhaps you may wish to toss a bouquet at a Guardsman columnist for a particularly seintillating piece you've just read within our pages.

Or you might even want to toss him a fish, we can handle that too.

Why, if you even think one of your instructors is a five-star schmoe, dash off a billet-doux on a sheet of asbestos and let us have it, we'll take care of the printing cost.

Compliments or catcalls, it makes no difference, we want your opinions on any and all subjects.

We'll do our best to protect you against law suits and even furnish seconds in the event of any dawn dueling you may be called upon to perform.

All you have to do is find the gripe to pitch, write it, label it "Ram's Horn" and hand it to one of the zombies in our West Campus office.

Or drop it on a desk and run, we'll find it all right.

Your's for a happy semester's worth of feudin' and fussin'.

News To Nobody

THE PITCH concerning the billboard on Ocean Ave. advertising Ramland, as the CITY'S COLLEGE, shows what a little cooperation can do . . . seems pretty Carol Wilson, an energetic coed, overheard George Mullany, instructor and chief publicist, sighing on how wonderful a sign would be . . . fixer Carol arranged a luncheon for her friend, a Foster & Kleiser head ad man, and Mullany. The ad man liked the idea and everready George just happened to produced a drawing to scale (the one now adorning the sign) whipped up by the talented Walter Wong, art student. The billboard gent was impressed and the dea was closed . . . the good part is: It's permanent and all for free. . . .

With registration folded and the college pushing the 6,000 marker, there are a few scholars who still remember attending this institution when it was spread around Powell St., pre-1940 days (horrors). The individual record for attendance, however, is a happy ELEVEN full terms!

Rumor has it that the gatemen at the football games are to be equipped with microscopes—reason? . . . the general impression is that the "junior" sandwiched in on the Associated Student cards is just a little bit difficult to find—and speaking of student cards (oh boy, how interesting) the students of distinction were sold cards that were gold striped; the remaining 99⅓ per cent of the inmates received plain red stripes . . . imagine?

As we are the largest vacuum, er-college in S. F., it's good to know the price of coffee was upped to 8 coppers at the snack bar (soon to served in paper cups) . . . S. F. State, only half as big, is also hustling joe for 8 cents per mug, while at little old U.S.F., (a football team and a few OTHER students) it's still selling for a nickel.

A cute little freshman Ramette came barging into the office late yesterday (needless to say we stopped work to stare) demanding why there wasn't a spelling class listed . . . we patiently explained that woodcarving, tablesetting, package wrapping, etc., were taught here . . . but it seems while she was signing up for a class, she noted a sign on the second deck plugging A. S. cards, that read "Be wise . . . analize." Her big moan was that "analize" was spelled incorrectly!!! . . . In case you're interested, it's spelled with a "Y" (like in yawn).

RAMblings . .

By Art Paymiller

IN GLANCING over the 1947 football schedule it came to light that local pigskin followers will have a fairly long wait before they are privileged to feast their eyes on Coach Grover Klemmer's Ram eleven.

The first five games on the docket are scheduled to be played away from home, with four of them listed as nocturnal affairs. The first home game for the 1946 champions will be played Friday, November 7, when they tackle the squad from Los Angeles City College on the greensward of Kezar Stadium.

It will be interesting to see if Klemmer can be as successful with the T formation as Lee Eisan was with his single-wing lineup. It's not often that a champion team will take a chance by changing formations while they are still riding on the top of the heap.

• • •

Gold baseballs, which are usually given to the conference winners, have not been received as yet by members of the championship Ram nine. After a long and hard campaign, which saw Bill Fischer's pride and joy emerge on top in the tail-end of the season, it seems that they should get all that is coming to them in the way of recognition.

Cage Coach Ralph Hillsman was seen wearing a big smile recently as he learned of several ton-noteh eagers attending the hill-top institution, among them Don and Earl Malnick and Rudy Pfister.

The presence of Roy Diedrichsen, former Lincoln mentor, on the campus practically assures local boxing fans of some top fistic entertainment at the annual AMS boxing tournament. Diedrichsen has long put on good shows for the Lincoln students and will undoubtedly continue his work here.

New Coach Brings T To Local Campus

Grover Klemmer, one of the greatest cinder artists ever to speed upon the American track scene, after having been with the college's Physical Education department for less than a year, is now the head football coach for the campus eleven.

Although young in years, Klemmer is no newcomer to the grid game, for while on the Berkeley campus, he earned a "C" letter in football, and later he was one of the top backs on the 1943 Great Lakes team.

Refusing the tempting offers of professional football to enter into the coaching post, Klemmer, along with veteran line coach, Bill Fischer, and end tutor, Jack Gaddy, plan to form a strong forward wall and fast backfield.

Klemmer has revamped the college grid scene by instituting for the double-wing formation, the fast stepping "T".

Gridders In Title Defense Opener At Sacto Friday

Capitol City Night Clash Inaugurates 1947 Pigskin Season; Klemmer At Helm

The 1946 football champions of the Northern California Junior College Conference, the San Francisco Rams, will unveil their grid tactics for the defense of the coveted title for the first time in the 1947 campaign, this Friday evening when they meet the Sacramento Panthers at Hughes Memorial Stadium or in the state capital.

RED AND WHITE forward defenses may be dealt a severe blow if Denny Miller, 46 All-Conference guard is declared ineligible.

Inauguration of the colleges nine week grid festivities on Friday eve by the new Ram coach, Grover Klemmen and assistant coaches Bill Fischer and Jack Gaddy will find the champs away from home territory six weekends, and the three home games for the traveling collegians are not scheduled until the last three weeks in November.

Having dwindled down the original number of 173 pigskin hopefuls to a combined squad of sixty varsity and junior players, Coach Klemmer has definite plans to lead the windy hill college gridders to their second football crown in as many seasons.

However, the Panther elevens who went down to defeat twice, 13-6 and 12-0, at the hands of the Rams last year, are rated this era to be one of the "toughies" among the 14 teams in the conference.

From the 1946 Lee Eisan double-wing champs, Klemmer greeted back to the roster twelve varsity lettermen. The returnees for their second grid season are Denny Miller, Ken Schuchard, George Maganaris, Chuck Biess, Walt Inle, Bill Cassidy, Phil Collischonn, Genn Stern, Jim Greene, Ken White, John Rainey, and Howard Crouch.

Scrimmages and fundamentals have been the mainstay during the three week pre-season sessions for the gridders. It has been during this period that Klemmer has seen three of his varsity regulars, Ken White, James Carter, and Don Morrison injured, with the doubt that they will be in condition to don their grid suits for the opening test.

The new football men who are among the top thirty-six who will probably see plenty of action this Fall are Fred Loskutoff, Herb Furrer, Maurice Koch, Neill Gunn, Ed Hackett, Chuck Kelley, Paul Oliver, Matt Gateley, Paul Hagen, Ken Foehr.

DESTINED TO BE among the conference top linemen this coming gridiron season is George Maganaris, veteran Ram guard. . . .

Record Semester On Tap For Intra-mural

Looking forward to one of the greatest intra-mural programs in college history, Intra-Mural Director Tom Wilson is currently making plans to get the annual basketball tournament set up and under way as soon as possible.

Beside the cage tourney, Wilson's schedule of events includes such sports as badminton, table tennis, touch football and the grand climax, the much-anticipated AMS boxing show.

Expected to attract upwards of 200 participants, this year's competition will probably top all previous records of size and quality of play. The hasketball competition will enter the spotlight in the near future with some of the biggest former stars of Bay Area high schools trying for team and individual honors in Wilson's "greatest of all" tournaments.

Rams In Only Three Local Appearances

The nine game football schedule for the Ram varsity is as follows, with last season's scores in parenthesis:

Friday, October 3 at Sacramento N (13-6, 12-0).
Friday, October 10 at Vallejo N.
Friday, October 17 at Marin N.
Saturday, October 25 at San Mateo (35-18, 20-13).

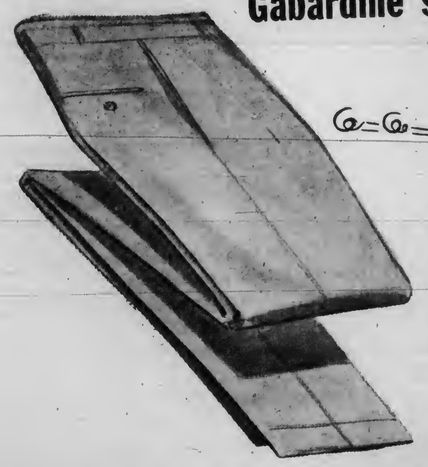
Diedrichsen Activates College Boxing Scene

Boxing, long regarded as the orphan sport in Red and White athletic activities, takes a new lease on life this semester with the addition of Roy Diederichsen to the Ram athletic plant.

If anyone is capable of rendering a sorely-needed shot-in-the-arm to the pugilistic pastime here on the campus, it is the genial mentor from Lincoln High. His first plan is to get more boys interested in boxing. His second is to procure more and better boxing equipment, and his third is to work for a more rounded schedule of matches.

WAA Signup In Women Gymnasium Next Week



Sign up for the women's sports this season will be in the women's gymnasium, Monday, October 6 through Friday the 10th, according to Gloria Swiecgood, women's faculty athletic adviser. Volleyball is scheduled to meet weekly on Mondays at 3 p.m.; badminton on Wednesday at 3 p. m. Horseback riders will meet on Tuesdays at 2 p. m. with archery slated for Fridays at 9 and 10 a. m.

The women's dance club will assemble on Fridays at 9 a. m. Miss Swiecgood reported. Tennis is definitely on the WAA calendar, but as yet a schedule is undecided.

Varsity Soccer Back

For the first time since the beginnig of the Recent Unpleasantness, a period covering approximately six or seven years, the college may look forward to being represented by a soccer team again. Coach Ralph Hillsman started issuing out the equipment last Thursday.

College Marquee Unveiled

Ad Company Donates Striking Landmark

SOMETHING NEW has been added to the campus. It is the red, white and gold sign placed on Ocean and Phelan Avenues through a generous act of the Foster and Kleiser Advertising Agency. Left to right: Vice-President J. Paul Mohr, Dean Edward E. Sandys, Harold Gross, company representative, and President A. J. Cloud.

Official unveiling by President A. J. Cloud of the sign at Ocean and Phelan Avenues rewarded weeks of concentrated effort on the part of several college departments who were able, with the cooperation of the Foster and Kleiser Company, to have the sign readied in time for this semester's opening.

The sign was designed by Walter Wong, art student of the college, and erected gratis by the Foster and Kleiser Company. George Mullany, publications instructor of the college, gave most of the credit for procuring the sign to Carol Wilson, a former student here.

Miss Wilson interviewed Walter F. Stevens, San Francisco branch manager for Foster and Kleiser, who readily agreed that such a sign would be an asset to the college and that the sign would be a worth while contribution from Foster and Kleiser in the interest of community improvement.

80 New Quonset Huts Now Building At Hurley Village; Open January

Hurley Village will double in size by next January, according to Fred C. MacFarland, college housing administrator. At that time 80 new quonset huts will be opened for rental to the 60 veterans and their families who are now on the waiting list.

The present village which consists of 25 huts and 28 apartments, accommodating 78 families, was named in honor of the former faculty member, Major John Hurley, who was killed in Italy.

Former Waves Barracks 13 is also occupied by married veterans, while Barracks 6, 7, and 8 are occupied by the unmarried veterans. "These barracks now house 232 bachelor ex-servicemen," MacFarland said, "and could accommodate 40 more gentlemen."

The barracks are complete with Bendix home launderettes and with drying rooms. There are study rooms on the second floor, and lounges furnished by last semester's rent money. Only residents are permitted to use barracks facilities.

The barracks are more crowded this semester, with three men to a room as against the two of last semester.

"We are crowded to some extent in order that the highest possible number of veterans will receive that to which they are entitled and for which they now have the most need. They have certainly earned it," MacFarland said.

Social Season Opens Friday At Fairmont

Social activities here at the college begin this Friday, October 3, when the Associated Students present their first dance in the New Terrace Room of the Fairmont Hotel.

According to Jo Ellen Cain, Associated Student vice-president, the high-spot of the 9 to 12 festivities will come when a "new idea to promote college spirit" is staged during the dance.

Dean's Office Has Lost, Found Dept.

Articles found on the campus may be turned in to the switchboard operator in the main building or to the office of the dean in Building 2, as well as claimed there, Dean Edward E. Sandys said yesterday.

Books and other articles not claimed after six months will be turned over to the Red Cross.

Applications Due For Denman Scholarships

Women students interested in winning a Denman Scholarship must file their application with Dean Margaret Dougherty before Wednesday, October 15.

Two awards of $125 are offered to women students here who are graduates of a San Francisco public high school.

The awards receive their name from James Denman, former president of the San Francisco Board of Education, and are perpetrated by his son and daughter, Judge William Denman and Mrs. Mary Cheatham.

KQW Will Contract Local Radio Artists

Station KQW will soon contract campus radio aspirants to a thirteen week program, possibly sponsored. The sign up is dependent upon the Script Writing and Radio Production classes performing at the high standards set by former students of Marie Weller, radio instructor.

AWS Schedules Two Traditional Teas

Women's activities will go full speed ahead this semester according to Beverley Huddleson, president of the Associated Women Students.

Plans for the semester include two traditional teas, one on Thursday, October 23, for new women students, and another on Thursday, November 20, for high school seniors. Both teas will be held at 2 p.m. on their respective dates in the west campus student lounge.

AMS To Ignite Pre-Game Bonfire

A bon-fire rally before the first home football game against Los Angeles City College, Friday, November 7, may be sponsored by the Associated Men Students, Frank Grant, AMS president, said last week.

"The main problem is in getting necessary funds," said Grant. "Of course, it would also be necessary to clear a date on the social calendar for the event."

Other AMS activities planned for the semester include intramural boxing matches, to be held just before Christmas, a mardi gras, and a barn dance.

Vet Subsistence Checks Late As Usual; Locals Following Taft "Eat Less" Policy

By Mel Hansen

A roving politico is currently preaching to the American public that they should tighten up the proverbial belt, put zippers on their money pouches, and in so doing force those nasty industrialists to lower the prices of their wares.

Here at the college, a rather unique situation exists.

At this writing there are approximately 220 football teams worth of veterans registered for this semester.

This consequently forces us to ask a few questions. Do these students agree with the learned gentleman because of party ties? No! Do they agree with him because they might be "Buckeyes" themselves? No!!

This series of queries leaves us only one answer. These young men agree because of personal reasons.

Cosmo O'Meenahan, 9th semester enrollee in basic skills and Math 51, sums it up as follows:

"I been at this college for eight semesters and I have had nothing but grief from those people down at 49 Fourth St. I found it impossible to eat without the necessary form of barter that is so vulgarly referred to by many as money. I hit my old man up for a loan and continued until I was in hock to him for a goodly sum, $675. Finally my check came. That's why I'm still here. I still owe my dear father 600 clams."

The new bulletin announcing that the veterans will not receive their first checks until November explains why this touring politico has so many unwilling backers. They simply haven't got it to spend.

Enlarged Cafeteria Opens October 15; Price On Coffee Jumps Three Cents

With the cafeteria still under construction, the new semester opens with the fountain as the only restaurant facility to serve students on the campus. It is open from 8:15 a. m. to 4 p. m.

The cafeteria, expected to re-open Wednesday, October 15, is being enlarged to give better service to students and provide more room for instruction purposes in Hotel and Restaurant classes. Construction was started August 25.

In view of rising costs of operation some price changes are necessary, but Mrs. Hilda Watson, faculty adviser to the Hotel and Restaurant Society, emphasized that they will give as much food value as possible for the money.

As an example, the price of coffee will be raised to 8 cents, but the price of milk will remain the same. Ice cream and sandwiches are also going to be higher.

"To help the fountain furnish food until the cafeteria is opened, the society will provide soup to be sold at the fountain, and open a "packaged" sandwich arcade in Building 12, using the windows near the room where the fountain is located," Mrs. Watson said.

Ex GI's Now Rate Two Week Leave Each Year

Under Public Law 346 student veterans now rate a 15 day leave each year, it was announced today by the Veteran's Administration.

The leave automatically begins the day following the last day of the academic year. Veterans will receive subsistence allowance for this time, but their scholastic entitlement will be charged.

The extension is in lieu of any and all leave and will be granted without request, provided enough entitlement remains.

Lovers of fine music will again have an opportunity to attend the Listening Hour, presented every Tuesday and Thursday at 1 p.m., beginning today in Room 200.

The traditional record concert series resumes with the theme, Dance Rhythms in Music, according to Gertrude Norgard, music department instructor. All interested students are invited to attend.

The Listening Hour continues this Thursday, October 2, with Melodies in Symphonic Music.

Beta Tau Anniversary Waltz Due Saturday

Anniversary Waltz scheduled for this Saturday night at the Whitcomb Hotel from 9 to 12 o'clock and sponsored by Beta Tau, is the intitial informal on the fall semester social calendar.

Beta Tau dance has now become a traditional semester affair, this term's theme marking the tenth anniversary of the fraternity.

Campus Parking Needs New Permits

Automobile owners who wish to park their cars on the west campus must have a parking permit issued this semester, according to Fred C. MacFarland, housing administrator.

Permits issued last semester are no longer valid. The new permits, which will be numbered from 1100, may be obtained upon application at MacFarland's office in Building 2. The guard at the gate to the west campus will check numbers of permits.

MacFarland added that the parking area in front of Building 2 is for the faculty administrative staff. All other faculty members and students must park in the parking lot.

Automobiles are not to be parked on the narrow streets of the west campus at any time because of fire department regulations.

Infraction of parking rules will result in revocation of permits, MacFarland warned.

Greenhouse Complete After Seven Years

Reward for seven year's efforts has come to the horticulture department here, with virtual completion of its new greenhouse and adjoining class rooms and grounds.

Two weeks should see the greenhouse in operation, according to Harry Nelson, horticulture department head. The entire plant will be completed and maintained by students in the department.

The Spectator

George Lajeunesse

PSYCHOLOGISTS often say that griping is good for the soul. The more one "bellyaches" the happier he is.

That moaning is a national pastime has been shown by the popularity of such radio programs as The Court of Human Relations, and many others.

You know the one wherein a mournful voiced woman weeps: "Mr. Anthony, five years ago my husband left the house to get a loaf of bread at the corner store and hasn't been back since. What can I do?"

And Mr. Anthony quips back: "Send someone else out for the bread!"

CAREFREE COLLEGE DAYS

Which is all nothing more than a long roundabout way of telling you about the most griping bunch of guys in the city, and they live right here on the campus.

So if groaning is, psychologically speaking, a happy state of affairs meet the most rollicking gang of characters that ever filled a college.

These refugees from red tape live in the three dormitories at the west end of the west campus and are currently hilariously happy.

Every night is Saturday night and every Saturday night is New Year's Eve, according to a psychologist's standards.

RED TAPE ADORNS MAYPOLE

No, don't get the idea it is the spirists of life freely flowing. Today it its of life freely flowing. Today it gaily festooned with miles and miles of red tape.

It is rumored there is a pipeline flowing from 49 4th Street (it takes nerves of steel to whisper those words on the premises), to every college in the Bay Area, feeding that glorious red ribboned stuff into the dormitories.

Only during the first month or so of the semester is this state of mind reached. At other times these guys are as normal as anyone else. Doing such routine things as cracking the books, burning midnight oil and eating regularly; three squares a day.

WORD FROM "MECCA"

What has transformed this normal bunch of humans into their present gay, carefree attitude is "The Word" from said 49 4th Street, known to some as the Veterans' Administration.

Here then, is the point of contem-

College Hour Rally Sparks Football Season Today, 10:40

Commissioner Edwards Promises Top Flight Entertainment In West Campus Auditorium

JIM EDWARDS, rally commissioner, assures Associated Students that bigger and better rallies are in store for this semester.

With all the enthusiasm warranted by the coming football season, this semester's first rally will be staged in the west campus auditorium during college hour today, 10:40 o'clock, and, according to Rally Commissioner Jim Edwards, there will be topflight entertainment sparked by the appearance of either the Frisco Jazz Band or the Fillmore Four.

Heralding tonight's contest with the Sacramento Panthers, cheer leaders Haig Harootenian and Bernie Davis will be on hand to demonstrate the yells to be used during the game and to familiarize the students with the fight songs.

Working toward large, entertaining rallies for the future, Rally Commissioner Edwards is completing arrangements with various musical outfits now appearing in the Bay Area plus numerous other forms of talent, both professional and from the college music classes.

Vet's Housing Due Next Spring

New quonset huts, totaling 169 units, which should be available by next semester for tenancy, was the hope extended to married students today, by Dean Edward Sandys.

"There is a long waiting list, however, and applications for any housing accommodations on the campus should be in my office in Building 2 immediately," the dean said.

There are still a few rooms in the dormitories on the west campus, which are open to unmarried men, Sandys added. The rent is $15 per month, and each room accommodates three men.

Police Dept. Warns "No Double Parking"

Final warning to students double parking near the Student Store was issued today by local police.

An officer of the force pointed out that students double parking create a fire hazard and harm business at the adjoining service station.

Although the department has issued no tickets as yet, for this violation, such steps will be necessary if students fail to co-operate.

Rapid Transport Want Forms New Auto Pools

Plans for formation of a car pool primarily designed for more rapid transportation of East Bay students, was announced by Dean Edward E. Sandys yesterday.

Students with riding space in their cars, and those desiring auto transportation are urged to sign up with Mary Borg, secretary to the dean, in building 2. Bus service from Richmond will start as soon as 35 students sign up, Sandys added.

Parking Space Filled In West Campus Area

Because of the vast increase in the student car-owning population, Dean Edward Sandys announced today that all available parking space has been filled in the west campus area.

Cars not equipped with permits will not be permitted in the court.

Sac Game Buses Roll Today At 3

Transportation to today's Sacramento game is assured by three Greyhound buses, which will leave for Sacramento at 3 p.m. from the main building.

Ed Gallemore, transportation chairman, quoted round trip prices at $2.75, purchasable at the college bank and in the lobby of the main building. Sales have been limited to 111 tickets.

President Archibald J. Cloud has authorized instructors to excuse students holding tickets from all classes convening after 3 p.m.

Game price stands at $1.07 for non-student card holders. Admission is free to card holders.

Beta Tau Frat Dance Opens Social Season

The Beta Tau Anniversary Waltz opens the college social season tonight at the Whitcomb Hotel.

Tickets for the 9 to midnight festivities, which celebrate the 10th anniversary of the organization can be purchased in the lobby of the main building and will sell at $1.80 a couple.

Music for the occasion will be supplied by the orchestra of Gary Evers. Beta Tau President Ted Noble predicted that this will be the biggest Beta Tau dance.

AVC Probes Lack Of GI Bill Equipment

Investigation of the facts concerning the stoppage of the issue of stationery cards to veterans will be undertaken this semester by the American Veterans Committee.

The AVC will do everything possible to see that veterans receive the cards and anything else they rate under the $500 yearly maximum granted them by the GI Bill.

The AVC will also sponsor a series of forums, which will replace last year's lectures.

Luckmann To Leave For Third Visit To UN Session In N. Y.

With many competent observers believing that the future of United Nations hinges on the outcome of the present session of the General Assembly at Lake Success, New York, Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to President Cloud, leaves here Friday, October 10, to attend meetings for the third time in as many years.

Luckmann is traveling under the auspices of the World Affairs Council of Northern California, of which he is associate Educational Director.

During the past Summer Session Luckmann organized a local World Affairs Council and upon his return from this current trip he hopes to reorganize this group for purposes of disscussing what occurs during his latest excursion.

Upon his return Luckmann will give a series of lectures, the first of which will be presented October 28 in the main public library.

The assistant to the president had this to say about his coming trip: "I am particularly happy to attend this session because of the present 'cold war' between the nations."

Present arrangements call for his return on or about Thursday, October 23, when he will begin preparation of his lecture series and continue his functions here.

LLOYD LUCKMANN, presidential assistant, leaves soon for New York.

Frosh Head Stresses Need For Student Card

Welcoming incoming freshmen to this college, Gil Morgan, new Freshman Class president, urged their full support in student activities.

Morgan stressed, in a statement released last week, the need for purchase of Associated Student cards in order "to participate in student activities this Fall."

KQW Offers Experience To Radio Majors Here

Participation on a nation-wide hookup broadcast is currently promised college radio majors. Station KQW, Interested consistently in Marie Weller's students, will again play host.

Youth Looks to the Future, aired Saturday afternoons, is the program. The first 15 minutes of the half hour broadcast are dramatized from New York City, while the remaining time is used for discussion by students here on the Coast.

Council Members Refuse Approval Of 4 Nominees Recommended By President

Members of the Student Council withheld approval of four names submitted by Frank Nelson, Associated Student president, last Tuesday.

The names submitted were Colin Tooley, Glen Newcomb, Phyllis Ryan, and Jane Hawkinson, and Nelson recommended them to fill four vacancies when officials elected last Spring did not return to the college.

The Associated Student Constitution provides that appointments made by the president must be approved by the council.

Reason for the voting as indicated in discussion was that council members refusing support had expected Nelson to recommend candidates standing next highest in the voting in spring elections.

Further action was expected at yesterday's meeting and will be covered in The Guardsman next Tuesday.

Council meetings are open to all members of the Associated Students.

Car Rates Reduced For Associated Students

Municipal Railway tickets are available at 50 cents for 16 rides, to members of the Associated Students.

This is at the rate of $.03¼ per ride, as against the usual stipend of 10 cents per ride. Thus, those armed with AS cards may purchase 16 rides for the 50 cents that would ordinarily buy only 6 rides.

AS cards may be obtained at the student bank. There is a fee of $5 per card.

Veterans' Subsistence Delay Understandable?

RELUCTANTLY we have to admit, whether we want to or not, that the decision of the Veterans' Administration to delay payment of 12 days subsistence for September to college students is almost understandable in view of the enormous "paperwork" involved in the process.

At least that is the official reason why vets here are hocking everything saleable in order to gather in enough of that scarce green commodity merchants demand in exchange for groceries and such.

Congress has repeatedly stated that the subsistence money is not in any way to be regarded as full income; the vet must go out and find a part time job to supplement his income.

Fine, so many of them are working part time. Now they run into another road block; the ceiling put on a veteran's wages. All because a few rotten apples in the on-the-job training program fouled up.

The average ex-GI in college doesn't mind being the target for anti-inflation propaganda but it's little things like ceilings and "too much paperwork" and general red tape of messed up government agencies that are shaking his faith.

We say we "reluctantly" admit the excuse for the check delay is justifiable . . . but only because we can't storm that Citadel of Confusion, 49 4th Street, and tell off the right guy; we'd have to go through the proper channels and we don't have the price of a ticket to Washington.

On To Sacramento

IN WHAT promises to be a dazzling exhibition of football prowess, this college's defending champion gridmen clash tonight with the fast moving Sacramento Panthers.

This is the opening game of the grid season for the college charges.

Although the game is to be played in Hughes Stadium, the Panther's home turf, it is commendable to note that round trip buses have been contracted to carry the Ram rooters.

They leave at 3 p.m., allowing ample time for the 8 p.m. kickoff.

Share A Ride

One war-time custom could certainly be revived at this college. Specifically a share-the-ride program.

Most students are at the mercy of the city's dilapidated streetcar system while many cars are arriving at the campus and leaving with no passengers.

Everyone appreciates a lift to or from school, so it is hoped that those drivers with extra passenger space will show consideration for their classmates traveling the same route via the swing and sway cars or on foot.

Key To City (College)

Sacks & Road Maps

IN WHAT appears to be an inside on college styles (for gals only), Beverly Huddleson, petite saleswoman for a local department store and Associated Women Students' president, has given us the official lowdown.

The "lowdown" style of skirts is strictly not here to stay proclaimed the pretty president.

"I will never wear those hideous gunny sacks," she declared. We glanced at her attractive hemline for confirmation.

As to the pedal extremities, Miss Huddleson decries the wearing of loafers, maintaining that saddle shoes and plain whites are all the rage. She declared, however, that they must be kept absolutely clean.

The Emporium huckster made no mention of bare foot girls.

The color schemes for this Fall season read like a California road map, in that a few of the new shades are Mojave (light grey), Tahoe (dark blue), and Sonoma (rich red).

In addition, there are two abstract colors of Cedar (dark brown) and Granite (dark grey).

This enterprising woman student leader emphasized that San Francisco women should be very discriminating as to current trends in clothing.

Miss Huddleson brought to light the fact that San Francisco is rapidly becoming the fashion center of the world. Only now, it is fast pushing New York and Paris for leadership.

She firmly states that "sloppy Joe" attire is strictly passe. The present mode for feminine college wear is neat suits, with a blouse or a well fitted sweater worn beneath.

As to pedal pushers, the cute prexy thinks they should be confined to bicycle riding.

Hair styles above all must be kept neat. Feather bobs are again becoming popular according to Miss Huddleson.

Long hair do's should never be allowed to become wind blown. The pretty sales gal frowns ,however, on the use of pomade.

Quips About the Campus

Campus personalities this week made the following comments on college and world affairs:

"I got all my classes on the west campus this semester, my nose bleeds above the first floor of the main building."—Terra Firma, Ceramics major.

"What do I think of the Marshall Plan? . . . I thought Klemmer was going to use the Modified T this season."—Polly Sigh.

"They tell me one can see the Farallone Islands on a clear day from the Hill . . . what year were they last spotted?"—Art Bifocal, 7th semester student.

"Such fascinating scenery can be seen from San Francisco street cars. My favorite vista is that stretch of track on the 'K' carline between Twin Peaks and West Portal."—Barbara Santa, L. A. City College transfer.

Kaffeeklatsch Komment

By Jack Hulse

THIS is a cafe by cafe account of what students (Americans all) are thinking about as they sip ten cent coffee at local hangouts.

Keep in mind, as you read this, that momentous (two hits) events rocks the world.

In other words, things are tough but not here.

First we skip to the Student Store where young seekers-of-knowledge learn the finer points of Bridge, Hearts, and cut-throat. The latter isn't the card game.

CAL OVER U.S.C.

Fighting our way through fraternity pins, we finally corner two fellows, George Burger and ditto Benedeto, who don't like long skirts but do like Cal over U.S.C.

Still in the store, we slither to a brunette femlale going under the name of Marge, who thought we were trying to make a pick-up. Indignantly we informed her that we were too fine a boy to do that, and she informed us that the local lovers were from hunger and that long skirts were just lovely, yes, just lovely.

We asked her, and this is the truth, "What are your views on the Marshall Plan?"

Smilingly, she replied, "What's the Marshall Plan?"

Humbly we set sail for the College Book Shop. We won't describe this castle (hutter on your snail five cents extra) except to say that the people here look like people.

Very co-operative students there were all for the longer hemline, with the exception of the men. Women like 'em, men don't, that's all.

We retreat to the Ram Shack, under new management, where nobody will speak to us, being too busy watching a fellow scholar perform at the console of a pinball machine.

PROSEK'S—NO STUDENTS

Next stop, Prosek's. No students in this sanctuary, unless the middle-aged, red-nosed gentleman who is loudly advocating that we drop an atom bomb on our late allies, is a student; Frankly we don't want to talk with him; he seems too bitter and might start telling us his many troubles. Some get the breaks, some don't.

Final stop, the Student Fountain. Our question here was: "Will you lend me eight cents for a cuppa coffee?"

Nobody seemed to have the right answer, and a few giants got downright nasty. As we are slightly huilt, we left pronto.

Get Rich Quick Schemes Still Floating Abouf

Editor's Note:

Those wishing to submit letters for publication in the Ram's Horn may turn them in to The Guardsman office in Building 12 or give them to the telephone operator in the main building to be put in Box 85.

Correspondents are urged to keep their letters to a minimum length because of limited space.

Editor, the Guardsman

Congratulations on the first edition of the paper. . . The whole sheet was exceptionally concise and well written. The new make-up of the first page and the beautiful layout on the editorial page proved that The Guardsman has "truly grown up."

From the number of students that were seen reading the paper, it looks as though the majority of the students finally realized that the purpose of a college paper is to get the news to the students without all the sophomoric nonsense of jokes or a gossip column, even though we missed Del Pichon's "Comments on Women."

Editor, The Guardsman

Many of the sad faces around the campus lately can be accounted for by the fact that many college students consider themselves to have lost $2048. In short, when the legality of the new type chain letter was not only questioned but completely denied by our illustrious Postmaster on the front pages of our news dailies, orders for new Cad convertibles and summer trips to Hawaii had to be quickly cancelled.

Oh well, don't give up hope friends, there must be other get-rich quick schemes still floating around just waiting to be picked up by some money minded person.

News To Nobody

By Herbert Levy

AFTER six long years of kicking around the men's gym, the RAMSHEAD finally got into a standing position . . . located at present near the entrance to the west campus . . . after six long months of someone deciding where to get a quart of red paint, two eager members of the BLOCK S F Society will turn Rembrandt and change the pale monstrosity into a worthy symbol!!!

Herold Miller, instructor in goof ball English (basic skills), hit the jackpot with an excellent survey of the Vet housing set-up at this college in the present number of the Sierra Educational News (official "poop" sheet for California teachers). Some of the pictures with the article showed the inside of the quonsets over in Hurley Village . . . helieve it or not, some of them looked actually comfortable!!

Blunder of the Year: With the Registrar's office undecided whether the cell block has 5500 students or upwards of six thousand, the ALMANAC of 1947 comes up with a classic, to wit: SFJC: Number of Students—1713. Number of Teachers—88 (Obviously, more instructors than that tutor bonehead math) . . . What have we said! Gracious. . . .

It's good to see the young coeds fresh from high school lolling about the front lawn leisurely, gagging on a new found pastime of smoking . . . the choker however, is when they refer to the campus as a school yard . . Yak!

And speaking of long skirts (we weren't), some gal hiking around the west campus Friday afternoon drew the customary guffaws from the male students . . . she was wearing a hlack typewriter cover and we swear (from optical estimates) that the thing wasn't FOUR inches above her shoe tops!!! (She was wearing the hutton type).

It seems those two huge boxes down in the basement at the south end of the main building contain Link Trainers—they were bought as surplus just after the war ended for instructional purposes . . . as yet no ahle instructor has been found, so no flying course. (So what!)

. . . At least there were TWO SMILING faces around here when the summer vacation took the el foldo—one was Al's, the other naturally was Prosek's . . . (They run "Restaurants" on Ocean Avenue.)

THE RAMBLING RAMS, vintage 1947, will take to the field at Sacramento tonight against the highly touted Sacramento Panthers. Using a new system (T formation) and under the direction of a new mentor, Grover Klemmer, the Rams are aiming to keep their winning ways of last year. RAMblings . .

By Dayton Lawson

THE SIGHT of Coach Grover Klemmer installing the T formation into the Ram grid machine this semester brings to mind the first time, in this generation at least, that the system was seen on the coast.

The U.S.F. Stanford game was the occasion, and when we say game, we use the term loosely. What happened to the Dons that day shouldn't happen to a (that's right) Don.

The season prior to that, the Indians were lucky to win three games all year long. The same players, except in two or three instances, were back the following year under a new pilot, Clark Shaughnessey. But what a difference!

THE FOUR HORSEMEN

Frankie Albert, Pete Kmetovic, Hugh Gallerneau and Norm Standlee looked like the Four Horsemen on the best day the old Notre Damers ever had. The only element missing was the shift. What WAS there was the darndest potpourri of razzle-dazzle that the customers ever saw.

If you managed to follow the progress of the ball from the moment it left Albert's hands until it reached the goal-line, you'll never have to be examined by an eye-doctor. From then on, the Indians were in, and finally finished up in the Rose Bowl.

The Stanfords, remember, had four of the fastest and trickiest backs on the coast at that time. All they needed was a system designed to exploit that speed. The T was the answer.

Other teams have adopted it since, some attaining a modicum of success, others not so fortunate.

SPEED THE FACTOR

The important thing to remember in the use of the T is that speed is the most important factor.

Last season the Modesto squad used the T exclusively, and made a sad showing against the Rams, who were employing the double wing.

The Rams had the power last year, and Modesto didn't particularly show anything in the way of an offense. Simply a case of one team using a system fitted to the players, and the other team using one that was not.

This season perhaps, the Ram backfield may be blessed with some fast men who will make the T go.

Women Must Have Medical Examinations

All college credits will be withheld from women students failing to keep appointments for medical examination, Gloria Swiegood, Women's Athletic Association adviser, announced today.

Women students who have not already made appointments may do so by applying to instructors in the women's gymnasium. Dr. Alice Potter will be in the women's gymnasium office Monday 9:30 a.m. to 12 m., and Tuesday 1 p.m. until 4 p.m.

WAA Will Have Full Schedule This Season

Women's Athletic Association sports will meet weekly from Monday, October 6, through January 23, 1948 as per scheduled, Herminia Ross, president, said yesterday.

Requirements for entrance will be a health examination by the college physician. Opportunities to become a manager of a sport and also to serve on committees for Sport Days, hanquets and programs will be available.

The schedule is as follows:

Archery, Fridays at 9 and 10, badminton, Wednesdays at 3, dancing, Fridays, 9 or 10; hockey, Thursdays at 3; riding, Tuesdays at 3; swimming, Thursdays at 3; tennis, Mondays at 1; and volleyball, Mondays at 3.

Soccer Team Work Out For Opening Game

With the daily practice sessions quickly getting the soccer hopefuls into condition for the forthcoming conference competition, Coach Ralph Hillsman will maintain his open policy of giving all the aspirants a chance prior to the season opening.

All soccer players can turn out for the eleven during the practice period between 3 and 5 p.m.

As yet Coach Hillsman has not formed a starting team, but the practice contest with San Francisco State on Wednesday, October 8, could decide the score.

The Ram soccer schedule:

S.F.J.C. at Stanford, October 18.
S.F.J.C. at California, October 25.
Cal. Aggies at S.F.J.C., November 1.
S.F.J.C. at S. F. State, November 7.
S.F.J.C. at U.S.F., November 15.

Teams Signup For Intramural Games

Rapidly completing plans for one of the greatest intra-mural tournaments in college history, Director Tom Wilson announced sign-ups for the basketball tourney will begin Monday, October 6 and will be accepted until Tuesday, October 14.

Each competing team will be allowed eight players, of which five must be ready to play at the time scheduled, or a forfeit will be declared. The only restriction for participation is that a member of a varsity team who has earned a block letter at the college in a particular sport, cannot enter that same sport in the intra-mural program.

All sports have been divided into major and minor classifications.

The major group will include such sports as basketball, touch football, track, softball and boxing.

The team finishing first in these activities will be given 100 points. Second place will receive 75 points, third spot 50 points and fourth 25 points.

The minor group will be composed of volleyball, cross country, tennis, swimming, badminton, ping pong, horseshoes, handball and basketball free-throwing.

The winning teams in these sports will be awarded 50 points for first place, 35 for second, 25 for third and 15 for fourth place.

1947 Champs Tangle With Enemy Tonight

'T' Party Looms In Capital City Clash; Both Squads Boast Speedy Backfields, Heavy Lines

By Sam Goldman

Tonight San Francisco's 1946 NCJCC pigskin champions will unwrap their bundle of grid goods for the first time this season when Coach Grover Klemmer and his thirty-six rambling Rams take on the speedy Sacramento College eleven at 8 p.m. in the state capital's Hughes Memorial Stadium.

Earl Hoos' footballers, who inaugurated their year last week by dumping Grant Tech College, has produced a "carbon copy" version of his last year eleven.

The Panther forward wall, possessing an average weight of 200 pounds in the line, will open the holes for their fast scatbacks, who themselves average 160 pounds.

Assuredly the Hoos Pony Express will be out for the taste of swget revenge after having been the victims of two decisive defeats by the San Franciscans last year 13-6, 12-0.

Leading the Panther contingent will he center Lane Ernst; guards Jack Rhoades and John Bleth; tackles Jim and Ray Connally; ends Donald Neudeck and Richard Genasel; quarterback Nick Placentini; halfbacks Frank Cuffe and Austin Brown; and fullback Tom Cuffe.

However, the Rams after four weeks of strenuous practice, even with the few pre-season injuries, will still be in shape to give the Panthers an evening of interesting football.

The campus linemen will include center Ken Schuchard; guards Tom Childs and George Magenaris; tackles Paul Oliver and Neill Gunn; and ends Glenn Stern and Paul Hagen.

Handling the pigskin for the gridders will be quarterback Boh Toquinta; halfbacks John Rainey and Ken Foehr; and fullback Howard Crouch.

Both college elevens will be using the T-formation, and if the plays from this fashion hold true to form, the coaches will be making use of all their scoring plays from the center plunges to the pigskin airlane flights.

Eight NCJCC Elevens Clash This Weekend

As the Northern Junior College Conference enters into its second week of football, the following games are slated on the schedule:

Today:
San Francisco at Sacramento
San Mateo at Santa Rosa
Grant at Placer
Salinas at Stockton
Napa at Marin
October 4:
Chico J. V. at Yuba*
Compton at Vallejo*
Menlo at Muir Tech*
Non-Conference games.

Jensen Heads College Junior Varsity Teams

Like their big brothers on the varsity football squad, the Ram Jayvees will also start the season with a new coach, Jim Jensen, who also coaches the track squad.

The Jayvees, who had a successful season last year, must again start from the bottom, as most of their players graduated to the varsity. Yet Coach Jensen is hopeful for a sucessful season. The junior varsity schedule hasn't been completed as yet.

Registrar Laments On Huge Enrollment Jump, Urges Student Use Of Catalogue And Bulletins Displayed About Campus

By John Campiglia

An unofficial estimate places this year's enrollment at 5,450 students; which, while large, is astronomically larger than last year's 5,200 when one considers that the larger figure makes it all the more difficult for the office staff to reach students.

Digging Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, from under piles, reams and stacks of papers, the only remark she could make was on the traditionally overlooked item that seems to crop up inevitably each year with registration:

"I would greatly appreciate our students reading the catalog so generously supplied by Mr. and Mrs. Taxpaper, so that they might be informed about drop dates, and withdrawing from the college," and, Miss Learnard continued, "it seems so honestly simple to remember that section changes and class drops have to be completed before October 10, 1947."

Miss Learnard believes her suggestion can further be advanced by reminding all students to watch bulletin boards posted throughout the halls and to read The Guardsman.

In this way, she is confident, a new, or old student, may become reasonably informed of the college's activities.

In giving the unofficial estimate of student enrollment this year, Miss Learnard recalled enrollment figures during the last war, which dropped below 1,100. She sighed, probably with longing at the recollection.

MARY JANE LEARNARD, registrar, urges use of catalogue by students.

VA Offers Vocational Guidance Tests To All Veterans Enrolled In College

Veterans now may be reasonably certain of success in their chosen fields of endeavor. Whether the veteran is engaged in a pursuit suiting his abilities, interests, and needs, is determined by a series of tests taken at the Veterans Administration Guidance Center, Building 3.

The tests last from six to eight hours, and may be taken at the veteran's convenience. Ordinarily such tests would cost $75.

The purpose of the guidance program is to assist veterans in obtaining the maximum educational return to which he is entitled, and, if he is following the wrong program, to help him select the correct one. According to Louis Batmale, counsellor here, this is done, through the medium of an interview, aptitude tests, and a study of his school backgrounds.

Batmale, who was also former head counsellor at Commerce High School, said yesterday, "Next to choosing a wife, choosing an occupation is a man's most important decision."

AN ENFORCED DIET

Now that's a lot of meatless Mondays to Fridays to go on, but such is the situation that prevails for six weeks.

You might say in here, "What have these people got to beef about, getting paid for going to college?"

Very true, in more ways than one. During the next six weeks they won't have beef of any kind coming.

Huddleson's Officers Subject To Approval

Beverley Huddleson, president of the Associated Women Students, made the following appointments to posts within the AWS organization last week:

Carol Shute, vice-president; Rita Buscaglia, corresponding secretary, and Natalie DuDune, recording secretary.

These appointments are subject to Student Council approval, which observers expect, will be given automatically.

Skyrocketing Food Costs Send Prices High In Cafeteria

The Hotel and Restaurant division will undertake a crucial battle this semester to maintain its balance among the mounting costs of food, labor, and expendable material, Hilda Watson, adviser to the restaurant division, said yesterday.

The cafeteria has to buy food at prices ranging from twice what it cost before the war, to those that are the highest in U. S. history. Expendable materials, also run high; the cafeteria is using between 20,000 and 30,000 paper cups and plates per month.

Labor costs for dish washing and janitorial work are equal to the cost of downtown restaurants. All costs are paid at a union scale, the adviser stated.

The drain on the cafeteria finances is much heavier than the drain on private establishments.

Bonfire Rally Fails As Funds Fall Short

Lack of student funds was yesterday blamed for cancellation of plans for a bon fire rally sponsored by the Associated Men Students by Frank Grant, AMS president.

"We'll back a bon fire rally if the rally committee wants to sponsor it under their budget," Grant said.

The AMS leader said he still plans a mardi gras, intra-mural boxing tournament, and barn dance.

Assisting Grant in planning these activities will be Robert Reilly, vice-president and Bob Selby, secretary-treasurer, both appointed by the AMS president subject to Student Council approval.

Terrace Room Sports Student Dance Opener

The new Terrace Room of the Fairmont will rock with the music of Bud Stone's orchestra Friday, October 10, instead of tonight, from 9 p.m. to midnight, in what will be the first "big" dance of the semester.

Thus announced Jo Ellen Cain, social committee chairman, who is making extensive plans for the Associated Student sponsored event.

Couples will be admitted upon presentation of one Associated Student card per couple, Miss Cain said. Dress will be informal.

Less Part Time Employment Available Despite Persistent Student Clamoring

The college placement program, under the sponsorship of one Joseph A. Amori, still functions; but it does so despite less employment, especially part-time student employment, according to Amori.

JOSEPH AMORI, job placement head, runs department smoothly despite job shortage.

In this college, optimistic and persistent students line up daily outside the placement office, while inside, Amori, a battery of telephones ringing and grinding away, inform them of what job openings there are in the city.

Facts and figures on how many students are being employed, how many have been placed, are, as yet, unavailable, as Amori could not be reached for comment. On the sole occasion he was reached, the busy man had pressing business elsewhere and had no comment.

The dates and requirements of future state examinations are posted for all to see on the bulletin board outside the placement office.

Student Designer Ken Pederson Snags Blue Ribbon At San Mateo Floral Show

Designer of the winning exhibit at San Mateo's Floral Fiesta of September 4 through 7, was Ken Pederson, according to Harry Nelson, landscape instructor here at the college.

Nelson explained that the design was one of many submitted by the students in his horticulture class, and that the design was an outdoor garden, with a lath-workhouse.

Nelson also stated that Benjamin Buffano, city art commissioner, lent his striking statue, "Head of a Mexican Boy," to the department for the display.

Nelson expressed his thanks to Pederson, Dick Rohrmann, Gus Pappas and Al Ferracone, for their efforts at the show.

Seasonal Tickets For Symphony Now On Sale

Seasonal tickets to the 17 concerts to be held during the San Francisco Symphony season are now available to students and faculty members alike, according to Meyer Cahn of the college music department.

LAMBDA ALPHA MEETS TODAY

Lambda Alpha, the college music honor society, will hold their first meeting today during the college hour to discuss new members and initiation.

Two hundred and fifty tickets have been placed on sale with prices ranging from $14.50 to $20.00, with a few at $10.00, Cahn said.

The first concert of the season is scheduled Thursday evening, November 13.

Grieg, Dvorak Discs Top Platter Session

The program planned for the Listening Hour Tuesday, October 7 and Thursday, October 9, titled Haunting Melodies will include themes from Tschaikowsky symphonies, the 1st movement of Grieg's A Minor Concerto, 2nd movement of Dvorak's Symphony from the New World, and Tschaikowsky's Romeo and Juliet Overture.

The Listening Hour meets every Tuesday and Thursday at 1 in Room 200. Any student or faculty member is invited to come in at any time, Gertrude Norgard, the college's musical instructor, stated.

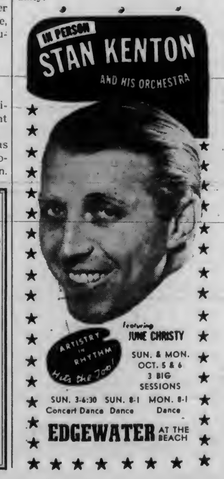
ATE Dance Cancelled Because Of No Funds

Cancellation of Alpha Theta Epsilon's dance to have been held tonight was announced by Bea Groger.

Reason for the cancellation was lack of funds, according to Miss Groger, president of Alpha Theta Epsilon.

Library Will Open New Branch On W. Campus

The library plans to open a branch on the west campus on or near Wednesday, October 15, Marcus Skarstedt, the college librarian, said yesterday.



Operating on the theory that "open stacks" are conducive to study and further reading, the library will keep the stacks open to all students again this semester.

In the main library there are to be found 32,000 books on the shelves dealing in every conceivable subject. During the last college year there were 100,000 charges or loans made.

Among the 250 periodicals in the library, are two San Francisco dailies and two foreign language newspapers. The New York Times is another newspaper that comes into the library. Bound copies of the Times are kept on file.

Library hours are from 8 to 5:15 daily.

New Plan Zooms Card Sale

The Spectator

George Lajeunesse

LAST Saturday was "Newspaperboy Day" over the nation and the big dailies fell all over themselves in paying tribute to the red-blooded American boy behind the scene who gets the papers into millions of homes every morning and evening.

All last week the sheets carried pictures of clean-cut, clear-eyed youths who, like mailmen, carry their burdens daily through "snow, sleet and hail."

STARTING THEM YOUNG

These youngsters, ranging in age from twelve to eighteen, are learning the inner workings of a democracy, they'll have you know, by getting out and meeting the public.

Absorbing the responsibilities necessary to become sober citizens of the future. Delivering papers to the right doors, making collections each month, drumming up new customers to build up their routes and so on and so on. . . .

LAW CONVENIENTLY FORGOTTEN

Strangely enough, during the week preceding "Newspaperboy Day," such social evils as child labor and the like are quite conspicuous by their absence within newspapers.

Yet at any other time of the year let a big, bad coal mine operator send a twelve year old kid down into the mines and the papers are up in arms over it.

Galloping headlines will call attention to the Federal child labor laws. . . "Simon Legree" is dug up to describe the fiend responsible.

NEWSBOY ALUMNI HERE

No kid ever suffered by starting his career in hustling the four papers in this town. It's an even bet that every male in this college at one time or another sold one of the papers in his early youth.

He got up at three in the morning to trudge through cold, grey fog lugging a bag of papers over a route that extended over three or four mile area.

TACKLING DEADBEATS

Meeting the public was a treat too, especially at the crack of dawn when the man in the street isn't at his sharpest.

About the only pitfall he had to hurdle however, was an occasional deadbeat customer who dodged like a broken field runner at the first of the month.

THE MAN BEHIND THE BOY

And the sadistic circulation boss who leered from behind the wheel of his ancient delivery car and climbed out now and then to crack a black whip when he kid lost a customer by placing a badly almed paper through a closed window instead of on the front porch.

On the big day those little things are forgotten and Young America stands modestly in the spotlight as praise rains down about his ears.

WELL DONE SON, CARRY ON

He is eulogized in print as a main cog in the wheel of the newspaper industry.

Bow deeply, stalwarts youth, on Your Day. You'll not work in a sweat shop, you're too young to build new cars, and keep out of them coal mines.

But get out of the sack at dawn and get those papers delivered!

30 Percent Dorm Rate Slash Waits School Board Act

Subject to the approval of city school authorities, rentals on men's dormitories building numbers 6, 7, 8, will decrease from $15 to $11.50 per month. This became effective last Friday, according to an announcement by Fred MacFarland, campus housing administrator.

The approval by the School Board on the change of rate is expected almost as a certainty. In this case, since all occupants have paid the October rent; the payment for November, due before the sixth of this month; a credit for $3.50 will be extended to occupants, making $8 for the month of November.

FRED MacFARLAND, campus housing administrator, announced a slash of three dollars and fifty cents in dormitory rates for single men.

Edwards Swings KJBS Spiel For Night Rally

Hourly spot announcements over station KJBS, advertising the rally to be held on the west campus Thursday night, November 6, was promised yesterday by Jim Edwards, rally commissioner.

The commercials will begin at 5 p.m. on that night, Edwards added.

Friday Final Day To Add Or Drop Courses

Last day for filing petitions for adding courses or changing sections is this Friday, October 10, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, warned again yesterday.

A further statement by the registrar claimed the final tally for the spring 1947 enrollment had not been reached, but it was believed that by the end of next week a final count of more than 5400 students could be ascertained. Wednesday, November 12, is the last day for dropping a course, Miss Learnard added.

Library Shifts Some Books To West Campus

Part of the 32,000 books, 250 periodicals and six dailies, including one French and Spanish, will be transferred to the west campus branch library in Building 2, tomorrow, Marcus Skarstedt, librarian, declared yesterday.

Luckmann Calls For Help In Chest Drive

Call for volunteers to work for the Community Chest drive was sounded last Thursday.

Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to President A. J. Cloud, told students that 30 college men and women were needed to solicit contributions in the Glen Park area, a small district just northeast of the college.

"Students wishing to help out in this very important community project should see me as soon as possible," Luckmann said. Luckmann has his office in Room 123.

LACC Tilt Possible Runyon Fund Event

A plan to make the coming football game with Los Angeles City College a Damon Runyon Memorial game, donating 20 per cent of the proceeds to the fund for cancer research, was approved last week, according to Associated Student President Frank Nelson.

Mikes and Men Seek Radio Writing Talent

Mikes and Men, the new radio broadcasting organization, needs radio scripts, President Tanios Habeeb announced today.

"Scripts on little known facts and incidents about California and our own San Francisco are urgently needed," Habeeb said.

Accepted scripts will be used on a 13 week radio series over a local radio station. Scripts can be left in Room 5 of Building 19.

Council Initiates Credit Buying Plan In Effort To Widen Card Privileges

College students are a good credit risk, in the opinion of Frank Nelson, Associated Student president.

In an effort to help students purchase Associated Student cards at once so that they may participate in current social activities, a plan was effected Thursday by the Student Council, whereby students may get cards now and pay later.

These arrangements were made mainly for veterans, whose subsistence allowance will be delayed, and those students who had to make a large initial outlay on books.

Student cards may be obtained by applying to Nelson, Associated Student president, in his office in Building 2 and signing a release.

Unless more students buy Associated Student Cards, so far only 2700 have been sold, activities will be curtailed or if necessary cut out entirely, Oscar E. Anderson, college controller warned.

"Students must realize," he said, "that the money collected from the sale of Associated Student cards is used in the maintenance of some 25 general college activities."

These activities include The Guardsman, Forum, drama, Associated Men and Women Students, band and orchestra, social committee, and the Christmas concert.

Other college clubs, over 25 of them, which do not receive funds from the Associated Students, are advised to deposit their funds in the student bank. A school department rule requires that all student funds be held by the college bank, Anderson warned.

AVC Hits State Plan

Ex-merchant seamen may belong to the college chapter of the American Veterans Committee.

This is contrary to the California State Executive Committee resolution which has been sent to national AVC headquarters, limiting membership to members of the Armed Forces.

Vacancies Filled In Student Council

A series of new appointments marked the main business at the Thursday, October 2, Student Council meeting, where vacancies in the Judiciary Committee and the council itself were filled.

New council members named were Pat Pollack, Ed Gallemore, Bob Reilly, and Chet Fong.

Named as chairman of the Judiciary Enforcement Committee was Ernst Reese along with new Judiciary Committee members Edward Brosnan, Nancy Wallace, Bill Richardson, and Cecilia Evanson.

Fire Department Opens New Evening Course

Creation of a new training course, answering a demand by students, is to be offered in the evenings at this college for all men interested in competing in the Fire Department Civil Service Examinations, according to Michael LoPresti, fire college director.

Registration began in Room 100 on Monday, October 6, LoPresti added.

Med Society Screens Films On Surgery

The Pi Mu Gamma, the college medical society, will hold a series of lectures here during the Fall semester, open to all students. Tomorrow three surgical films will be shown at 7:30 in Room 136, main building.

Drama Tempts Potential Thespians From Hiding

Temptation of the theater brought from hiding last week many potential college thespians in what Lloyd Sisler, drama instructor, declared was a record breaking talent turn out.

Since there are more than 50 students striving for parts in the scheduled productions of this semester, double casts may be used.

A large number of experienced drama students have returned.

"The first escape from reality offered to the students of this college," Paul Ellison, co-drama instructor, announced, "will be presented on October 15."

Cal Okays Parallel Architecture Course

William Mayo, engineering department head, has announced that next semester additional University of California parallel courses in architecture will be offered. Interested students should inform Mayo in his office, Room 142.

Music Department To Entertain At Hospital

A series of programs for patients at Letterman General Hospital is first on the agenda of activities for the combined groups of the A Cappella Choir, Men and Women's chorus, orchestra and band, Gertrude Norgard, chorus director, announced yesterday.

Construction And Classes Clash On The West Campus

IT IS fervently hoped that soon the only sound of hammering to be heard on the west campus will be that of an instructor pounding knowledge into the skull of a wayward student.

In the meantime it looks as though someone got his wires crossed in arranging for the present construction invasion to start almost the very same day that classes opened.

Especially in view of the fact that during the entire Summer the west campus looked like a well-tailored ghost town, with only a gardener or two, a handful of students in the dormitories and the mass of birds in trees along Ocean Avenue to break the calm.

No "casualties" have been reported as yet other than frayed nerves to some instructors trying to get across the all-important first lecture in the face of hammering.

The carpenters haven't been faring too well either, in the confusion. The other day one was seen lugging a shoulder full of tools against a rising tide of students along the narrow walks. He was clipped from all angles by the horde and succeeded in plowing straight into a blank wall.

He held his tools and his temper, but it took a lot of self-control to do both against the odds facing him.

More Consideration Needed

TO SOME it may mean nothing and to others it may be a slight inconvenience.

However to the single veterans living on the campus, the closing of the cafeteria is of prime importance.

The reduced prices for food is at least some aid to the veterans who must survive on sixty-five dollars a month.

It appears that a little more consideration could have been given as to the time for remodeling the cafeteria.

Surely it would have been just as easy to do the necessary repair work during the summer.

President's Prerogative

AT THE LAST meeting of the student council nominations to fill the vacancies created by failure of four elected members to return to the college, were approved.

The editor of The Guardsman felt, and still feels, that regardless of the qualifications of those nominated, the four runners up in the spring elections deserved consideration in view of the fact that they represented student wishes.

However, the editor fully recognizes the right and responsibility of the president of the Associated Students to make appointments as he sees them, and speaks for The Guardsman staff in assuring the president complete support and backing in this matter.

Needling Notations

By Del Pichon

DURING the Summer when the news was let out that the fickle goddess, Fashion, had decreed that the hemline would fall this Autumn, we were sad that so many beautiful gams were going to be hidden from view.

We wept copiously in our stagnant brew, but we recovered. We consoled ourself with the assurances of the high priests of Fashion that the leg was to be "seductively hidden."

We viewed with some admiration the new styles of evening dresses featuring the draped hem and the split skirt, and in short we resigned ourself to seeing more of this new craze.

However, with the advent of the Fall semester we were horrified (well, maybe just startled) to discover that the mad fad had even influenced the customary garb of the usually uninhibited bobby-soxer.

We gazed in fascinated consternation as we saw the hell that the goddess, Fashion, had raised with the figures of our "dear, lovable, sweet bobby-soxers."

The sweet things were waltzing about the campus in the most grotesque garbs that we have ever laid our glims upon!

Long overcoats which completely covered the figures beneath seemed to be all the rage. Our own personal opinion was that the girls looked like refugees from a Third Street breadline which we know they were not.

These long coats are known as fullhacks and for all the femininity which they possess they might as well be worn by a collegiate fullback.

However, what was more revolting was the long skirt that quite a few of the girls were sporting. Revealing stubby, three-inch stumps without an iota of symmetry even hinted at, the long skirts on the bobby-soxers are a dismal and discouraging failure.

So modern design makes the big difference? The only difference we can observe is the hobbling, and hiding, of the notoriously shapely legs of American lovelies.

Quips about the Campus

Nuntzvar Hammershlog, T.V.A., AWOL, P.W., D.P., transfer from Martinez Suh-normal, bounded out of his room, dashed down the hall grabbing his racing form and flask, and jumped aboard the nearest K car to whisk him to college.

His mouth tasting like the inside of the motorman's glove, Nuntzvar leaped off of the car, skidded on his face to the entrance of the west campus, and stumbled madly for the fountain: object—a cup of joe.

Blindly rushing out of the maelstrom, paper cup of java hugged tightly to his breast, Nuntz—then on the brink of quaffing the nectar of Central America's finest blend, took a downfield block from seven members of the second string varsity, on way to their morning eyeopener.

Unabashed, Nuntzvar whipped out his straw, sank slowly to his knees and slurped to the last drop.

Editor, The Guardsman:

Lets get a few more garbage cans around the west (dirty) campus. There wouldn't be so many papers along the gutters if the students had some place to throw them besides on the grounds.

And while you're at it, how about a clean-up week around the campus? Wake up some of the offenders and educate the rest that we should keep our campus clean! How about a blazing editorial?

● Skirts Again

Editor, The Guardsman:

It has taken womenkind approximately 35 years of experimental trial and error to arrive at the exact number of cubic inches of underpinning epidermis to be displayed for the edification of her natural prey, MEN.

In the past two decades this figure has increased or decreased depending on: 1) the sanity (?) of the fashion designers, 2) the condition of madame's knees, 3) feminine whims. After arriving at a length some intangible somewhere between provocativeness and indecency, madame was satisfied.

Cannot MANkind unite and whether by means subtle or violent bring back that little-below-the-knee number that gave birth to a generation of drugstore cowboys upon this city's windy streets? We will soon fall back into the medieval ages when the baring of an ankle completely and devastatingly shattered a fair lady's reputation. Let it not be so!

Why are we a JUNIOR college? I've never heard of SAN FRANCISCO SENIOR COLLEGE! To heck with just an editorial; let's have some action. Call for volunteers, get up a committee and get something done.

News To Nobody

By Herbert Levy

SEEMS a few members of the Student Council broke up one of their otherwise dull get-to-gethers the other day, with choice adjectives being thrown freely around the room . . . namely at each other. Temper! Temper! . . . after the mud slinging was over, it appears the big MOAN consisted of some councilites disagreeing with stewdent prez Nelson on his choice of filling four vacancies—seems Franky had a quartet of Frat boys hand picked then (of all the nerve) the other members wanted to know why the runners up in the May elections couldn't take over the open positions! ! ! How silly. . . .

For East Bay Scholars only:

This is one of the few sets in S. F. where you can go out the back door and see the hay and creep out the front gates (try to push the doors open against a strong wind) and the Pacific Ocean. . . . DENNYS DAIRY out on West Portal was handing out free ice cream, etc. to anyone who wanted it. (A swell time to tell you.) Denairys is remembered for his gratis milk shakes last semester to the college pigskinners for every T. D. they scored . . . From the looks of the RAM eleven, if Denny comes across again this year, they'll have to cart the shakes out here by the truck load . . . if we don't stop writing this hash, they'll cart us out of here with the shakes! !

When Lloyd Luckmann, college administrative mogo, enplanes to attend the U.N. confab for the third time (on personal invitation of Trygve Lie, U.N. Gen. Sec'y), this will be the only two year college in the country to have official journalistic coverage at the meet . . . wonder if he'll have to sign up for Newswriting 21Q?!

Pretty one time loser (1st semester student, that is) Joan Lynch wandered and wondered, in The Guardsman office, why the platters presently being scraped on the juke box in the Fountain contained only one record grooved by a popular vocalist . . . maybe pretty soon new comer Al Jolson will get a chance. (Maybe if we mention Joan's name four more times, we'll get a date.)

Hemming About The Hemline

By Mary Erhart

Shattering the Fall lethargy by The Guardsman interview with Beverly Huddleson, AWS president, a poll was conducted to see how the male and female scholars at the college react to the "New Look."

During the war our campus lovelies, like all other homefront gals, were free from any drastic fashion fads, excluding of course, the bobby-soxers and "cheese cake" skirts. This was caused by the shortage of materials. Now that restrictions have been lifted, the designers are having a field day. They have created that "New Look" (whatever that is!) and from all indications that "New Look" is here to stay.

From a poll taken around the campus it seems at least part of the new fashion fad is here, referring of course to the long skirts.

Bob Leiber, an uninterested inmate, agreed with the Swing and Sway Sammy Kay in the present fashion feud. Sammy says "I don't mind long skirts—I have a good memory."

Speaking from a strictly feminine viewpoint, Pat Murray, petite coed, likes the long skirts. She believes they are flattering, graceful, and decidedly feminine in look. (Ed. Note: On a whiskey keg, yes.)

Gil Morgan, hearded man about campus, is very much against the falling hem lines. He says that the 'hm' appeal in women is lost somewhere in those "droopy-eover-all-the-legs-skirts." He did agree on one of the angles of the "New Look," in that skirts do attract attention—but the wrong kind—that of criticism.

Teddy Deckert, vivacious one termer, is definitely against the lengthening of the skirts. She believes in solid comfort and declares emphatically that she is not to be one of the floor-dusters (referring to the long skirt, that is!).

Another member of the Associated Students heartily disagrees with the above mentioned duet. Rene Burges, handsome freshman, likes the length because it keeps the male population guessing. He also said that if every girl had legs like Betty Grahle he would be a firm defender and admirer of the short skirts. (Ed. Note: Who wouldn't?)

So the "feudin' and a fussin'" continues on and on into the winter. It will be interesting and amusing to find out whether the "New Look" is here to stay. (You mean there is another Lauren Bacall.)

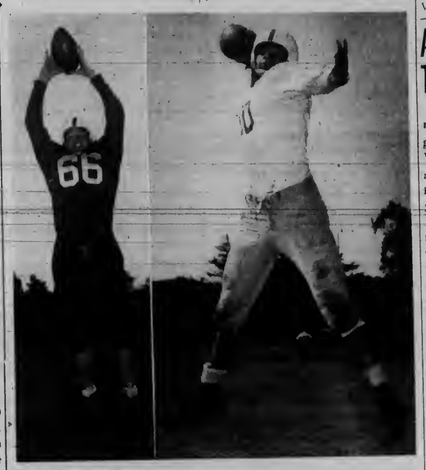
Rams T-Attack Smothers Sacramento In Opener, 12-6

Ryan And Fischer Line Halt Panthers; 80 Yard March Sets Up Second Tally

By Sam Goldman

HUGHES MEMORIAL STADIUM, Sacramento, Oct. 3.—Inaugurating their NCJCC title bid for 1947, the San Francisco Rams toppled the Sacramento Panthers, 12-6, here tonight. Effectively demonstrating the Klemmer version of the "T," the collegians completely out-classed their opponents, while on defense the city eleven withstood a continual group of Pony Express scoring threats in the fourth quarter.

The Ram eleven pounded on the scoring gate throughout the first period, and found their season's first six points when quarterback Bob Toquinto flipped a 21 yard pass to left half Ray Stewart, placing the pigskin on the enemy 11. Howie Crouch, the evening's leading ground gainer skirted his own left end for the score. Bob Brickell's conversion was wide of the mark.



Mid-way through the third quarter, the campus gridders marched 80 yards in nine plays for another T.D. A 41 yard aerial by quarterback Jim Greene sent the pigskin into the awaiting arms of end Glenn Stern, who, taking the hide on the 11, went into the end zone unmolested. Brickell's extra point attempt was blocked.

The Pony Express finally came to life in the fourth period when after recovering a punt fumble, the Hoos eleven under the passing of Nick Piacentini and the dodging of scatback Austin Brown tallied their lone six points. The attempt for the one point was no good.

Jayvees Need Linemen To Fill Out Squad

Since the day the first uniforms were issued, September 25th, the Junior Varsity football squad under the guidance of its new mentor, Jim Jensen, has enlarged to over a hundred members and is holding daily practice sessions on the college field.

The Jayvees' prime purpose is to supply the varsity with material when it is needed, but along with this chore they also manage to maintain an interesting schedule of their own, and even take an out-of-town trip once or twice during the season.

Coach Jensen has asked that any lad who likes the game, or thinks he has ability is welcome to come down and try out. There is a notable shortage of good linemen at the present time.

A complete schedule will be printed later.

Boxing Rules To Be Changed by New Coach

If Roy Diederichson, the new charge d'affaires in the Ram boxing picture has his way, the pugilistic pastime will become less and less of a bogey and more and more of an interesting diversion to the participants enrolled in the physical education classes.

The best that the sport has been able to offer the novice in the past is a black eye, a cut lip, and a sudden interest in table-tennis or badminton. Diederichson comes up with a very clever system designed to stimulate the sport and promote a little more confidence among the newcomers.

A new point system, regulated according to the lad's individual ability, has been devised.

WAA Ask Men To Join Their Activities

By Ann Land

Something new has been added, and you Sir, are it; this meaning that collegians are now entirely welcome to join with friendly femmes co-educational horseback riding and bowling clubs. Aim—common interest in pursuit of athletic prowess.

The Women's Athletic Association is sponsoring the clubs, which are the first co-educational athletics the college has ever offered.

Bowling will assemble at the Sports Center at 3333 Mission Street, Monday at 3 p.m. or Tuesday at 11 a.m. Horseback riding is scheduled for Tuesday at 2 p.m. or 3 p.m.

Soccer Back After Seven Year Lapse

With the issuing of the proper uniforms and equipment, Ralph Hillsman's newly organized soccer team started shaking the cobwebs out of its system by indulging in a short practice session on the college green last September 25th.

The sport's last appearance on the campus was approximately seven years ago, and with the coming of the war and sundry other obstacles such as a slightly unbalanced budget, soccer has been relegated to a somewhat static existence in the Ram athletic activities.

Although the 1946 first place title rest on the hilltop campus, the Carquinez bridge neighbors are still growling and moaning over why they did not receive the crown goods for their tremendous seasonal record.

Therefore, when the two top grid elevens of this sports league take to the turf, the stakes for the victory will be high for both teams.

Coach Colon O. Kilby, Vallejo's tutor of the spread formation, will have a big line and hard running backfield to keep their opponents busy during the 60 minute contest.

Klemmer's rambling Rams will not be napping when they don their costumes, since their fast stepping backs and charging line will be on the field to destroy the Redskin record.

Kezar Stadium Will Be Site of LACC Game

The question of where the campus eleven would meet their southern rivals, Los Angeles City College, in their annual "big game" was officially answered by Jack Gaddy.

As director of the athletics here at the college, Gaddy announced that "Kezar Stadium would be the rendezvous spot on November 7 for the grid classic."

The remaining two home tilts for the Rams will be held on November 11 at Balboa Field against Salinas and at Washington Stadium against Modesto on November 22.

Annual Basketball Tournament Set

Entries for the annual intramural basketball tournament began coming in to Director Tom Wilson yesterday, and from all accounts the coming campaign promises to be one of the best in recent years.

Teams will be allowed to sign up for the tournament until Oct. 14, with actual competition getting under way shortly thereafter.

Jim Wyatt has been named manager for the coming semester and will have two assistants, as yet unnamed, to help him in his duties. Wilson is also looking for several other students to help organize the games.

The coveted Dr. Cloud Intra-mural Trophy will be awarded to the team organization with the greatest accumulation of points at the end of the campaign.

First place awards in each sport will be a gold belt buckle for each member of the winning team, with the name of the school and a symbol of the sport in which it was attained. Second place teams will be given silver medals with the sport designated.

Time schedules and regulations for each sport will be posted regularly on bulletin boards and in The Guardsman.

Women Change Their Athletic Schedule

Because of the difficulties occurring in the former Women's Athletic Association schedule, the program for sports has been changed as follows:

Archery will meet on Friday 9 or 10 a.m. Badminton assembles on Wednesday at 3 p.m. Hockey is scheduled for Thursday at 3 p.m., and dancing on Friday at 9 and 10 a.m. Swimming meets Thursday at 3 p.m. and tennis on Wednesdays at 3 p.m. Volleyball meets Mondays at 3 p.m., Gloria Swieegood, women's faculty athletic adviser, said yesterday.

RAMblings . .

By Art Paymiller

A HARD luck tale of almost disheartening proportions came to light recently with the announcement that halfback Kenny White had suffered a heel fracture and would be lost to the Ram football team for the 1947 season.

White, regarded by some as the best halfback in the conference, has been plagued by injuries from the start of his football career, but has always recuperated with enough courage to try again. A star back for Lincoln High School, White was headed for top honors until stopped by an injury that kept him out of the lineup.

Undaunted, he took up the gridiron sport again upon registering at the college, and finished last season with a ball carrying average of over four yards per try. This season there was no stopping the game lad who was headed for stardom until his fatal nemesis caught up with him again.

* * *

The blame for the Rams playing five of their league contests away from home can be laid only in one place, upon the students of this college. By refusing to attend the games last season, except for a scattered few, the team is forced to play almost their entire league schedule on foreign fields. They have practically become a team without a home field.

Think of the humility if the game with Los Angeles City College has to be played on the Balboa or Washington High School fields, which are nothing more than glorified sand dunes with inadequate seating and broadcasting facilities.

It's had enough that there are two league tilts to be played on these fields, let alone a great intersectional tilt with arch-rival Los Angeles.

Question of the week: What is the big attraction at Menlo Junior College that can draw such formidable prep athletes as Ford Long, Bill Lang, Jerry Hamilton and Lorin Meyers away from their home town college?

College clubs will meet during the second college hour at 10:40 o'clock Friday, October 10. All clubs will meet in the rooms to which they were assigned during the spring, Assistant Dean Jack Brady, said yesterday.

Any club that desires a room change should apply to the assistant dean's office, Brady continued.

Clubs and room numbers are as follows:

Alpha Gamma Sigma, 204; Alpha Theta Epsilon, 158; AVC, 100; Beta Phi Beta, 111; Beta Tau, 254; Block Society, 194; Chinese Social Club, building 2, lounge; Club Advisory Board, 2B; Cosmopolitan Society, 113; Delta Psi, 206.

A complete college hour scheduled for the semester cannot be announced until after the Student Council completes budgets, Dean Jack Brady said yesterday.

HANDSOME JACK BRADY, the industrious assistant dean of men and popular administrator about the campus, yesterday assigned class room to the college organizations. Brady urges students to vacate assigned rooms immediately after the 10 o'clock class.

Fairmont Houses First Dance Fest Friday Evening

The social season will be ushered in this Friday, October 10, when the Associated Students present their dance in the new Fairmont Hotel Terrace room, under Social Committee direction headed by Jo Ellen Cain, chairman and Associated Student vice president.

The affair will be informal with men wearing suits and women wearing whatever length dress they choose.

Bud Stone's orchestra will be in attendance providing music for dancing from 9 to 12.

Admission will be one Associated Student card per couple. Miss Cain warned that because of lack of funds and curtailment of budgets, bids may not be given at the door.

Committee members include, Dorothy Stolaroff, Ed Gallemore, and Niek Diritiman.

Fund Shortage Weaken AMS Social Tourneys

Activity plans of the Associated Men Students must be curtailed it was learned today, because of insufficient funds.

Frank Grant, AMS president, discussing the traditional Mardi Gras and Barn Dance, stated, "One of these dances may be elliminated unless more Associated Student cards are sold."

Plans for renting a barn were abandoned and the auditorium instead will be used.

College Records Hit Stands Next Week

To promote college spirit and, incidentally, add a couple of choral recordings to the collections of local platter bugs, the college Student Store, 965 Ocean Avenue, will sell records of college songs next week, according to to Mark Mohler, manager of the store.

The records were made last semester by the A Cappella Choir and the Men's Chorus under the direction of Flossita Badger, faculty member now on sabbatical leave in New York.

Price of the records, not yet established, will be as low as possible to Associated Student card holders, Mohler said.

HARRY NELSON, horticulture department head, expresses glee as new greenhouse nears completion. Through Nelson's untiring efforts during past seven years, the group will soon have use of new building.

Lost And Found Urges Reclaim Of Supplies

Unclaimed books, remaining in lockers after June, 1947, should be reclaimed at the information office in Building 2, Fred C. MacFarland, housing administrator, announced this morning.

"Any lost articles left in classrooms should be turned in to the information office in Building 2. Students may reclaim their possessions by applying there in registering for the receipt of the article," MacFarland said.

Rally Commission May Ignite Fire Before Grid Tilt

A bonfire rally may still be in the offing this semester, according to an announcement made by Rally Commissioner Jim Edwards last week.

Previously, plans for a bonfire rally sponsored by the Associated Men Students were cancelled by Frank Grant, AMS president, because of insufficient funds. Grant expressed the belief that the Student Council will appropriate for his organization only enough money to hold the already scheduled AMS barn dance, mardi gras, and intra-mural boxing tournament. Reason for this, he explained, was that too few student cards have been sold.

Although Edwards' plans for the bonfire rally are still in the early stages, he expects the rally will be held just before either the game with San Mateo Junior College on Friday, October 25, or Los Angeles City College on Friday, November 7.

Edwards said that food will probably be sold at the rally by students of the Hotel and Restaurant Division, and that he was arranging for both professional and amateur entertainment.

NRA Plans Monster Shindig In Plush Palace Hotel; Hilltop Chefs Attend

Although construction now underway in the west campus cafeteria may hamper the activities of the hotel and restaurant division, 100 students will take an active part in the convention of the National Restaurant Association at the Palace Hotel beginning today.

The division, directed by Hilda Watson, has placed students as waiters at the Whitcomb and Mark Hopkins Hotels and Grison's Steak House, bartenders at the Lake Merritt Hotel and the Hunter's Point Officers' Club, cashiers and paymasters at the Palace, Bellevue and Whitcomb Hotels and many other positions of the trade.

HILDA WATSON, hotel division head, who will take 100 students to the convention at the Palace Hotel this week.

Vallejo Indians Spot Ramland Campus Site

Delegates from Vallejo College invaded San Francisco last Thursday to scout for ideas and methods in the operation of student government, money raising and other problems.

Operating under a new Constitution, the city of Vallejo has inaugurated the 6-4-4 educational plan in which the last two years of high school and the first two years of college are combined.

The representatives were Edson Caldwell, faculty adviser; Aldo Da Re, president; Bob Heath, boys' vice-president; Helene Anabo, girls' vice-president; Sally Beckett, secretary; Marian Chantilas, treasurer; Alex Donaldson, commissioner of athletics and Jean Gallegos, yell leader.

Amori Going Over The Top In Job Placement

During the past college year, Joseph Amori, student placement bureau head at the college, has interviewed 8,500 students and graduates and has successfully placed 5,000 of them in both full and part time jobs.

Since the beginning of this semester 200 students have received employment through this office.

Despite these figures, however, Amori makes it clear that the trend in business is to replace inefficient help rather than to expand.

CAB In Initial Meet For Officer Election

The first meeting of the Club Advisory Board for the fall semester is scheduled for Friday, October 10, in Building 2, Room 2b, during the college hour, according to Scotty Mallen, spring semester vice-president.

Purpose of the meeting is for the election of new officers. All campus organizations are requested to send a representative, Mallen added.

Youth's "Making Money At The Mint" Brings Belly Laughs In Court Room

By Florence Ames

It is well-known around the San Francisco City Hall and to those who have occasion to do business in the Courts, that Judge Sylvian Lazarus, of the Superior Court, has a deep interest in every person who appears before him—a sincere concern to know the person and very often he will ask questions himself, and out of these sometimes the unexpected is bound to develop; many times the results are humorous, such as happened yesterday in his Courtroom.

When a prospective juror gave as his occupation the answer, "retired," Judge Lazarus, with his usual interest in his fellow-man, interrupted the routine questioning by the attorney in the case, to ask:

"Retired? Do you mean to say a young-looking man like you is retired?"

"Yes Sir!" replied the prospective juror.

"How long is it since you've retired?" asked His Honor.

"Eight years," was the reply.

"My goodness, what sort of business were you in to be able to retire as such an early age?" continued the Judge, "What were you doing?"

"Making money!" rang out the answer.

The Judge still pursued the question amidst a titter of laughter, with "Where?"

"At the Mint," was the reply, whereupon such laughter pealed forth, that "Order" had to be called for.

THE thoroughly white-washed Lt. General John C. H. (for "Courthouse") Lee is going into pasture at the Sixth Army Headquarters in the Presidio Country Club some time this week.

"Courthouse John" is the triple-starred lieutenant general who got a very "loud whistle" blown on him by Robert Ruark, a roving columnist who went to Europe on an assignment and turned over a few rocks while in Italy, the scene of General Lee's former command.

ONE LIAR, ONE ANGEL

As everyone knows the series of columns led to an investigation of the set-up in Lee's area. In rapid order certain discrepancies were eliminated in a hurry, an Inspector General made a tour soon after, and General Lee announced his retirement.

The Inspector General came back to the states and wrote a very wordy report, faithfully released by Army press relations, that, as only Army jabberwacky can, called Ruark a liar and hung a government issue Halo, Angel, Mi on the head of General Lee.

IKE STEPS IN

Ruark then came up with a rebuttal that almost had General Eisenhower's okay on it . . . at least it showed Einsenhower's separate report revealing a lot of corrections being made in Italy that Ruark broadly hinted about.

All contestants seem satisfied now. Ruark said his stories got the desired results, and General Lee still has his three stars which he'll soon trade in on a retirement and a well padded pension.

LEE MOVES TO CITY

Now the scene shifts from Italy to San Francisco where the carpet is being rolled out in welcome to General Lee, halo and all, and a few guns will be fired in salute to him, as dictated by tradition.

We'd like to fire our own little salute to General John on his arrival at the Coast Artillery Country Club which is occupying a goodly chunk of the best homesite land in town.

Not that we're taking sides in this rhubarb, to lift a baseball phrase, but just looking forward to the day General John will revert to our own social strata, that of Civilian 1/c, and we can buy him a drink if we chance to rub elbows in the Mark bar, without keeping an eye at the back of our head for a stray M.P.

No, we can't say Lee is guilty of anything. How can a man be found

Applications For Denman Scholarship Due Next Wednesday

The application period for the James Denman Scholarships will close five days from today, on Wednesday, October 15, warned Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, yesterday.

The scholarships, two consisting of $125 each, are open to women graduates of San Francisco Public High Schools.

Women interested should apply by letter to Dean Dougherty's office.

The Denman Scholarships were started by Judge William Denman and Mrs. Mary Cheatham in memory of their father, the late James Denman, a former San Francisco school principal and superintendent, and later president of the Board of Education.

Hopeful Yell Leaders To Try Out Tuesday

Tryouts for college yell leaders will be held Tuesday, October 14, at 12 noon at the Student Council meeting, Frank A. Nelson, Associated Student president, said yesterday.

Emphasizing that anyone that's interested may have an audition by the Student Council, Nelson looks for a good turnout, and once the yell leaders are appointed by the Council, he expects every student to support them.

Writers Urged To Try Their Skill At Radio

Need for student-written radio scripts for a 13 week series of college broadcasts on CBS station KQW, prompted Tanios Habeeb, president of this college's radio dramatics club, Mike Men, to visit journalism classes this week to urge amateur writers to try their skill at radio.

Habeeb stated that the club is in need of scripts on "little known facts of California and San Francisco history."

Any script worthy of dramatization will be presented by producers and actors of the radio class here. They may be written in story or radio dialogue form.

The touchy subject of paying bills was decided at the Student Council meeting Tuesday, when a budget, compiled by the combined efforts of Dean Jack Brady and Finance Chairman Don Burger was approved.

Talent Necessary For Letterman Diversion

In an effort to continue the program of entertainment for patients at Letterman General Hospital, which the college embarked on last year with great success, a plea is being made to students who have real ability and talent, to inform Gertrude Norgard, music instructor, in Room 200 or 263.

"We are looking for those who can sing or play an instrument well enough to perform before an audience," Mrs. Norgard said.

College Hour Schedule Called On Tuesday

College hour schedule will be followed Tuesday, October 14, with faculty members meeting in departments at 10:40 o'clock, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar said yesterday.

No special club meetings are planned for students, since the need for departmental meetings came as an emergency, she added.

Readmission Board Thumbs Down 25

Henry D. Soule, readmission board head, last week passed judgment on more than 100 students, according to Head Counsellor E. Grant Marsh, and 25 persons were denied readmittance.

Those appearing before the board were students who had failed to maintain grades in keeping with the college minimum requirements.

Informal To Raise Curtain Tonight At Fairmont Hotel

First official dance of the semester comes tonight with the Associated Students' Fairmont Hotel curtain raiser in the New Terrace Room.

Admission to the 9 to midnight festivities will be one student card per couple, according to Jo Ellen Cain, Associated Students vice president.

She further stated that the "no corsage rule" will be in effect for the night, "and that dress will be informal. Suits for men, and women's wear can be lengthy in spite of escort's objections."

Music will be provided by Bud Stone's orchestra, and Niek Dertinan will be master of ceremonies.

JO ELLEN CAIN, vice president of the Associated Students, meinteins that long skirts may be worn at tonight's dance.

Today Last Day For Change In Program

Last day to make a change in a section or to add a course to present programs is today.

Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, warned that, Wednesday, November 12, will be the final deadline for dropping a course. If a course is dropped after this date a final grade of "F" will be recorded against the student for that particular course, she said.

Mitzie May Make More Classes—With "Help"

Students can help make student George Durand's guide dog, Mitzie, more at home on the campus. She has been trained to lead, not to force her way through a seething mass of unmoving people.

Student politeness, and a hands-off policy to the dog, will permit her to lead Durand more easily to his classes.

East Bay Car Drivers Respond To Pool Plea

In response to Dean Edward Sandy's car pool plea, rides have now been offered to Richmond, Berkeley and Oakland. Students desiring rides should see Mary Borg, secretary to the dean, in Building 2, west campus.

The dean's office also stated that articles found on the campus may be turned in to the switchboard operator in the main building, and students who have lost articles may claim them at the dean's office.

Red Feather Drive Should Be Backed By The College

INASMUCH as this college is an integral part of the community, sharing in its needs and welfare, the students of this college are urged to give generously and bountifully to the COMMUNITY CHEST.

A cause such as this, taking in all the charitable organizations of this city with one donation, should be supported to the utmost by the students of this college.

If you, as members of this community, give 50 cents or five dollars, you are aiding this most worthy organization.

The 30 members of this institution, who will soon be circulating about campus collecting donations for the chest fund, will eventually come in contact with every student.

Give to the COMMUNITY CHEST.

Regulations Ignored

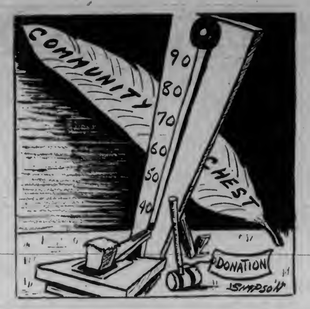
FROM the nature of reports received regarding the conduct of certain students at the Sacramento football game, it would seem that now is a good time to repeat an edict laid down by the college administration.

The authorities here have said, "Don't imhibe even while attending off campus college functions, because, if in the eyes of the administration, you go too far, you will be subject to immediate suspension." The relative degree of over indulgence is to be decided by the Dean's office and does not hinge upon any laboratory report.

While this may seem harsh treatment of an old college disease, it is obviously necessary if the good name of the college is to be protected from harm by the irresponsible or unthinking.

Dollar Still Secondary

WE AGREE wholeheartedly with the letters in today's "Ram's Horn" column signed "Student Veteran."



If anyone ever deserved a pat on the back it is the college administration for its recent action in reducing the dormitory rent from $15 to $11.50.

It is almost unbelievable that something has actually been lowered in price in this day of senseless inflation.

This move will prove of invaluable aid to the single men whose $65 per month is looking more like pin money every day.

Some of these men are able to work part time to supplement their government checks, but there are also those who either aren't fortunate enough to locate a job or their programs are too heavy to allow them to work.

It is those in the latter category that the reduction will help the greatest but its over-all effect will be felt by everyone in the college.

Needling Notations

By Del Pichon

WELL, the busybodied puritanical know-it-alls who foisted Prohibition on the country a few years ago are at it again! Not satisfied with having removed booze from the bars, sex from the screen, and reality from books they are out to eviscorate the expurgated, government-hound radio.

This time they are after radio's enjoyable and relaxing crime shows such as Inner Sanctum and Sam Spade. They say the shows are a bad influence on the children of the nation.

Probably, one of those frustrated old "women," male or female, is behind the whole thing; one of those typical women who start such organizations as the . . . We Can't Tell U.

If so, she started squawking a year ago about the crime shows and circulating petitions to have them eliminated from the air. In due time the rest of her narrow-minded type joined her and have now scared the radio networks into moving the crime shows to the later hours of the evening so that the children may not hear them.

Ignoring the reports of psychologists who say the shows have little, if any harmful effect on the children, the bigoted bluenoses are still trying to have the programs entirely eliminated from the air.

While they are doing this they seem to overlook the fact that since the dawn of time children have been told tales of valor, excitement, rewarded honesty and punished treachery. The radio does all this now and strongly adheres to the untrue maxim, "crime does not pay."

Since these latest "zealots" are adamantly emasculating our youth don't be surprised if Little Orphan Annie is banned from the radio because it is "too sexy."

The Bull Pen

The movie we saw at the Orpheum Monday night, Her Husband's Affairs, is escape entertainment. What the audience was escaping from we don't know, but watching Lucille Ball and Franchot Tone cavort was a pleasant, if inane, way of escaping.

Tone is an advertising man who attempts to cash in on a hair removing cream invented by a crackpot scientist friend. Chief complications in the plot are the cream's erratic performance and the ad man's wife (Miss Ball), who always gets him out of trouble, much to his annoyance. She is a bright and helpful woman, and every time she helps him the other characters in the picture point to her and say, "There are the brains in the family."

Personally, we don't appreciate helpful women and sympathize with the ad man.

Now we're sorry we escaped to the movies. There was a shotgun quiz in English 21h next day. We barely passed.

Canvassing The Campus

By Mary Erhart

SOMEWHERE in the mad scramble during the recent war some of the students of this college claim that something big was lost in the college makeup. They believe college spirit gave up, dug its own grave, and climbed in with the tombstone inscribed as follows: S-F-J-C-Ra-Ra-Ra-Sis-Boom-Bah—War casualty.

At the present moment there are some of the opinion that this institution hasn't the spirit that other colleges have in the bay area.

Students walk around the college as if they were deadheads, merely a hunch of robots wound up every day to attend this college.

A good stable example of robots in action occurred at the recently held rally. My, what college spirit was shown!! One would have thought the yell leaders were mad fools seized with fits of shouting S-F-J-C-R-A-M-S at the top of their lungs. The robots nodded their heads, tolerated it, passed words of sympathy on to fellow automatons, picked up their books and propelled themselves back to class.

A tall, true blonde (ha! If there is such a thing!) member of the female group to be found on the campus, agrees that there is absolutely no spirit shown here as there should be at a college.

A dark haired casanova around the campus believes that we have poor leadership. He claims this has brought about a non-cooperative pact between scholars and student leaders. And that if the leaders would forget their respective fraternities and sororities and work for the college the students would show more enthusiasm.

A slim girl with a wasp waist (meaning a part of the New Look), and a strong supporter of the new lengths, said sweetly, "The lack of hustle here is simply dreaaaadful. In swooping by us in her yards of materials, she added, "Nothing will reecver be done about it until rugged individuals take drastic measures."

A hattering Ram (foothall team member, that is!) said that until this college becomes a four year institution it will never have any spirit connected with college activities.

The non-robots, the few that there apparently are, will compose scroll after scroll of their suggestions and ideas, but probahly no knight in shining armor will ever crash through the robots here.

Paper Minus 2 Readers: Dorm Rent Reduced

• Dorm Rents
Editor, The Guardsman:

After taking a terrific beating from the merchants along Ocean Avenue all summer long, my $65 per month subsistence money looked pretty sad toward the end of the month.

You can hardly imagine the surprise I got when going to the Student Bank the other day to settle my dormitory rent and finding it actually reduced instead of jacked up sky-high, as is every other commodity, particularly food.

We formerly paid $15 a month rent for the dormitories. This I've always considered quite reasonable. Now it has been reduced to $11.50, and, in face of the crazy inflation of today, this is the best news I've heard since the end of the war.

The school authorities are to be commended highly for this action on the veterans' behalf.

It is quite heartening to see there are still people clinging to a non-profit philosophy; that there are some who still refuse to chase the all-mighty dollar at someone else's expense.

Editor, The Guardsman:

The Guardsman has at last succumbed to the cry of the masses, it is now publishing a regular joke column, known as "Quips about the Campus." In the past the Editorial Staff of The Guardsman has prided itself on putting out a mature paper, but alas, the new staff has changed all that. Fie on you.

It is to be hoped that in the future the college newspaper will recover from its second childhood and again be a mature paper for the mature students. Not a paper for insipid children who do not belong on the campus.

News To Nobody

By Herbert Levy

THE estimated 3000 Rams and Ramettes that rolled out for the first rally a week ago today seemed to get a huge jolt out of the Frisco Jazz Band . . . rotund, Jim Edwards, able rally commish, was vying for the 4 Aces, but the jam quartet upped their tariff to 100 fish per half hour, 40 dollars more than they raked in last semester . . . All this leads us to blunder into the info that there is a good possibility BOB (laugh at my first joke, clap at my second, etc.) HOPE may show for a college get-to-gether in Mid-November . . . seems Edwards has an inside with the Cal Rally headman (Hope is scheduled there for next month) and figures to lure him over here for the rally in addition to charity dance with proceeds going to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund. . . .

There's a quaint poster plastered on the wall of the Fountain, that reads "Travel: With the SFJC Band. T-Th 2-3" . . . we guess on those 2 hours a week, they give free rides around the west campus on a slushpump!! (For you squares, that's a trombone . . .)

Notes on the Sac'to Pigskin Tilt: Seems about the only interesting thing about the first game for the Rams (other than 12-6 score in S.F.'s favor, two slugging matches in front of the rooting section after the game, a loud round of boos for two capital city gendarmes restoring order in the rooting section) was a lively Sacramento gal cheer leader, with the skirt she was wearing, seemed to advocate the hemline, "a little below the hips." WOW!!

We hope a local morning columnist doesn't beat us to the type on this one . . . but the James Denman scholarships are PERPETUATED (continued) rather than PERPETRATED (to commit an offense) as fanstastically reported in the Gadsman.

Little Jo Ellen Cain, V.P.A.S.S.F. J.C. (she's also a student) is sorry to report that only coke will be served at the big shot shottische tonight. (And she is sorry, believe us!)

Rams Seek Ninth Straight Tonight

Stewart Leads Ram 'T' Offense; Kilby To Spring Spread Plays On Invaders

Gridiron festivities resume tonight at 8 p.m. for the San Francisco Rams when the collegians invade the stamping grounds of the Vallejo Redskins seeking their ninth straight win (1946-47) in their second conference clash.

After snagging their opening tilt from Sacramento, Coach Grover Klemmer sends his conference champs against a top eleven, who, until last week, had a collection of 12 wins and nary a loss.

Coach Colin Kilby's warriors, losers to the Compton team last week, are fortified with three well formed elevens, who can be moved into the battle fray at any moment.

Meanwhile, in the Ram camp following his inaugurating tussle, Klemmer has now 33 men who can be expected to keep the Vallejo eleven bottled up throughout the evening.

The Naval Base city population will witness top-notch junior college grid maneuvers, with the big three—Klemmer, Fischer, Gaddy—parading forth their fast and effective T, as their method in tallying the TD's.

Led by the Rams' Mister "T," Bob Toquinto, the Phelan Avenue gridster will start with Ray Stewart at left half, John Rainey at right half, and Howard Crouch in the fullback slot.

The Invaders' forward wall will include Paul Hagen and Glenn Stern, ends; Chuck Kelley and Paul Oliver, tackles; George Maganaris and Tom Childs, guards, and Ken Schuchard at center.

Advocates of the short punt and various spread formations, Kilby's kids will use the end sweeps, the air lanes, and quick kicks as their offensive thrusts to reach pay dirt territory.

Coach Kilby will lineup his starting team, consisting of George Souza, Guido De Rae at ends; tackles Jack Pryor and Bob Bash; Doug Braun and Alex Donaldson, guards; and at center Jim Castagnoli.

Lambs Take On Vallejo Papooses In Opener

Journeying along with their varsity brothers to Vallejo tonight, the college's junior varsity gridders will tussle in the preliminary contest with the Vallejo Papooses.

Coach Jim Jensen will lead his "raiders" in their first season grid clash with a traveling group of 30 footballers.

Leading the junior varsity contingent will be Hal Stone, Cecil Hamilton, Stan Main, Marvin Switch, Ray Urbano and Bill Marcus.

The javees are something of a "reserve" varsity from which material can he drawn.

Signup For Track, Cross Country In Gym

All men students desiring to compete in the fall track and cross country races are requested to see Coach Jim Jensen in the men's gymnasium office as soon as possible.

Hoop Signup Hints Record Tourney

From all indications to date, this season's intramural basketball tournament will be one of the greatest ever produced on this campus.

Only four days remain for late entries to arrive, and many more fives are expected to send in their lineups before the deadline falls.

Many top-flight quintets are ready for competition, among them the perennial entry from the Chinese Social Club. These Chinese lads always put on a good show, with their speed and clever ball-handling taking the spotlight.

The first games will probably be played soon after the entry deadline, as Director Tom Wilson wishes to get his program started.

Signup dates for other coming sports will be announced soon.

Block SF Society Holds Powwow Today

Recently having taken over the reigns of the Block SF Society, Ralph Hillsman will gather the athletes together in their first meeting of the semester today during the college hour in Room 194.

All athletes who have earned their blocks in any of the college's major sports, and the intramural activities' manager are urged to attend.

Topics on the first agenda for the first meeting will be an election of officers, the society's dance, and the proposed policy to be followed by the group during the coming semester.

Vallejo Set For Ram Grid Invasion Tonight

Vallejo, Cal., Oct. 10.—Final preparations by Coach Colin Kilby and his grid staff have the Vallejo Redskin gridders in top physical condition for tonight's football game.

A crowd of 10,000 football fans at the present time are awaiting the arrival of the San Francisco Ram group, confident that their players will topple the visitors from the undefeated list.

RAMblings . .

By Arnold Wechter

BILL GRANT, Athletic News Director at USF, has some words of wisdom for the members of the student council and publicity committee. He speaks from authority, having been in the past Publicity Director for Compton Junior College, and knows the exact problems faced by those who would like to see the Ram's name in print more often.

His first suggestion was that the student body get behind the publicity drive and back up the athletic teams of the college, something that has been noticeably absent in the past, this also goes for the faculty.

Secondly the Student Council must appropriate a decent amount of cash to the publicity committee. It is a known fact that every successful business turns 10 per cent of its gross income back into advertising and publicity.

This is a good lesson for the members of the finance committee.

In between words of wisdom on publicity for junior colleges, Grant extolled praise on the "game of the week" to be played at Kezar tomorrow between Mississippi State and USF. This will be the game that will put USF to the test.

We also received a 1947 football brochure (a high class title for a pamphlet) of the University of San Francisco. This little booklet which is given to the newspapers and radio station is practically invaluable for the sports broadcaster as it contains a pronouncing guide.

It works like this, in case you are interested: Take the name Pietkiewicz. Impossible with the guide, which tells you the name is pronounced PIE-IT-KA-WITZ. Clever, these publicity men, they make the most difficult task look easy.

SF, Vallejo Tilt Tops On NCJCC Calendar

In seven football tussles, highlighted by the Ram-Vallejo tilt, the NCJCC undefeated elevens will battle to hold their top positions against tough competition this weekend. The big games for the NCJCC teams are as follows:

Today:
San Francisco at Vallejo.
Salinas at Modesto.
Yuba at Grant.
Marin at Menlo.
Placer at Santa Rosa.
Sacramento at Napa.
Tomorrow:
Stockton at San Mateo.
(Undefeated teams in bold face.)

Shots At RAMdom

By Dayton Lawson

Art Psaltis, one of the immovable objects in the RAM line last year played his usual terrific game for the Gaels at Berkeley last week. The lopsided score wasn't Art's fault this trip, but keep an eye on the Mission district lad for the remainder of the season. . . .

Bob Nard, chief bingle artist for Bill Fischer, is enrolled at Santa Clara with a baseball scholarship . . . Herb Markell of the same team now calls College of the Pacific his Alma Mammy, while pitcher Jim Hughes quit altogether to get married. Just wait till he catches the price tag on butter and eggs yet! . . .

Jack "Sharkey" Donaldson, the San Mateo halfback who gave the RAM gridders 60 minutes of nothing but trouble last Autumn, is safely tucked away within the portals of San Jose State. We weren't too worried anyway. . . .

Soccer Men, Stanford, Vie Next Week On Foe's Field

Soccer at the college was off to a good start this semester, when the local team flung itself against San Francisco State College in a practise session Wednesday, preparing for an October 18 game with Stanford.

The soccer team consists of such players as John Emerson, Pat McMillan, Victor Solorzano, Robert Di Grazia, Mario Barriere and Kenneth Fitts, and is guided by Coach Ralph Hillsman.

A graduate of the University of California, Hillsman was assigned as Physical Education instructor and basketball coach for the college, where he more than proved his worth last semester by turning out a championship basketball team.

The team has shown much fight and promise in everyday practice, where they execute smart and fast plays. They have speed, good defense, and "guts," which is essential to every soccer team.

With such a lineup and coach in the person of Hillsman, it is safe to assume that the reputation of the college will he kept high.

Diedricksen Seeks Men With Boxing Ability

With few boxers returning from last year's team, Roy Diedrickson, new college boxing mentor, will undertake a search this week for men weighing from 118 to 200 pounds.

"I don't give a boot about a fellow who doesn't know how to protect himself," Diedrickson said, quoting Teddy Roosevelt.

"We need men who can box to represent the college in the coming pugilistic events."

Diedrickson, himself a former champ from the San Jose State College, announced the following colleges as probable opponents:

University of California, Stanford, San Jose State, S. F. State, Modesto Junior College and San Mateo Junior College. Tryouts will be held in the men's gymnasium at a later date.

WAA To Hold Sports Day Every Other Week

Presenting a scheduled program which will include dancing, ping-pong, volley ball, tennis, and table-tennis, the Woman's Athletic Association will start its co-educational program on Friday, October 17.

The WAA has planned the social and athletic program between the hours of 3 and 5 p.m. in the women's gymnasium to enable the young men and women to get together in co-educational activities.

Bulbmen May Enter Blossom Home By Next Monday

The floriculture unit has high hopes of entering into at least one section of its partially built $80,000 greenhouse by Monday.

The greenhouse, which is situated near the men's gymnasium, has been under construction during the summer, but may not be completed for another two months.

The floriculture unit has hopes that the head house, the section which contains the controlling units, will be finished by the end of the week, enabling its 40 semi-professional students to move in.

The greenhouse when completed will include a department office, a lath house, and a greenhouse.

Red Feather Drive In High Gear With 30 Recruits Combing Surrounding Area

Volunteers in a national humanitarian project rushed into action this week, here at the college, bringing the Community Chest campaign into full swing.

Lloyd Luckmann, presidential assistant, in charge of the drive here, called for more volunteers this morning. He told students that a total of 30 men and women of the college are needed to solicit contributions in the Glen Park residential area, northeast of the college.

Luckmann asked that all persons wishing to sign up with him as volunteers in the drive see him as soon as possible in Room 123. Each solicitor will be assigned one city block. The college's goal is $518.

The campaign started here last week. First volunteers to sign up with Luckmann were Ellsworth Young, Lawrence Healy, Frank Reed, and Arthur Fraser, all of Edward Larson's salesmanship classes.

Campus Gets Wash As First Rain Falls

For the first time in seven months the buildings and the grounds composing the campus received a washing. A small downpour constituted the heaviest rainfall to date, but it is expected that with the normal progression of the seasons that the campus will get several more cleansings before the year is out.

CIVILIANS ON CIVIL JURY

There is civil law and military law. In civil law, if the mess had been pursued, Lee would have been facing twelve tried and true citizens.

Confronting a jury of his peers, a few knobby-kneed housewives, a truck driver or two, one janitor and perhaps a few enlisted men, the outcome might have been just a bit different.

Might have, mind you. But on the other hand military law operates on an entirely different plane.

BRASS BOUND JURY

In the first place, if it ever got to the trial stage, which is highly unlikely (come to think of it, has it ever happened to a star-mantled soldat?), the jury would neeessarily be field grade officers or thereabouts.

And, in event of a trial on Lee's behalf, the jury box would probably sparkle more brilliantly than the Milky Way viewed from the bottom of a well.

AR'S PASS VERDICT

Then the other way, as they did it in this case, is to detail a master sergeant to thumb through Army Regulations, the Bible of the service, until he comes up with a paragraph that makes it all legal, in the military sense.

Aw, now we're being bitter, when all we wanted to do in the first place was welcome potential civilian John to our hometown and wish him good golfing on the spacious country club links of the Presidio and hope he rests up well from his strenuous tour of duty in Italy.

Pair Of 'Boys In Blue' Give Ideas On Parking Problems Around College

By Dayton Lawson

Officers Frank Clothier and Dick Brennan, two of the nicest guys on the force, polished off the last of a double lime-coke in the Ramshack the other day and proceeded to unburden their minds.

"It's not as though we enjoy tagging the kids," Clothier opined, "because certainly we don't. But with the people 'phoning in all the time about cars double-parked in their driveways, and the gas station attendant on our backs 'cause his customers can't get in or out, well, what can we do?"

Brennan toyed with the lemon at the bottom of his glass for a moment, then offered:

"You see, it's like this. The kids have their crates parked maybe a couple hundred yards away from the student store. Instead of walking over, they all pile in and drive over, and sometimes are lined up three and four deep. Well, you know that kind of stuff wouldn't go for a minute in any other part of town."

Til, the genial soda clerk, had remained silent up to this point, but now he was making noises as though he wanted to put his two cents worth in.

"Why," whyed Til, "don't they take all of that empty space north of the school cafeteria and convert it into another parking area? It's certainly not doing anybody any good lying there unused, is it?"

"I don't know anything about that," answered Clothier, "but even if it was converted into a park area the kids would still probably drive over to the store instead of walking over. Although I'll have to admit I don't see the reason for keeping all of that space by the cafe unoccupied."

"Well," put in Brennan, "that isn't solving the immediate problem confronting us right now. We still have to worry about keeping these crates off the 'no parking' areas around here. C'mon Frank, let's go. . . ."

Pushing their glasses away and buttoning their coats, Frank Clothier and Dick Brennan, two of the nicest guys on the force, walked out into the sunlight toward the tangled mess of cars parked beside the station. . . . .

Campus Face Lifting Includes Auditorium

Remodeling of present buildings and the addition of new construction on the west campus, will benefit all students.

A remodeled cafeteria with all the new conveniences, a new bakery twice the size of the original building; a remodeled stage in the auditorium; sound proof rooms in buildings 1 and 19 for additional courses in music and radio; and fluorescent lights installed in classrooms of the former barracks, plus fire escapes in the classrooms, have been added.

OSCAR ANDERSON, college controller and director of physical properties, is guiding the west campus reconstruction being done by the Dinwidde Company, which is presently nearing completion.

This is a summary by John Entwistle, superintendent of the west campus reconstruction project now in progress.

Entwistle commented on the working conditions on the campus, saying the men are completely satisfied with the colorful environment of sweaters and modern long skirts.

The remodeling project will be completed in six weeks and October 20 is set for the opening date of the reconverted cafeteria, Entwistle said.

New Blood For Staff And Bar Honor Group

Initiation ceremonies will be held for eight new members of Lambda Alpha, music honor society, Sunday afternoon, October 19, at the home of Gertrude Norgard, music teacher and adviser to the group.

Those having a B average in music, and therefore entitled to join the society, are Albert Ghigileri, Marie Hesky, Doiores Jonson, Tony Jue, Frank Robinson, Manuel Soto, Mario Suraci, and Adela Sparrowe.

The majority of the students worked on the registration desks, and on their off-duty hours, had an opportunity to listen to the heads of many restaurant chains and leaders in the industry, as well as talks by Mayor Roger D. Official Twice Weekly Publication of the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College

Vol. XXV SAN FRANCISCO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1947 No. 5

The Spectator

George Lajeunesse

BACK in 1936 a vital question was pretty well answered in the presidential election that saw Roosevelt swamp Landon under by carrying 46 out of 48 states.

The issue was: "Just how powerful is the press?" It was answered quite conclusively by the people: that said press isn't nearly as strong as they'd like themselves to believe.

PRESS POWER INFLATED

When Roosevelt trounced Landon in the worst defeat ever handed a would-be president almost every paper in the nation was lined up against him and the New Deal.

The papers every now and then seem to lose sight of the fact that in the final tally the results are inevitably decided by the working voter; in other words the working class is still the overwhelming majority.

In the long run it is still the guy carrying the lunch bucket who has the big word and not the combined editorial staffs trying to bend his will.

LOCAL PAPERS IN TEST

The power of the press will once again be proved or disproved in our town next month when the mayoralty race is over.

From what a newspaper reader can gather from the four papers sold here there are only two candidates running to succeed Lapham in the City Hall.

A TWO HORSE RACE

At least the reader is well aware of one: Chester MacPhee a supervisor and local real estate operator.

The other candidate can be ascertained in reading more or less between the lines and his name is Robinson, Elmer; a superior court judge who would like to add mayor to his list of titles.

ANOTHER MAN ON SCENE

There's a third important man running too, but the only way you'll find out about it is in the pages of The Guardsman or the Peoples' World—forgive us for mentioning it in the same paragraph.

He is Franck Havenner, former supervisor and now a congressman. His political career stretches for miles and there are many people in San Francisco who can't remember back to the day Havenner first ran for public office.

A WORD DIET IN OFFING

Getting back to the original point, the coming city elections will furnish an ideal test for the power of the printed word and just how much stock the people will take in what their favorite paper tells them.

It happened in 1936, all over the nation. It could happen in San Francisco in 1947 . . . we mean that four editors might sit down the night after election to a sumptuous repast of crow.

College Leaders To Convene Meet Here; Burrow Heads Group

The college will play host to 54 sets of student government officers from as many colleges throughout the state beginning Thursday, November 6, the date named for the opening of the State Junior College Convention, Trev Burrow, who was elected president of the organization at Visalia conference held last year, announced here today.

Registration will take place the afternoon of November 6, with business scheduled to get under way the same evening.

The conference will convene through November 8 and if there is pressing work at hand, it will continue another day.

Burrow stated that the group hopes to iron out the difficulties surrounding the veteran purchase of student cards and the state apportionment of funds to Junior Colleges.

The president also stated that he hoped to hold up for discussion the problem of raising funds through other than the conventional means.

Register For Holiday Work Now—Amori

With approximately two months to the Christmas season, the director of the student placement bureau, Joseph Amori, yesterday advised all students desirous of securing employment during the Christmas vacation to file an application as soon as possible.

Jobs coming into the bureau are given out on a "first come, first served" basis. The placement office is located on the second floor of building 2, west campus.

Playreadings Planned In Talent Search

In an effort to discover hidden talent, playreading will be held here Wednesday, October 22, and Wednesday, November 5, Paul Ellison, drama coach, announced today.

Anyone interested should immediately inform him or Lloyd Sisler, Ellison announced.

"Time and place of the readings will be announced later," he said, "no admission will be charged and it is hoped that time will permit acting of the plays during the readings."

Local, Outside Talent To Run Rally Friday

The second rally of the semester will be put on stage at the foot of the hill in front of the main building this Friday, October 17, weather permitting, Jim Edwards, rally commissioner, said yesterday.

An offer made by Marin Junior College to furnish talent for a rally has been accepted. The Marin show is to be composed of a variety section and a band.

The rally committee also plans to use local talent, Edwards said.

Opening Play Stars Pasadena Players

Two former members of the Pasadena Playhouse will spark the Our Town production on opening night, November 19, at 7:30 p.m., according to Lloyd Sisler, faculty producer.

Working behind the footlights will be Jariath McMahon, the starlet, cast as Mrs. Gibbs; behind the scenes Phil Onstatt will toil as stage manager. Onstatt experienced five years with the Playhouse, and one year with the Cleveland Players, Sisler revealed.

"Another young oldtimer is Carolyn Kennington, formerly starred in the Admirable Crichton, who plays Mrs. Webb," he said.

"More than 60 stage struck artists auditioned for parts in the production," Sisler added.

Campus Offers Film Projectionist Job

Students who are or have been motion picture projectionists are desperately needed to run films for classes, according to Madison Devlin, in charge of the audio visal center, Room 148.

Projectionists are paid at the rate of 75 cents per hour.

"This is a good opportunity to earn extra money without even leaving the campus," Devlin said.

Mikes And Men Meet Professional Writer

Professional radio script-writer, Anna Blake, visited this college's newly organized Mikes and Men Club last Thursday, and spoke on the "Help to Keep the Cable Cars" issue.

Miss Blake's lecture also included practical information on the arts and problems of radio script-writing.

Students majoring in radio will write, produce, and act on a 15-minute program broadcast by KQW for period of 13 weeks.

Cloud Favors College Name Change Action

Charging that he is in complete accord with having the name of the college changed to City College of San Francisco, President Archibald Cloud advised the college Faculty Association to present him with a resolution to that effect.

It was pointed out by Thomas R. Porter, association head, that no legal difficulty should be involved, as Los Angeles City College is only a two year institution.

Porter further stated that because of the confusion of names with other schools in the city plus the tremendous size and large number of terminal students here, the word "junior" is meaningless.

Cloud revealed that student groups are in favor of the change. He will present the resolution to Superintendent Herbert Clish.

Winchell Letter Spurs Cooperation Of Presidents In Runyon Memorial Fund

A letter to Walter Winchell regarding particulars on the Damon Runyon Memorial plans, read by Max Call, publicity chairman, for the coming Los Angeles City College grid contest, spurred those present at last Tuesday night's president's meeting to pledge complete cooperation on behalf of all the clubs represented.

Along with planned window displays at many prominent downtown stores to advertise the game, the Coca-Cola Company has promised to supply over 5,000 programs for the coming event.

This annual "big game" will be held at Kezar Stadium Friday, November 7, Jack Gaddy, director of athletics, declared last week.

Volunteers Needed To Help Chest Campaign

Students interested in the Community Chest Campaign are urged to report to the president's assistant office in Room 126.

The seven students who volunteered their time have had gratifying results, but the number helping is too small for the college to make much of a showing in the campign.

The Park Merced District has been designated as the area in which the college will solicit contributions for the 70 organizations that benefit from the Community Chest funds.

All volunteers will receive instruction in selling techniques from Edward Larson, a business education instructor, to aid them in the campaign.

Denman Deadline Will Fall Tomorrow

Deadline for women to apply for one of the two traditional Denman Scholarships awarded yearly at this college is set for tomorrow, October 15.

Dean of Women Margaret Dougherty today urged women who have been graduated from a San Francisco public high school and who plan to graduate from the college, to file application in her office immediately.

Applicants should be high freshmen or low sophomores, Miss Dougherty added.

The scholarships were established by Judge William Denman and Mrs. Mary Cheatham in memory of their father, the late James Denman, former president of the Board of Education.

Story Told In Music Is Set For Thursday

The Listening Hour program, which this week is titled A Story Told in Music, is scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday, October 9 and 14, in Room 200, according to Gertrude Norgard, music program director.

Peter and the Wolf by Prokofieff, Les Preludes by Liszt, The Sorcerer's Apprentice by Dukas, and Scheherazade Suite by Rimsky-Korsakoff will top the program, Mrs. Norgard said.

Novices Welcome At Bridge Club Tomorrow

Any student interested in joining a bridge club at this college is urged to attend the meeting in the Student Lounge, at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow night. Thomas Gaffney and Thomas Bass, faculty members, are sponsors of this new club.

Students with inexperience in playing bridge and wishing to learn the game are welcome to attend, Gaffney added.

Col. Hr. C lled Today

Today's special college hour at 10:40 a.m. is to enable members of the faculty to hold a meeting for correction of irregularities in enrollment cards. Faculty members will meet by departments in previously assigned rooms.

Council Discusses Game Admission Tax

The long tenacious hand of the Bureau of Internal Revenue was felt in the matter of admission taxes discussed at the Student Council last Thursday.

Dean Brady, who brought up the matter, revealed that he had been informed by the bureau that, if visitors to a college event are charged, tax must be paid for students of the home college games even if they are admitted free.

A committee composed of Brady and students Don Burger, Frank Nelson, and Bob Reilly, was appointed to investigate the matter.

Skid Row Habits Degrade West Campus Appearance

IS THIS college a training ground for potential intellectuals or a prep school for future garbage collectors?

Upon entering the west campus gates these days an outsider is hard put to figure out whether he is on college grounds or in the midst of a city dump.

It is getting to the point where the entire structure will be hidden from view by a mountain of milk bottle containers.

There is supposed to be a lawn in the rear of Building Two. It is hidden every noon under a layer of sandwich wrappings.

Will it be necessary to include a required course in how to recognize a trash can?

That's not as silly as it sounds. Many students are under the delusion that the metal containers, placed about for obvious reasons, are some kind of camouflaged fireplugs instead of disposal units.

Intelligence is a priceless commodity, it's too bad some plain common sense can't be injected into the curriculum also.

Sit In On Council Meets

FOR AN education in political activity may we again remind students that a visit to their Student Council meetings can be entertaining and highly enlightening.

The arguments, heated at times, set forth by various council members, are the result of much serious thought and study but in some instances they show very effectively the power of "behind-the-scenes" politically minded groups who seek legislation for their own interests.

If more of the students would attend council meetings, it is believed that many of the nefarious activities of pressure groups would be exposed and it would greatly lessen their effect on various measures before the council.

If the council is to be a truly democratic body, the ideas and desires of the students must be known. If members are subjected to but one source of information they can hardly be blamed for approving inadequate legislation.

The council meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays in room 3b, west campus, from 12 to 1.

Dance-Game; Take A Pick

A POST mortem rehash of last year's Social Committee dance dates pounces on the unfortunate arrangements made for tonight's dance and football game; both at the same hour!

This type of careless error is an excellent indication of what our present student leaders should avoid.

This blunder may cost us loss of turnout that we can ill-afford.

Combing The Campus

WOMEN go under our knife this afternoon.

We hate to bore you, but tearing apart the fair sex is a tradition 'round these parts.

You know, the lovelies here think the local brand of male is a hamburger. Let us approach some of these "hamburgers" and see what, if anything, they think.

First victim, Gun Lin, before whose eyes three semesters of giridom have passed. He likes 'em, they like him, and he takes them out.

You're a better man than we are, Gunga Lin!

Jim Alt came to bat against womanhood and rapped out a few remarks concerning pretty faces with naught behind them. He says they lack not only heauty, but brains.

So far this shapes up into a lovely situation. Women hate men and likewise vice-versa.

Question: What do you say about long skirts? Sorry again, but we print no more opinions about long skirts. We are sick of them and we hereby stash them in the files that our janitor disposes of. See?

Old Business: On the international scene our wide-awake Stup-ents show an impressive lack of knowledge and interest. May we extend our condolences to the faculty, to people in general, and to the Marshall Plan's author in particular?

Thought among the pin-boys (a so cute way of saying fraternity men). It seems that the boys are tired of sniping within their ranks so they are marching along co-operation road, hand in hand, medals a-shinin' in the sun.

Trouble is that they'll never rid themselves of the seething independents. Someday we will do a knife-edged analysis of the "greeks." That is, after our boxing course winds up.

Moaner Groans; Rent Reduction Superficial?

• Of Ships And Men

Editor, The Guardsman:

As much as I love to moan, or fiendishly tear apart anything that people strive to put up, my morbid sense of humor has turned to a very serious problem confronting us here at the college.

It seems that the California State Legislature has amended a state law which formerly forbade smoking on college campuses. Dean Sandys has informed students to the effect that if they will refrain from flinging butts there, and everywhere, this little pleasure could go on and on until an atomic bomb decides differently.

Do we heed this warning? No! Do we use the "ash" cans provided? No! We just go merrily on our way, flinging out stubs around. To forestall the calamity of having our smoking privileges knocked off, I give you a very simple formula.

(1) Snuff head of cigarette off.

(2) Strip paper from around cigarette.

(3) Blow the tobacco to the winds.

(4) Roll paper into a ball.

If we follow these 4 simple rules, I can assure you that Dean Sandys won't have a butt to stand on.

• Dorm Rate Slash

Editor, The Guardsman:

The last edition of The Guardsman let the "30 per cent Dorm Rate Slash" obscure the fact that occupancy in the dormitories was increased 50 per cent.

Last year a cubicle with two men brought in 30 dollars. Now with the reduced rate the same cubicle has three men and brings in $34.50.

Why then the gross increase in rent? Last year, enough money was left to buy $3,000 worth of furniture for the dormitories. This year a greater surplus will be left.

I say that even a great decrease in the rent can be made.

CHEERS to a janitor named SCHLESINGER (with handsome Jack Brady, the industrious dean officiating, of course) a slight alleged squeeze play was mouse-trapped on the west campus early this week . . . seems a couple jokers accompanied by their "fraus" roared into the west campus area jockeying a large truck, without authorization—Schlesinger spotted them and called the Inglesidе bully boys; arriving an hour later (five blocks distance), the gum shoes hauled away the intruders to the local pokey . . . the kicker is, however, that over the past weekends (when there are very few persons about) a seemingly continual safari of citizens moved into the west campus hauling away the huge wooden lockers that are scattered madly around the area . . . the housing shortage must be rough when people start moving in on lockers?!

The Bull Pen

Pinball machines now have moved into all but one of the establishments near the campus, proving that it isn't necessary to sell hamhurgers to make rent money. The great machine-age sport is in!

-It's a game which demands clear judgment, perfect timing, and imagination. Most important technique is to push the machine and not make the tilt light go on, an operation known as "yenzing."

Experts disagree so much on how to grip the console we shall not go into the matter here, except to say that timing is all-important. The machine must be pushed or struck exactly at the same time the ball bounces from a bumper. This is the basic principal which the famous "Beaver" Connolly used in becoming a pinball great.

It would be a big thing if this college could produce a man like Connolly, who made so much money on the sport, in the old days, when it used to pay off, that he was barred from all local beaneries and cigar stores.

KEEP your eye on the red bull's eye . . . PITUICLANG . . . and so on for the better, or worse part of 30 minutes.

This is the latest morsel of madness with which Lucky Strike is assailing the innocent (?) public. The public has been seduced with: Lucky Strike Green Has Gone To War (repeated the usual 14 times per minute). Clickety-click-click. . . . LST-MFT . . . Clickety-click-click . . . LS-MFT . . . Yes, Lucky Strike Means Fine Tobacco . . . Yes, Lucky Strike Means Fine Tobacco. So Round, So Firm, So Fully Packed, So Free And Easy On The Draw. The men are almost convincing with their continual harping on some obnoxious cast-off mental hyproduct of one of their 3M-Men (Morbid Mental Midget).

When Josiah Q. Average drags the weary frame once more within the humble walls of the palatial lean-to after 16 hours of drudgery in the local salt mines, he hasn't the resistance to cope with the sort of bilge bleating at him from the airways, periodicals and newsheets, and consequently his unconscious mind makes a note that in the future he must mooch only Lucky Strikes from the boys in the salt mine.

Because Josh is getting particular and bumming only that certain brand, the boys have to buy two or three more packs.

Now this two or three additional packs a day doesn't seem like the justification for two weekly programs of PITUI-CLANG and innumerable full page spreads in the dailies, but if you consider all the Joshes mooching from all the boys in all the salt mines throughout the United States of America . . . why it's appalling. And to think that Hill & Co. are hauling in barrels of loot for this!

The merits of the product are a matter purely of personal opinion, so that the fact that we wouldn't accept one of the things as a gift, even if they were saturated with a triple dose of dream-drops, has nothing at all to do with the topic on the agenda. Or has it?

If we dip too deeply into our personal opinion of the product and more particularly, its form of advertising, this column would become too sordid for publication and our faithful servant, Una Underwood (the typewriter), would feel the ravishes of our violent and uncontrollable wrath.

Today Final Deadline For Intramural Basketball Entries; No Extension

All potential participants were warned today that this will be the last day to file team entries in the intramural basketball tournament. Although not as many teams have entered as was expected, Director Tom Wilson warned that the deadline will not be extended. Actual play will get under way shortly, possibly next Monday.

Other intramural activities will begin as soon as the casaba tourney gets going. Among the sports to come are ping pong, touch football, tennis, swimming, badminton and track. Wilson advised all students interested to watch for the sign up dates.

Entry blanks, due today, are printed below on this page.

Gym Heads Blazed Path Of Glory

The men's physical education department of the college boasts five instruetors who were standout athletic stars during their college days.

Jack Grady, director of athletics, was an "All-Coast" end at USF in 1931, and made the Don's all time team. Tom Wilson, intramural director, also a wingman, was named on the College of Pacific all time team.

Head Line Coach Bill Fischer, made All-American while playing at St. Mary's, and is considered one of the greatest tackles to have played on the coast.

Grover Klemmer, now head football coach, while at the University of California was a three letter man. He starred in track, football, and basketball. Only seven men in the history of UC have received three letters.

He broke the then existing record for the 440 yard dash. During the recent hostilities, Klemmer was a star back on the Great Lakes Naval Station grid squad, coached by the famous Paul Brown.

And then there's Roy Diedrichson, the new boxing mentor. Diedrichson, while attending the San Jose State College, was boxing champ in the light-heavyweight department.

RAMblings . .

By Art Paymiller

ALTHOUGH Yankee hurler Floyd Bevens narrowly missed becoming the first pitcher to pitch a no-hitter in the world series, he will go down in baseball history for his valiant effort. The following words are dedicated to his splendid performance.

The door was open,
To the Hall of Fame,
For a Yankee hurler,
Bevens was his name.

It was the world's series,
He was pitching a no-hitter,
He threw his fast ball,
His curve and his spitter.

The Yanks were gay,
They could not lose,
The Bums were the ones,
Who would sing the blues.

The last of the ninth,
And two were out,
Two were on base,
And the crowd began to shout.

The score, 2 to 1,
As "Cookie" came to bat,
He hitched up his pants,
And adjusted his hat.

The pitch came near,
The crowd was tense,
They began to cheer,
As the ball hit the fence.

The fans went wild
They could not refrain,
As two runs scored,
And Brooklyn won again.

The door had closed,
Bevens was sad,
As he thought of fame,
He almost had.

No record today,
The door was barred,
For this poor fellow,
Who tried so hard.

Vallejo Mud Stalls T-Men 12-0; Grid Test On Friday

Marin Gridmen Set For Ram Juggernaut

Grover Klemmer leads his traveling gridders into their third round of conference football doing this Friday evening when the T-tollers battle their cross-bay collegians, Marin Junior College, on the Mariners' home ground at 8 p.m.

Recuperating from the tough Vallejo Redskin pow-wow of last week, the Ram players will be in the proper mood to handle their opponents.

Ray Stewart, the starting Red & White tailback, who was sidelined recently because of a back ailment, is now reported by Klemmer to be ready to lead the hilltoppers' offensive thrusts during the evening contest.

At the present time considered by the majority of the conference followers as one of the finest defensive players seen on the greens this year, reserve fullback Charles Ryan, ex-Lowell prepster, will be the hole-plugger along the forward wall when the collegians are put on the defense test.

Along with the first string, the second team which includes Phil Collis-chonn, Bill Koenig at ends; Bob White and Cecil Hamilton, tackles; guards, Herb Furrer and Ben Albrecht; and center, Fred Loskutoff in the line will spent a major portion of their time on the turf.

In the backfield there will be ball-handlers Jim Greene at quarter; left half, Ken Foehr; James Carter at right half; and in the fullback slot Bob Brickell.

Weather Conditions Stop Jayvee Contest

VALLEJO, Oct. 10.—Due to unfavorable weather conditions and possible injury to Corbus Field playing turf prior to the Varsity game, the preliminary junior varsity contest between the San Francisco Lambs and the Vallejo Papooses was postponed here tonight. However, plans are being made for a game at some future date. The Lambs take on Menlo Junior Varsity on October 24, Coach Jim Jensen of San Francisco announced.

Soccer Team Ready To Face Tough Schedule

The college soccer team this semester is more than ready for its strict competitive schedule. Under the guiding eye of Coach Ralph Hillsman the team has showed much promise and ability.

Among the line-up for the team are such players as John Emerson, Pat McMillan, Victor Solorzano, Max Hirt, Robert DiGrazia, Mario Barriere and Kenneth Pitts.

A graduate of the University of California, Hillsman was assigned as physical education instructor and basketball coach here at the college, when he more than proved his worth last semester by turning in a championship basketball team. This semester he takes on a new task as soccer coach, and he is taking over like a real veteran.

The team has a good defense and fast plays, and the word "gutless" is unknown to them.

CHARLIE RYAN, ex-Lowell Indian, is considered best defensive fullback in conference.

Rams Overthrown By Weather, Fumbles

By Sam Goldman

CORBUS FIELD, Vallejo, Oct. 10.—Continuous rain and ungridable weather delivered Klemmer's San Francisco Rams their first defeat in eight consecutive contests as the Vallejo Redskins planted a 12-0 score upon the invaders here tonight.

Threatening upon the T. D. gates during the entire "muddle," the city collegians failed to enter into the touchdown territory as costly fumbles and intercepted passes stopped their forward movement.

Meanwhile the Vallejo gridders via the punting lanes waited for their opportune moments for an offensive attack, and when the two situations arose on the scene, they punctured the Rams with two tallies.

With but 40 seconds remaining in the second period, San Francisco halfback Bob Brickell punted from his own end zone to the Ram 37.

Thereupon with first down, Manuel Braz, the Vallejo star for the evening, scampered through the mud with perfect downfield blocking for the first six points. Dick Biami's conversion was wide of the posts.

It wasn't until the final stanza, when with one minute remaining, Braz intercepted Bob Toquinto's pass on his own 30 and returned it to the Ram 35. The Vallejians moved to the 12, and the touchdown was an aerial from Braz to Biami. The conversion was blocked.

Gators Clip Rams 2-0 In Soccer Tilt

By Larry Baldocchi

Ram soccer men lost a fast practise game against the San Francisco State Gators on the opponents' territory 2-0 last Wednesday.

Although the Ram team did not score against the yellow and blue jerseys, they were the more aggressive of the two squads. Time after time they threatened the opponents' goal with tricky footwork, speed and power. Of the two teams, the local's squad was the smaller, but by no means inferior.

Three complete Ram teams played a full quarter which lasted 15 minutes each. This was to enable Coach Ralph Hillsman to find what players work best together.

Shots At RAMdom

FRED FITZGERALD, who handles the Law Enforcement course here on the plant, and JACK GADDY of the men's gymnasium department both played on that fine U.S.F. squad of 1931. Freddy at full and Jack at end . . . . ROY DIEDERICHSON, newly appointed boxing coach, was a stablemate of GEORGIE LATKA while both were attending SAN JOSE STATE, and before Georgie rose to fame in the professional ranks? . . . . SHERRILL HOUGHTON, second string shortstop on the 1946 pennant-winning Ram nine, is being groomed to fill the shoes of the much-missed BOB NARD? Big shoes, too.

The plaeque on the wall of the MEN'S GYMNASIUM takes us back a good many years when we see names like BOB McGUIRE. "BULLET BOB" was the best sprinter ever to come out of S.F.'s POLY HIGH, and his lightweight record of 9:7 for the century still stands. . . . Just another name on the slate of time now, however.

Bahr To Lead Block Society During Year

Bill Bahr was unanimously elected Block SF Society president last Friday during the college hour in the first meeting of the athletic group.

Other new officers elected to the leading positions of the society were Jim Wyatt, vice-president; Al Ganem, treasurer; Bob Zarich, secretary; and Bill Broderson, sergeant-at-arms.

Top Flight Army Drum Major Leads Band For Initial Horn Blowing Opus

Spirited fight music will be played by the college band at either the Marin, October 17, or San Mateo, October 25, football contest, when the band, in its first appearance, displays intricate and colorful marching technique, Mike Cahn, band instructor, said yesterday.

Cahn, though somewhat disappointed because the band members must provide their own transportation to the game, is preparing the band for the coming even and has enlisted the assistance of Drum Major Reese Hammond, of the San Francisco Presidio.

Hammond, using the tactics that won him high honors in drum major contests, is a great help in instructing the band in the stylish art for which it is intended, Cahn added, and will assist in choosing and coaching a student drum major from the present personnel.

Program Changes Will Be Tightened

In future semesters the last day to add a course to a student's program will be much closer to that semester's beginning, according to F. Grant Marsh, head counseller.

At the present time, the last day is Friday, November 10, seven days of instruction after end of the first mid-term period.

Marsh added that the post registration "reorganization" period has been finished more quickly than was anticipated.

"I think the system of filing registration books on the day of registration has worked quite well," he said; "things have slacked off now."

LOUIS BATMALE, youthful director of the veterans' guidence center here, urges all veterans to contact the center about any vocational problems. Batmele, who was head counseller at Commerce High, is in Building 3, West Campus.

Torch Party Still Hanging In Balance

Plans continue to be made for the much in doubt bonfire rally. The date has been tentatively set for Thursday night, November 6, the eve of the Los Angeles football game.

If for any reason the bonfire cannot be held on schedule, a regular game rally will proceed on Friday afternoon just before the game the next day.

The gala affair will be sparked with star entertainment from the professional ranks. The bonfire will be lighted on the west campus, and the gathering around the fire will be full of song and fun.

West Campus Library Plans Postponed

Students will have to use the main library for some time yet, as no definite date can be announced for the opening of the west campus branch.

Marcus Skarstedt, librarian, corrected an error in The Guardsman regarding immediate opening and said the transfer of books will take place only when present plans are completed.

More Letters To The Editor

there any chance of any of them lasting until 1 a.m.?

I know that all of the clubs are willing to have a band after 12, but it seems as though there is a college rule holding it back.

Some of the organizations have a lot of money behind them and are able to rent hotels and able to keep their dances until 1 a.m., while the little organizations have to hold theirs in the auditorium, have to fold up at 12 midnight. Is this fair?

Student body member.

• Partisanship Charged

Editor, The Guardsman:

The student voters of S.F.J.C. received a stinging slap in the face at the first three sessions of the Student Council this semester.

At the adjournment of the first meeting of the council it was clearly understood that President Frank Nelson had agreed to appoint the runners up in the student election to fill the four vacancies.

The second meeting saw Mr. Nelson appear with a list of four names. None of the names on the list was a runner up in the elections. The council refused to approve the list.

The third meeting brought to light a second list. Again the list contained not one name of the runners up. The list was okayed by the council because of the necessity to get other pressing business on the council calendar.

It's too bad that students in this school don't play a more active role in voicing their wishes. This apathy on the part of the students results in an open flouting of their wishes as expressed in the election returns.

What's the matter with the students at this college?

Don't they know the school is being run by a little clique? Or don't they care?

John Richardson

• Railroading Budgets

Editor, The Guardsman:

Five dollars is quite a large sum for any student to pay out at one time. Still many hundreds—almost three thousand so far—have shelled out that sum for membership in the Associated Students.

The least these students can expect is that the council which appropriates these funds for student activities does so in a responsible manner. Whether this was the case at the last council meeting, when some $17,000 were railroaded through after only 30 minutes discussion, is open to question.

It is up to all students to ask this question of their representatives.

CAB Sets Deadline On Charter Pleas; Holden New Chief

After a short debate on the appointment of a temporary vice president and secretary-treasurer, permanent officers from those eligible this semester were elected at the Club Advisory Board meeting of Friday, October 10.

The new officers elected were Les Holden, president; Colin Tooley, vice-president; Scott Mallon, secretary-treasurer.

Holden, the new president, announced that any new organizations wishing charters of official recognition from the Student Council may plead their case before the CAB on November 14.

Holden added that admission forms for new groups may be obtained in the Alpha Gamma Sigma offices Monday, Wednesday, or Friday at 12 noon.

Notices of future meetings and readmission forms for clubs already in the CAB will be sent to all member groups concluded Holden, stressing complete attendance at all future meetings.

Education Board Acts On Rent Cut Approval

With the prime purpose of making more room available, yet still maintaining sufficient income for barracks upkeep, the Board of Education last Tuesday decreased the dormitory rates to $11.50 per month, while increasing the occupancy to three persons for each section.

The rates for married couples will still remain at $25.00 per month.

As a result of this action, men now living in the dormitories will pay only $8.50 for the coming month. The cut is retroactive to October 1.

National Guard Drum Beats Start; Sgt. Welch At Helm

By Dave Hansen

Next week will see the start of a National Guard Recruiting drive to bring "the college's own" Battery A up to full strength, according to Staff Sergeant William Welch, a student here. The War Department Caretaker also said the Battery will soon leave its base at the Mission Street Armory for more desirable billets at Fort Funston.

Welch, a former member of the 15th Air Force, said that the majority of the 22 men now in the anti-aircraft artillery battery are students or former students of the college.

Of the five non-veterans in the outfit, three are students here. The batteries T. O. calls for 109 men and 6 officers, of whom one is a student at the college. He is Lieutenant P. F. Garret. A Lieutenant Capellas attended here last semester.

"Most of the Battery's personnel are veterans. All services are represented. Whenever practicable, the man's old rate is given him," Welch said. "Non-veterans can especially profit by joining the Guard. In addition to one day's pay per week, they will have experience if the Military Training Bill passes Congress."

Welch, recently returned from one week at Fort Ord, said next year the battery will go to San Luis Obispo for two weeks.

"Guardsmen attend a two hour meeting weekly, where they have school on vehicles, the 40 mm. gun, small arms, and plane recognition. They receive one day's pay for those periods. There is also a two week camp held yearly," Welch said.

The "College's own" is Battery A, 271 AAA Battalion, 112 Brigade, California National Guard. Captain Vernon W. Glasser is the Commanding Officer.

New College Moniker Gets Built-Up Chance

Publicity man Max Call, in a recent address to the presidents of the various clubs, stated that pending the name change from the San Francisco Junior College to San Francisco City College the department stores of the downtown area will be asked to publicize the college's coming sports events and other activities.

AVC Gives Membership List To AYD Group

The American Youth for Democracy, who unsuccessfully applied for a charter on this campus, was given access to the mailing list of the college chapter of the AVC by vote at the last meeting of the college AVC chapter.

The American Youth for Democracy is allegedly the continuation of the Young Communist League.

Ancient Cannon May Be Mounted To Protect 'Ramshead' From Rival Raids

By Bill Kinsley

Football season inspires night raids throughout country.

The Ramshead, college symbol, has frequently been the victim of past attacks made by jubilant students of rival colleges.

The cannons, vintage 1862, pictured at right, and recently placed back of the college cafeteria, await mounting, possibly adjacent to the lofty ramshead in order to thwart any prankish minded students bent on changing the red and white colors, well white anyway, of the college's historical statue.

San Francisco school authorities, present owners of the Civil War relics, are uncertain regarding a good use for them and recently remarked,

"The cannons were stored there pending a logical suggestion for their placement."

Club Leaders Asked To Drop 'Junior'

Augmenting the faculty association's resolution requesting a name change here, college club leaders have been unofficially asked to have their members cooperate with the move, urging all students to cease labeling this college "junior" college.

Proponents of the name change suggest instead that students begin referring to the college as the City College of San Francisco.

Opera Lovers Get Matinee Tickets

Opera lovers have an opportunity to hear La Traviata by Verdi this Friday, October 17, according to Gertrude Norgard, music instructor here, who has a limited number of matinee tickets available to students.

Tickets for the 1 p.m. performance cost from $2.40 to $3 at the Opera House door if purchased by a student card holder.

Globe Trotter Amori Lauds Overseas NATS

Recently returned from a personnel survey in the Pacific and Asiatic theaters, Joseph A. Amori, placement bureau head, gives quite a favorable report of the United States Naval Air Transport Service forces in these over-seas bases.

The survey, which covered NATS bases from Honolulu to Japan and the Philippines, was conducted at the end of the college summer semester and took place over a two week period of time.

Amori, who holds a commission as Lieutenant Commander in the naval reserve, served four years with NATS during the war.

In addition to his commission as Lieutenant Commander, Mr. Amori holds the position of president of the NATS Reserve Officer Association.

Students Warner Of Close "Pickup" Date

Last day to remove an incomplete with a grade higher than D and to file graduation petitions is Friday, October 17, according to Mary Jane Learnard, registrar.

Miss Learnard also announced that Wednesday, November 12, will be the final deadline for dropping a course. If a course is dropped after that date, a grade of F will be given the student for that particular course, she said.

Another date of interest, according to the college calendar, is Friday, October 31, end of the first mid-term period.

The Spectator

George Lajeunesse

IF NEWS had leaked out from the closely guarded UC cyclotron in Berkeley that scientists had cracked a Quaker Oats kernel to get enough energy to propel a motor scooter, it couldn't be more shocking than the press release out of Moraga Valley the other day.

No, the physics department at St. Mary's, if they have one, didn't raid Cal and kidnap Lawrence from behind his Bunsen burner to conduct their own research in the atomic field.

WOLF HOWL AT PHELAN

Neither of the schools has been toying around in the minor fields of nuclear fission. Shove that stuff aside, this is BIG! . . . .

The sports editor of the St. Mary's Collegian put the blast on Coach Jimmy Phelan for an allegedly inferior football squad!

ARISE AND PONDER

"Let's face it, men!" a voice of gloom in the person of Dick Fitzgerald, sports editor, moans, "That terrific loss to California should make each and every person connected with St. Mary's and its future sit up and think. . . ."

There's the bitter truth, it's a big pill to swallow but Gael alumni all over the world are expected to take the blow with chin protruding.

COACH TROUBLE AT UC

Last season the same thing happened on the UC campus, Big, brawny footballers cried in their V-8 cocktails as they sobbed out a story of harrowing defeat, game after game.

Heads fell all over Berkeley as a mysterious force moved through the athletic department. No expense was spared to get a MAN to guide the varsity through the mine fields of Saturday catastrophes.

LEGEND GETS AXED

The axe spared no one on the coaching staff . . . even reaching the neck of the immortal Vic Bottari whose name heretofore was mentioned only in reverence while the speaker bowed thrice in the direction of the Campanile.

Cal survived the crisis somehow. They didn't have to pawn the cyclotron or sell any medical labs intact . . . the good ol' alumni came through.

But St. Mary's is in an even more precarious spot. To listen further to the sports editor: "Something will have to be done . . . if not, then we will have to take a back seat to the other independents on the coast and we'll never fill another stadium."

WHIZ KIDS FIZZ

The Gaels are really in a bad way, Fitzgerald continued, "The Whiz Kids might have been whizzers during the season of two years ago . . . while we used to be 'daring,' we are now foolish. . . ."

Oh no, Dick, we don't think that at all. . . . Sell the books, rent out the professors to other colleges, but KEEP the team, what'll we do on Sundays if the Moragans cease to maraud?

Marin Talent Show Brightens College Hour Rally Today

Coach Klemmer And Ram Gridsters Will Be Introduced At Front Lawn Pep Fest

Pre-game rally will be the college hour feature today, starting at 10:40 o'clock on the lawn in front of the main building, Jim Edwards, rally commissioner, said yesterday.

The show that Marin Junior College promised will be put on, but in an abbreviated manner. A week-end traffic fatality is the reason given by Marin Associated Student President Bill Kenny as the reason for the abridged performance.

The Ram football squad will be introduced by Coach Grover Klemmer, who is scheduled to make a short talk.

The Marin sponsored program will consist of a pianist and a vocalist. There will be a program in any event, weather permitting, Edwards said.

Marin Associated Students are giving a dance after the game. Admission is $1.50 per couple to students of this college who are Associated Student card holders.

Tonight's game starts at 8 p.m.

Judges Act Today In Denman Award

Two women winners in the Denman scholarship competition will be chosen at 9:30 a.m. today by the committee of judges, Dean Margaret Dougherty, committee chairman; President A. J. Cloud, and Marcus Skarstedt, librarian.

Scholarships of $125 each, designed to aid in paying educational expenses, will be awarded to the winners, who will be chosen on the basis of scholastic standing and participation in college affairs.

The scholarships have been offered here by Judge William Denman of the United States Circuit Court, and his sister, Mrs. Mary Cheatham, in memory of their father, the late James Denman, former superintendent of schools and president of the Board of Education.

Choir's Christmas Concert Slated Dec. 11

Downtown presentation of the college music department's annual Christmas program was set yesterday for Thursday, December 11, at a concert hall as yet undetermined.

Campus presentation of the program depends on completion of reconstruction in the west campus auditorium, Gertrude Norgard, co-director with Harold Cunningham, said.

The drama department is expected to add tableaux to the traditional A Cappella Choir and College Chorus program.

Political Candidates Invited To Air Views

Opportunity to hear the leading mayoralty candidates expand their political views may be afforded to the student body here before the November elections. The college AVC has invited the candidates to appear on the campus.

1400 Freshmen Boost Registration Skyward

In a poll of new entering students taken by The Guardsman during the registration period, September 22 through the 24th, a total of 1737 new enrollees swelled this college to a record breaking number of students.

Of this total, 1429 new students came from San Francisco and East Bay high schools. Private and parochial high schools sent 150.

Out of state students numbered 224, while foreign countries contributed an aggregate of 84. Latin-American students headed this group with 30 per cent attendance.

Student Matinee Opera Tickets Still On Sale

A few tickets for today's matinee performance of Verdi's La Travlata, to be given at 1 p.m. at the Opera House, are still left, Gertrude Norgard, music instructor, said yesterday.

The matinee has been scheduled for the students in the Bay Area.

Faculty Sends Name Change Letter To Clish

The will of the faculty was expressed at last week's faculty meeting when a resolution was passed that a letter, demonstrating the desire that the name of the college be changed to City College of San Francisco, be sent to Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools, according to Thomas R. Porter, faculty association head.

AMS Funds Too Low For Dance Bids

Possibility that the Associated Men Students must sacrifice bids for their traditional Mardi Gras and barn dance loomed yesterday, when Frank Grant, president, revealed that funds are insufficient to cover cost of printing. The smoker has been cancelled.

Horticulture Society Plans Spring Shows

"Spring flower shows was the main topic at a recent meeting of the Horticulture Society, headed by new president Gus Papas.

Committees are being appointed by the Horticulture Society, which consists of agriculture and horticulture majors, to draw plans and to do the actual planting for the flower shops.

Completion of the new green house has been delayed by the "unusual" rains.

Dean Requests Parkers To Move Cars Quickly

A special request to vacate parking spaces quickly was issued today by Dean Edward Sandys to those students with parking permits in the west campus who leave the grounds on or about 10 o'clock on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

"It has been noted," Sandys said, "that at 10 o'clock on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, about five or ten cars do not have space to park."

If the students who leave their classes at 10 o'clock will try to move their cars as soon after that hour as possible, it will open the necessary spaces for those wishing to arrive at that time, the dean added.

Football Fans To See Colorful Band

Boogie Woogie band music is on the agenda for the San Mateo football game, Saturday, October 25, through the diligent efforts of Morris Jackson, assistant student band manager, in directing a recently formed section of the college band. Mike Cahn, band instructor, announced.

Preparing for their first appearance on the football field, the members of the band have voluntarily included night sessions in their practice schedule, according to Nicholas D'Augelli, student band manager.

Jackson, referring to the boogie woogie unit, praised the students for their cooperation, and spoke of additional stunts tentatively planned to produce extra color in the band's future appearances.

Free Writing Courses Offered At Aptos High

Embryonic Shakespeares will have a chance to develop their talents at the free courses in creative writing at Aptos Junior High Evening Adult School.

Those interested in the classes, held on Thursday evenings between 8 and 9 o'clock, may register by a post card addressed to the Evening Division of the Aptos Junior High.

Office Work Slows Refund Payments To Ex-GI Card Holders

A blessed event for the college was announced at the Student Council meeting last Tuesday, when Oscar Anderson, of the finance department revealed that veterans will receive their Associated Student cards via the G.I. Bill of Rights.

Originally cards were supplied by the bill, but when a question as to the legality of such procedure arose, the veterans' administration withdrew, leaving the college with IOUs for cards adding up to $7,400. Anderson added that this sum will probably be returned under the new policy.

Refunds to veterans who have already bought cards will start as soon as alphabetized lists of these cards are in the finance office.

Anderson, requesting that veterans do not try to collect before the proper time is announced, stated that those veterans who do not have the cards now will receive their cards after the refunds have been made.

Veterans enrolling for the next semester will receive cards in the registration line.

Today Last Day To Remove Incompletes

Today, Friday, October 17, is the last day for a student to remove any incomplete grade from a previous semester with grade higher than "D," the registrar's office announced. Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, also warned that students desiring diplomas must file their petition for graduation not later than 5 p.m. today.

Non GI Vets Wanted At McCloud's Office

Those veterans not taking advantage of the G.I. Bill in this college are requested by Walter E. McCloud, director of the Veteran's Affairs, to contact his office before the end of October. This includes only those veterans who have not already notified the Veterans Administration of their attendance here, McCloud announced.

The Veterans' Affairs office is located in Building 3, second floor.

Book Exchange To Open In Room 189 To Receive Texts

Subject to the jurisdiction of Verrel Weber, Women's Service Society sponsor, the book exchange will open again in Room 189 to receive salable books this midterm period, Patricia Eddy, secretary of the Women's Service Society, said today.

The book exchange was inactivated last semester but the need for the service has set up a demand for it. The exchange will then be operating for the busy period at the end of the semester, Miss Eddy said.

AWS Semi-Annual Tea Set For October 23

The semi-annual Associated Women's tea, honoring new women students, will be given Thursday, October 23, in the student lounge.

Beverly Huddleson, AWS president, invited all women students of the college to attend.

ACP Rates Spring Semester Guardsman All-American

Highest national honors for achievement in the field of college journalism yesterday went to The Guardsman for the eleventh time, when the Associated Collegiate Press awarded the paper the All-American Honor Rating.

The rating was based on the papers published by The Guardsman staff during the spring semester, 1947. The staff was headed by Carmel Gaunon, editor-in-chief, Trev Burrow, managing editor, and Joan Nourse, editorial adviser.

In 13 semesters of active participation in the Associated Collegiate Press, The Guardsman has won 11 All-American Honor Ratings, and two First class awards.

ACP is a nation-wide association of college newspapers, headquarters of which are located at the school of journalism in the University of Minnesota.

The Judging is done by professional news men and women on the basis of news values, sources, writing, editing, features, and format. The judges have a complete semester's file of the paper they are judging at their disposal.

"Your coverage is thgrough, varied and agreeably balanced between the serious and entertaining aspects of campus life," is one of the judges' comments in the score book used in judging by the ACP and forwarded to The Guardsman as a critical analysis.

College Has Urgent Need For Stadium On Campus

IT IS increasingly evident that this college does not have a proper field on which to play its home games.

Ram games are played either on Balboa High School's field or some other undesirable turf.

The use of Kezar (save for the Los Angeles City College game) is denied us, because of lack of financial draw at the gate.

Granted a stadium is to be built in the future for use exclusively by this college, however, at the present rate of construction, such a project could easily take years to complete.

Would it then be inconceivable to play the home games at night in Seals Stadium?

By such an arrangement, a night game would surely draw a sufficient crowd to pay the incidental expenses of rental.

Rooters Repudiate Team

THIS college has a group of collegiate rah rah boys and girls crammed full of that old "college spirit," and in them the student body can take no pride.

Following the defeat at Vallejo last Friday night such comments as "What a poor football team" and "Get a new coach" were drooling from the lips of some of the smokestacking junior set members.

Well, for our money, this college has a spirited team and a fine coach. Not much equipment, true, and no incentive for players except love of the sport, but they offer something more concrete than lip service to the college, and it is they, not we nor the rah rahers, who fight it out where it counts—on the field.

Obviously, without the Notre Dame line and Michigan's backs, we cannot hope to win all the games.

But a coach and team who are doing their best under all conditions deserve loyalty rather than the raucous jeers of the immature.

Erring Scribe In Siberia

EVEN an editorial writer is entitled to pull a skull now and then as witness the lukewarm blast in last Tuesday's edition agin' last year's social committee for scheduling a dance and football game on the same night.

It turned out great except for a minor point . . that the editorial was supposed to be in Friday's paper, the day of the game and dance, not four days hence when the issue grew colder than a kosher herring.

We took the necessary step to prevent the incident from occurring again by dusting The Guardsman office lightly with a flame thrower.

From last reports we hear our wayward writer is quite happy and contented as winter sports editor on the Omsk Observer.

Cinecritique

By Nell Sullivan

DURING the days of the creole, amongst the richly luxuriant southern palaces of the pre-Civil War days the Foxes of Harrow ruled supreme. Over the rolling slopes of the Louisiana bottomland, Stephen Fox, former adventurer and gambler reigned. Odalie Fox, his wife, had been the most sought after, the most beautiful, and the most imperious woman in New Orleans.

But—Stephen and Odalie lived as strangers in Harrow, and each day Stephen went for a visit with the beautiful mulatto, Desiree.

Frank Yerby's the Foxes of Harrow is a swift-paced, vivid novel, with a powerful impact, but one day the manuscript was entrusted to the tender mercies of a Hollywood director. What has come through the wash of Hollywood's writers is a well-cleaned and very colorless dialogue which carefully deletes any trace of the rich background, the colorful characters and the quirks and turns which combine to make a story alive.

Stephen Fox, screen version, is a bad man gambler with a terrible temper and the pride to back it up. Odalie Fox is a shrewish woman, also with a bad temper, who has too much beauty ever to be a person.

The one thing which redeems this epic is Rex Harrison's performance as Stephen Fox. Maureen O'Hara turns in her usual wide-eyed performance as his imperious wife. There is only one stipulation as the entrance fee to this movie. Do not read the book before you see the picture. Otherwise the effect will be bombastic and you will come away cursing all movie dialogue writers, fervently.

We wonder how author Frank Yerby feels, or if he recognizes his brain child at all, after these super alterations.

THE BULL PEN

Partly for atmosphere and partly from hunger, we now write this column from a table in the Tao Yuan Restaurant, located in mysterious, crowded Chinatown.

Passing intermittently to struggle with chopsticks and a bowl of rice, we are mulling over a performance we just saw at the Mandarin Theatre, 1021 Grant Avenue.

It was a play about a Chinese king of some dynasty.

One actor had a bear's head, which indicated he was a spirit, while another character carried a whip and thus was understood to be riding a horse.

We missed the plot because we don't speak Chinese, but the bright silk costumes and scenery, the weird music, the dancing, and the pageant-like presentation held us in our seat.

The music was loud and drowned out the audience, which was making plenty of noise. Even if a noiseless popcorn bag were invented, it wouldn't be used at the Mandarin.

Racking The Radio Thrillers

By David Hansen

EVER spend a quite evening at home with your radio? The other night we did just that. Not that we wanted to, understand, but, in the absence of certain monthly governmental remunerations for past services rendered, we deemed it necessary to spend the quiet hours in our own little foxhole.

Sans loot, shunned by society, and our short rations having left us too weak to spoon, we desperately turned to the air waves for relaxation. And this is what a relaxing evening on the ether is like:

First came the Barrel of Blood program. This was a tender little tale of a ghoulish monster who went around tying fair maidens to Van Ness Avenue safety zones, where they died horrible deaths.

One foggy night an out-of-state driver slowed his sixteen cylinder runabout at an intersection and heard the screams of a victim. Our hero bounded from his vehicle, saved the fair one, and brought the fiend to a just end by tying him to a woman driver's fender.

By the end of the second bedtime story, our living room was knee deep in corpses. Then some joker with a saliva sprinkled nasal tone drooled into the mike. "You ain't heard nuthin' yet—but first, do you need money? You do? How nice! Come down to the Friendly Loan Company and ask for any amount you desire. There's no red tape at Friendly Loan—you just a gallon of blood for security. And now, back to our story. The scene opens in the morgue, where two corpses are fighting over the attentions of the blonde on the corner slab—."

Then we discovered that the Ramsback Decapitation Murders were the result of a frustrated Sunday School teacher's part time occupation. "Sleep tight," leered the announcer in his own sadistic way.

Came next one of the most popular mystery programs, The Tickler, written by the master horror penman, Orch Arbler. This program had the gold seal of approval by True Children's Tales Magazine.

The program was sponsored by Dan's Drowsy Drops, a sleeping tablet. It was the best advertisement we've ever heard, for by this time the little woman was clutching and shaking us. On second thought, she was holding—we were doing the shaking.

Rifle Ranger Requests New Target Team

• Targeteer

Editor, The Guardsman:

Now that the war is over and ammunition is again quite plentiful, rifle shooters are in their glory once more. Matches between clubs and individuals who are interested enough in the sport of target shooting are really going places, with greater foreseen success than in pre-war days, perhaps due to the increased number of riflemen trained in the services.

As I understand it, SFJC had one of the foremost rifle teams in the country. Also the college has in its basement one of the best ranges in the city. Why couldn't this range be put to use. Furthermore, the college has the best of target rifles, Winchester 52s, shooting coats, etc. I am sure there are enough rifle shooters in the college to promote a good team.

Even if college appropriations could not be made for ammunition allowances, I am sure that the members of such a team would purchase it themselves. Why not put the guns and the range to use?

A Target Shooter

• Nonsense

Editor, The Guardsman:

Are you editing a college paper or a junior high school paper? Give me one good reason why you should print that letter from Joe, "Staff, drop dead." Is there any sense to such drivel? The Ram's Horn should be for constructive or even destructive criticism, but not for pure trash.

Any more such flagrant outbursts from some of our corny readers and I'll cancel my subscription.

News To Nobody

By Herbert Levy

IN EARLY December down in So. California, there is played a football game known as the "little Rose Bowl" whereby a western 2-year college tangles with an eastern representative . . . seems in 1946, the vaunted RAMS were considered one of the better teams on the coast, yet commercial Compton College was given the nod. It appears there was an agreement betwixt the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce and the nebulous Western college conference which includes Compton, (Long Beach, and a few other So. Calif. desert schools), in that the winner of the conference would represent the West . . . however this year those charming colleges wanted a few minor concessions such as about 100 per cent increase in gate receipts, etc., so the Pasadena C of C wized up and now declares that any college (2 yr. variety) in Calif. is eligible to represent the West . . . all S. F. has to do is win the rest of the games!!

Then there are some rametles, who toddle out to classes around 8 o'clock a.m. and proceed to kill the next 6 hours or so in the fountain . . . guess they are training to become coffee tasters! A proud owner of a '15 Studebaker is going all out for this establishment. Not only does this student have Ram stickers on his windows, but also plastered on either side of the rear license plate . . . It looks good too!

The October 5 edition of the This Week (appears in the Chronicle on Sundays) . . . happens that one question in a quiz column proclaimed Cornell was the only pre-war school to have a hotel restaurant division. What schools now teach the course? . . . The answer consisted of four colleges . . . the one they left out, the only one on the Pacific Coast, was this college. (How could they do such a thing?)

Rams Rule Favorite Over Marin In Tonight's Fray

Forward Wall Holds Key To S. F. Victory In Kentfield Struggle

The Grover Klemmer grid Ramblers take to the road again tonight when they penetrate the den of the Marin Tars at Kentfield in quest of their second victory.

While the campus battlers have one black spot to mar their record, that a loss to Vallejo 12-0, a 12-6 victory over Sacramento balances the ledger.

The power-pass offense combination trade-marked by the Rams, is rated to "do at will" tonight against the Mariners.

With both elevens making proficient use of the wild T style, and its several variations, the evening should have its sudden thrills, so common with the T use.

Lining up for the kickoff at game time will be Glenn Stern and Paul Hagan at the end posts. Stern, veteran of the 1946 champs, has this year been a pass snagger de luxe and a wild man on defense. Hagan, the importee from down Texas way, has shown some of his qualitative wares this season, and will be ready for more pigskin catching tonight.

Tackles for the Rams' third conference fray will be Chuck Kelley and Paul Oliver, both former Lincoln High stars, and a set of hard charging players.

Guards George Maganaris and Tom Childs will keep the Mariners from gaining yardage through the middle, along with helpful assistance from center Ken Schuchard.

The second line, rating an almost even par with the starters, will be Phil Collisehon and Bill Koenig, ends; Bob White and Neill Gunn, tackles; Herb Furrer and Ben Albrecht, guards; and Fred Loskutoff, center.

To move the Klemmer T into operation will be quarterback Bob Toquinto. To replace Toquinto in the brain spot will be a passer of "solid supreme" ability in Jim Greene.

The running backs will be left half Ray Stewart and his right half partner John Rainey. Two hard running backs, Stewart and Rainey, have good reserves in Don Morrison, Ken Foehr, James Carter, and Bob Brickell.

Completing the Ram brigade starters will be fast stepping and plunging Howard Crouch at the full post. In case there is any need for a sub, Klemmer will send in one of the finest defensive stars seen on the gridiron this season in a gent, Charles Ryan, who beams with delight in knock 'em down rather than pack the pigskin.

This will be the college's machine set to roll over the Marin Tars tonight.

North Bay Gridders Led By Sam De Vito In Third Conference Bid

By DON COLLINS, Sports Editor, The Mariner

When San Francisco invades Kentfield tonight to battle the 1947 edition of the Marin Junior College Tars, they will face a vastly improved eleven from that which stumbled through the first three games of the season.

Marin opened its season with Stockton's Tiger Cubs at Kentfield came out on the short end of a 14-13 score. Then the Tars fought Coach Kenny Casanega's Napa Chiefs to a 0-0 deadlock, while last week Menlo clipped the Mariners 20-0.

The black and white clad Mariners, under the tutorship of Arleigh Williams, former California All-American, will take the field against San Francisco as decided underdogs due to their mediocre showing thus far this season. But odds never tell the story until after the game.

Let's take a look at the Marin eleven that San Francisco will face Friday evening under the lights in Kentfield.

Williams will start Bud Stiveson and Bob McLaughlin at ends. Both are returned from last year's Marin eleven.

Jay Simon and Dave Crandall will start at the tackle slots, while the guard posts will be handled by Mario Ghilotti and Val Nichelini.

George Curry will start at center in place of the injured Owen Younger. Curry, who was a halfback until Younger broke a couple of ribs against Napa, is the best line backer on the squad.

The T quarterback roll will be manned by "Slinging" Sam DeVito, former Galileo High player.

Bill Nave and Dave Watts, two diminutive halfbacks, are over their ills and should be ready to eat up the white chalk marks against the Rams.

The fullback slot will be manned by Ted Nelson.

This is the eleven San Francisco will have to beat tonight.

SPEED MAKES the "T" formation go, and Ray Stewart adds the speed needed to make the Ram offense operate.

Soccermen Battle Indians Tomorrow

The game that the college soccer squad has been waiting to play will be held tomorrow, Saturday, October 18, against Stanford University on Stanford's home field. This game will be the first official league game for the locals.

On the college squad about a fourth of the players are Spanish students who, through the generosity of some South American country, are attending this college.

Since soccer is the national sport of most South American countries, just as baseball is in this country, these Spanish students take to soccer like a bany to eandy. As for the team as a whole, each nan knows how to use his head in more ways than one.

Tomorrow's game should prove to be a good one with teams ready to expect anything, and in soccer, anything can happen.

WAA To Hold Election

Election of managers for each Women's Athletic Association sport will take place when the different sports meet as scheduled this week.

The first council meeting is planned for Friday, October 17, during the college hour In Room 140. The council includes the WAA officers and all the new managers.

Hilltop LOOKout

By Dayton Lawson

From what our operatives tell us, the Player of the Week for the past two games has been the same lad, CHUCK RYAN. The ex-Lowell High star has proved to be a bulwark at the defensive fullback spot, and is in on most of the tackles coming his way from end to end. So until somebody turns in a better performance, RYAN will have to cop the Blue Plate Special for this week. . . .

Guess you didn't know that JOE AMORI, the wheel in the Job Placement Dept., was once a cog of some consequence in athletic affairs down San Jose State way. In 1930, it seems, Amori wore letters for four different sports (not at the same time, however), among which was football . . . While we're on the subject of football, how about all those unnecessary fights in the grandstand at the last two games? Come, come kids, this isn't very good taste for a top-notch student-body like ours to display, is it?

BILL FISCHER, men's Physical Ed. instructor, turned in a fine job as head man at the U.S.F.-MISSISSIPPI game. The penalties were held to a minimum, and the contest was interesting to watch as a result.

Muddy Field Hampers Gridiron Practice

By TANIOS HABEEB

The recent rains caused more than just comment around the campus. Chief gripes were coming from the direction of the football team going through its practice sessions on the muddy turf of the practice field.

The hard-charging gridmen were allowing their bodies to come in contact with the adhesive qualities of the liquid dust. A real sight to behold.

An early San Francisco newspaper columnist made a statement that described the state of affairs in this city around 1860. It sizes up the local situation very nicely:

"Mud is the element in which we are now compelled to exist. It is utterly impossible to do anything without thinking of mud, to go anywhere without stirring in the subject, for, sober or muddied, a man is sure to put his foot in it."

In the case of the grid-gang, more than just a foot is placed in the stuff.

Intramural Signup Extended; Teams Take Floor Tuesday

Because of the slowness with which entries for the intramural hoop tourney have been arriving, Intramural Director Tom Wilson extended the deadline to this afternoon in the hope that more teams will sign-up for competition.

Actual tournament competition will begin next Tuesday afternoon. All teams should be ready to take the floor, or a forfeit will be declared.

The schedule for the first rounds of play will be posted on the bulletin boards in the main building and the gymnasium office Monday morning.

Entries for the casaba loop may be handed to Wilson in the office of the men's gymnasium or to Intramural Manager Jim Wyatt.

Persons interested in competing in the ping-pong, tennis or badminton tournaments may begin to sign-up for their respective activities immediately. There will be both singles and doubles competition in these sports.

The deadline for these activities will be announced by Wilson in the next issue.

INTRAMURAL ACTIVITIES manager for this semester is track star Jim Wyatt. Wyatt, formerly of Polytechnic High School, was one of bright lights of last semester's track squad. Entries for the coming basketball tournament or for any of the future intra sports can be turned in to either Wyatt or Tom Wilson, director.

Men Joining WAA In Sports Activities

By ANN LAND

Not so long ago WAA was inhabited exclusively by women. But a few friendly little numbers with an eye for improvements thought that there would be more action amis with some male competition.

So the stronger sex has moved in on the bowling and riding clubs, as well as the Friday afternoon informal get togethers held in the women's gym. And from the way the "sign-ups" are booming for these sports especially, the outlook is that the new-looking WAA will find itself, before long, a veritable beehive of activity.

RAMblings . .

By Arnold Wachter

MONDAY, we had the pleasure of attending the Northern California Football Writers' Association. Since it was the first time we had ever been invited to such an important shindig, we were all eyes, except when the food was served, then we were all mouth.

The thing that struck us as unusual is that those big time football coaches strictly have their troubles.

The average sports fan gets drooily at the thought of coaching a big time football team. They think that a coach has a racket, and are sure that Mr. Fan could do a better job, if he had a chance. But after listening to the woes that the coaches tell about, they can keep their jobs, and the fan will do well to stay in his general admission seat.

There is no need to report here what the different coaches had to say, as their words of wisdom have been repeated earlier this week in the downtown papers.

Of all the coaches who attended the luncheon, only two men appeared completely happy with life, they were Lynn "Pappy" Waldorf, who if you hadn't heard is doing okay by the Golden Bears. The other one was our own Grover Klemmer, who doesn't have to worry about disgruntled alumni or students who crack a whip.

* * *

A few nights ago we heard a cute story from some of those old-timers, who were spinning stories of the good old days. The story concerns Tom Sharkey, the old San Francisco heavyweight boxer.

It seems that Tom, who was being managed by a gent named Tim McGrath, was fighting a supposed bum.

Well, to make a long story short, the supposed bum was making a hum out of Sharkey. Tim McGrath, who had signed the bout up, would tell Tom at the end of each round that his opponent hadn't laid a glove on him.

As round after round went by, and Sharkey was taking a terrific beating, McGrath kept telling him that a glove hadn't mussed his hair.

At long last Sharkey couldn't bear it any longer, and at the end of the round, he turned to Tim and said, "Tim, that bum isn't hitting me, so keep your eye on the referee, because somebody is knocking the hell out of me."

Romance Blooms By Board

Commuter Honeymoon For Local Lovers

By MEL HANSEN

"Magdalene, I need you, meet me at the same place, same time." Signed "Cosmo."

Magdalene meets Cosmo. They embrace. Soft words are whispered into little pink ears. They stride off arm in arm down the rainbow of happiness.

This touching scene was brought about by correspondence posted on the local bulletin board which is located on the first floor of the main building.

The bringing together of Cosmo and Magdalene is only the beginning of the story.

Cosmo served in the underground Balloon Corps; Magdalene was in the girdle repair outfit of the WACS.

They were married under a Banyan tree in the town square of Pescudero.

They are in a pinch for a place to live. They look all over. They find no houses. They moan in sheer pain. To what do they turn in this hour of strife? The bulletin board.

They scan the board, no houses. They look again. It seems that there is everything else for sale but houses. There is an ad for riders from the east bay and there is one for riders to the east bay. There is one for a 1923 Buzzcurk and one for a 1948 Packard and another for a slightly used stick of juley-fruit.

Their honeymoon is at stake. They still need a roof over their heads. They look harder. The light goes on and off they slink smiling with anticipation.

It turns out that Cosmos takes the ride to the east bay while Magdalene takes one from the east bay. They toss loving glances at each other as they pass on the bridge each morning. Their troubles are solved.

Cosmo and his dearest say of the bulletin board on the first floor, "It's wonderful."

AVAILABLE JONES has nothing like this, thinks Barbara Rene Hunt, as she makes note of the many phenomenal opportunities placed kaleidoscopically upon the student bulletin board in the main building, south.

XGI Society Coming Back Under New Plan

Two More "Juniors" Reach Adult Stage

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—After a great deal of discussion from citizens, educators, and statesmen, Sacramento State College becomes a working reality. Previously a two year college, this semester brings the begining of third year classes.

Bakersfield College also joined the ranks of other outstanding junior colleges by dropping junior from the school's name by action of the Kern County School District board of trustees on July 1, 1947.

Chest Volunteers Direly Needed In College Drive

More volunteers are needed to solicit funds for the Community Chest here, Vice-President J Paul Mohr told students last Tuesday.

Mohr is taking Lloyd Luckmann's place as campaign manager here during the presidential assistan'ts visit to the United Nations conference at Lake Success, New York.

Only seven students had signed up by Tuesday, 23 short of the 30 needed to solicit contributions in this area.

It is extremely important that more students sign up in this great humanitarian cause," he said. "Volunteers are urgently needed," Mohr said.

He cited the importance of the work being done by students of Edward Larson's salesmanship classes in the campaign. Larson is now training interested students to do solicitation work.

J. PAUL MOHR, college vice-president, as campaign manager of the local Community Chest drive, is working strenuously toward achieving the drive quota set for this locality. Plus the Red Feather campaign, Mohr, president of the Northern California Junior College Conference, is faced with a multitude of duties with the advent of the football season.

The committee is now at work upon the problem of adequate parking space for the faculty.

Local Guard Unit In New Recruit Drive

Vacancies now exist for both private soldiers and non-commissioned ratings in the "college's own" National Guard unit.

War Department caretaker, Staff Sergeant Bill Welch, announced yesterday that recruits will be accepted from the ranks of both novices and veterans, for two hours weekly duty with Battery A, 217 AAA, a self-propelled automatic weapon battalion.

Men of the Guard draw a full day's pay, in addition to other practical advantages, from each week's drill.

Only a minimum of close order drill is included, according to student Welch. The pay ranges from $2.70 per day for a private, to a maximum of $7.50 for a master sergeant.

First Intersorority Dance Shaping Up

Plans for an intersorority sport dance to be held Saturday evening, October 25, in the student lounge from 8:30 to 12 o'clock, were completed this week by a dance committee.

Amori Wants Blood! Local Placement Head Announces Student Donor Setup

Working in conjunction with local hospitals, Joseph Amori, student placement head, announced yesterday the need for paid blood donors. Hospitals are at present paying $25 per pint donated, according to Amori.

From a list of eligible students kept in his office, Amori sends the number of desired donors when notified by various hospitals.

After a premilinary check-up at the hospital, the student is sent to the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, where the actual physical transaction takes place. The student then returns to the hospital where he receives payment for his donation.

All those interested may sign up at Amori's office. Preference, however, will be given to the most needful students who also meet the physical requirements, Amori said.

During the last six months 200 students from this college have donated through this system.

The Navy has discontinued its Naval Air College program until 1949. However, those interested in entering in entering the air corps may take the NROTC course and transfer into the air corps upon completion of this course.

"If unsuccessful after entry, whether due to scholastic failure, in aptitude, misconduct, or other reasons they will be discharged from the Navy and return to their civilian pursuits."

Applications must be received by the Naval Examining Section in New Jersey no later than November 10, 1947.

The necessary information can be secured from Walter E. McCloud, counsellor, in Building 3, second floor.

ONE OF the first aims Charles Luckman of the President's Citizens' Food Committee accomplished upon taking over the position was to get the major brewers of the country to curtail the use of corn.

Now, if he could only get his top employee, Bob Hope, to reduce production of his corn, Luckman would have fulfilled his duties.

This present food conservation drive got off on the wrong foot and has been gaining speed backwards ever since.

MIRIAM'S BOY FRIEND

The government decided it needed a young man with high-powered ideas, so it went out and got Luckman, the boy wonder of the Lever Brothers concern; one of the best hucksters in the business.

This is one of the big outfits that has been crucifying radio by means of moronic singing commercials and other intelligence-insulting ways of pounding tripe into a listener's ears.

Luckman is the guy who introduced "Trium-Miriam" to the nation, and he was probably right around close when "Rinso white . . . Tweet, tweet!" . . . came into being, at least his company makes the stuff.

LISTENERS GET BACK

As if in revenge for all these years of idiotic advertising, the public is giving Luckman the least possible amount of cooperation.

First resistance to the voluntary food reduction program was put up by a nationwide restaurant association that came through with a polite but firm "no" to Luckman's request for meatless and eggless days.

PROPAGANDA WON'T WORK

For the first time in six years some one had the nerve to stand up for the public's inherent rights when this restaurant association said it had no authority to tell its customers what they can eat and when.

At least it shows the people are getting tired of being pushed around by government agencies who know no other way to solve a problem besides drum pounding propaganda.

. . . AND COME UP SMILING

When Luckman applied his favorite huckster tactics to the campaign, all he got was a well-worded request to take a flying leap into a big vat of his own irium-inundated Pepsodent toothpaste.

A good indication that the flag-waving days of the war are about over, and the government's many agencies will have to exert brain power for a change instead of leading people like so many sheep.

AVC Membership List Withdrawn From AYD

Indignant Members Demand Return Of Addresses Given By Associate To Off-Campus Youth Group

Spearheaded by the unanimous support of the faculty advisers, the college chapter of the American Veterans Committee Wednesday night voted to rescind a previously passed motion to make the AVC mailing list available to the American Youth for Democracy organization.

"No organization, by any majority vote, is free to give so personal a property as name, address, or support to any group without the express permission of the individual involved," faculty adviser John Booker said, speaking against allowing the AYD to use the mailing list.

That the list could be used to further some form of propaganda, or be used by groups desirous of being "backed" by as many organizations as possible to further their programs were also advanced as arguments in favor of recovering the mailing list.

The recent revelation that AYD now possessed the membership list of AVC has seriously hampered the drive for new members, AVC leaders said.

When the motion came to a vote to rescind the order allowing AYD to use the mailing list, it was carried by a huge majority. A motion was passed to amend the AVC Constitution to prevent repetitions of "mailing list incidents" in the future.

Although many memebrs expressed their antagonism to the American Youth for Democracy, it was pointed out the action was not prejudicial to that organization or any other group.

Playreading Fest Gives Good Comedy

Instructor Paul Elliison yesterday promised good entertainment to all who attend the reading of a hilarious American comedy by the college drama group tomorrow at 1 p.m. in Room 28 in the basement of the main campus building.

Ellison added, stressing the fact that all students are welcome and that there will be no charge, that the cast will include students Caroline Kennington, Merton Bercovich, Hal Harris, Charles Hulse, and Darelynne Patton.

Reading of a thriller has been set for Wednesday, November 5, by Ellison, who stated that any students interested in joining the group should call him or Lloyd Sisler of the drama department.

Vet's AS Cards Should Be Ready This Week

Associated Student cards for veterans will probably be ready for distribution this week, the Veteran's Affairs Office announced yesterday. Refunds for student veterans who already have purchased cards will be ready at the same time, the office revealed.

Scholastic supply kits will not be issued immediately, pending a clarification of some points of the program by the City Hall, the office announced.

Edwards plans to provide plenty of good entertainment for the pre-game rally, starting at 8 o'clock the night before the Los Angeles football game.

The program for the evening will include topnotch musicians, college yells and songs, movies, and a dance after the show, Edwards said.

College Quota Of Symphony Tickets Sold

No more tickets are available for the 1947-48 San Francisco Symphony season, Meyer Cahn, Symphony Forum adviser, announced yesterday.

"The number of tickets was greatly reduced from what we had hoped to get," Cahn said, "but I'd advise students who want to purchase them at the student rates next year to get them as soon as possible.

AWS officers who will assist Miss Huddleson are Carol Shutt, vice president; Natalie Du Dune, recording secretary, and Rita Buscaglia, corresponding secretary.

Attendance Rules Ask Proof Of Illness

Initiating a new statewide attendance system, Dean Edward Sandys announced today that this semester, in case of absence because of illness, the student should present some verification of the illness to the attendance office, Room 155.

"The only recognized excused absence is caused by personal illness. For other absences, emergency or otherwise, the student is allowed absences equal to the number of units in a particular course," Sandys added.

Two women projectionists are needed to show films in the women's hygiene classes. Women interested should apply in Room 140.

Resignation from the Student Council was announced at the meeting of Thursday, October 16, by member Leo Greenfield.

An unanimous vote of thanks for past services as a member of the council was given Greenfield by those present.

Talent for Friday's show will be recruited from material on the campus.

Completion Of New Greenhouse Slowed

One small section of the $80,000 greenhouse, situated by the men's gymnasium, is at present completed and stacked with floriculture equipment.

The greenhouse when finished will consist of a lath house, a greenhouse, and a main office unit.

Overcrowding Results In Superficial Rent Slash

AT FIRST observations, we were unsparing in our praise for the persons responsible for reducing the rates of the single men's dormitories.

In the Friday, October 10, edition of The Guardsman, an editorial appeared extolling the wonderful idea of combatting inflation, to some degree at least, by slashing the dorm rates from fifteen dollars to eleven dollars and fifty cents per month.

Now, however, as we study the issue more closely, we find a joker has been slipped into this rent reduction.

More specifically, each section will now contain three persons, where before there were but two. A condition that may be unfavorable because of overcrowding.

In any event why wouldn't it be logical to reduce the rent to ten dollars a month?

If three persons must live in one section, the income of thirty dollars per month would still be realized.

Parking Area Inadequate

PARKING space is totally inadequate on this campus.

The situation is bad enough now, but unless some long range program is soon enacted, students will be forced to occupy even more of the residential district's parking facilities, complaints of which have already reached the college administration.

A few students have been parking on the lawn outside the fence, but rain and tires churn this ground into a glue-like state which will require towing during inclement weather.

Surely there is some space near the campus which can be converted cheaply to a parking area.

Any expansion program which does not consider the parking problem and offer a solution is incomplete and impractical.

Conditions Improve But . . .

CONDITIONS on the west campus have improved slightly in that a few larger trash cans have been provided for the lunch remnants to grace.

However, we still have an element of the student body around and about the fountain who would do better surrounding a trough in a rural barnyard.

Out of the thousands in attendance here it is inevitable that a small percentage of the population totally lacks manners of any kind.

So the entire student body is pinned down for the blame when, in reality it is the usual minority group of alleged human beings who continue flinging the remains of their meals to the winds. Possibly a little nose rubbing would do the trick.

Needling Notations

By Del Pichon

FAR be it from us to disparage the policies of some of the major newspaper chains in the United States, but we are of the opinion that the American public is having some mighty powerful propaganda rammed down its throat.

We are speaking now of the recent expostulations heard from the borders of Lake Success where one fiery orator of a major Eurasian power accused certain men and groups in the United States of warmongering.

Newspapers throughout the country immediately began to use the now trite and time-worn phrases of "freedom of the press," "every American has the right to speak his mind," "democracy is. . ."

Okay! Okay! We agree that the fundamental basis of democracy is the individual's right of free speech, but what about the charges made by Vishinsky?

For an answer to that question one need only scan the Citizen Kane-like newspapers which have predominant control of the news supply throughout the nation. Note well the editorials and the small feature stories condemning any and all radical elements in this country and, furthermore, directly accusing Russia of conspiring for war against the United States.

Not that we condone Russian aggression or obstructionism, but the dire warnings and threats of disaster that thunder from the strongholds of the omnipotent, Anglo-phobic, anti-Russian, anti-anti press are warping the American reader's viewpoint.

We agree that the American public must be informed concerning conditions and policies which may possibly constitute a threat to its sovereignty and to its freedom, and we commend those who do so objectively and without bias.

However, today some sections of the American press are sowing the malignant seed of hatred which will spring to blossom some five or ten years hence, in the form of serried ranks of neat white crosses.

The Bull Pen

By Bill Riley

All the better drink emporiums in Los Angeles are now equipped with television screens. Previews of the latest celluloid releases are shown for the patrons' benefit. Or possibly, the screens are installed for the benefit of the proprietors.

There might be a chance the moving pictures in bars might increase the patronage of these establishments.

The Jones family that used to find their evening's entertainment in the local cinema will now drift down to the neighborhood pub. Even Junior will view Mickey Mouse while sipping a straightcoke.

What a life! Imagine sitting in the favorite cocktail lounge, sipping the favorite beverage, and watching the world series. Perhaps each pub will organize cheering sections for the Dodgers.

After a few rounds the customer is liable to view three Betty Grables at once instead of one. What a possibility!

Godda Cold In Manose . . .

By Ed Roper

Whilst running a bloodshot eye over the local scandal sheets we collided with this startling package of news: "J. D. Moneybags in Hospital With Cold."

To this we reply: BAH! Sniffing all the while we say this: BAH! Where, just where, do we see "E. J. Roper in Hospital With Cold."

Money Bags, a prominent banker will be remembered for his cool thinking and courage many a time when he saved the funds of his bank.

But to get back to the issue of the day. Just because J. D. draws a monthly check slightly above 65 per, does it give him the right to expect widespread sympathy for a measly cold? While John has his personal physician reporting that his condition is "not serious," we have three or four editors bellowing like bloody murder about "copy." Is this justice?

When ze revolution comes, zen will ve have "E. J. Roper in Hospital With Cold."

Our friend Hiram would like to see his name in large print screaming to the world: "Hiram Q. Flumbdiddle in Hospital With Hangoveritis." You too can crash the headlines! Don't do it the hard way by accumulating a fistful of millions; just pull the "Yes" lever after proposition No. 9, string along with Flumbdiddle and your troubles will be his troubles.

Before the gendarmes seek us out for spreading such tyrannous talk we resume our discussion on the country's most prevalent disease and its ravages on J. D. Moneybags.

Having gone through three boxes of Kleenex and four handkerchiefs, we could ordinarily bend a sympathetic ear to J. D.'s plight, for aren't we brothers under the Kleenex? We don't envy him his success, nor does he envy us ours. We both have switched to Calvert's, John because it is smoother, and we because how long can you take corn squeezin's?

But, we scorn our tendency to sympathize and let fly with a barrage of "May your Kleenex have moths," followed with "When the red of your nose meets the bags of your eyes you'll be a better man than I, Gunga Din."

Letters to the Editor

• Decreasing Privileges(?)

Editor, The Guardsman:

There has been much talk about why we are not 100 per cent in student body membership. One of the reasons may be that instead of our privileges increasing they are decreasing.

Last Sunday at the San Francisco 49-er vs. Chicago Rockets football game the San Francisco Junior College Student Body card was not honored, while high school and junior high school student body cards were.

This situation seems very strange, for our student cards cost ten times the amount of the high school student body cards, but yet ours does not entitle us to a reduced price.

If there is a reason why this situation exists I would like to know what it is.

It's quite amusing what the consensus of opinion concerning the nature of the Forum Club seems to be. Most students think the Forum Club is a high class, snobbish, intellectual little circle made up of bearded beetle-browed, pipesmoking pseudo-intellectuals.

Second Half Drives By Rams Stump Tars 14-0

Klemmer Gridders "Wake Up" In Third Period As Carter, Stern Rip Through Mariners For Scores

By Sam Goldman

KENTFIELD FIELD, Marin, Calif., Oct. 17.—After being bogged down completely during the first period by a pass maddening Marin attack, the San Francisco Rams came back in the second half and bombarded the Marin Tars with a convincing 14-0 defeat for their second seasonal win here tonight.

Led by their star passer and quarterback, Sam DeVito, the Tars ran and passed to their delight through the invaders' defense in the opening quarters, but failed to enter the end zone as the Fischer line would suddenly tighten and hold any further penetration by the Marin eleven.

Taking the third quarter kickoff on their own 25, Klemmer sent in James "Terror" Carter, who, after having been injured for the past two weeks, tore the Marin defense apart in a six play 74 yard touchdown march.

Carter packed the ball but three times, chalking up 64 yards in the drive, which was climaxed by his 37 yard jaunt through the center of the line into the end zone for the first Ram touchdown. End Paul Hagan converted the extra point.

Midway through the third quarter, the Rams, under the passing arch of quarterback Bob Toquinto, went 46 yards for the second six pointer. From the Marin 46, Torquinto air laned a 14 yard pass to end Glenn Stern, who outmaneuvered three tacklers and two officials while on his way into the end zone. Hagan again sent the hide through the uprights.

Throughout the final period, the 1946 conference champs threatened to score, but penalties saved the Mariners from further defeat.

Statistics—	SF	M

WAA Conference Tea To Be Held On Oct. 24

The Alta California conference tea is scheduled to be held in the women's gymnasium, Friday, October 24, during the afternoon, Herminia Ross, president of the Women's Athletic Association, announced today.

Presidents of WAA from eight different colleges are expected to attend the affair, as well as local WAA members.

Big Doings Planned By Block SF Society

Intent upon making this a big year for the Block SF Society, President Bill Bahr moved his staff into its new quarters yesterday.

The office, located on the second floor in Building 2, west campus, will serve as headquarters for the society, but will not be large enough to accommodate the regular meetings.

Bahr also commended the society members for the cooperative spirit displayed by them in backing his proposal to hold additional meetings in private homes.

In this way Bahr feels that the society will become a more compact and efficient organization and will be able to turn in a creditable showing in any task it may undertake this semester.

30 Intra Cage Teams Lead Off In Tourney

Tom Wilson's gigantic intramural cage tourney removes its wraps this afternoon as the first games of the season get under way in the men's gymnasium at 3 o'clock.

Among the players are Bill McGurn and Jim Caldwell of John Borlo A.C., Rudy Pfister and Hal Flinn of Balboa, Jim McCrea, Poly, and Warren Sands and George Pompei of Galileo.

Signups for badminton, ping pong and tennis will be accepted until Wednesday, October 29.

California Bears Next On Soccermen Schedule

The college soccer squad will take the field against the blue and gold of the University of California this Saturday, October 25, at the rival's field. This contest will be one to watch as both teams are in good shape and have been doing well in everyday practice.

ERNIE was an all-around athlete in casaba MERCE HIGH previous to this, and besides showing a deftness in casaba circles, the diminutive RICHMOND DISTRICT lad was a very classy high-jumper. . . . Bet you'll never guess who made All-Conference guard on the same Ram quintet that year. RALPH HILLSMAN? Well, how DID you guess? . . . .

The '37 edition calls attention to WARD COX as a lad to keep an eye on in the swimming picture. Well, we certainly did keep an eye on COX while at POLY HIGH, where he busted every school record existing. The fact that he and many other ex-Ram greats failed to come back from the Reeent Unpleasantness furnishes added proof that the God of War doesn't consider individual merit when demanding the supreme sacrifice.

The '37 Guardsman also furnishes fodder for our last trip down Nostalgia Lane, and comes up with the name of BILL PHELAN, a center on the RAM five of that year. PHELAN, at the last report, was happily married to GUSSIE REAGNER, ex-tennis champ, and a big wheel in the ICE business, no less . . . . Next week, EAST LYNN.

TWO MEN who make the "T" formation go are Jim Greene, accurate passing quarterback, and Howard Crouch, bone crunching fullback. Crouch is a potential all-conference back, whose work in the last two games has been recognized in the downtown papers.

Rams Rule Favorites Over Mateo Bulldogs Saturday

The San Mateo and San Francisco NCJC football elevens resume their feudin' and fightin' athletic rivalry series this Saturday, October 25, at 2 p.m., when the Ram campaigners venture down the peninsula to battle the barkin' Bulldogs in their fourth conference encounter.

By virtue of holding two victories over the "Hounds" in last year's grid grippings by 35-18 and 20-13 scores, and from their previous conference showings, the 1946 champs will have to be considered as the favorites "to win" prior to the kickoff time.

However, the Mateans, eager to regain possession of their Tom-Tom drum on their home grounds, maintain that when "the two rival teams meet on the turf, it wouldn't surprise anyone to find the Blue and White as the victors," and they mean it.

Marius MacFadden, single wing tutor of the opposing eleven, presents on the field at game time a veteran team, minus the workings of all-conference back Jack Donaldson.

Among the returning players on the starting Mateo group will be halfbacks Bob Radcliffe and Ken Mack. Mack, the peninsulars' version of Buddy Young, has been their turf dancer in their recent contests against Santa Rosa, Stockton, and Sacramento.

Armed fully with the manual equipment to outseore their hosts, Grover Klemmer's footballers, with the Sacramento, Vallejo, and Marin games among their memories, are also in the proper spirit to cross the goal line during the afternoon's play.

"All the players have recovered from their injuries and will be ready to play," is Klemmer's comment in anticipation of the Saturday doings.

ISN'T it about time that the NCJCC baseball trophy was brought back to its rightful owners? Since 1940 the trophy has been gathering dust in some dark nook at Santa Rosa Junior College, where it was taken after the Cubs picked up the conference title.

During the war the conference was suspended, and the trophy remained with the country folk. In 1946 the conference resumed its official schedule, and Bill Fischer brought the crown to San Francisco.

This year Fischer again repeated with his baseball magic, but has the trophy ever been seen in the vicinity of the trophy case in the men's gymnasium?

Why don't the proper authoritles in charge of the conference take steps to see that is it brought down here where it rightfully belongs?

A strange comparison in football tactics exists between the coaching staff of Texas University and the staff here at Fog Hill. Last year, Dana X. Bible, former Longhorn mentor, and Lee Eisan, ex-Ram tutor, worked their gridiron trickery from the single and double wing formations, both achieving a large amount of success.

This year they were both replaced, Bible by assistant coach Blair Cherry; and Eisan by Grover Klemmer. Both new coaches immediately installed the "T" formation in their respective grid machines.

But the comparison does not end here.

At both schools there was constant grumbling among the veterans on the teams until they were shown the advantages of the T.

Both Cherry and Klemmer are learning from others, and both believe in strict physical conditioning by training, rather than individual responsibility.

The only thing wrong with this comparison is that the Longhorns are undefeated.

With all this star basketball talent floating around, Casaba mentor Ralph Hillsman should be able to mold a fairly formidable five for this season's cage competition. Hillsman did well for a beginner last year and should improve his standings when December comes again.

Alpha Gamma Sigma Meet Installs Officials For Semester; Cunningham Named President

At a special meeting of Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, Murney Cunningham was installed as president. Val Padovan will fill the post of vice-president, and Beverly Wright will serve as secretary-treasurer.

Leslie Holden was appointed the society's representative on the Club Advisory Board. Marjorie Bailhache of the language department will remain in the capacity of social adviser.

Alpha Gamma Sigma leads many of the highlights in the social activities of the college. It is also active in projects beneficial to the college and directly to student.

At the present time, the society is sponsoring a tutoring program for ex-servicemen who desire help in their studies. This aid is available at the Alpha Gamma Sigma office adjacent to the fountain on the west campus.

Edwin Cranston, club adviser, announced today only those who have been in the society for two or more semesters will receive silver pins.

The society, one of 31 chapters in California, has 177 members which represents three and one-third per cent of the student body.

Potential members may inform Cranston or visit the meeting on Fridays during college hour in Room 204.

CBS Offers College Designed Program

In the hope of providing a useful guide for self-understanding and comprehension of the changing world in which we live, the Columbia Broadcasting System has invited students of Bay Area universities and colleges to participate in the series of programs called Opinion, Please, Fridays from 1 to 1:30 p.m.

Each Opinion, Please program will set forth a problem of general interest. Then a group of students will discuss the issues involved and exchange their views.

Other programs designed to give a "sharper focus to the principles and values by which man lives," on Columbia's American School of the Air broadcast are Liberty Road, Tales of Adventure, The March of Science, and Gateway to Music.

Students are urged by Marie Weller, radio instructor, to tune in on these broadcasts as a supplement to their formal education.

National Guard Still Recruiting On Campus

The National Guard recruiting drive to augment "the college's own" Battery A personnel is under way, according to Staff Sergeant Bill Welch, local accounting major. He added that information on enlistment may be obtained from any uniformed student in front of the main building. Physical examinations will be taken at the college immediately upon enlistment.

"Enlistment is open to students more than 17 years of age," Welch said. "Novices are welcome. Veterans will retain their rates in most cases. They should bring discharges when enlisting, and they will receive victory medals for wartime service."

The "College's Own" is Battery A, 271 AAA Battalion, 112 Brigade, California National Guard. Capt. Vernon W. Glasser is the commanding officer.

Meeting Shaping Up For Holiday Jobs

The college placement office plans a meeting of all students who have entered placement cards for Christmas employment, Joseph Amori, placement head, said yesterday.

The meeting will take place sometime in the near future, according to Amori, when more complete information is received from various sources of employment as to their needs.

Many applications for work have already been received at the placement office. Those students who desire Christmas employment and who have not yet applied are advised to do so immediately.

Opening Of Cafeteria Delayed By Shortages

The west campus cafeteria will open on or about Monday, October 27, announces John Entwhistle of the Dinwiddie Construction Co.

Several tentative dates for the opening have been set previously, but because of the scarcity of materials construction has been delayed. Excepting similar delays the cafeteria will be operating by next Monday.

Simians And Homo Sapiens Sociologically Similar, or: Pleez No Squeeza Da Banan'

By Ann Land

On the subject of monkey and man, a local sociology instructor, recently reported incidents of ape behavior to be quite similar to that of the Homo Sapiens, or wise guys.

His following scientific report is supposed to reveal the essential man in the nature of monkeys.

The proof of the plausibility of the following report rest with the ability to believe the "gospel truth" when met.

The typical monkey shine, arranged by a noted psychologist and sociologist, took place just a few days ago at the local zoo, where two apes were the target of this gentleman's scientific experiment.

These fraternal apes, on instruction from higher up were to be ignored by the caretaker during grubbing time. Left without sustenance, the ape and his friend brute would, though separated by bars, frequently look in on one another and gripe about the board together.

After several days of this, and of course when both apes were pretty hungry, an abhorrent trick was played.

Into one of the ape's cages was dropped a carload of bananas. Friend ape was no longer a friend. Grabbing all his bananas, he carried them to the far corner of his cage and proceeded to munch to the ravenous cries of his rather hitter buddy.

After half the carload of bananas was consumed, and perhaps his hunger abated, the ape suddenly looked downright guilty. Did he know he had let his friend down? The psychologist and his staff watched in utter fascination as the remorseful-looking ape walked toward his frantic pal.

Silently and solemnly he shook the hand of his less fortunate colleague. Then he went back to polish off the rest of the bananas.

Hot Rod Harry Buzzes The Field

By Bill Rainey

Uncle Sam would be pulling his grey whiskers in surprise if he had seen the hot rod made from a fighter plane's auxiliary gas tank owned by Harry La Motte.

The small three-wheel car carries one person, and its single cylinder Cushman motor gives it a speed of 35 miles per hour. The fenders and tires are also from an airplane. La Motte said the car cost about $200 to build.

Uncle Sam used this type of gas tank during the war for long range flights. When they were emptied, or the plane needed extra speed, the tanks were released from their place on the wings.

Driving across the Bay Bridge every morning is a snap for La Motte, but his troubles begin when he has to find a parking spot at the college.

Parking places have been so scarce that La Motte has had to hide his car under the shadow of a fireplug.

Workshop Course To Offer Aid In Improving Reading

Planning remedial reading courses for students who find their reading faulty, Grace Brown, English instructor, is creating an extra-curricular workshop course to be held either Monday at 3 p.m., or Thursday at 10 a.m.

These reading courses will include improvement in reading rate and comprehension. As another phase of this workshop program, attention will be given to remedial spelling.

Although interested in improving the reading habits of beginning English students, Mrs. Brown also plans an upper-level course, wherein the more advanced student may analyze his reading habits and tastes. Each student will receive individual attention, she said.

This course, one hour a week, is open to any student interested in bettering his skill in English and is an extra - curricular activity; therefore, no credit is given. Mrs. Brown is in Building 19, Room 3, for further information.

The Guardsman

Official Twice Weekly Publication of the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College

Vol. XXV SAN FRANCISCO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1947 No. 8

The Spectator

George Lujeunesse

"LITTLE CAESAR" Petrillo, czar of the musicians' union and butt of fifty per cent of Fred Allen's gags, is likely to go down as The Man of The Year, comes 1948.

Any man who has the colossal guts to take on, practically singlehanded, two huge industries and put a ring through their nose deserves a world of praise and we're for him all the way.

We think the guy is all right as rainfall, and we're willing to face a barrage of worn out phonograph records hurled by irate student loungers to prove our point.

A WHOLE YEAR OF QUIET

Petrillo, foe of juke boxes and disc jockeys alike, is out to put the double whammy on these two banes of peace and quiet for once and all.

James C. isn't content with getting a blank record inserted in each juke box for three minutes of silence . . . if he gets his way there will be 365 days of silence. The year of the Big Silence will be 1948.

Here is the nefarious plot that Petrillo is planning: effective December 31st of this year, the 225,000 members of the American Federation of Musicians will no longer make phonographs and transcriptions.

If this threat is carried out to its fullest, it means that in 1948 there won't be a juke box left in the land and no longer will the "Milkmen's Matinees" and other disc jockey programs rent the air.

NO MORE CANNED MUSIC

What gripes Petrillo is the fact ticular is the thousands of wildcat radio stations throughout the country who utilize phonograph records as their only means of entertainment.

These station have been getting away with murder for the past ten years by presenting canned entertainment at no cost to them other than the original price for a record.

In other words, for instance, where Chesterfield cigarettes pays an astronomical fee to get Perry Como to warble a few ditties a night, in the flesh, the El Punko Cigar Company can get Como on wax at a cost that includes maybe sixty cents for the recording and a small fee for the station's time.

BIGGER CUT FOR CROONERS

What gripes ePtrillo is the fact that Como, one of his many union members, doesn't get a dime for his efforts, aside from a small commission on the original sale of the record, yet every night he sings for thousands of various sponsors by means of recordings.

Recording company officials accuse Petrillo of "tryling to eliminate an entire industry;" they forget the fact that Petrillo's members built up that industry, and they are rightly entitled to a bigger spoonful of the gravy that has resulted from the big demand for canned music.

Student Council Adds $600 To Sport Teams

Unanimous approval was given to an appropriation for $600, necessary for equipment for the football and basketball teams, at the Student Council meeting of Tuesday, October 21.

Athletic Commissioner Paul Yde stated that the money will be spent for shoulder pads, hip pads, and pants for the football team, while the basketball team will receive five new regulation balls. Medical supplies and tape for both groups will be bought.

Newly Remodeled Cafe Opens Monday

Starting at 11 a. m., the cafeteria will open next Monday, October 27, and function thereafter on a five-day week schedule. The first meal on that day will be luncheon, served from 11 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. Breakfast hours are from 7:45 a. m. to 10 a. m.; and the dinner hour is from 5 to 6 p. m.

As now set up, the cafeteria, resembles closely the commercial cafeterias, according to Hilda Watson, chairman of the Hotel and Restaurant Division.

It includes two new Monel steaming tables and extended counters.

Arrangements for the faculty dining room will temporarily be those of last year, inasmuch as construction on the new dining room has not yet been completed. Prices will be higher in ratio to increases in wholesale costs.

Art Dept. Opens Show On West Campus

An art exhibit, concerned with the fundamental principles of seeing, is now on display in building 10, room K, for a limited time.

The exhibit, dealing with such fundamental principles of sight as position, experience, light, and imagination was prepared by Evans Ecke and Fanchon Gary, art instructors.

Community Chest College Drive Fails

The college's Community Chest quota of $518 still lacks $427, with only two days left in the campaign, according to Kevin Ryan, bookkeeper at the college bank.

The inevitable poor showing that the college will make in the campaign, will be due to the lack of volunteers rather than to the efforts of those who volunteered, Ryan said.

Winchell Approves L. A. Football Game As Runyon Charity

The Ram-Los Angeles City College football game, which will be held in Kezar Stadium on Friday, November 7, has been approved as a Damon Runyon memorial game by Walter Winchell and the Runyon committee in New York, according to a letter received by Max Call, student publicity chairman, last Monday.

Planned action of the publicity committee is now being thrown into high gear. All of the city's high schools have been informed and their cooperation in assuring support of this affair is promised.

Coeds are expected to display the college colors in dress or pom poms, and the men are to wear white shirts. Rooters cups will be the order of the day.

The Rally Committee is preparing the half-time activities with the cooperation of numerous campus organizations.

"Each student should attend and be responsible for the attendance of at least two other persons," Call said yesterday.

Hostess Club Invites Younger Set To Party

Delighting in a dulcet combination of ice cream and cake, 12 of the very young set will be guests at 1:30 p. m. today in Room 108 at a Hostess Club party sponsored by the home economics classes, Frances Mount, home economics adviser, said yesterday.

Decorations will be displayed for the occasion, Miss Mount said.

Sandys Warns That Increasing Student Vandalism May Cancel Football Game Scheduled For Tomorrow At San Mateo

Rally Commissioner Edwards Promises Spirited Entertainment At College Hour Session Today

Cancellation of tomorrow's San Mateo football game is currently threatened, because of inter-college vandalism, although the game was set to go on as of yesterday, Dean Edward E. Sandys declared in an interview that day.

Sandys warned that continuation of the game rests almost entirely with the behavior of students at both colleges.

Automatic forfeiture will result in the event that the game is called off by this college. The choice of dropping the game without penalty of any kind can be made by San Mateo, as it is their home game.

Meanwhile, today's rally goes on as scheduled, if there are no further disturbances such as this week's pregame rivalries.

Plans for the rally, at 10:40 a. m., in the college hour, call for a large cast of entertainers, including the A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Harold Cunningham; the college band, headed by Mike Cahn; and the possible appearance of the "Three Jays," according to Jim Edwards, rally commissioner here.

The college hour show will be held on the front lawn.

Band Makes Initial Appearance Tomorrow

Halftime ceremonies during tomorrow's football game at San Mateo will include performances by the college band, directed by Eugene Lunn, student drum major, when the band makes its initial appearance on the gridiron, Nick D'Augelli, student band manager, said early this week.

Choir Presents Program At Letterman Nov. 9

The first program the A Cappella Choir will put on for patients at Letterman Hospital is scheduled for Sunday, November 9, according to Harold Cunningham, director of the group, who has also made a date for the Men's Chorus to sing at the Richmond High School in a special double assembly, Tuesday, November 25.

Cunningham also issued the names of fall semester officers for the A Cappella group.

Pete Boghosln is manager of the choir, Elmer Dickey, assistant manager, and Jacqueline Deasy, secretary.

Faculty Member Says Students "Victorian"

"Surprising as it may seem, students of this college have the understanding concerning marriage that was prevalent during the Victorian period."

This is the conclusion of a detailed survey recently conducted by Adolf Stoll, instructor of Sociology 35.

Thorough discussion in this course of modern marriage relations can be gained by the individual enrolled in Sociology 35. Credit for this course is of university parallel standard.

Much Needed Gate Under Construction

A gate connecting the auditorium on the West Campus and Phelan Avenue is in the process of construction, according to Edward Sandys, dean of men.

The Department of Public Works, which is the construction company, claims the new gate should be finished some time next week.

Student Card Fee Demands Justification By Leaders

AT THE risk of biting the hand that feeds it this publication can no longer ignore growing discontent regarding the student card situation.

This paper is dependent, in addition to advertising, upon the sale of these cards for its existence. Yet, on the other hand, the staff has a deeper obligation: to present its readers' grievances in an impartial manner.

It is with this thought in mind that student opinion is mirrored here, and the most prevalent thought on the campus today is that the five dollar fee asked for a student card is no more than a poll tax, in light of the benefits derived.

On looking at the facts what more can it be called?

In the first place, because of a lack of stadium space, only three home games are played by the football team.

Because of a conference ruling the remaining six games, played elsewhere, are subject to admission charge in addition to a student card.

College and professional teams refused to honor this college's card at games played in Kezar and Berkeley.

In regard to other social events offered card holders: if the first student dance is any indication of things to come then drastic steps must be taken at once to justify the five dollar outlay for a card.

The dance was held in the Fairmont Hotel true, but in the basement of that hotel; a hot, stuffy room that could not possibly hold the throng present.

No entertainment was provided other than someone trying to keep things together at the microphone. The total evening's dancing lasted a mere three hours.

It is realized that the city's facilities for dances of this type are limited, and the social committee must do its best with those at hand.

This still does not alter the fact that the present social calendar is totally inadequate to compensate for the price of the cards.

All the arguments sum up to one glaring truth: for an investment of five dollars the card holder is not getting a full and complete return.

Students who now hold cards feel they are stuck with them.

There is serious talk among veterans who will soon get cards through the government that they will refuse to accept them until more benefits are presented to justify ownership of a student card.

Other and more varied types of entertainment must be provided immediately by student leaders now holding office if the above mentioned obstacles cannot be overcome.

Until this is done, and it is repeated again, the student of this college feels he has paid a poll tax for the privilege of taking part in activities and that, in light of the present outmoded social calendar, he stands to lose money on his five dollar investment.

Constant use of "City," in place of

THE BULL PEN

One out of nine students here wears false teeth, according to an informal poll. Some have only a cap or a single false tooth, while others sport a bridge or even a set of upper and lower plates.

Chief inconvenience in wearing uppers is that, after the first few months of wearing them, the gums start shrinking, thus causing the teeth to slip out, making the wearer look like Dracula.

Some people like to horse around with their false teeth.

We remember when Chuck Biess, champion football player here, who wears a bridge in place of upper front teeth, was drinking a beer in a local establishment (not during football season) when a character lurched up to him and stated, "I'm gonna knock your teeth out."

Bystanders crowded around.

Biess removed the bridge from his mouth, handed it to his antagonist, dryly said, "Here, I'll save you the trouble."

Wolves, Women And Whistles

By Ann Land

EVER since Adam took a bite out of a the gravenstein, women have been the innocent target of a lot of male propaganda. This hennery of male gossip has literally given the fair sex a persecution complex, and has certainly insulted its dignity.

The male blabbermouths about this college have done their share of squawking about the squaws, and though the campus cuties are "big enough" to take a certain amount of criticism without flinching, they believe that they ought to repay the boys for their constructive comments by scrutinizing the local lovers and thereby digging up some dirt of their own.

The following is an unbiased and unprejudiced report airing the views (some of which could stand it), of the college glamour girls on the respective opposite sex.

One of the liberal young women refused to take a stand on either side of this battle between the sexes, because she claimed to enjoy the friendship of both men and women, but she said that she must admit that a good many of the boys were in pretty bad shape.

"Just how do you feel about the mistreatment your sex is getting from the chowderheads around here?" A lassie lounging lazily on the lawn, was quizzed.

"Well really, I'm tired of being kicked around by a bunch of bullies, and whistled at by a hoard of wolves, but there isn't a thing I can do about it, is there?" she replied happily.

Next to be interviewed was Frenchie, a recent import from gay Paree, who charged, as she ruefully rubbed the bruises about her arms, that, "Zee Amerlean boys, zey are too rough"—something must be done or else she goes back to France.

Next to speak her mind was a robust, high-spirited sports-woman, who was accosted while playing rugby. In answer to our query, Miss Football of '38, advocated, in the light of the mutual misunderstanding between men and women, a call to arms.

"Whose?" she was questioned.

"Oh heavens," she answered, as she rolled her three eyes, "who cares, just as long as we all kiss and make-up."

The next female to discourse, tagged Dodo, wasn't taking the awful things the males said about her sex seriously.

"After all," she argued, "if the boys still whistle at us, they must approve."

Cynic Thinks That No One Uses Gl Cans

• Love That Card

Editor, The Guardsman:

It's about time that a loud blast was thrown in the direction of those "students" at S.F.C.C. who sit around and moan without the student body card which really entitles them to moan.

S.F.C.C. is a college operated on such a basis that no tuition is necessary—and that is good. The only cost involved in going to school is in buying hooks. Yet when the school tries to plan adequate social and athletic activities on the money collected from student body card sales it finds the events curtailed because there is not enough money.

There would be enough money if tuition were collected. Everyone groans that five skins is a lot of money. Yet for value returned, a student body card is worth one-hundred fold its cost. And still those characters who have no card sit and moan.

A Student Body Card Holder.

• Campus Character

Editor, The Guardsman:

Early in the morning, every morning, a cloaked hooded figure sneaks onto the campus carrying a heavy bag on his shoulder.

At regular timed intervals garbage falls through a hole in the bag to the ground eliciting a satisfying squish or a plump plop. Carefully seeing that the west campus receives more than its just share, this character rushes around chuckling madly.

In his wake trails debris; paper cups, napkins, orange peels, sandwich crusts, ice cream cones, match folders, and millions of cigarette butts.

This must be the way the campus gets so untidy. Ask any or all of the students and they will tell you that they use the garbage cans, all the time.

OH YEAH?

Joe.

News To Nobody

By Herbert Levy

FOOTBALL fever gripped the west campus early this week, when some nasty Bulldogs from San Mateo ventured onto olde Ramland with the express desire of creating a little havoc . . . seems they sprinkled some petrol on the Ramhead, and splashed some blue paint around the main building . . . however, the stalwarts living on the campus intercepted the marauding Mateans and drove them back amid wild cries. About the only harm done was to wake up the folks living in the Waldorf! . . . Which reminds us that when Friday, Nov. 7, creeps around, and the Rams face the Cubs from L. A. City College for the tenth annual "big game" in Kezar (we won last year, 21-6), the Angelenos, with an enrollment above 10,000 has promised a turnout of some 5,000 die-hards, which mean that every guy and Ramette plus the janitors will have to show to equal their rootin' section . . . however, the LACC'ers assured us they will leave behind their search lights, purple slacks, and polka dot sport coats!!!

In case you run into any gals who went here in '41 (and there are some) it's good to handle them with care . . . according to a clipping from the Examiner of that year, which was kicking around the office, it was that this college has the toughest women P.E. course of any college west of the Mississippi . . . probably preparing the gals for eventual dates!!

A cute little eager coed, Corrine Lambert, after viewing last Friday's rally, preluding the Marin grid tilt, wondered why there were so many characters hanging around the handstand, rather than sitting up on the lawn with the rest of the "cheering student body." . . . When this college was spread around Powell St. in the pre-forty days, everyone was moaning that there was a lack of spirit, because the college had no building . . . we've had a building for seven years, now look at the spirit. . . .

RAMblings . .

By Arnold Wechter

LAST Friday afternoon our hero, one Wes Campuss, had a bright idea to attend the Marin-San Francisco football game. He had noticed on his five buck student card that the contest was gratis (free that is).

At five bells Wes picked up his Long Skirted Susie and headed for the Golden Gate Bridge.

After filling up his gas tank with ethyl (24 cents a gallon), Wes hit the toll gate and was forced to shell out with a half a rock.

At the entrance to the Kentfield Mudhole, Wes was accosted by a Marin gatekeeper who said, "Fifty cents for you, Bub, and a buck for the chick."

This was Wes' big moment, he pulled out his red and white student body card (if gold is on the card, count yourself as a big shot) and chuckled, as he showed him the Red football player denoting the free game. The gatekeeper repeated the prices. Wes shelled out, mumbling under his breath.

Wes' wallet was given a rest to half-time of the game, when dear Wes' date, gave with the hungry look. This very important look set Henry down another greenback (term meaning one dollar bill).

At last the game was over, the lovable couple headed for Twin Peaks—to look at the lovely San Francisco skyline.

Now, dear readers, you may be wondering what is the moral of this story. It is that few things are free, even if you buy an Associated Student card.

Ram Soccermen Battle Stanford To 3-3 Tie

The college soccer team battled the not-so-fierce Indians to a score of 3 to 3, early last Saturday, on a bright dewy morning, at Stanford University soccer field.

The first goals for the Rams was scored by Donald Larroache, followed by Ernst Felhusch who came through for the next two points for their total of three.

If awards were given for outstanding playing, the local team would by far have taken them all, as the Rams outplayed, outsmarted, and definitely out-fought the hatchet-carrying Indians.

Again the college squad was outweighed man for man, but the Ram eleven took the role of a giant sweeping down on defenseless guards and keeping them busy by knocking at their goal time and time again.

Athletes To Sport Blocks Friday

In an effort to gain prominence as an active and worthy college organization, the Block S.F. Society inaugurated Block Day last Friday with the majority of the college's lettermen appearing about the campus clad in the traditional red and white S.F.J.C. block sweaters.

Block Day, which will be staged every Friday, is the one day in the week set aside by the society for its members to wear their blocks.

However, this event is not entirely personal effort on the part of the society, for the members feel that by prominently displaying the symbol of athletic ability, it may serve as a means of arousing more spirit which would prove beneficial to the college as a whole.

Women's Playday Schedule Listed

Target for attention is the important Women's Athletic Association playday and budget planned for this semester. Each WAA activity, for example, tennis, bowling, and swimming are allotted two days during the semester to invite or accept two invitations from other colleges.

All arrangements for these games must be made two weeks beforehand, and plans are being formulated to hold the various games according to the following schedule, Gloria Swicegood, WAA adviser, said yesterday:

November 3-6; November 10-13; November 17-20; November 24-26; December 1-8; December 8-10.

Allowed a sum total of $250, WAA has drawn up the following budget for the various sports:

Archery, $5; bowling, $5; dancing, $5; riding, $15; tennis, $5; volleyball, $5; badminton, $10.

Hilltop LOOKout

By Dayton Lawson

Begins to look as if this City College of ours is holding the monopoly on Class A football referees. Only a couple of weeks ago BILL FISCHER turned in a superb performance as arbiter of the U.S.F.-MISS. STATE clambake, and now, not to be outdone by his contemporary faculty member, SENOR LEE EISEN, the old California quarterback, comes up with another fine job as head man of the ST. MARY'S-NEVEDA tussle at KEZAR Sunday. No other college can make that statement. (Can they?)

Nw we come to the PLAYER OF THE WEEK Dept. . . . . It was beginning to look as though CHUCK RYAN might grace this department for an extended period, after copping the bunting two times hand-running, but after the Marin game last week, the title will have to change hands. The offensive play of JIM CARTER, Ram right halfback was the outstanding factor of this particular scuffle, and so to CARTER goes the BPS (blue plate special) for the week. Congrats, etc. . . . . .

Rams Face Winless Mateo

Winner Of Tomorrow's Tilt To Get Tom-Tom

Using the single-wing formation as a secret weapon of war, the San Mateo Junior College will make a desperate attempt to retrieve a Chinese "Tom Tom" that was taken as a token of victory by the Rams last year.

A late press communique issued this morning expressed the possibility of such a feat.

Hard-charging Bob Radcliffe and Ken Mack will alternate the spearhead attack to try to retake the "tom tom" that has become a traditional symbol of rivalry between the two colleges.

SF Tops San Mateo 5-3 In Grid Series

The local gladiators take the field tomorrow against the San Mateo Bulldogs prepared to protect their lead in the Bulldog-Ram series. In the Ram's 12 years as football power, the locals have met the San Mateans on the gridiron eight times, emerging victorious in five contests, with the visitors capturing the remaining three games.

History of the San Mateo-S.F.J.C. games:

Scores of the past encounters follow:

1936—Bulldogs 7-0 on a fluke fumble.
1937—Rams 13-12 in a hard fought battle.
1938—San Francisco again 6-0.
1939—Bulldogs spoil locals title hopes with 7-0 win.
1940—Rams get revenge 7-0.
1941—San Mateo in 12-7 thriller.
1942-1945—No games scheduled.
1946—Rams come back strong with two victories, 35-18 and 20-13.
1947—We like the Rams by a horn.

EX-COMMERCE HIGH STAR, James "Terror" Carter will be one of the leading backs in the Ram attack tomorrow against San Mateo.

Lack Of Gear Hampers Jr. Varsity Gridders

Shortage of equipment is currently causing unrest among members of Grover Klemmer's grid gang and the junior varsity.

Shocked observers, noting cross ventilation in the gridders' uniforms, affirmed the legitimacy of the complaint.

Sale of Associated Student cards is the basis of the trouble. The percentage the team now receives from gross sales, very low at present, is hardly enough to supply its members with adequate equipment, James Jensen, junior varsity coach, said.

Jensen added that the team needs financial support which can only be achieved by increased card sales.

Alta Calif. WAA Tea In Women's Gym Today

Women Athletic Association enthusiasts, which include officers and members, are urged to attend the Alta California conference tea given today in the women's gymnasium at 3 p.m.

The athletic association, sponsoring the affair, is playing hostess to eight of the local college WAA presidents, to decide on the future WAA athletic program.

On hand to greet the students and to serve the refreshments will be Hermenia Ross, WAA president, Leslie Adams, newly elected swimming officer, and Charlene Burgess, volleyball manager.

Cal Soccer Team Host To Locals Tomorrow

Now that the soccer squad has overcome the nervousness of their first league game against the Stanford Indians, they now are preparing for their tussle with the University of California. It will take place tomorrow, October 25, at the Lair of Golden Bear.

The squad this year is not to be taken lightly in the conference race for top honors. The men are more than filling the expectations of Coach Ralph Hillsman by the way they are fighting every minute while in action against their foes.

Toothless Bulldog Barks At S F Squad

By Sam Goldman

The San Francisco Rams realizing their potential strength as one of the finest grid contingents in the NCJCC maneuver onto the pigskin turf of the rival eleven, the San Mateo Bulldogs, in test No. 4 tomorrow at 2 p.m.

Marlins MacFadden and his coaching staff who have hawked the 1946 champs since their opening contest have definite plans to stop the Grover Klemmer eleven, even though the Mateans have yet to win a game in the three starts.

However, the windy campus coach has no intentions of letting the Bulldogs do any damage to his rambling Rams with such victories over Sacramento and Marin.

Blessed with two strong teams, Klemmer will open with his starting T eleven in tomorrow's fray consisting of ends Paul Hagen and Glenn Stern; Chuck Kelley and Paul Olivier at the tackle spots; George Maganaris, Ben Albrecht, guards; and center Ken Schuchard.

The center of the offensive attack will lie within the person of Bob Toquinto at quarterback; Ray Stewart, left half; John Rainey, right half; and in the fullback post, Howie Crouch.

MacFadden, tutor of the single wing plays will have as his kickoff team, Ruhe Leonelli and Bob Gardner, ends; Ted Hovig and Dave Kell, tackles; Bob Gill and Dick Slade, guards; and in the pivot spot will be Charles Welch.

Pigskin packers for the Mateans will be Nate Magnisi at quarter; Bill Freeman at right half and Boh Ratcliffe in the tailback position, with Doug Richardson in the fullback spot.

Lambs Face Menlo JV's In First Show Today

Jim Jensen takes his San Francisco Junior Varsity players to Menlo this afternoon in their first football outing of the year.

After having their opening contest with Vallejo postponed because of rain, the Lambs are in perfect shape to make a strong showing against the Menlo Babes.

Although Jensen has not officially announced his starting group for today's game, he plans to make good use in such gridders as ends Ed Varvello, Hal Stone; quarterbacks Lou Pisani and Jim Correa; and halfbacks Jim Gilford and Bruce MacKinnon.

Legion Post Offers Loans To Veterans

Loans to veterans are now available through the courtesy of the Parkside Post of the American Legion, William J. Armstrong, first vice commander announced today.

Armstrong stated that the post has deposited $150 with the Associated Students to be used for short term loans to veterans attending the college. Loans will be made on the approval of Edward E. Sandys, dean of men, and secured by the veteran's personal note.

The loan service is part of the Legion's policy of aiding veterans as much as possible, according to Armstrong, who extended an invitation to all ex-servicemen at the college to attend meetings of the post on the second and fourth Monday nights of each month at 1641 Taraval Street.

Announcing that his post will continue to follow the general Legion policy of veteran aid, Armstrong concluded with the announcement of a child welfare program by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Parkside Post. This program is intended to help married veterans.

Radio Scripts Needed For Production Class

Radio production class opportunity to perform over station KQW is threatened with cancellation unless more scripts are received soon, Tanios Habeeb, president of Mikes and Men, declared yesterday.

Two scripts, Joaquin Murietta, written by Stan Dorfer and Keep 'Er At 100, by Habeeb, have been accepted, and casts are in rehearsal.

All material must deal with little known facts and incidents about California or San Francisco and may be written in story or dialogue form.

Scripts can be left in Room 5, Building 19, or with Habeeb in the Guardsman office.

Volunteer Squad Attacks Campus Mess

RESPONDING TO THE PLEA for a campus clean-up made by Trev Burrow, Guardsman Editor, during last Friday's rally, the students pictured above assembled on the campus Sunday, October 19, armed themselves with brooms and brushes, and feverishly worked to make the campus a clean campus. Yes, the pictured pile of discarded objects is real.

West Campus Rat Nest If Not Clean: Sandys

An invasion of rats, if the west campus isn't cleared soon, was predicted by Edward E. Sandys, dean of men, to those in attendance at the president's meeting on Thursday, October 16.

Numerous solutions to the problem were offered by the group which pledged complete cooperation of organizations represented in a clean up program, hoping that all students will help.

Campus Scrubbed By Groups Working On Own Free Time

A broom and brush brigade invaded the campus on Sunday, October 19, under the leadership of members of the Beta Tau fraternity.

In addition to fraternity members present, students from other groups answered the call for cleanliness presented at last Friday's rally.

Among those present were Chuck Nix, Paul Yde, Dave Perrine, Frank Cappel, Bob Reilly, Ted Nobel, Bill Riley, George de Urioste, Dick Willet, Colin Tooley, Frank Nelson, Jack Mohr, Frank Grant, and Jim Edwards from Beta Tau.

Others present were Warren Maiveaux, AVC; Jim Davis and Andy Ferrari, Photographic Society; Dan Martin, W. L. Cleary, and Jean Blagi, independents; and Bea Groger, Alpha Theta Epsilon.

Thanks to all participants for a job well done was given by Associated Student President Frank Nelson, who expressed the wish that all students would cooperate in keeping the campus clean.

Midterm Week Revives Memories Of Incredible Story Of Fosdick Vitalis

By Mel Hansen

On the eve of the inevitable examinations, jokingly referred to by many as mid-terms, the strange case of the basic skills class of '35 is brought to mind.

This case has been in the unsolved files since that time, and it defies detection from even the most astute student of modern criminology.

It seems at the time of the fall mid-terms of this long gone era the students of this basic skills class were faced with the possibility of a very difficult exam. Struck with the thought of taking the course over next semester the students massed together and decided to take steps to remedy the situation.

They appointed as ring leader a fellow by the name of Fosdik Vitalis and with this selection the wheels of progress were set into motion.

Fosdik and his cohorts studied and planned and planned and studied. Finally came the dawn of the big day. The class met and took the test and passed. Not one or two of them passed with flying colors but the entire group's papers came back marked 100 per cent.

Many theories have been expounded as to how this very pleasant feat was accomplished, a few of which follow.

Some persons claim that Fosdik hired a Ph. D. in English to be present on the appointed day. Once there they hid him in the pencil sharpener. The students would then tramp to the sharpener and whisper queries as they placed a point on their writing tool.

This seemed logical except, for the fact that it is hard to see how they heard the answer through the grinding of wood.

Others say that Vitalis hired "Eagle Eye Louie" to place a triple whammy on the instructor. Under the effects of this terrible phenomenon the Prof wrote the answers on the board instead of the questions.

The plot was daring, and well planned, and to this day remains a mystery.

When last interviewed, Vitalis had this to say, "I cannot reveal the way in which we pulled off the job, but there is one train of thought that I can quell for all time, we didn't do it by studying."

Denman Awards Made; Announcement Coming

Names of the two women of the college chosen as winners in the Denman Scholarship competition will be announced publicly as soon as the judging committee has time to notify the women, President A. J. Cloud said last Tuesday.

Denman Scholarships awarded at this college were started by Judge William Denman and Mrs. Marv Cheatham in memory of their father, James Denman; former superintendent of schools and later Board of Education president.

Employers Tighten Up On Job Demands

With the present labor market being flooded, employers have seen fit to raise the standards of work.

Regardless of the type of job offered, most employers are requesting several candidates for each job. So stated the latest official bulletin of the college placement office.

A gradual restriction is also to be noted in the labor market this year, particularly in part-time employment. Ninety-five per cent of all jobs offered require a skill of some kind.

As educational institutions are rated by employers by the type of help referred to them from these institutions, it is necessary for the placement and vocational counselors to send competent candidates to these employers.

Enrollment Deadline Announced By NROTC

All male students who intend to enroll in the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps must have their applications in by Monday, November 10, according to Walter McCloud, director of the Veteran's Affairs Office. The mailing address for the applications is College Entrance Examining Board, PO Box 709, Princeton, New Jersey.

Free Dance Offered Tonight By Masonic

The first free sport dance of the semester will get underway tonight at 9 p. m., in the student lounge, sponsored by the Masonic Club.

Music for dancing from 9 to 12 will be furnished by records.

All students are invited to attend.

Drama Class At Work On Popular Melodrama

A popular melodrama has been tentatively scheduled for spring semester production, the Sisler-Ellison faculty team in charge of dramatic sequences, announced yesterday.

The name of the play has not as yet been revealed.

Playreadings will continue as a medium in the search for talent.

Fire College Opens With City Welcome

Marking a milestone in fire fighting history, inauguration ceremonies for the San Francisco Fire Department Fire College were held Monday, October 20, in Building 4, west campus.

Amid bouquets of flowers with ribbons proclaiming "good luck and success," officials of the San Francisco Fire Department and other societies interested in fire prevention spoke highly of the new college.

Speeches praising both the past and future of the fire department were made before the initial class of the fire college, by James J. Sullivan, president of the Board of Fire Commissioners, John F. Fixla, fire commissioner, Martin J. Kearns, acting chief, Jesse H. McLendon, battalion chief, and other chief officers of the San Francisco Fire Department;

Thomas Ward, superintendent of fire training, Bureau of Industrial Education, State of California, Robert St. Claire, secretary of the Fire Safety Committee of the Senior Chamber of Commerce, Robert Shaffer and Laurant Lamanet, Phoenix Society, J. Paul Mohr, college vice-president, Oscar Anderson, college controller, Michael Lo Presti, college faculty member, and the teaching staff of the fire college.

Arthur McIntyre, hoseman and student at the fire college, speaking for his fellow classmates, presented their views about the future of the San Francisco Fire Department and the fire college.

First Three Graders Rates Open In Guard

There are now 50 to 75 rates open in the first three pay grades of the 271 AAA Automatic Weapon Battalion, of which the "college's own" Battery A is a component, Staff Sergeant William Welch has announced. Welch also revealed that new uniforms, of the Eisenhower jacket type, have been shipped and are enroute to the battalion.

"Battery C has been newly activated and is now open to recruits," Welch said. "ID cards are being issued this week to the battalion's original personnel. Recruits will receive cards upon enlistment, and veterans will also be issued Victory Medals," Welch said.

The Guard's recruiting drive at the college got under way last Tuesday, according to Welch, and the number of early recruits indicated that the campaign would be successful.

Music Society Meets To Plan Talent Show

At the initiation of new Lambda Alpha members last Sunday, plans were made for a talent show to be presented after Christmas by members of the society, most of whom are already playing professionally in their particular fields.

The initiation took place at the home of Gertrude Norgard, music instructor and society adviser.

Some graduates of last spring who were also present at the gathering were Roy Abad, Peggy Gay, Jane Swenson, and Michael Coco.

Lapham Speaks Here Today

Mayor To Discuss His Executive Term For Calif. Women Voters League Class

Mayor Roger D. Lapham will speak to students at the college today pertaining to his four years as San Francisco's mayor, John Selig, Political Science instructor, announced yesterday.

Lapham's talk, sponsored as a public service by the college through the San Francisco Center of the California League of Women Voters, will be given at two o'clock this afternoon in the study lounge (old cafeteria) of the main campus building.

Although the mayor's talk will primarily be given for students of Political Science 36, Selig stressed the fact that all students and faculty members are invited, and that the Mayor will invite questions.

Lapham, New York born and a Harvard graduate, was, before his election to the office of mayor in 1943, chairman of the board of directors of the Hawaiian Steamship Company and served for 27 months as an industry member of the National Defense Mediation Board.

The Spectator

George Lajeunesse

AT THE foot of the RAM (delayed): "This mighty sliver of timber, symbol of undying collegiate spirit today remains clean, white, and unsullied at the hands of invading hordes from the Confederate peninsula to the south."—Communique.

Acting as sort of an unofficial war corresondent during last week's detail would require the touch of a Comedy of Errors on the west campus, we are, at the moment, trying to get the straight story for our readers.

To describe the "battle" in its full detail would require the touch of a couple of Olsen and Johnson script writers, it reached that stage of confusion.

STRATEGY A BIT LOOSE

If some foreign power had sent neutral military observers to watch the tactics, then a full-scale invasion of our coastline can be expected at any moment.

In other words the strategy of our forces was a bit willy-nilly, to put it mildly. In fact, it set back military science some three thousand years.

The incident that perpetrated the outbreak of war occurred on a Sunday night when an exuberant young student of about 19 summers took it upon himself to set up a one-man guard at the Ram.

HERO ROUTS FOE

Prowling beneath the towering figure at the stroke of midnight in a dense fog. Our Hero observed a long, black sedan easing through the west campus gate, heading for the stalwart mascot and bent upon destruction.

The youthful sentry, summoning all his military training into being, approached the slowing sedan and very subtly remarked: "Ah, Hah!, you guys must be from ——— College!"

Out of the clammy blackness came a poorly aimed stream of blue paint that caught Our Hero full in the lap, sending him in reeling retreat to summon aid. The black sedan disappeared into the void whence it came.

RETALLIATION RAID

"Blue Boy must be avenged!" became the ringing battle cry, and a flying squad of commandos sped southward, armed to the hilt with red confetti, to spray upon enemy ground.

The ill-fated expedition came back suffering four casualties, who were intercepted by "civil troops" and detained for interrogation.

Full scale warfare now broke out. "Blue Boy's" forces were rallied into a last ditch defense of the Ram rampart guarding the campus gate.

SIEGE GUN IN PLACE

An 88 millimeter fire hose was pressed into service as long range artillery to repulse the expected foe.

College Hour Out Because Of Midterms

That classes may run the whole period while mid-terms are being given, there will be no college hour Friday, October 31, Jack Brady, assistant dean of men, announced yesterday.

Friday, November 7, is the date of the next college hour. The college hour schedule released by Dean Brady's office has a rally scheduled for that period, which will be followed that afternoon by the game with Los Angeles City College at Kezar Stadium.

Music Built Around Shakespearean Plays

The Listening Hour for today and Thursday, October 30, offers a program of music built around Shakespearean plays according, to Gertrude Norgard, music director.

On the scheduled list are Mendelssohn's Midsummer Night's Dream, Tschaikowsky's Romeo and Juliet Overture, and selections from Otello by Verdi.

Campus Land Allotted To Farming Citizens

Complying with the government's call for more production of food, this college will continue to allot a section of its campus near the men's gymnasium to private citizens for cultivation, according to Harry Nelson, Horticulture department head.

27 Women Voters Study Government

Twenty-seven members of the San Francisco League of Women Voters have gone back to school again this fall under the tutelage of John Selig, political science instructor here.

The course, which is offered by this college, includes an intensive study of municipal government and administration, with especial emphasis upon San Francisco.

The League committee which arranged the course includes Mrs. Harold Hacke, president, Mrs. Richard Cahn, charter study chairman, and Mrs. Stanley Newman.

Selig was selected as instructor because he has published several articles on San Francisco government and administration in National Municipal Review, American Political Science Review and Western City.

Playreaders Ready To Appear In Melodrama

Continuing the current series of play readings, a student group under the direction of Paul Ellison, English instructor, is at present planning a three act melodrama. The playreading is scheduled to take place on Wednesday, November 5, in Room 28.

In addition to the entertainment provided, drama students who are not at present cast in regular productions will receive an opportunity to appear before a student audience.

Huge Demand Reopens Symphony Ticket Sale

Responding to the huge demand for tickets for the 1947-48 San Francisco Symphony season, Mike Cahn, Symphony Forum adviser, announced yesterday that more tickets have been obtained and will be on sale at the college bank, Room 188, until November 1.

The season tickets, available to students and faculty members alike, are for the 17 concerts, the first scheduled Thursday evening, November 13, at the War Memorial Opera House.

Classes Excused For LA Game Ticketholders

Students who have tickets to the Los Angeles City College Ram football game will be excused from all classes after 2 p. m., Friday, November 7, Dean Jack Brady announced late last week.

In anticipation of a large turnout, students are expected to purchase the tickets they desire as early as possible. Sales on the campus and down town will start this week.

Admission prices, inasmuch as this is a charity game, will be as follows: General admission $1.00. Student (high school and college) 50c.

Council Approves Appointments

Seven appointments, including Associated Women Student and Associated Men Student offices, and that of award commissioner, were approved by the Student Council at the meeting of Thursday, October 23.

AWS officers appointed were Carol Shute, vice-president; Rita Buscaglia, corresponding secretary, with Annette Lows, receiving the position of recording secretary.

Approved as AMS officers were Bob Reilly, vice-president and Bob Selby, secretary.

Bill Barr, recommended for the office of award commissioner by Frank Nelson, Associated Student president, was also approved by the council.

Chance At KQW Fame Is Given Script Writers

Amateur writers at this college are urged to try their skill at radio script writing for the coming broadcast over KQW, Tanios Habeeb, president of Mikes and Men, declared yesterday.

"Writers of accepted material will be rewarded with the recognition and prestige of having their work presented to the public," Habeeb added.

Manuscripts need not be written in radio form, but must pertain to unusual or little known facts about California or San Francisco.

Student Veterans To Receive Refund On Card Purchase

Announcing a $5.00 refund to all veterans who have purchased associated student cards, Oscar Anderson, controller, said today that all those students who are directly concerned should report to Building 3 to obtain a duplicate of purchase.

Those veterans who have not made previous purchases should also report to Building 3 for the issuance of their cards.

"The refunds may not be made immediately, but the government has issued $7,400 for that purchase," Andernson said, "and a notice will be inserted in The Guardsman in advance of any action. If the refunds are not made until the end of the semester, the money will be mailed."

Scalpel Hallowe'en Jig Scheduled For Friday

Music will be furnished by Howard Frederic and his orchestra. Admission will be 50 cents and costumes will be optional.

City Store Buyers To Continue College Talks

Buyers from San Francisco stores have been speaking before the college merchandising classes on the present features of styling and selling, Virginia Gohn, merchandising instructor, disclosed.

Artists Plan Travels

Richard Allman, art instructor, has announced that plans are being made for field trips to be held twice weekly. These excursions will include visits to various art exhibits throughout the city and will be of interest to those art students of the college.

Engineering Society Elects Charles Zell As President

The college Engineering Society officially began its semester activities last Monday night "to promote good-fellowship among students" pursuing similar courses, James Schon and Frank Fermer, engineering instructors and sponsors of the new organization, announced yesterday.

Charles Zell was elected president, Dave Walker vice-president, and Stanley C. Taylor secretary-treasurer.

The next meeting will be held Monday, November 10, in Room 136 at 7:15 p. m. A representative of the Pacific Gas & Electric Co., will give a lecture. Everyone interested is invited to attend.

Date Cancellations Must Be Reported

All campus organizations are urged to notify Dean Margaret Dougherty or Jo Ellen Cain, Associated Student vice-president, immediately in Building 2, west campus, if they wish to change or cancel any events scheduled on the social calendar, in order that other organizations may take their place.

Result Of Vandal Tactics May Be Drastic Next Time

OVERLY exuberant students of this and a neighboring college have once again "razed" school spirits at both institutions by committing acts of depredation on one another's campus.

The main building of this college has been smeared with paint which is difficult or impossible to remove because of the porous nature of the stone.

In return, certain persons, acting of course only in the best interests of this college, went to a high school football field (under the impression that it belonged to the rival college) and burned symbols on a portion of that field. Some who were a little more cautious merely sprinkled the campus of the enemy college with confetti and other paper, thereby providing them with a replica of our west campus before "cleanup day."

Thus far, irreparable or disastrous damage has not been done.

Almost inevitably, however, youthful exuberance will drive some "spirited" infantile too far, and result in real and serious consequences. Such a student might even burn property more expensive to restore than grass.

Before anything of that kind happens, we believe that the Student Council should recommend expulsion of any student caught committing a destructful act on this or another campus.

Augmenting student action, the administration should immediately request through our membership in the athletic association that competitive events be arbitrarily called off if property or personal damage results from the raids on affiliated colleges.

Continue The Campaign

THE CLEAN UP campaign around the campus finally got under way one week ago, when a group of male students volunteered for the job.

Because of their industrious work, the college grounds, especially the west campus, now resemble a college rather than a garbage dump.

Merely because the campus was cleaned up for one day does not mean that now, everyone can go about casually dropping papers and other refuse about the area.

The easiest way to keep the place free from papers is to put refuse in the many garbage cans around the west campus.

Let's try to keep the college clean.

First Nighter

By Thermon Jones

CALL Me Mister, the cry of the returning veteran, is the name of the bright musical laugh fest now at the Curran Theater.

Dealing with just about every conceivable angle in the plight of the poor GI, the show offers an evening of enjoyment.

Even though the humor has been rendered untimely by hard use for a couple of postwar years, the jokes, songs, and dances are executed to such a degree that the familiarity hardly dulls the show.

Built in the style of a peppy variety show, each act and scene follows in rapid succession, so that the audience hardly has time to catch its breath. The two and a half hour performance changes GI Joe from soldier to apartment hunter and points out all the little difficulties on either side of the gap with mirthmaking skits and good specialties.

Using slapstick comedy, occasionally corny, Call Me Mister satirizes the GI in situations such as the leisure life of the air corps kings, inexperienced army barbers, and southern senators trying to get votes.

In contrast to the slapstick comedy are the dances and songs, which quiet the madcap antics of the comedians for the few minutes they are on.

The songs, Going Home Train and The Face on a Shiny New Dime, are admirably sung by William Warfield, Negro baritone.

The success in popular recording and radio of the songs South America Take It Away and Surplus Blues, fizzles the songs in the show.

Holding the show together in a kind of crazy unity is a nice little love story about a sailor and a girl on opposite sides of the world. In four acts spread through the show they get together, settle down at home, and start a family in time for the final curtain.

The Bull Pen

By Bill Riley

ONE of the first things an embryonic newspaperman learns is that the copy he prepares must always be in good taste. It seems, however, that the script writers for radio comedians have never heard of the substance called "good taste."

When a certain, very well known comedian referred to his mother as being employed as a bouncer in a sawdust puh it may be wondered just how the kindly lady weathered the insult. A joke's a joke but when it publicly belittles a person's mother it is going just a trifle too far.

Hungry-for-a-laugh comedians have a great habit of tearing government agencies and employees. Some of them could use a little constructive dissection, but to abuse them just because there is a possibility of laugh material seems a shoddy trick. As they probably know there is always Joe Miller's tome.

A Saga Of Woof Woof College

By Ed Roper

SHOWING a greater thirst for knowledge than a large number of students at this college are the herds of four-footed individuals with wet noses who have enrolled in the fall semester of Woof Woof J. C.

Any day, especially around the noon hour, one may see the multitudes of dogs enrolling in the college and setting about their studies with a fervor that is all too seldom seen within the walls of higher learning.

At Woof Woof, as in other institutions of higher endeavor, many dogs may be noticed curled up in some classroom corner sleeping off a long night of cat chasing.

Down on the east campus there is a daily line-up waiting to run rabbits and bark at the moon (which has set many hours before). Occasionally a few of this latter group will chase a rabbit around the administration offices and suddenly drop on their haunches and set up a monotonous howling serving no other constructive purpose than to abate their desire to listen to the sound of their own voice.

Amongst the more active arf-arf dogs, there is a group that runs nightly trips of an extracurricular nature down to Bow Wow U. on the peninsula. While down at Bow Wow it seems some of the pups are inclined to sniff around the wrong fire hydrants which aggravates the local dogcatchers, who have been known to clamp a few of them in the local Dog Pokey until such time as their masters put up the two rubles for lack of license.

Back once more on the home campus we find a group of Dobermans and Russian Wolf Hounds sunning themselves in front of Ye Red Heart Sweet Shoppe cornering a stray mongrel frosh who, at the "invitation" of the pedigrees, is lamenting his sad plight of being a frosh to all and sundry.

This sort of thing can be found any day in or about the shoppe, but reaches a forte during "Damnation Month," a biennial event of some questionable origin.

Here may be found the arf-arf boys of peninsular fame and their more docile spouses.

One of these spouses, Queenie, of the Wolf Hound league, was recently by popular assent chosen as "The Sweetheart of Pi Woof Chi."

Queenie slips her dainty, manicured paw into the brawny, massive hoof of Rex, the Campus Hero, and announces that she is ready to pass the traditional box of Friskies. Saying this she demurely chases Rex up the hill and over the horizon.

Editor, The Guardsman:

As a member of the student body, I feel I can moan along with the rest of the moaners.

In regard to the recent letter in the paper: "Don't you know that the school is being run by a little clique? Or don't you care?" I would like to add my two cents worth.

First of all, let me explain, as far as JC is concerned, I like it very much. But, add about 65 per cent of the populace, and you can have it. I've heard many students express their dislike for the so-called clique. Now, don't blow off the steam yet. You say, "Why don't these students get in and do something about it?" I'll tell you why! The minute a group of students try to do something or add what they think, they're shut-up like clams. According to the clique they're just Joe Common.

You walk down the steps on your way to the west campus. Will they speak? No, we haven't been properly introduced!!

Give them the dope, ask for cooperation; try to be a friend to strangers; and for goodness sake keep a smile on your face and your nose to the grindstone.

News To Nobody

RETALIATING for a raid on this campus by the vanquished Mateans, a group of raring Rams, 24 in all, hit the Bulldog area last week in pre-game festivities . . . seems, however, that four S.F. "charges" ended up in the San Mateo County gaol. Besides spreading red and white paper and streamers over the peninsula college, the S.F.'ers burned huge initials of this college in the middle of the football field. Only trouble was, they burned the wrong field . . . the judge down there fined our lads $100 to replace the scorched turf, but as it comes out, Elmer Robinson's fund took care of the assessment!!

As a unique twist, a couple of rollicking Guardsman writers, testing the ability of the students guarding the campus against the El Greco tendencies of San Mateo, roared into the west campus with all appearances of invaders and managed to keep the defenders busy for an hour (with the aid of a couple of patrol cars) . . . after the happy effort were off, they were finally apprehended . . . caught hiding behind a typewriter!!!

As a gab fest of the 3 politicos running for mayor early last week, which drew a crowd of 1,000 students in the auditorium, seems Supt. Herbert C. Clish was the smoothest one there . . . as the moderator, during his opening address, he hesitated when referring to the college, then called it the CITY COLLEGE, needless to say the auditorium was jumping with screams and applause!! Havenner's proxy man received a goodly round of applause, when he claimed Francky was in favor of a 4 year city college!! The friendly Yellow Cab (crash into you and be friendly about it) over in Oakland played it angelic and returned an Associated Stud. card to scholar Joe Debro, after the hack driver found it on the back seat . . . you mean students can afford to ride in cabs?

Intra Basketball Tourney Featured By Buc; Pirate Opening Victories

Closely fought games featured the opening round of intramural basketball play as four of six scheduled games were played.

The only blots on the record were two defaults, one in the Pacific Coast League where the Jefferson A.C. won over Building 7, and one in the American League where Tau Chi Sigma lost to Psi Gamma Iota.

Hal Flinn tallied 14 points as the Pirates defeated the Oaks, 34-24, in a National League tilt. The other NL tilt found the Rum Dum five hanging a 28-16 loss on the Tri E quintet.

The Buccaneers, paced by Dave Rapken's 15 points, defeated the Jr. Bittners, 30-21, in the only AL game played.

In a Bush League tilt, the Happy Go Lucky cagers knocked the Hotel and Restaurant Division five, 45-28.

The men to see about tickets for the game are Mark Bel and Cliff Porter. Both are representatives from Moore's and have given their time to come to the college to sell tickets on the campus.

LACC Game Tickets Go On Sale At Big Stores

Tickets for the charity football game that will be played on Friday, November 7, at Kezar Stadium between the college eleven and the Los Angeles City College eleven will be distributed by two well known San Francisco clothiers, Roos Bros. and Moore's. All the receipts from the game will go to the Damon Runyan Memorial Fund.

The men to see about tickets for the game are Mark Bel and Cliff Porter. Both are representatives from Moore's and have given their time to come to the college to sell tickets on the campus.

Bahr Leads SF Society In Rebirth Program

Proving that they are ready to back their promise of bigger and better things, Block S.F. President Bill Bahr announced that, as of last Wednesday, the society is sponsoring the big bonfire rally scheduled for Thursday evening, November 6, on the campus grounds.

Bahr has a committee recruiting local talent for the show and predicts that this event should be one of the college's most impressive pre-game rallies.

As the Los Angeles football game takes the spotlight as the season's big game, the society hopes to incite enough spirit in the Associated Students to insure a large crowd at the game the following afternoon.

Other plans for the society will include the dance to be held Friday, November 21, and cooperation with the athletic department in the AMS boxing tournament.

Hillsman Takes Soccer Team Against Aggies

Soccer at the college will be right in the middle of its conference schedule this Saturday, November 1, when the squad will take to the field against the California Aggies at the home field.

Now that the soccer team has had a chance to show what it can do, it is concentrating on perfection.

A few of the men who have improved since the beginning of the season and have shown it in the past games are A: Pedrin, LE; R. Clarke, LG; Eltringham, LH; and D. Larroache, LW.

WAA To Receive Advice From Bowling Champ

Professional bowling advice is available from Helene Wooster, national bowling champion, every Monday at 3 p.m. in the Sports Center at 3333 Mission Street, Hermenia Ross, Women's Athletic Association president, said yesterday.

Miss Wooster is presently instructing a group of students taking part in WAA's coeducational program in the art of delivering the ball. Still open for membership, the bowling club has not yet elected officers.

Hilltop LOOKout

By Dayton Lawson

Highlights of the Marin-Ram tilt at Kentfield: It means our doughty laddies were quartered in the women's gymnasium, which is sometimes used as a dressing room for the visiting firemen. There they were equipped with all the comforts of home, not the least of which was a private shower for each player, with curtains and all the trimmings. The RAMblers were grateful to the extent of leaving little notes in the lockers for the gals conveying their appreciation for such aristocratic treatment, and hoping to repay in kind sometime in the near future. We like to believe that they were notes of thanks at any rate, in spite of that rad who insists that they were nothing but telephone numbers. . . . .

Mike O'Neil and Rod Cameron, two of the big guns in the Ram casaba attack of last season, are now 'zero-ing' on the Berkeley campus. The Word has it that Mike is practically cinched for a berth on the first wave, with Rod a skip and a throw behind . . . . (File under Be Kind to Klemmer Dept.)

Kenny White, flashy little climax-runner of last year's pennant-winning swineskinners, expects to take the cast off his ailing gam in about a week and a half. . . . . And some boxing tidbits to round out this classic: Roy Diederichson, idea man deluxe, makes it known that when the new boxing equipment arrives, the handball court in back of the men's gym will thereupon be converted to a training room. . . . . And another local laddie making good: Stan Belcher of the '46 squad, now giving his all for close to 11 for Ed McKeever's rejuvenated Dons.

Spiritless Rams Bootleg In Win Over Slugging Rivals

Gridiron Fest Highlighted By Dreamy NCJCC Officiating At Burlingame

Burlingame Field, San Mateo, Calif., Oct. 25—Shedding forth one of the most disgusting and poorest football exhibitions ever given by a San Francisco eleven, the Rams delivered the Tom-Tom trophy back to the college grounds with a 7-6 score over a fist throwing San Mateo team here today.

Whatever caused the misdoings of football rules still remains unanswered, however, the three NCJCC officials in today's fray judged one of the poorest jobs that has ever been the misfortune for the patrons of this league to witness. Continually letting the players from both groups get out of control, lack of noticing rule infractions, and just plain negligence on their part added and fostered to the miscrable grid showing.

Yet, there was a football contest; that must not be forgotten.

Threatened every period by a rivalry conscious eleven, the Rams, thanks to such outstanding defensive players as Ken Schuchard, Paul Olivier, Tom Childs, George Managaris, Jack Marcus, Glenn Stern, and Bill Koenig, delayed five San Mateo attempts.

As if the "old last minute" urge serum were injected in them, the Klemmer gridders suddenly came to life late in the final stanza. Under the perfect leadership of quarterback Jim Greene the city eleven marched 90 yards into the end zone for the T.D.

The six pointer came when with first down on the enemy 15, boss Greene executed a perfect hidden ball "bootleg" play around his own left end for the score. The all important conversion came from the toe of Paul Hagan, with Greene doing the holding.

Immediately upon the receipt of the San Francisco touchdown kickoff, Bob Ratcliffe and Alden Chaney took the Bulldog eleven 80 yards in 10 plays via some day-dreaming officiating for the score. Chaney's attempted extra point was blocked by Greene, Childs, and Fred Loskutoff.

BUCK SHAW has Bruno Banducchi, but don't feel sorry for Coach Grover Klemmer. He too has an all conference guard in George Magenaris, who started at a 160 pound halfback at George Washington High School. He now weighs 195, and he uses every pound of it.

RAMblings . .

By Larry Baldocchi

JUST to bring back a few memories to the alumni and collegains of "city" college, this sports follower now presents a short resume of the Ram's first eleven.

When the college was first opened in 1935, the first Ram eleven was organized under the guidance of the late Russ Sweet. Sweet, a star athlete in Montana and for the Olympic Club of San Francisco, was head man at Menlo Junior College prior to his task at the Ram campus.

The turnout for the sport that year, that greeted Sweet and his assistants, Louis Conlan, Jack Gaddy, Lee Eisan, and Tom Wilson, included the future starting team for that season:

Perdrin and Lee, ends; Kurtz, Brickley, tackles; Clarke and Telesmanic, guards; McHugh, center; Olbeg, quarterback; Eltringham, lefthalf; Clarke, righthalf; and Cassino, fullback.

Even though the youngsters of the conference that year only won two games, tied one and lost six battles in nine performances, they did gain themselves the reputation as one of the teams to be feared and respected among their fellow colleges.

Varsity Basketball Starts November 10

Local basketball mentor Ralph Hillsman has scheduled the first cage practice of the 1947 season for 5:30 p.m. on November 10.

Pre-season practice is tentatively scheduled to be held on three afternoons and two nights each week until December.

Among the veterans expected to return to the courts this season are Larry Baldocchi, Bob Tomlinson, A. Bueclarelli, Neil Turner, Bill Bahr, Phil Burroughs and Ray Squerl. However, Burroughs is the only first-stringer among those mentioned.

The first practice tilt for the squad will be played here against the California Frosh on December 5.

Hillsman will take his team to Modesto to compete in the annual Modesto Tournament, which will be held January 7-10, in an effort to retain the championship which they won last year.

The first conference game is with Marin on January 14.

Tigers Await Rams For Saturday Battle

Stockton's Baxter Stadium will be the setting for Coach Grover Klemmer's fifth production of his "T" (for tremendous) play; as the San Francisco Rams perform before the Stockton Tigers at 8 p.m. Saturday evening.

With his players well accustomed to the call of the "open road" the Rams' producer of the strongest eleven in the "A" division will have all the gridders in proper uniform and condition to give an outstanding performance at the expense of the Stockton hosts.

Headliners for the four act Ram presentation will be quarterbacks Bob Toquinto and his standby Jim Greene. Able assistance during the evening's show will come from San Francisco right halfs John Rainey, James Carson; while plunging fullbacks Howie Stewart, Ken Foehr, and Doug Wilter, and Don Morrison; left halfs Ray Crouch, Charles Ryan, and Kermit Kyle will pick up the extra lines for the visitors.

However, the Stockton Tigers under the guidance of Gene Stagnare will try to stop the city men with a pair of passing backs in Veto Ramirez and Bob Leighton. To receive the pigskin from their aerial artists will be two big ends, Bob Moser and Dick Gaedtke.

For comparison of season records, the valley inhabitors have a .500 record with wins from Marin and San Mateo and two losses from Salinas and Modesto.

Meanwhile the porkhide city slickers hold the top post with three victories over San Mateo, Sacramento, and Marin, only one defeat, that by the Vallejo Redskins.

Lambs Lose To Menlo, Meet San Mateo Today

Having dropped their first game last Friday to the Menlo Junior College Oaks (junior varsity) 7-14, Jim Jensen's Lambs will try to get into a win column today by defeating an invading San Mateo junior varsity squad on the gridiron.

The game will be played at the Ram practice field this afternoon and will start at 3:30 p.m.

Only casualty Friday was suffered by Jack Orr, when, relaxing with the team at the Menlo pool after the game, he dived into the shallow end of the pool and suffered a head bruise.

Co-educational Party To Be Held By Women

A Hallowe'en get-together is in the offing today during the hours of 1 to 4 p.m. at the women's gymnasium.

Everyone is invited, including ghosts, witches, and sports writers, Gloria Swicegood, Women's Athletic Association adviser, said yesterday.

WAA members hope that there will be a large turnout of students to participate in the various games, and to partake of the plentiful refreshments.

Clish Is Moderator At Vets Forum For Mayoral Candidates

San Francisco's candidates for mayor presented some of their political views to 700 students of this college on Monday, October 20. The program was arranged by the college chapter of the American Veterans Committee.

Dr. Herbert Clish, Superintendent of School, acted as moderator and presented candidates Chester R. MacPhee and Elmer Robinson. Both candidates answered questions put to them by the students gathered in the lounge of Building 2. Franck R. Havenner was unable to attend but was represented.

In answer to a question directed to Dr. Clish, he stated that he was in favor of changing the name of San Francisco Junior College and would see that the issue is presented to the Board of Education in the near future.

Drum Majorettes Work Out With College Band

Preparing for the coming festivities during the Los Angeles City College football match, Friday, November 7, a strutting all girl twirling team is now practicing with the college band, Mike Cahn, band instructor, revealed today.

The band, directed by Marvin Silverman, student band director, will augment the rooting section by playing numerous fight and popular songs.

College Educational Plan To Take In Trade Studies

The possibility of expanding the college's educational facilities was made a virtual guarantee last Thursday, with the announcement by Dr. Herbert Clish, Superintendent of Schools, that the survey aimed at making greater vocational instruction available to students of this city, would be completed by early spring.

O. D. Adams, assistant superintendent in charge of Vocational and Adult Education, is conducting the survey in conjunction with the Board of Education and other civic-minded citizens of San Francisco.

Adams has suggested publicly that the city's educators take over the old Ford Motor Plant located at 21st and Harrison Streets, which is at this time property of the city.

The plant would be created into a vocational and technical institution, offering many courses of value that it is impossible to make available now, because of limited space.

Dr. J. Paul Mohr, vice-president of the college, pointed out a few of the many ways in which the conversion of this plant to the proposed plan will aid the students here.

Courses will be offered in such varied fields as plumbing and construction work.

President A. J. Cloud has accepted the plan with enthusiasm, stating at a recent interview, "We of the college have been cooperating with Mr. Adams since his arrival here in the city to the end that the best possible educational facilities be placed at the disposal of the people of San Francisco. The conversion of the Ford plant will be a decided step forward toward this end."

Future Of New Campus Library Still Dim

The library branch expected to open on the west campus is still in the dim future, Marcus Skarstedt, head librarian, said yesterday.

The library plans, which are still on the Dinwiddie Construction Co. blue prints, involve using a room off the student lounge.

The library will be stocked so that it will be of particular value to the history and political science students, as well as providing a general selection of other types of literature, Skarstedt added.

Enforcement Group Claims Inadequacy

The campus law enforcement committee has an inadequate group with which to enforce the regulations of this college, according to Ernest Riese, chairman.

"This is partially due to the lack of cooperation of the leaders of some student groups, who consistently refuses to assign men to the judiciary committee," Riese said today.

"These are the same people," Riese continued, "who are continually referring to the impotency of this group in maintaining discipline at student functions."

Some student "leaders" have been requested several times to provide personnel for an increase of the force. "They have invariably agreed, but their apathy has continued,"' Riese continued.

Riese claimed that, even with the additional funds promised the Associated Students through the purchase of veterans' student cards by the government, the Student Council has refused to allot funds for adequate identification cards for the group.

Riese asked that any member of the Associated Students who would be interested in joining the law enforcement committee contact him at 1:30 p.m. today on the second floor of Building 2, above the student lounge.

High Cost Solution Found By Ski Club

Better cooperation will provide reduced expenses and more fun during the Ski Ram's snow season starting Thanksgiving Day, November 27, 1947, and lasting to May 1, 1948, according to Bill Smith, club president.

The club had a successful program of activities last year, which included excursions to the snows at Sugar Bowl in California and Spooner Summit in Nevada.

Learnard, Marsh In Plea For Students' TentativePrograms

Students planning to attend the college next semester are urged by Mary Jane Learnard, registrar and F. Grant Marsh, head counsellor, to begin making out tentative programs for next semester.

Counsellors and advisers are asking students to check with them about their programs as soon as possible. Time schedules will be furnished before the close of this semester so that students may have their programs completed before the spring registration, 1948, Miss Learnard said.

She also urged students to study the bulletin for information of announcement of courses.

AMS Barn Dance, Mardi Gras Date Corrections Made

Correction of Associated Men Student social calendar dates was made yesterday by Frank Grant, AMS president.

The actual date is Friday, December 5, for the Barn Dance, and the Mardi Gras is officially scheduled for January 16, 1948, Grant said.

Although the details have not yet been arranged, the overall plan for the activities is in progress.

The dance will be held in the auditorium, which on that night, is to look like a rambling country barn with all the atmosphere of an old fashioned Saturday night gathering Grant related.

More On The Stirring Defense Of The Ram

Estimated strength of the defenders now reached about 75. Broken down into companies, it amounted to some 74 Brigadier Generals and one Private First Class, who, naturally, was posted at the guardhouse of the gate, a suicide mission if there ever was one.

Somehow, during the long vigil, enemy intelligence got wind of the massed forces guarding the Ram and succeeded in out-flanking the ragtag army by a lightning-like stab at the main building, left totally unguarded.

ARMORED STRENGTH ARRIVES

In the meantime the 74 generals at the Ram battleground were plotting strategy like mad, with everyone screaming orders and no one listening.

A shaking cry from the sentry box at the gate entrance brought silence into the ranks, and the defenders slipped back into the shadows around the wooden figure as a Sherman tank, disguised as a Model A Ford, came slowly rolling into the scene, all running lights out.

The stage was set . . . this was it! Two raincoat clad figures tumbled out of the tank turret and approached the Ram . . . trigger fingers itched in the inky blackness.

SHOT HEARD 'ROUND CAMPUS

One of the invaders thrust his hand within the folds of his bulging trenchcoat and withdrew what looked like a paintbrush.

Pandemonium broke loose within the defenders' breastworks! A hoarse shout rent the midnight air, "Fire one!!" . . . the 88 millimeter [illegible] whose was reeled into place and quickly aimed by an artillery battery in command.

The trapped warriors wheeled in surprise and threw up their hands in surrender as an anti-climactic trickle of water oozed slowly from the hose nozzle.

ENEMY IS EXPOSED

Seizing this breakdown of equipment as an opportunity, the two culprits hotfooted away from the scene of the fray.

After a frantic search of the entire campus the two were discovered hiding in a dark corner of one of the buildings.

But only after two squad cars of the local gendarmerie were alerted and spotlights were pressed into service.

Intense grilling followed and the invaders confessed they were only loyal students testing the defenses.

So with a glimpse of dawn rising to the east the battle concluded. The law departed, satisfied in the knowledge that justice prevailed; the two-man army weaved happily homeward, and 74 generals and a PFC marched in triumphant review past Ram, who managed to crack a faint, wooden grin.

Former Student Wins Speech Championship

James Donart of 432 Dewey Boulevard, former student of the college, has won the $50 prize for the Native Daughters of the Golden West State Championship in public speaking.

The information was released by Edna B. Briggs, the organization's state chairman, who resides in Sacramento.

George Lajeunesse

HALLOWE'EN Night calls for a fairy tale of sorts so herewith follows one for all concerned to tuck under their pillows tonight.

All events depicted are purely fictitious, as are the characters, and any resemblance to living beings comes as a surprise, even to us.

Upon a time, once, there lived a tomato who ran by the name of Cinderella, yet.

Cindy was a good looking little doll despite a wardrobe that didn't include the New Look.

She had two sisters, Fratima and Sororia, who were witches from the word go, but what they lacked in looks they made up in organization . . . they all stuck to the same broom, so to speak.

Now these sisters were jealous of Cindy's glamor and wanted to fix her wagon for once and for all. So they plotted to give Cindy a phoney ducat to the Big Ball coming up.

This big ball, "The Elite Sprint," was being held in the Green and Mouldy Room of the Stockyards Plaza Hotel.

On the night of the big jig the two sisters handed Cindy her free ticket to the affair, a beautiful scroll of parchment, engraved in red, that entitled her to sit in with the band and beat the drums if she wants; so she thinks.

Happy as all get-out, Cindy slips into an off-the-shoulder number of sequins shining on a jute background and drives off to the brawl.

Arriving at the lobby of the Stockyards Plaza Cindy is regally greeted by a resplendent doorman, wearing his uniform inside out.

He takes a look at her red scroll of admission and slams the door shut.

Out on the curb Cindy is sitting on the running board of her Pumpkin, crying her eyes out, when along comes her Prince Guardian who makes with some mumbo-jumbo and turns her scroll into solid gold.

With the gold scroll in her hand and backed up by the Prince's troops Cindy leads the mob into the ball just as "Handsome Ali" Baba and his Fourteen Thieves break into their theme song, "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?"

"Handsome Ali," as Billboard calls him, is fronting the band, blowing his horn louder than ever. His crew is following, more or less together as the Prince and his gang wade into the fray to defend Cindy's honor.

The issue waxes furiously, back and forth the battle rages, the outcome is in doubt . . . continued next Hallowe'en Night.

AMS Activities Begin Under New Assistants

Plans for Associated Men Student activities are now under way, Frank Grant, AMS president, said yesterday, following Student Council approval of a vice-president and secretary which provided the needed assistants.

AMS activities include two dances, a Barn Dance and a Mardi Gras. The AMS co-sponsors the annual boxing tournament with the intramural department under the direction of Tom Wilson, director.

Credits Evaluated By Batmale November 3-7

Military credit evaluation will henceforth be made at the west campus, Veterans Administration Guidance Center, Building 3, 2nd floor, according to F. Grant Marsh, head counsellor.

Louis Batmale, head guidance counsellor, speaking for Marsh, urged all student veterans to take advantage of this service during the week set aside for that purpose, Monday, November 3, to Friday, November 7.

AS Cards Are Issued; No Refunds Ready Yet

Because of new government regulation stating that Associated Student cards for veterans should be provided, Oscar Anderson, controller, said today that all veterans who are without cards should report to the Veterans' Administration in Building 3 for the order blanks.

Those veterans who have already purchased cards will receive their refund by applying to the Veteran's Administration.

Exams Bridle Free Hour Period Today

College hour today has not been scheduled, Dean Jack Brady said yesterday. The classes will run through their normal periods so that instructors may give examinations today, Brady added.

The next college hour will be held Friday, November 7, at 10:40 a. m., for the L.A.C.C. game. That period has been designated as a rally period, according to the schedule released by Brady's office earlier in the semester.

Political Science Voters Hear Lapham

Mayor Roger D. Lapham, speaking before members of the San Francisco League of Women Voters enrolled in Political Science 36 last Tuesday, October 28, stressed greater interest in local government.

Lapham, speaking in restrospect, discussed his decisions on the city's transportation system and stated that he has no regrets over the purchase of the Market Street Railway system.

The mayor paid tribute to those present for their interest in city government.

Membership Offered To Vets; XGIs Reorganize

Planning to re-organize the XGI Society, Les Holden, former vice-president of that organization, yesterday invited all college veterans to enter membership applications.

All applications must either be in Holden's possession, or in that of Dean Jack Brady, not later than Monday, November 10.

The first meeting of the XGI Society for this semester will be held at a 8 p. m., Wednesday, November 12, in the student lounge.

Polissar To Show Locals The Easy Way

Short Cuts in Mathematics will be the subject of a talk to be given by Milton Polissar, chemistry instructor, Monday, November 3 at 7:30 p. m. in Room 204.

The doors will be open to all who are interested.

New Organizations To Be Recommended By CAB Committee

Formation of a membership committee for the Club Advisory Board was announced yesterday by Les Holden, CAB president.

Holden listed the following as members of this committee: Scott Mallou, Claire Dickenson, Ray Cordova, Tony Moura, Horace Aubertine, Sadame Hara, and ex-officio members Holden and Bob Kreuzberger.

The committee will meet Friday, November 14 to recommend readmission of 38 campus organizations and review the qualifications of five new groups seeking CAB recognition.

New organizations up for CAB approval include Mikes and Men, Photographic Society, Bridge Club, Chess Club, and one new fraternity, Gamma Phi Epsilon.

Choir Is Assisted By Newly Formed Quartet

Organization of a men's quartet to appear with the A Cappella Choir, was announced yesterday by Harold Cunningham, music instructor. The quartet will take part in all engagements planned for the choir this semester.

The quartet will first appear with the choir Sunday night, November 9, at Letterman General Hospital.

The group includes Bob Sherrat, Roy Burt, Anthony Cuevas, and Bob Coon.

As yet, no feminine soloists have been announced.

City High Presidents Ballyhoo Runyon Game

City High School Student Presidents attended the college presidents meeting which was held last night on the west campus and were given first hand information concerning the coming Damon Runyon Memorial Football game.

Advertising material which was prepared for distribution on the high school campuses was given to them by publicity committee member Sam Goldman.

Student tickets will be on sale at each of the city high schools for the week prior to the game.

Playreading Thriller Scheduled Wednesday

In regard to the already publicized play-reading to be held on Wednesday, November 5, in Room 28, Paul Ellison, English instructor, said that it will be a gripping thriller with psychological overtones.

All students are invited to attend.

Christmas Employment Meet Set For 12 Noon

Questions concerning Christmas employment will be answered today in the west campus auditorium at 12 noon, Joseph Amori, placement officer announced yesterday.

Amori stressed the fact that, although more than 2,000 jobs are available, employees are not accepting anyone who has not been recommended by a certified agency.

The majority of jobs are with the Post Office and stores, Amori said.

Student Leaders Due Here Nov. 6

The color, hustle, and bustle of a state-wide convention will descend upon this campus next Thursday, November 6.

Delegates from more than 20 colleges will meet here in a three-day session of the California Junior College Student Government Conference, headed by Trev Burrow, conference president, and Guardsman editor.

Outlining a program of conference activities, Burrow announced today that apportionment of junior college funds, publicity, methods, and the present classification of more junior colleges as secondary schools will come up for discussion.

A plan to exchange debating teams and little theater groups is also on the agenda, as well as the perennial problem of many colleges, "When are we going to get our name changed to city college?"

Burrow credited Bea Groger, secretary of the conference, for much of the work in organizing the conference.

Of 55 California junior colleges invited, more than 20 so far have written they will send delegates, Burrow said.

Poultryless, Eggless Days Hit The College

In keeping with President Truman's plea to save food, the college cafeteria, will observe meatless Tuesdays and poultryless and eggless Thursdays for the duration of the European food crisis, according to Hilda Watson, Hotel and Restaurant head.

Mrs. Watson announced that the Hotel and Restaurant Division is making an effort to stress the absolute necessity of avoiding all waste of food.

Council Withholds College Newspaper From Card Holders

An appropriation for $400 additional funds requested by Trev Burrow, editor, to increase the present circulation of The Guardsman was refused by the Student Council at last Tuesday's meeting.

The council, by an eight to two vote, turned down Burrow's plan which would have increased the paper's circulation to 3,600, partially satisfying demands of student card holders not getting their copies.

A reference to the paper's editorial policy was voiced by John Brady, assistant dean of men, who stated that, ". . . since the paper editorially requested more dances and other activities for card holders, the money requested should be denied the paper and used to pay for other Associated Student functions."

Brady's interpretation of an editorial appearing in the Friday, October 24, issue of The Guardsman, calling for "Other and more varied types of entertainment . . ." and demanding justification of a five dollar fee for student cards, was sufficient to cause the council to return a negative vote on the issue.

The original Guardsman budget allotment was based on an Associated Student paid membership of 2,700. The request for additional funds was made to bring the publication total up to match the increase in membership resulting from a government agreement to pay veterans' dues.

As a result it is estimated a thousand students now holding cards are unable to secure a copy of the official student newspaper.

Band Of Gold To Spark Scalpel Jockey's Ball

Sponsoring the Scalpel Jockey's Halloween Ball, Pi Mu Gamma will take over tonight in the west campus auditorium with dancing from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight.

Music will be furnished by Howard Frederic and his band of gold.

Admission will be 50 cents, and costumes will be optional.

The west campus auditorium decorations will follow a Halloween theme and the dance will not be restricted just to students of the college, Pi Mu Gamma social committee members said.

Altered English Institute Anticipates Speech B Run

Remodeling of the English institute, Building 19, on the west campus will soon be completed, and the sound proof cubicles with wire recorders for speech B classes will be in operation, Paul Mckelvey, assistant head of the department said today.

The English department expects an overflow of students in speech B classes as a result of the new standards in speech requirements for graduation from this college, Mckelvey added.

These new additions in Building 19 will include seven sound proof cubicles, several wire recorders capable of voice recording, and a new work shop room for speech B classes.

Hostesses Today Give Tea For New Students

A Halloween tea will be presented by the hostess class in Room 108 today, according to Frances Mount, home economics instructor. The guest list includes new students from the college. Lenore Karp and Carol Covington will act as co-hostesses for the occasion.

Cafeteria Holds The Line Despite Price Raises

WITH prices skyrocketing on every commodity, the efficient management of the newly re-opened cafeteria has been able to hold the rise to a minimum.

Labor costs have increased until it now takes nine cents of every gross dollar just to clean the floor once a day. Food prices have reached the highest point yet in this inflationary flight of the dollar, but the cafeteria personnel still offer a good, well balanced meal at a reasonable price.

Not many students have heard of the 12 to 14 thousand dollar loss incurred by the cafeteria in the past year in their attempt to hold the price line.

In view of this fact, and understanding that the management must be under considerable pressure from "down town" to boost prices, we commend them in their struggle to offer better than average meals at a price in keeping with the student's limited income.

"Junior" On Way Out

WHEN someone asks a student here what college he is going to the inevitable reply sounds something like this: "I'm attending San Francisco mmph . . mmph . . College!"

In other words we're all tempted to put our hands in front of our lips and roughly, rapidly slough over that juvenile word "Junior."

In the very near future a Board of Education meeting will pass on the possibility of changing the name of the college.

That name will be "City College of San Francisco"; quite a jump from "Junior," isn't it?

No longer will it be "San Francisco . . . what . . College? Or, "Did you say San Francisco Junior High School?"

Whether the new handle comes out CCSF or SFCC it is gratifying to note at long last that the label of adolescence will very shortly be removed.

And in its place, we're all hoping, will come a new, vigorous college spirit.

Rams, Cubs And Runyon

AS A CURT reminder, next Friday, November 7, at Kezar Stadium, the Rams collide with the Los Angeles City College Cubs in what promises to be the best game of the ten year rivalry.

The Guardsman urges all students to attend this game, as this contest is part of drive for funds going to the Damon Runyon Cancer Memorial.

The meager price of 50 cents is well worth the assurance of a good afternoon of football, with the proceeds being directed for the fight against cancer.

Needling Notations

By Del Pichon

THE "GREEKS" have often been vehemently castigated by various people, including ourselves; however, we have decided to recant our former deprecations of the "Greeks" and offer instead commendation.

Now some people might think that the "Greeks" do not deserve commendation, but upon reviewing the facts one is immediately aware that they are not receiving due credit for their actions.

Why, look at the lengths to which they go to fill the "barbarian's" college life with humor!

They work hard all year planning stunts that will successfully produce the evocation of laughter from the cold stoicism of the "barbarians."

Dressing up young men in Levis turned inside out, with loud shirts, boy ties, and earphones on their heads and making these fellows do the funniest things like duck-walking around the campus saying, "Quack! Quack! I'm a duck." Oh! It's a scream!

Sometimes they even provide laughter in the classrooms by interrupting dull, uninteresting and worthless lectures and putting on an hilarious comedy show in its place. Entertaining and relaxing the "barbarians" instead of letting the lecturer clutter up their minds with dry knowledge. Boy, they're really funny.

And do they give up when cold sneering cynics berate them for making themselves appear foolish and ridiculous? Do they give up when they are the targets for literary and verbal barbs hurled at them by callous collegians? No! They carry on in the true "Grecian" tradition and say, solemnly, and knowingly, "Forgive them, for they know not what they do."

So they go on in their job of keeping the "barbarians" happy; unrewarded, unpraised (until now) and unheralded in this valiant field of endeavor. Yes, it is evident that they certainly deserve praise.

So here's a toast to the hilarious "Greeks."

The Bull Pen

By Robert Tatum

Nights of weariness, despair, gloom are in the offing. Term papers must be written. (A term paper is a document of original research.) This is how to write one, painlessly:

First of all, don't do any work on it for the next five weeks, it will only clutter your mind, and there are too many football games; coffee house discussions, dances, and nocturnal parties already scheduled.

Secondly, why write a term paper at all? People who do them are social outcasts, bores. Nevertheless, as a reader service, here's how it's done.

Procure a small electric stove, coffee pot, coffee (to drink) and a pitcher of ice water (to splash on your face hourly). A benzadrine inhaler is optional.

The notes you took at the library should be carefully assembled and deciphered if possible.

Stay up several nights, typing first, second, and third drafts, then tear everything up and copy a good article on the subject from an encyclopedia.

Foozland And Fur Jackets . . .

By Pat Eddy

HOLLYWOOD must be quite a Foozland. Maybe the tives don't go around saying "Nov schmoz ka ppp," but they display all degrees of abnormality. Enough has been written about sun-glasses in conjunction with slacks and fur jackets on the female and with loud sports shirts on the male.

However, the numerous other strange customs of these organisms (it isn't as yet ascertained whether or not they are homo sapiens) should be carefully examined. These customs may not provide clues as to the origin of these organisms, but they may clearly indicate the end of this particular species.

The habitation modes of this group are very unique. For instance, no dwelling is considered complete without a large hole in the adjacent territory filled with water; this is known as a swimming pool. It main function seems to be that of receiving inebriated guests into its moist arms at the height of the bloody fracas called party.

Also considered necessary is a large, well stocked bar, usually constructed to resemble anything but a bar.

One of the finer touches is bound to be an oversize bed, not that these odd creatures ever seem to rest. The beds are anywhere from eight to ten feet long by eight to ten feet wide. This is odd because most of the inhabitants are of reasonably normal size.

Mating among these animals is quite an involved process. It usually encompasses several trial unions and then a final decision to remain single; of course as soon as this solution is reached another marriage is embarked upon.

Naturally several theories have been advanced in an effort to explain these and numerous other peculiarities. There is the "Fry School" which states that these unfortunate creatures have been seriously handicapped by constant cranial exposure to Klieg lights.

Another popular school, rapidly gaining ground, is the "Sop School." These theorists advocate that constant imbibing of liquids of high alcoholic content has reduced the brain matter of these poor things to an alcohol-drenched mass of tissue.

But by far the most popular school of thought is named the "Character School." This school merely states that all the inhabitants of Hollywood are characters from start to finish, so why try to explain it anyway?

Women Wanted By Casanova; Ired Student

• Dissenter

Editor, The Guardsman:

This may be a little late, but I thought that a student body card allowed students to enter football games played by this college free.

Last Saturday at San Mateo, we had to pay 50 cents to get in and had to wait in line for about a half-hour or so and the San Mateans had a separate line while we had to wait with the rest of the crowd.

I don't think that the student body card is worth five bucks.

• Fire And Flood

Editor, The Guardsman:

Clang! Clang! Here comes the fire truck, but no fire to put out. Instead a fire hydrant was knocked over and a flow of water had to be checked.

Being one of many witnesses to several events, I would like to describe one of many incidents which took place on Saturday, October 25.

Around noon on Saturday some fellows were playing with a jeep. One fellow got in, put the jeep in reverse and wham! backed right over a fire hydrant. The fellow tore the hydrant loose at the base and this caused an enormous flow of water which flooded the whole parking area on the west campus. The jeep suffered a flat tire and a damaged axle.

The fire department finally stopped the water about an hour later.

The other event was the victory over San Mateo, a score of 7 to 6.

• Girl Crazy

Editor, The Guardsman:

Why aren't the girls around this joint more friendly? All they do is try to look pretty and never pay any attention to the boys. Why not start a "Meet a Fella" week so that the boys can get acquainted with the hard-to-meet girls around here? I can assure you that it would certainly raise the morale o fthe guys around here.

News To Nobody

By Herbert Levy

WHILE stumbling around Berkeley for the U.C.-U.S.C. titanic, we discovered the secret why so many scholars from the East Bay marshes flock to happy Ramland, especially from Berkeley (other than the fact: 1 . . There is no 2 yr college abouts, 2 . . The ruff requirements for getting into the Big "C") has finally come to light. It seems that this Ocean Ave. sanitorium has a definite influence over that way . . . which is the long way around to tell you that the charming expression that clings over the portals of this college, "the truth shall make you free," merely makes the Berkeley kiddies feel quite at home. Why? . . Berk'ly High School goes us one better. Plastered over their front gate is the saying, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." (How quaint!!)

As a final on this new look business (we hope), a young Ramette going up the hill to the main bldg. was asked why she was walking up backward, she smiled tenderly and said, "the way these damn skirts are cut, I can't take big enough steps to go up the hill frontwards." . . . what a spot for an escalator manufacturer!;

Ugh!!! The student pres. of Lowell HI was queried by an announcer at a recent prep grid game on what his plans were when he finished high school (this lovely confah was going over the air) whereby he piped up that when he graduated he was going to J.C. then on to college . . . where have we heard that before?

A 2 year college out East way is really going mad; seems they want to make the institution a four year outfit (imagine?) so in consequence their paper now runs a clip-coupon, to be sent into the editorial offices, asking each student if the college was a 4 yr. job would they attend? . . . the results are astounding!

Basketball Practice To Commence On Nov. 10

Cage Coach Ralph Hillsman is continuing with his plans to hold the initial casaba practice of the 1947 season on Monday, November 10.

"All men students are free to try out for the squad," Hillsman said, adding, "and I hope we have a large turnout."

Players competing for positions on the team will be helped a lot if they start getting into playing shape before the practice sessions begin, Hillsman pointed out by way of advice to cage hopefuls.

Three evening and two afternoon practice sessions are slated each week until December.

The Rams will defend their state junior college title at the Modesto Tournament to be held January 7 to 10.

Block SF Preparing Gala Night Rally

President Bill Bahr and his 53 Block Society members are making final preparations for the big pre-Los Angeles, San Francisco game bonfire rally to be held here Thursday, November 6, at 8 p.m.

Having formed his committees to secure the proper organization for a successful evening, Bahr announced that the athletic group will hold a meeting on Tuesday evening, November 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the student lounge.

President Bahr urged every member to attend since the success of this rally, sponsored by the group, will also aid in the society's further ventures.

The Student Council has given the Block SF Society complete cooperation in its plans for the big pre-game rally.

Rain Forces Lambs To Cancel Bulldog Game

After having one game called off, another lost, the Lamhs once again were ordered to postpone their regular scheduled game last Tuesday because of rain.

The contest was to be held between the college Lambs and the San Mateo Junior Varsity and was to be played at the college practice field.

Coach Jim Jensen announced that the game will be played next Tuesday, November 4, weather permitting.

RAMblings . .

By Arnold Wachter

LAST Saturday, we traveled over to Berkeley, along with 81,000 other people, to witness the Bear-Trojan football classic. We don't want to bore you with details of the game, but we do want you to know the reason we attended this game, and not the SFJC-San Mateo game.

Gas being what is is nowadays, we are tired of chasing to hick towns to watch the Rams in action. Yes, we have heard the sad tale of the stadium shortage. Let's rent Seals Stadium on Friday nights.

Secondly, we are tired of paying 600 per cent more for admission to games away from home, than the student from the home college is charged. The archaic Northern California Junior College Conference Constitution allows this thieving practice. Why?

Yet our most important reason for staying away from the Ram football game is the rotten brand of football played by the local squad. Yes, they are winning, but they are playing spiritless, lackadaisical and boring football.

We love football above all other sports. Personally we would rather watch the gridiron sport than eat. But football as served by the Rams to the public is nauseating.

The remedy for the above faults lies with both the team and the student body. Only the team can give life to its efforts, but the Associated Students can force better game conditions. It's up to you, you and you, and every member of the student body.

Hilltop LOOKout

By Dayton Lawson

(Insult to injury dept.) Ralph Hillsman's little band of soccermen trudged over to the other side of the bay last Saturday to engage the Bears in a crucial. After an hour or two milling around, the Teddies walked off the field with a 3-2 nod on their side of the board. The Blue and Golds, registering the proper amount of courtesy befitting the role of host gave off with the usual after-game chatter, "nice game, good clean fight, tough team to beat," etc. After some more of the same, the Rams showered and started for their cars, only to find that the Berkeley gendarmerie had arrived first and had distributed some valentines, and they weren't hids to the Policemen's Ball. Wonder what would have happened if the Rams had WON?

Howie Crouch, hard driving fullback in the Ram victory parade is also something of a canary. Crouch has lent his pulsating vibrato to many a clambake and social gathering. Now if we could get the other ten shmoes on the Klemmer eleven to take some vocal instruction, we would have the Junior Grade counterpart to the Singing Saints of Moraga . . . (File this one under Notes of little Consequence, or How to Pad a Column on a Slow Afternoon!) It seems that in four games there has been no point-after-touchdown scored against us. May not be a record of any sort, but in a game such as the one at San Mateo last Saturday it can mean an awful lot! . . . . All of which brings us to the Player of the Week. We don't know about you, but George Magnanris looked awfully good from where we were sitting, and played a whale of a ball game down at Bulldog City, both offensively and defensively. He stopped plenty of stuff coming his way all day, and handled his duties as a lineman like an experienced vet. So come and get your Blue Plate, George.

Ram Team Lacks Hustle; Stockton Looks Ominous In Saturday's Nocturnal Tilt

Whether Grover Klemmer has solved his player dissension problem and produced some "rah rah" spirit back into his gridders will be seen tomorrow evening at 8 p.m. in Baxter Stadium, when the Rams continue their NCJCC night-raidings by wardrobing themselves against the Stockton Tiger-Cubs in the season's fifth tussle.

Although the valley campus eleven, under the guidance of Gene Stagnaro, have cumulated a '47 record of two decisive victories over San Mateo and Marin along with a pair of losses from Modesto and Salinas, they still will be considered the bettor's favorite over the Klemmer men, because of San Francisco internal troubles.

Failure of the San Francisco players to react to the well known fact that they possess one of the strongest contingents in the big-league, has been shown by their "luck" victories from San Mateo, Marin, and Sacramento.

Strange to the college spectators is the oddity that the only decent showing by the Rams this year came in their loss to the Vallejo Redskins.

Without a doubt the Fischer tutored forward wall has saved the day for the college by their great defensive stands against the foe, but their failure to puncture the holes while on offense has kept the city college team's scoring to an almost all time low.

Meanwhile, the backfield has shown one big weakness on defense with their inability to stop their opponents' passing. On the attack, the ball handlers have broken through for good gains, but still need improvement in their broken field running.

The Rams, still in a tie with Modesto for the top spot in the "A" division, may see their position changed after tomorrow evening's adventure, if the air-lane specials on Cuh quarterbacks Bob Leighton and Vito Ramirez connect with their receivers.

Cal Nips Rams 3-2; Aggies Next For Soccer Aggregation

With the soccer season at the mid-point mark, the local Ram squad and the California Aggies will face each other tomorrow at the college field.

The college squad has a "high standing" in the conference race after losing last Saturday, October 25, to the predicted league winners, the University of California Bears, by a score of 2 to 3 at the opponent's field.

It was in the middle of the first quarter that Victor Solorzano, with beautiful faking and footwork, broke through the Bears' tight backfield defense to score the first point of the game.

The Bears then rallied late in the first quarter to tie the score at one point for each side.

In the second quarter a quick pass from Right Wing Ernie Felbusch to the speedy Solorzano brought the locals out in front again, but just before the whistle blew winding the first half, the score was again deadlocked by the Bear squad.

It was late in the fourth quarter when the Bears finally broke through the Ram defense to score the third and winning point of the game.

The Ram squad was constantly in the lime-light because of the fine defensive playing of John Emerson, M. Mangiola, and Goalie Ken Fitts.

WAA Hallowe'en Party Slated This Afternoon

A Hallowe'en party will be held this afternoon in the women's gymnasium from 1 to 4 p.m. Games will he played and refreshments served at this function of the WAA, which is open to all women students. Hermenia Ross, WAA prexy, will be in charge of the festivities.

Plans for a Sadie Hawkins Day, to be held on Friday, November 14, are currently being prepared hy Ann Domecus. The activities are to take place in the women's gymnasium from 12 noon to 5:30 in the afternoon.

An attempt is being made to get several of the local sororities to participate in the entertainment.

Legal, Internal Tape Delayed Construction

By Quentin Ogle

"Why didn't 'they' fix up the college during summer vacation?" This cry has been echoing about the campus since the first day of the fall semester.

Why all the sawing, hammering and general constructional commotion wasn't done before September is now explained by Oscar E. Anderson, college controller.

The cost of repairing the West Campus is about $450,000. The Federal Government put up two-thirds, and the school department produced the other third.

To clear the field of action and begin construction, five departments had to be dealt with: Federal Works, Navy Housing, City Utilities, City Government and the School Department.

A delaying technicality developed last Spring as to the legality of giving the entire contract to one contractor.

By August the lawyers had this difficulty threshed out, the job was let out to a contractor, and work was about to start. However, the school department decided to sell 100 feet of the West Campus land, and this action threw all the progress won in 10 months of effort back to scratch.

This expansion program has given the college facilities to handle about 6,000 students without undue crowding. "Our present position," Anderson says, "can well be envied by most California schools."

Local Color Guard Picked For Big Game

Bill Welch, president of Gamma Phi Upsilon, announced this week that a Color Guard has been arranged for with the California National Guard for the Runyon Memorial Game, Friday, November 7.

Student members of the Color Guard will be "Yash" Yasinitsky, Bob Swindler, John Higgins, and Dale Fritz.

Enrollment Increase Makes Program Pre-Signup A Must

Students planning to attend this college next semester were warned today by Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, that they should meet with their advisers in the near future in order to prepare their next semester's class program.

"There has been a large increase of students in the preceding semester, and the advisers cannot hope to meet with all of their advisees at the beginning of the semester," Miss Learnard said.

Warning was also extended today to all students who wish to drop courses that the last day is Wednesday, November 12.

"Students should try to attend to this matter before the last day," Miss Learnard said.

Frosh Frolic Curtain Goes Up Next Friday

Engagement of the Palace Hotel's Gold Room for the Freshman Frolic, scheduled for Friday, November 7, was announced today by Gil Morgan, freshman class president.

Music for the 9 p. m. to midnight dancing will feature Mardie Leaver and his orchestra, and admission will be one student card per couple.

Dress for the affair will be informal with suits for men.

The dance committee, this semester, includes Morgan, Don Cowderoy, Marcia Weidler and Bob McVey.

Caught In The Cookie Jar

THE EYES HAVE IT and so have their busy little fingers, as these happy youngsters reach for cookies.

Engaged in a child's favorite pastime, the group of youngsters pictured above, are shown enjoying themselves at the children's party staged last week by Francies Mount's hostess class.

The party was one in a series illustrating hostess etiquette, with Ruth Anderson and Phyllis Allen sharing duties.

Ranging from three to five, the eleven children were invited from the Holly Court Housing Project and Hurley Village; Mrs. Florence Harrison and Mrs. Dorise Maxwell acted as chaperones for the group.

Ice cream as well as cookies was served in plentiful quantities which made the party a complete success. More parties are being planned for the future.

Champion Fencer Helene Mayer Wins Over All Comers

The manly art of self-defense took a serious set back here today when it was learned that Helene Mayer is the "men's fencing champion" of the San Francisco Amateur Division by virtue of winning over all comers, both men and women.

Tall, blond, Helene Mayer, who is a German instructor here this semester, is one of the leading women fencers in the world. At the age of 13 she won the German National Title, and while she was still a "bobbysoxer" won the Olympic Games held at Amsterdam, in 1928.

She was a runner up in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin, won about 15 German National Championships and European titles, and has held the United States Championship nine times. In 1937 she won the last international championship at Paris. At the recent New York City Championship she outlasted 13 opponents with 52 touches, while they scored but 7.

Miss Mayer first came to the United States on a scholarship in 1932, and became a citizen in 1941. She would like to compete for the United States in the 1948 Olympics, but there is a rule that one cannot represent another country in the Olympics once they have competed for one country.

She is a true fencing enthusiast and is interested in promoting it whenever possible. She came here from Mills College where she helped the girls in fencing, skiing and many other sports. This was all done "gratis" so she could hold her amateur standing.

1937 WORLD'S CHAMPION fencer and now an instructor here at the college, Helen Mayer shows on her fencing costume a few of the many honors she has won. The insignia on her cuff designates her world's title. Above it on her arm is her membership insignia in the American Fencing Association.

Cafeteria, Like Chicken, Serves Two-Fold Purpose

A chicken is good not only for its fried meat but also for its boiled eggs; likewise the college cafeteria not only operates as a convenience for the students but as a place of instruction for those registered in the Hotel and Restaurant division.

The cafeteria operated at a loss last year, but it was not due to mismanagement, and in a sense it can't be considered a loss.

When the chemistry student uses chemicals, the city considers that as a loss of chemicals, but a gain in knowledge for the student.

The same applies to the Hotel and Restaurant students, who handle food instead of chemicals to gain knowledge. Among some of last year's cafeteria expenses was $4,500 for janitor work.

Ninety-five per cent of all the help is paid help, and 30 to 34 per cent of each dollar taken in goes to labor expenses.

Students of the department spend their class time learning the principles of the machinery and functions of the kitchen. As soon as they become proficient at a task they are immediately moved to another department.

Recovered Dutch Art Show Opens Downtown

An exhibit of interest to all students is that of 48 Dutch masterpieces now on display at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor, according to Richard Allman, art instructor.

The exhibit consists of Dutch masterpieces of the 17th and 18th centuries which were looted from Holland by the Nazis and later returned by the United States Army. The display will last until Sunday, November 2.

Allman announced that plans are being made for field trips, which are to be held twice a week. Possibility of Saturday field trips are also under consideration.

Petitions For High School Diplomas Due

All students who expect to complete high school diploma requirements this semester and who have not filed petitions for high school graduation should do so at once or not later than Wednesday, November 12, Mary Perry, student counsellor, said yesterday.

These petitions may be secured from Miss Perry or A. E. McMillan in Building 8.

Failure to file will result in a delay in obtaining the diploma, Miss Perry said.

Date Set For First AVC Forum Meeting

The Social Functions of Science will be discussed at the first American Veterans Committee sponsored forum to be held on Wednesday evening, November 19.

The location is expected to be the student lounge.

Instructors John E. Harc, biological science; John M. Horowitz, chemistry, and Eugene W. Mead, social science, will participate in the discussion. John Patten, English instructor, will act as moderator.

Official Twice Weekly Publication of the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College

Vol. XXV SAN FRANCISCO, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1947 No. 11

The Spectator

George Lujeunesse

SHOW America a good cause to get behind and fight for, and you'll automatically get a great number of ordinary people who are willing to give up a lot of their own time in a completely unselfish effort to get the job done.

Next Friday's game at Kezar Stadium between LA City College and San Francisco College is a perfect example of how people can, and will put aside their own personal interests in order to do something for a cause that is bigger than any of us.

FOR THE CANCER FUND

Friday's football game, for the benefit of the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund to combat cancer, will be the college's biggest answer to an urgent call for help to battle the unsolved scourge that kills one out of eight human beings.

Besides the men in uniform who will be down on the field putting forth the best kind of football they are capable of, there are a number of students and local people who deserve a mountain of credit for all their efforts; we can name but a few of them offhand, the others we know in actions only.

THE PEOPLE BEHIND IT

The idea was first brought up by Arnold Wechter, Guardsman photography editor, who suggested it to Max Call, member of the Student Council and Publicity Chairman.

Call got things started, and soon "everyone wants to get into the act," to quote Jimmy Durante.

The Coca Cola Company, represented by James L. Palmer, came through with an offer to provide the paper and color work necessary for programs.

Rook Brothers and Moore's, downtown stores have volunteered the use of their ticket departments to aid in the sale.

Next Thursday night all the high school student body presidents will attend a meeting here to lay plans for a big ticket sale at their schools.

20,000 FANS WANTED

Jim Edwards, rally commissioner, has plans afoot for a big bonfire rally on the same night, featuring professional entertainment.

Twenty thousand tickets have been printed for the game. The Student Council has taken on the job of getting them sold and are now soliciting the many organizations of the college to aid them in the process.

These people have all accomplished far more than what's expected of them . . . the rest is up to you and me. If 5,000 of us each bring a friend, then success is insured.

Vets Become Members Of AS By Card Issue

Those veterans who have not purchased Associated Student Cards should report to Building 3 for certificates of purchase, Walter E. McCloud, veteran's co-ordinator, said yesterday.

The certificates can be exchanged for Associated Student Cards at the bank. Refunds for those veterans who have purchased cards are promised in the near future.

Only Deficient Grades Released At Present

In view of the fact that the I.B.M. Machines are not running on schedule, only deficiencies, grades of D or F, will be handed out today and tomorrow, Mary J. Learnard, registrar, announced.

The unsatisfactory grades received by the student will enable him to know whether or not to drop the course by Wednesday, November 12, the last day for dropping a course, Miss Learnard added.

The grades which were scheduled to be distributed a week after the first mid-term period will be delayed.

Rally Activities To Center About Bonfire

Ram rally for the Los Angeles City College game will get under way Thursday, November 6, in the area opposite the women's gymnasium, starting at 8 p. m., Jim Edwards, rally commissioner, said yesterday.

The rally activities will be centered around a bonfire, with other entertainment to be offered at the bonfire site and followed later by a 'record' dance in the student lounge, Edwards added.

Pick And Hammer Club Receives Oil Lecture

Iran and Iraq, two of the Arab countries, have the world's greatest potential oil deposits, perhaps more than the combined productions of oil in both the United States and U.S.S.R.

This was revealed by Max Steineke, chief geologist of the Standard Oil of Arabia, in a lecture to some 80 members of the Pick and Hammer Society last week.

Firemen Eject Flower Fanciers Into Wetness

Rain has halted construction on the new greenhouse, situated by the men's gymnasium leaving the floriculture unit stranded without a classroom, according to Harry Nelson, horticulture department head.

The group's old class room is now occupied by the fire college.

Council Grants New Allotments To Band

Bus Fare To Stockton, Yell Leader Equipment Approved; Drum Majorette Uniforms Refused

Granting of $118 from $400 on hand brought forth a slight change of policy in the Student Council's previous disinclination to allot further funds to increase The Guardsman circulation at the meeting of Thursday, October 30.

The budget, presented by Don Burger, finance chairman, went as follows:

Band bus fare to Stockton game	$ 85.00
Drum majorette skirts	15.00
Batons	20.00
Pants for yell leaders	20.00
Blocks for yell leaders	13.00
Total	$153.00

Arguments against the drum majorette skirt and baton allotments, causing the budget to be voted upon later item by item, demonstrated turnabout opinions on the part of some members in favor of giving the college paper the sum denied it at the last meeting.

The final decision of the council was to approve all items with the exception of the much debated question of supplying money for batons and skirts.

The amount approved, totaling $118, will be deducted from the $400 cash on hand.

Symphony In D Minor Listening Hour Theme

Symphonic masterpieces of great composers is the theme of the Listening Hour for today and Thursday, November 6, according to Gertrude Norgard, college music instructor.

Ticketholders Excused For Benefit Contest

Ticket-holders for the Ram-Los Angeles City College game will be excused from classes starting at 2 o'clock on Friday, November 7, according to Dean Jack Brady.

To be excused from classes students must present a ticket to the game, Brady stated emphatically.

Dinner Hour Changed

In answer to a plea made by the students having 5 o'clock classes, the cafeteria has extended its dinner hour to 6:15 p. m.

Short orders along with the regular breakfast are served at the cafeteria from 7:45 a. m. to 10 a. m.

Technicality Halts GI Equipment Issue

One out of four local veterans have not yet received the government subsidized equipment due them.

Because of unforeseen technical difficulties, the issue of supplies and equipment to student veterans has been temporarily discontinued, Walter E. McCloud, Veterans Affairs Office head, announced today.

Veterans who have not yet drawn their supplies will be notified on what procedure to take as soon as the technicalities have been surmounted.

President Burrow Reveals Conference Plans And Program

Tentative program for the coming California Junior College Student Government Conference, to be held Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, November 6, 7 and 8, was outlined by Trev Burrow, president of the organization.

Registration for the conference will start on Thursday, November 6, when the conference will be officially opened. Friday's agenda includes discussion on junior college finances and a talk by Edward E. Sandys, dean of men at San Francisco Junior College.

This day's meeting will be adjourned at 2 o'clock, permitting members to attend the Los Angeles City College football game.

Saturday will feature problems of self-discipline increasing student body card sales, and the desirability of local or state subsidy for college activities.

The conference will adjourn at 5 o'clock Saturday evening.

AS EVELYN HICKEY'S slender, white hands caress melodic purrings from the Steinway, Dale Rogers' claws plan a more breath-taking climax to her rendition during tomorrow's playreading in the Cellar, Room 28.

Curtain Rises Tomorrow On Playreading Thriller

Schedule for this week, the second college play reading production of the semester will take place tomorrow, November 5, at 1 p. m. in Room 28.

Included in the play cast are Dale Rogers, Evelyn Hickey, Sam Jaquinto, Marcia Weidler, Nancy Graham, Lois Henderson, and Mary Ann Ambrosini.

Bill Riley is in charge of the stage directions.

The name of the play has been withheld, but it has been referred to as the "surprize-thriller."

Action Right Now Is The Answer—Not Bickering

GROWING discontent concerning benefits derived from membership in the Associated Students, has reached a crucial point.

Because bickering solves nothing, adjustments must be made through action.

The present crisis cannot be met with threats of recall.

The present crisis cannot be met with threats of intimidation of the press, throttling its freedom on the grounds that student government is "above reproach."

The present crisis can be met only with action, not so much to remedy the situation this semester but to allow sound, honest, and representative government to function effectively in the future, a government that can abide by its promises.

The following four problems are the major ones confronting the Associated Students now:

1. Associated Student cards carry erroneous information; to wit, admission to all conference games is indicated as free with cards. This is not true, as admission prices are set by the individual colleges, subject to conference rulings. The council of this college has nothing to do with prices set by other colleges. Two of the home games will be free to card holders.

2. There is no room in the city which will accommodate more than a minority of the Associated Students at any dance with the exception of the civic auditorium, and rental costs there are prohibitive.

3. The Guardsman is not printed in sufficient numbers to be distributed to all student card holders, despite promises to that effect.

4. Lackadaisical students who have persistently refused to purchase student cards are not faced with any insurmountable problem in their efforts to receive the same benefits given members of the association.

The Veteran's Administration, at this moment, promised to pay for all veteran's Associated Student cards, but in view of past delays, the controller's office cannot be blamed for refusing to permit the Student Council to allot more funds.

The Associated Student constitution provides for a Welfare Committee, whose purpose it is to "undertake any duties that concern the welfare of the students on this campus."

It is believed that this committee should be activated immediately and staffed with those students who will work sincerely and who most nearly represent the majority of the association.

This is a most crucial period, and unless constructive action is taken now, it might well mean the collapse of student government.

The Voter's Decision

Needling Notations

By Del Pichon

THE RECENT witch hunt for Communists which has been inaugurated in the United States has made the American public conscious of Russia, its power, and its potentialities.

The two respective countries have been sizing each other up, much as two boxers do before they enter the ring. From all outward appearances it looks as though they are going to slug it out sometime in the future, and, if they do, the war should turn out to be quite an affair for all concerned.

However, we believe that the next war will not be anything like that which American scientists predict.

We think that the next war will be a plain, old-fashioned, strategical, tactical affair with the usual compiement of generals, lieutenants and the inevitable doggies

Ah! What about the atomic bomb?

At this point we will draw an analogy to show why, in our opinion, the atomic bomb will not be used in the next conflict.

World War I saw the introduction of a dreaded mode of warfare that terrorized the people of that period . . . Gas! The ability of gas to pass all barriers and its terrifying potentialities of destruction staggered the imagination. "With poison gas an entire nation could be wiped out in a matter of days. This weapon made war too horrible . . . it would end all war or in the next war everyone would be killed." And then . . . And then came the next war.

Well? We're here yet. Why? . . . It seems as though the military leaders in World War II didn't use poison gas for the very simple reason that they were afraid of retaliation!

We believe that the same thing will occur with the atomic bomb. The fear of retaliation will certainly outweigh the military value of The Bomb in warfare. Of course, all the ideas set down here are merely theoretical, but . . . we shall see!

BEST campus show these days are the meetings of the legislative branch of the self-government here—the 15 member Student Council.

Sometimes hurling names at one another, sometimes, sitting quietly munching their lunches, the members of the council conduct business Tuesdays and Thursdays at noon in Room 3B.

Trigger man for a status quo clique is Councilman Boh Reilly, recently appointed to fill a vacancy.

Various liberal ideas, sometimes conflicting, are ably set forth by Allen "Point-of-order" Broussard, Hamilton Chin, Jim Alt, Max Call and others.

Accomplishments of the council to date include passing of an $18,296 budget in one 30-minute session.

The Little One Loses Out . . .

By Ed Roper

TODAY we find ourselves at the end of a week of midterms.

Although there are a great number of us who do not find themselves any place at all, they are just plain lost. These poor souls will remain lost for four or five weeks, at which time the haze will clear and they will be able to stare defiantly at their tormentors once again.

But, alas, it is also at this time that the whole bloody mass starts all over again. And once more the dejected and downbeaten air prevails on the countenance of the student body at large.

ROAMING THROUGH TOMES

Little bamhinos have been seen running amuck from the huildings, shaking through and through with fright at the sight of the zombies and gargoyles listlessly roaming the halls from tomh to tomb. Fathers and mothers are not to be recognized in these hordes.

As a result many a happy home is broken up at Hurley Village and adjacent abodes. For when Mammy and Pappy return to pull their quaking offspring from beneath beds, bureaus, and doormats they are in no happy mood to still The Little One's fears.

Although Mam and Pap handy a biting repartee hither and to, it is the Little One who suffers the sins of his parents.

ROAMING THROUGH TOMBS

What happens? TLO becomes a Man of Delinquency and poses for Fizzle-Down aids with an ever faithful Panda bear at his feet.

With the dinero realized from his modeling, TLO becomes crazed with a lust for power. Organizing his confederates he sets up a Pogo Stick Run to smuggle bubble gum across the Mexican border, trying to corner the market and set himself up as King Bub.

He succeeds in this, then turns his efforts to the expanding plastic bubble industry. He gets a firm hold and ties it down.

MOBSTER MAKES GOOD

Then with a fiendish scheme in mind he takes over the Fizzle-Down Beverage Company, that same group that gave him his start. TLO intends to peddle Fizzle-Down with added benzadrine to stupefy the public and leave them open to the inroads of his mohsters.

But a gunmoll from Queen Bub's rival organization cuts down our hero in a plush beanery.

We could describe TLO's lavish Post Street funeral but we are losing the point of the story. To wit: Mid-Terms he Damned!

Letters to the Editor

An Answer To Editorial On Student Card

• "Reply" To Editorial

Editor, The Guardsman:

An elaborate editorial appeared Friday, October 24th, proclaiming "students of this college do not receive sufficient benefits for student body cards," going into descriptive phrases to condemn lack of stadium space for games, admission charge to these games, social dances held on lower floors of hotels, the need for more entertainment, and longer hours for dancing.

I would like to remind the editor that he should be aware of the student body financial crisis, and I would like also to ask the editor one question: Where does The Guardsman propose we get such funds to secure a stadium or a dancing spot at the Mark Hopkins (and no Petrillo union scale for past midnight operations) with our present budget allotment? Also, there is hardly a building in San Francisco where a dance can decently be held to accommodate 2,000 or 3,000 students and not be too crowded.

The A.M.S. Smoker, the Fashion Show, and bids for dances had to be discarded due to financial matters, and not because your student council and executives were unable to give you a well rounded social calendar. We would like to have these activities and many more, so if The Guardsman can answer the perplexing question of "where to secure extra funds," we will gladly cooperate in presenting a well rounded program.

News To Nobody

By Herbert Levy

HAPPILY enough the Student Council (that joyous, frolicking 15 stewdents), who meet at 12 noon every Tues. and Thurs. in Room 3B, west campus is supposed to be open to all Associated Students, who wish to attend these semi-weekly confabs, however, of late they have moved to this ROOM 3B, which just oddly enough has only sufficient chairs for the members.

Success of the big pigskin battle (and the battle against cancer) which will draw an estimated 20,000 spectators to Kezar Stadium Friday, is in a great part due to the efforts of councilite, Max Call.

When the final gun pops at the end of the Los Angeles City College contest next Friday (10th annual outing), reports reach us that this may be the last game played between the Rams and the Collegians . . . seems that LACC has a good chance of jumping into the 4 yr. classification. At present there is a bill in the state assembly for that purpose, which has favorable support of many legislators . . . so-o-o-o as in the case of S. F. State, the Angelenos may pull the stuff, "We don't want to play a 'junior' college!" . . . How about that!

In a check of the want ad section of the main building (bulletin board at the south end) is quite a classical notation on wants or otherwise of this college's students . . . a mild example of witticism appearing on the board reads: "Wanted a student to share room and bath (boy or girl)" Yak!!

Of all the nerve dept. A rather attractive ramette, wandering aimlessly around the west campus a few days back, poked her dainty cranium into The Guardsman office, viewing reporters running around like mad, innocently asked "Is this the Recreation Room?" . . . a well aimed typewriter missed its mark however.

15,000 To Witness LA-SF Gridiron Titanic At Kezar

"PASSIN' FOOL," Frank Seigner of the Los Angeles Cubs. He has completed 11 out of 17 passes this season.

Southern Rivals Rate Big Edge In Friday's "Runyon Fund" Tilt

A record crowd of 15,000 is expected to view Friday's battle between the San Francisco Rams and the LACC Cubs. It will be the Rams' first appearance at Kezar this season, game time slated for 2:45 p.m.

Reports from the southland have placed the Cubs as one of the leading junior college teams in the nation. They lead the Western States Conference at the present time.

The sluggish Rams after a few narrow escapes still hang on to the "A" division lead of the Northern California Junior College Conference.

While no titles are at stake in this modern dress version of the civil war, spirit is high on both sides.

For the first time in the rivalry between the two colleges, proceeds from the contest will go to charity, this year to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

The Cubs are odds on favorites to take the offenseless Rams into camp. Experts claim that the local squad will have to muster three touchdowns to down their Southern rivals. So far, against mediocre opponents, the Rams have averaged only eight points a game.

Yet, the strong San Francisco line is expected to make the game interesting, and could turn the tables on the invading horde.

Both squads operate from the "T" formation. Los Angeles has an excellent passer in Frank Seigner, who has completed eleven out of seventeen passes, so far this season.

Perpetual Trophy To Ram-Cub Winner

As it marks their first appearance before a hometown crowd this season, the local gridders have their eyes on the big game of the year: the Los Angeles City College clash slated for Friday afternoon, November 7, at Kezar Stadium.

This traditional battle, pitting the North against the South in a revival of Civil War, has an added incentive in that the outcome will determine who will polish the perpetual Roos Bros. trophy for the coming year.

The trophy, which was first awarded to the men from the city of lost angels following their 7-0 victory in 1935, was donated by Robert Roos to promote the competitive spirit of this sectional classic.

At present its graces the trophy case of the Rams as a result of their 21-6 effort last year.

Rams, Cubs T Elevens Duel To 6-6 Tie; Mud Slows Down Citymen Scoring Drives

Baxter Stadium, Stockton, Cal. . . Nov. 1.—Sliding through a mud covered turf, here, tonight, the San Francisco T performers kept their lamp for the conference crown still lit, but dimly, when the Klemmer gridders battled the Stockton Cubs to a 6-6 draw.

Once again mama nature's doings defied the fancy, faking abilities of the "T" formation, by bogging both squads' grid attacks.

After transportation difficulties had delayed the kickoff time, the Rams were toyed with by the trap plays of the Stockton offense which culminated in a Tiger-Cub six point tally late in the first quarter.

With right half Ed Barakatt breaking through the tackle spots, the host eleven marched 86 yards via 11 plays into pay dirt area. Al Stockdale's conversion attempt went wide of the posts.

Midway through the third quarter, the citymen went into the end zone for the T. D. Ken Foehr's 16 yard off tackle scoring smash was perfectly executed leaving four Cub tacklers face down in the mud. "Toe" Paul Hagan's conversion attempt failed to reach the goal posts.

The Rams, who were within the goal line area for many minutes of the second half, failed to add any further points on the score board.

RAMblings . .

By Arthur Paymiller

LOOK for Ralph Hillsman to come up with a well conditioned squad when basketball season rolls around. Several of Hillsman's boys are getting much needed experience and seasoning in the current intra-mural cage tourney and should be in near mid-season form for their first conference tilt.

• • •

Although Grover Klemmer's gridders have lost only one game this season their offensive record is nothing to brag about.

If taken on an average of the first four games played, the Rams would come out on top by the overwhelming score of 8 to 6, but who cares as long as they keep on the victory trail?

• • •

Now it can be told: or why catchers equipment is called the tools of ignorance.

It is a hot summer day in Santa Rosa, where the Rams are leading the Cubs 6 to 1 in the eighth inning of the game for the 1947 Coast Division championship of the NCJCC.

With Cub Jack Harwood on third via a triple, a sharp grounder is hit to Ram shortstop Bob Nard, who fires the ball to catcher Herb Markall, trapping Harwood between home and third. During the attempted rundown, Markall whips the hall over third sacker Al Ganem's head into left field, allowing Harwood to score.

When asked by coach Bill Fischer why he threw the ball away, the erstwhile Markall came back: "Well Bill, remember yesterday when you had us practicing a play where the left fielder backs up third when the catcher throws the ball away?"

Fischer said he remembered, whereupon Herb immediately replied, "I thought we were still practicing."

WAA To Sponsor Sadie Hawkins Day In Gym

Rapidly approaching completion are plans for a Sadie Hawkins Day festival to he held at the women's gymnasium Friday, November 14, between the hours of 12 noon and 5:30 p.m.

Tentativcly the festivities consist of a dance and other forms of entertainment. Chairwoman for the day's activities will be Ann Domecus. She will be assisted in her work by several of the local women's groups who will assist the WAA in their role of hostesses.

Plans For Block Rally Nearing Completion

Plans are at present in full swing in regards to the type of entertainment and speakers to be featured at the gala night rally scheduled for Thursday evening, November 6, on the campus.

According to Bill Broderson, entertainment committee chairman, the Block SF Society has secured the services of Eileen Christopherson, vocalist from San Francisco State College who recently appeared in "Fortune Teller" at the Curran Theater.

Broderson and his committee are not stopping with this fine program though. They have hopes of securing additional acts from the Golden Gate Theater.

An Evening With The Hurley Village Neighbors

Guardsman Accepts Dinner Invitation

By Mary Erhart

A year ago last month, Mayor Roger D. Lapham officially opened the northeastern section of the campus, a section of quonset huts, dedicated as a living memorial to Major John J. Hurley, a former member of the college faculty, who died serving his country.

Late last spring another group of quarters was opened. Instead of the original huts, gray apartments were built. One of the lucky couples to first occupy these new units were Mr. and Mrs. Vollie E. Griffin.

Griffin came from Texas to the sunny state of California in 1947. He attended Commerce High School in the city until his senior year, when Uncle Sam bade him enter the United States Army. . . He first served in the coast artillery, and from there he entered the Army's Aviation Cadet program. Griffin saw action in the Alaskan front during the war.

The happiest furlough Griffin ever spent was the one on which he met his wife-to-be. He arrived home from Alaska just as the last guest from his sister's party was leaving. Five months later that guest became Mrs. Vollie Griffin.

Mrs. Griffin, who hails from Minnesota, worked for the Army prior to her marriage and is now employed by the American Red Cross.

The Griffin home on the campus grounds consists of a living room with a kitchen adjoining and a good sized bedroom in the back. The Griffins own their own furniture and have made their place into a very nice home.

As every student has protests of one sort or another, the Griffins are no exception.

The court is filled with dogs and cats who love to howl and mew at any time they please. The Griffins and their neighbors can't figure out what the big attraction is, but they would love to get rid of a few of the howling animals.

There seems to be plenty of noise in the vicinity of apartments and therefore the best time to study is in the afternoon or early morning.

The last problem which they must face is that the heating system is poor, and that what heat does gather, doesn't remain very long.

Even though these temporary housing units are not palaces, and the Griffins realize that, they are serving their purpose of housing the married vets while they are attending the college.

AN EVENING with Mr. and Mrs. Vollie E. Griffin, who live in Hurley Village. The Guardsman photographer stayed for dinner and a pleasant evening. His steak dinner may be seen in the left hand corner of the lower center picture. At last report lensman Jack Nichol was hinting for another invite.

Plans For Bonfire Rally Top Secret

With two days remaining before the presentation of the bon fire rally sponsored by the Block SF Society, the students of the college have been assured of an evening replete with top flight entertainment and pregame color. The nocturnal extravaganza is to be held this Thursday night, November 6.

The men of the society promise a never to be forgotten evening and a few surprises.

Whenever he is questioned about the rally, Sam Goldman, Block SF man, gets a far-away look in his eyes and begins to sing "Mammy."

Asked to make a report on the startling affair, Super sleuth D. C. Rupp stated. "That crowd won't reveal a thing; its top drawer; no way of telling what they might pull!"

Guard Honors Initial Enlistee In Ceremony

The 271 A.A.A. Battalion, California National Guard, honor Bob Swindler for being the first person on the campus sworn into Battery A unit, of San Francisco Junior College.

The ceremony was held at 10 a.m. last Thursday in the coffee shop on the west campus. He was invested by Warrant Officer Charles Sullivan, under authority of Captain Vernon W. Gasser, commanding officer of 112 Brigade.

Sadie Hawkins Dance Planned By Triple E

Gals (unless they're shy) will invite their fellers to Tri-E's Sadie Hawkins' dance scheduled to start at 9 p.m. Monday, November 10, in the auditorium, Max Call, committeeman, said yesterday.

Formal Presentation Of Denman Award Today; Winners Smith And Watkins

Marilyn Smith and Patricia Watkins are the two winners of the Denman Scholarship competition this year, Dean of Women Margaret Dougherty announced yesterday.

President A. J. Cloud will present each of the women students with a check for $125 today in his office.

The women were chosen last week by a judging committee formed by Marcus Skarstedt, librarian; Miss Dougherty, and Dr. Cloud. Miss Smith and Miss Watkins were notified by the president's secretary before public announcement of the winner.

Establishment of the Denman Scholarships which are given here each year was the work of Judge William Denman and his sister, Mary Cheatham.

The awards are given as a tribute to the memory of James Denman, a former superintendent of schools, and later president of the Board of Education.

The scholarships are awarded on the basis of scholastic achievements and leadership in college activities.

Former Student Comes To Radio Dept. Rescue

While visiting this college recently, former student Robert Garner was induced by the English department to apply his engineering skill to the task of rehabilitating the radio equipment at this college, Marie Weller, radio instructor, "confessed" last week.

"Mr. Garner was an outstanding radio production student, and is now an engineer on station KLAC, Hollywood," Miss Weller added.

Maintenance of the radio department equipment will be continued by Mary Sheldon and Arley Tripp, engineering instructors. Graduate engineering students will also have the opportunity to gain operational experience by working with the production class in radio.

Business Booming In Lost And Found Dept.

Business is big in the lost and found department. Fred McFarland coordinator in charge of the west campus, said yesterday.

Books bandannas play the biggest role in keeping the department going, he said. On rainy days there is a rush of umbrellas. McFarland said that the office receives about 15 calls a day from people who have misplaced or forgotten things.

When an article is found it is taken main building. There it is picked up to the telephone switchboard at the by a messenger and taken to the dean's office in Building 2 in the west campus, where it is kept in a locker until called for.

Articles that seldom appear in the lost and found department are pieces of jewelry, and watches, McFarland said.

November 12 Final Day For Dropping A Course

With a deadline for dropping a course set for next week, students were warned by Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, that Wednesday, November 12, is the last chance to take action on this subject.

"Students should report to the registrar's office to obtain drop slips. They will receive further instructions on the procedure which will include securing the signature of the head of the department for that subject," Miss Learnard said.

Our Town Runs 6 Days

First full length drama production of the semester will run six days when Lloyd Sister presents Thornton Wilder's Our Town.

Committee Set Up To Distribute Guardsman

New distribution points for The Guardsman have been announced by Bob Reilly, head of the distribution committee.

The guardshack at the Phelan Avenue entrance to the west campus is one, the main building, and the bar in the lounge of Building 2 is the second.

Associated Student card holders are the students who will get a copy of The Guardsman. Reilly said that students should have their cards ready when they approach the distribution point.

Grid Rivals Clash At Kezar

The Spectator

George Lajeunesse

HURLEY Village, that haven for married refugees from the high cost of living, has been covered at length within The Guardsman's pages.

Come with us today for a quick morning look-in down on the west campus on the three dormitories for single men, known informally as "Squirrelly Village."

This colony of insomniacs is also known to some as Sleepless Hollow, where anyone cultivating the ridiculous belief that the human body needs eight solid, unbroken hours of sleep is looked upon as a trifle eccentric.

THE LOST CAT

Breaking the gentle quiet of dawn is a low roar of snoring coming from each "cell" containing three inmates whose voices are tuned at differing frequencies.

Above all this is heard the patter of canine hoofs . . . a stray St. Bernard, probably looking for the guy that slipped him a cookie yesterday.

Or maybe he's searching out the cat that was accidentally locked in one of the huge closets by mistake. Incidentally, this was a mystery that had many of the boys baffled . . . they at first blamed a newcomer to the dorm, of meowing instead of snoring. The innocent victim was accepted socially after the cat was out of the bag.

BIG BEN SYMPHONY

Now, each cubicle contains three men who, naturally, all have eight o'clock classes. Each of these three men in turn own three alarm clocks. And every alarm clock possesses only two tones, either loud or louder.

Multiply three alarm clocks in each room by 14 rooms on each floor and the result sounds like the Big Ben testing laboratories when they all go off at seven.

EARLY MORNING TUNERS

That gets us off to a flying start. When the bells have ceased tolling 42 arms reach out and turn on 42 radios to 42 different stations.

If Don McNeill, the "old Breakfast Clubber," only knew the competition he has to put up with, he'd hang up his mike and go back to vaudeville.

Just as McNeill is chit-chatting with out-of-town visitor No. 9,000, a Mrs. Ebenezer Sllo of Inner Spring, Indiana, Count Basie gives the downbeat on four choruses of "One O'clock Jump."

Out of another cubicle comes a tired voice narrating the daily market report of the Department of Agriculture. This blends in perfectly with Uncle Boris reading the comics against a background of Roy Acuff's recording of "Put Down That Jukebox Maw, You Can't Carry a Tune."

Two-Year College Leaders In Meet

73 Representatives Hear S.F. Educators At Conference Sessions Today, Sat.

Three of San Francisco's leading educators will address delegates to the California Junior College Conference on Student Government, meeting here through tomorrow.

San Francisco College President A. J. Cloud is expected to welcome conference representatives, with Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools, speaking tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock on the topic, Democracy in Student Government.

Keynote speech today, according to the agenda completed by Trev Burrow, Guardsman editor and conference president, will be delivered by Edwin C. Browne, coordinator of personnel, San Francisco Public Schools, at 11 a.m. Browne, dean of men here before he was drafted to fill his present position in the city's school department, will discuss Stumbling Blocks To Student Control.

All conference sessions are scheduled for the student lounge, Burrow said.

Representing and voting for San Francisco Junior College are Frank Nelson, Associated Student president, and Jo Ellen Cain, vice-president.

Bay Area AGS Leaders Meet Here Tomorrow

A regional conference for chapters of Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, will convene at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the college's west campus student lounge, president Murney Cunningham, announced today.

This meeting will be an informal discussion on methods of increasing faculty and student interest by presenting state awards and scholarships.

Possibilities of a state-wide conference were abandoned but the regional conference will go on as scheduled, Miss Cunningham said.

A Cappella Choir Sings To GI Patients Sunday

Scheduled to sing at Letterman Hospital this Sunday, November 9, the A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Harold Cunningham, will present a varied program of songs and Christmas carols, including Gloria Patri, by Palestrina, and Music When Soft Voices Die, by Dickenson.

Execs Pass Hats For Campus Cops

Consideration of two budgets and the drum majorette question were the main accomplishments of the Student Council at the meeting of Tuesday, November 4.

Approval of $30 for medical supplies for Dr. Thomas P. Jones, campus physician, was given. The question of $20 for Judiciary Force cards, however, was modified, giving that group authority to purchase ten hats for indentification purposes.

The much-discussed drum majorette question was settled by a vote allowing the band two majorettes and one drum major.

Subject Withdrawals Halt Next Wednesday

Deadline for dropping classes, Wednesday, November 12, is drawing near and all students must have their programs completely settled by that date, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, warned today.

"November 12 is absolutely the last day to take action upon the subject. All students who still are signed up for classes after that date must retain them," Miss Learnard said.

Choir Concert Date Moved to December 4

Originally scheduled for Thursday, December 11, the college's traditional Christmas program has been changed to Thursday, December 4, according to Harold Cunningham, director of the choir and men's glee club.

The program is to be given in the Veterans' Auditorium, Cunningham said.

Student Vets Wanted

Les Holden, former XGI Society officer, yesterday repeated his invitation to all veterans on the campus to attend this society's first meeting of the semester, Wednesday, November 12, at 8 p.m. in the student lounge.

YELL LEADER Haig Harrison takes to the air, cutting this inspiring profile of Ram spirit, which will be evident in today's Memorial Game.

"M" Day For Vet Card Payment Falls In '48

The sum of $7400, the amount due this college from the government for veterans' Associated Student cards, is expected in January, Oscar Anderson, controller, announced today.

Nearly all of the money will go toward the payment of the credit slips which are held by the veterans who purchased student cards this semester, Anderson said. "thus making it impossible to make additional grants to student activities."

Our Town Marks Major Fall '47 Drama Event

Thornton Wilder's Our Town, the college's first full scale play production for this semester, is scheduled to be presented within the next two weeks, according to Lloyd Sisler, drama instructor.

The play will have a five day run with admission free to Associated Student card holders. Performances will be held at 8:15 p.m. on November 19, 20, and 21, and at 1 p.m. on November 20, 24, and 25.

Ram-Cub Proceeds Slated For Runyon Cancer Drive Fund

Today marks the tenth annual gridiron reunion for the San Francisco College Rams and the Los Angeles City College Cubs.

The opening kickoff this afternoon will not only send the opposing elevens into action, but will also send the proceeds of this contest into action against the man killer, cancer.

The football thriller today is sponsored by the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund in its continuing fight against the second largest taker of life in the United States, dreaded cancer.

Cubs Suffer One Loss

In an effort to run their win streak into five straight games, the Los Angeles Cubs invade the lair of the potentially powerful Rams with only one defeat, that at the hands of Redlands University in the season's opener.

The Rams, on the other hand, laboring under only one defeat this season by a spirited Vallejo Indian and a tie with the favored Stockton Tiger-Cubs, are searching for their fourth win.

LACC Heavy Favorites

Going into the game, a 5 to 2 favorite, the high flying Cubs are expected to meet severe opposition in the form of the stubborn Ram forward wall, considered by bay area sports writers as the best defensive line in the two year college circuit.

Both teams operating off the "T" should pack the 60 minutes of football with thrills and excitement.

Live Roaring Ram To Show For LACC Battle

A real live ram will promenade around the Kezar field today when the Ram team faces the Los Angeles Cubs on the gridiron. Bill Robertson and Bill Patterson, of Tau Chi Sigma, persuaded Armour-Swift and Company to furnish the animal mascot.

College Hour Will See Campus Clubs Convene

College clubs will meet during the college hour today at 10:40 a.m., with all clubs in their assigned rooms, Dean Jack Brady said yesterday.

The period was scheduled as a pregame rally period.

U. S. College News Roundup

Stanford University: A dummy, missing from the San Jose State Health Office for two weeks, was "found Thursday by a local anatomy student, hanging in a tree, near Roble." (Where was the dummy?)

The manniklin was returned, the daily newssheet informs, when the finder learned from his landlord's daughter who the owner was. The damsel had previously been told by a San Jose man, who should know, that the Health Office was shy one dummy.

• • •

College of Pacific: COP footballers were annoyed by a unique pair of hecklers before a recent contest here with San Jose's Spartans, local sources reveal. Reports claim that preceding the game the locals were bombarded with poetry filled propaganda leaflets, dropped from two low flying cub planes, manned by rabid San Jose fans.

The Stockton sheriff's office took to the air, met, captured, reprimanded the dive bombing, poetical raiders. (Sammy Baugh's Washington Redskins have nothing on this air attack!)

• • •

University of San Francisco: The Dons won their second contest from Santa Clara's Broncos in the 16 times the two teams have met on the football field, at Kezar Stadium last Sunday. Aside from the usual intense rivalry, something new was added to the intent of each team to win, according to the student publication Foghorn.

This newssheet publicized far and wide the locals' theft of the Broncos-St. Mary's bell, claiming "SC bids for 'No-Bell' prize Sunday. Broncs doomed, Bell tolls for SC in coming ding-dong tilt." (The Foghorn was the only San Francisco newspaper batting 1000 per cent in predictions, one out of one.)

New York City College: Cafeteria manager George Fauerbach says professors eat twice as much as students. (And why not, with no midterms around every corner.)

Board Of Education Vote Will Decide "City" Name

WITHIN the next few weeks the college name may be changed to City College of San Francisco.

All indications assure the members of this college that the name change is a certainty.

The overwhelming majority of students as well as faculty are firmly behind this move.

President Archibald Cloud has expressed his desire for a resolution to that effect.

Superintendent Herbert C. Clish has proclaimed himself in favor of the name change plan.

The final decision remains in the hands of the San Francisco Board of Education.

We are certain, however, that the Board will adhere to the wishes of the vast majority of citizens, and rename this institution—CITY COLLEGE OF SAN FRANCISCO!!!

Look Ahead To Elections

IN THE interest of better student government, we feel it is not too early to remind Associated Students that in the short space of three months, the Spring '48 elections will be held.

It is not alone the privilege but the duty of all Associated Students to go to the polls and elect the candidates, who should represent the majority of the students.

In the past, we have witnessed small groups being represented by the majority of officers in student government, mainly due perhaps to the lack of interest by the large body of students.

Above all, one of the main functions of student government, is to appropriate money for student activities.

Thus in electing representatives of all the students, rather than of small campus cliques, the greatest amount of money will be appropriated, so that the greatest number of students will receive benefits.

Welcome To All Delegates

THIS college officially welcomes the delegates of the more than 20 two-year colleges throughout the state of California for the annual California Junior College Student Government Conference that convened here yesterday and will run until Monday.

The primary function of this semester's meeting is to clarify the existing regulations, whereby most of the state's two year institutions are now under secondary school classification, thus all but rendering these two year colleges into high school category.

We sincerely hope that this convention will tend to cement relations of the many two-year colleges throughout the state.

Needling Notations

By Del Pichon

THE OTHER night for lack of anything better to do we decided that we should see the much talked about Forever Amber, the movie adapted from that "magnificent" novel of the same name.

With the cashier leveling her pistol at our chest, we reluctantly paid the buck twenty toll and strolled into the spacious showhouse.

We waltzed in at the height of a community sing which should have been billed above the picture, best damn part of the show, and seated ourselves expectantly.

Presaged by a loud fanfare and the names of the people who take the blame for it, the picture began. Amber (Linda Darnell) flashed on the screen in a series of unrelated events; at least they were unrelated to us for we were drooling over the exquisite beauty of Linda's technicolored face and figure.

After several reels of affairs with some handsome cavaliers, Amber anticlimactically announces her approaching motherhood to her latest boy friend, a highwayman. He seems unaffected by the news and so are we along with the rest of the audience who evidently read the book, too.

We dozed off for a few more cavaliers and awoke to find Amber valiantly staying by her transient lover Bruce Carlton (Cornel Wilde) who has the plague. At this point we discovered that Linda could act, too.

The remainder of the movie tells the story of Amber's climb to the pinnacle of her success, becoming the mistress of Charles II, ably depicted by the best actor in the picture, George Sanders. When she falls out of favor the picture ends without any moral and without any reason other than the fact that after two and one-half hours people get damned tired of Amber even if she is as gorgeous as Linda.

THE BULL PEN

By Robert Tatam

Setting aside our suggestions to the new mayor, which include plans for another parking lot at Kezar, we come to the news that a new fraternity has been organized here.

Called Gamma Phi Upsilon, the new club swung into action last Sunday, cleaning up the campus for the Northern California Junior College Student Government Conference now meeting here.

Members worked with the college publicity committee last week distributing posters for today's Damon Runyon Memorial Game.

Earlier this semester they helped out in the registration line.

The new frat, presided over by Bill Welch, is an active and helpful organization, as are several other campus clubs.

A Term Paper On The Comics

By David Hansen

THE VAST number of local men about town who habitually peruse the campus-accepted morning daily have probably noticed the sterling work of a replacement artist.

We say "probably," because a man is admittedly not at his best while reading off the winners he didn't pick yesterday before the ponies were off and running.

CAEN AND FORM CHART

The aforementioned artist is "Terry's" step-papa, George Wunder. Our student rabidly follows the daily adventures of George's boy, pausing only to determine win-place-show standings, and to peek in on Herb Caen's latest dope.

Whenever the thought flits momentarily through the back of his mind our student friend might silently wish bouquets on George for moving Terry through his adventures in fine style.

Then, another thought undoubtedly flashes through our hero's active, searching, partially-educated mind, to wit: whatever became of Terry's true father?

ENTER "STEVE CANYON"

Well, to those students who may have passed up the employment tracks in favor of education, this is likely to hurt.

Terry's real father deserted his legitimate offspring in favor of caring for a more lucrative meal-ticket, name of "Steve Canyon."

READERS LOYAL TO STRIP

The story lies in the fact, revealed before, but definitely proved this time, that readers of a good comic strip will more often stay loyal to the strip, not the roving artist.

With Terry, Caniff had introduced a host of life-like (and life-copied) characters to his public. With Steve Canyon however, he has attempted to sit down at his drawing board and pen-palm a raft of people just as real.

PREDATORY FEMMES

It didn't work. Steve and his disciples were introduced with readymade reputations, which cannot combat our Terry's (a la George Wunder) realness.

The one feature the two strips now have in common is the random introduction of various inane characters. We believe that the many roving predatory Yankee females therein depicted would be more in place on most American campi.

As for the money angle—do you think we'd sacrifice the integrity of our comic strip for a few lousy dollars? Darned right we would!

• How's That Again?

Editor, The Guardsman:

In promulgating your esoteric cogitations, re the article about Mr. Vishinsky, or articulating your superficial sentimentalities and amiable or psychological observations, beware, my informed friend, Mr. Pichon, of platitudinous ponderosity.

Let your conversational communications possess a clarified conciseness, a compact comprehensibleness, coalescent consistency and a concatentated cogency else the collegiate intelligentsia will confuse those irreducible imponderables you are wont to air in your clever (sic) column. Eschew also, all conglomerations of flatulent garrulity, jejune babblement and asinine affectations. Sedulously avoid all polysyllable profundity, pompous prolixity, psittaceous vacuity, ventriloquial verbosity and vaniloquent vanidity. Shun prurient jocosity and pestiferous profanity, and, above all, don't use large words or complex ideas. . . .

News To Nobody

By Herbert Levy

THE HOT and heavy political campaign for mayor, that ended in a Robinson victory last Tuesday, has provoked some of the boys living on the west campus (70 per cent of them are vets) to do something about this college's election. . . It seems the prime mover in this experiment of independent voters on the campus, is the past Ass. Student pres. of Long Beach City College. The general impression of this group appears to be that a 50 per cent independent vote around here could sweep any candidate into office . . . their purpose is to get all unaffiliated balloters to the polls, thus easily snuffing out organization.

Record Crowd To See Angels Test Locals In Initial Home Fray; Kezar Kickoff At 2:45

By Sam Goldman

Fifteen thousand gridiron fans will witness the finest in two year college football maneuverings today when the Damon Runyon Cancer Memorial Fund sponsors the San Francisco Ram versus Los Angeles Cub classic at Kezar Stadium.

Kickoff time for the tenth intersectional game is 2:45 p. m.

Cub Coach Mike Cirino will lead his southerners onto the green as a two touchdown favorite.

Having buzzed through its seasonal gatherings with but one loss, the Los Angeles aggregation will seek to pack the "Roos Bros." trophy back to the southern mansion.

The Rams have collected five of the nine previous encounters, ell-maxed by their 21-6 trouncing victory last year.

However, the Klemmer leather-packers are fully aware that their eleven must "outsmart" the Cubs during the 60 minute duel to assure themselves of a tie at the very least.

Although the tilt will not affect either team's conference holding, Coach Grover Klemmer has had his campus players running through three days of game-styled scrimmages to emphasize the importance of today's contest.

The Far Western Conference leaders, who have taken wins from Long Beach, Phoenix, Muir, Pasadena, and Chaffey, will also work their "operations T. D." from the fast, fancy stepping "T."

Physically, the Los Angeles players are in perfect game condition, while the Rams have one setback, Ray Stewart, benched by an injury.

If the Rams are to win they must stop the Los Angeles version of Buddy Young, left halfback Woodley Lewis. Lewis has carried the ball 34 times, for an average of 15.4 yards per try. He has made touchdown runs of 84-77-66-46 and 36 yards.

Net yards gained by the Rams in their 21 to 6 defeat of LACC Cubs in 1946 totaled 193, while the Cubs accounted for 121. The fast, powerful 1946 champs chalked up nine first downs to the Cubs' five.

Coach Cirino Of LA Seeks Revenge Today

Leader of the invasion of this city along with his team is Mike (The Brain) Cirino, head coach for the LACC Cubs. The Brain, so called because of his classy brand of grid work, was, like the Rams' Grover Klemmer, an assistant coach last year.

A graduate of UCLA, Cirino was too small to earn a letter. He did, however, earn recognition as a complicated constructor of plays off the T-formation. Before going to LACC, Cirino coached football at the San Fernando High School.

While assistant coach for the Cubs last year, his team lost to the Rams. As head coach this year he will try to gain some sweet revenge.

The Rams' 21 to 6 win over the LACC Cubs in 1946 marked victory number five for that season, the "longest winning streak in SF College history." The streak was broken by Vallejo last month.

Runyon Fund $3000 Richer

Today's game is slated to add another $3000 to the Damon Runyon Memorial Cancer Fund.

Walter Winchell, famous news and radio commentator, stated recently: "We are praying that good fortune will smile on this research fund. If a cure for cancer is found, it will not be treated as a private possession, but will be spread throughout the world."

Winchell is at the present time secretary of the fund, and was a close friend of Damon Runyon.

Intra Touch Football Signups Taken In Gym

Signups for the intra-mural touch-football tournament will be accepted until Wednesday, November 12, intra-mural Director Tom Wilson announced today. Each team will be allowed to field eight players for the tourney.

The deadline for the first round of the tennis tournament has been set for Tuesday, November 11. The playing schedule has been posted in the men's gymnasium.

Hilltop LOOKout

By Dayton Lawson

Bill Fischer, who gets into more hot water than a couple of boiled spuds every time he refs a game, almost got into some more down south last week. Bill calls 'em straight from the book, which sounds fair 'nuff to us. However, on Saturday he called one on the UCLANS for violation of the 25-second substitution rule. Straight from the book, but Lalfrucheric and Co. claimed that they never heard it called that way before, etc., etc. . . . This may or may not be part of Klemmer's Plan, or maybe it's just a coincidence. Anyhow the consisteney of the thing gets more amazing each week. What's amazing? Why, the fifth straight game with no point-after-touchdown scored against us yet! The suspense is getting worse every game. Like waiting for the other shoe to drop to the floor the apartment above you. . . .

And now let's continue with last week's history session:

1942—The lads from the Angel City copped the last game to be played before the war halted the series. The Rams traveled to Los Angeles and got their horns clipped to the tune of 7-0.

1043—Open date.

1944—Cigarette Rationing.

1945—D-Day for Lawson. (Discharge).

1946—The boys get together again at L. A., and the Rams make it stick to the tune of 21-6.

Klemmer: "Boys Set For Season's Best Game"

While the cheering from the stands will be rooting the Ram eleven on to a possible victory, the brain work for the San Francisco gridders will be handled by Coach Grover Klemmer.

Definitely disappointed over his team's previous outings this season, the young, blonde, 25-year-old grid mentor is confident "that this week's practice sessions have set the boys in the right mood to play some good football."

Whether the Ram boss with his two assistant aides, Bill Elsener and Jack Gaddy, can lead the citymen to a victory is to be answered this evening.

Block Society To Form Own Rooting Section

When the local gridders take the field against the Los Angeles City College Cubs this afternoon, they will have the united backing of the Block S. F. Society.

At a special society meeting held last Tuesday evening in the student lounge, the members agreed to band together and form their own rooting section at the game.

President Bill Bahr believes this will serve as a means of bringing the society together as a compact and cooperative organization.

A total of 19 fumbles was spilled on the Gilmore Stadium turf in Hollywood, November 3, 1946, when the Rams overpowered the LACC Cubs 21 to 6, in a battle described as "bereft of orthodox football."

Coeds To Wear Red And White To Game

Coeds are excited about today's bout with Los Angeles City College, and have acquired, for the occasion, the varsity look.

Dressed in red and white, these varsity-looking rammettes plan to be at the game in flying colors, rooting loyally, as well as adding a decorative touch to the great event.

Vogue says vivacious coeds featuring the varsity look wear bright red shirts and white blouses and carry huge crepe-paper pom-poms which they use to cheer with at the "big games." Rooters' caps are the order also, and all good heads are wearing them.

Coaches Tell Views Of Contest Over Radio

Head Coach Grover Klemmer and Line Coach Bill Fischer took to the air waves last night to tell the public about today's game at Kezar.

Bob Fouts, sports editor of Station KYA, interviewed Klemmer on his 6:15 p. m. show last night. Klemmer gave the public an inside view of the game.

Fischer gave his views on today's clash on the 10:15 p. m. sports program on KQW. Carroll Hansen, sports commentator on the program, made Fischer give out with a lot of local color for the game.

No Paper, No Nothin' Comes The Armistice

First day off this semester for some 5,400 hard working scholars at the local institution will be Tuesday, November 11, the day the nation observes the signing of the armistice of World War I.

Since this day is usually brightened by the appearance of the college clarion, the editor of The Guardsman regret to inform the students there will be no paper issued on that date.

FIVE MEMBERS of the Freshman Class dance committee will stage one of the season's social highlights tonight at the Gold Room of the Palace Hotel, when the "Freshman Frolic" is presented following the cherity football game this afternoon.

Augmenting the fight songs, entertaining boogie woogie music will be played while the band is in the rooting section.

The Spectator

George Lajeunesse

NOW that the city elections are over and done with, we can make some observations without being accused of drumming up votes within the hallowed pages of our upstanding college semi-weekly.

Not that we were particularly high on any of the candidates; we were more or less interested in whether one of them, Havenner, could buck the united opposition of four dailies—united at least against him.

He did pretty good at that, polling over 100,000 votes and failing by only 16,000 of overtaking Robinson for the mayor's seat.

CHET'S SEVEN BATHS

It's funny how fast the mud that is slung in a city election can be cleaned up and forgotten so quickly.

"The House That Chester Built" for instance. The opposition claimed Chester MacPhee pulled a dastardly trick by utilizing precious building materials, badly needed to build homes for Our Boys, in constructing for himself a gigantic summer home on the Russian River.

And, horror of horrors, it had seven (7) bathrooms in it!

ELMER LIFTS THE LID

We fail to see any connection between a seven bathroom home and good city government . . . all it proves to us is that "young" Chet MacPhee is indeed a most fastidious gent. We extend deepest sympathy to him and all his bathtubs for his recent third place showing.

Let's see, Judge Robinson was accused of trying to get in office for the sole purpose of ripping the lid off the town for good.

"They" had him rubbing elbows with the liquor crowd from Sacramento and feared he would encourage opening new joints with wild abandon and at the same time be looking the other way while bookies moved back into town.

IS FRANCKY A PINKY?

All the mud thrown at Havenner was tinged a brilliant red. He was practically accused of having a teletype hookup with the Kremlin. One opponent swore he saw Joe Stalin banging a typewriter at the Van Ness and Market headquarters for Francky.

Out of the mess emerges Robinson as the new champ. We don't think he's as bad as his opponents picture him, nor do we believe he's as good as his praise agents claim he is.

With 87 million dollars in the kitty to start with, we don't see how he can miss having the best administration the city has ever had.

"Commercializing" Keeps Damon Runyon Fund Game Off Air

Failure to broadcast last week's Damon Runyon Memorial Fund game with Los Angeles City College was due to opposition expressed by the Park Commission to the effect that it would take no part in the "commercializing" of junior college football.

This caused the cancellation of arrangements that had been made with station KYA for Bob Fouts, sports announcer, to broadcast the game.

The use of the word "commercializing" was attributed by the Park Commission to the fact that KYA was not donating its time, which would have amounted to several hundred dollars, but had contracted with Price Shoes to sponsor the program.

Opera House Needs Women Ushers Today

All women who wish to usher at the War Memorial Opera House for this afternoon's symphony, should report to Dean Margaret Dougherty in building 2 before noon today.

Dean Dougherty announced that the ushers must be at the opera house by 1:30 p. m.

Women who register today may also apply for ushering tomorrow night at 7:30 p. m.

Arrangements may also be made for ushering jobs for the remainder of this season's opera and ballet performances, Dean Dougherty added.

Conference Selects L.A. As Site For Next Student Government Conclave

Clish Instructs Delegates In The Etiquette Of Name Change Action

Decisions made, business completed, and future plans in order, the California Junior College Student Government Conference, headed by Trev Burrow, adjourned here last Saturday, November 8.

Out of four colleges, Sacramento City College, Ventura Junior College, Pasadena City College, and Los Angeles City College, Los Angeles and Pasadena received a tie vote as the site for the spring 1948 conference. Pasadena, however, withdrew, giving Los Angeles the honor of being the next conference host.

Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools, speaking on student government, discussed difficulties and technicalities which face student organizations. Dr. Clish also revealed the proper procedure for replacing the "junior" in two-year college names with "city."

Compton Junior College was elected to handle all future publicity for future meetings of the group.

Continuing in its spirit of cooperation the conference approved all amendments suggested by the group's constitutional committee.

Dean Edward E. Sandys, delivering the final address of the conference, stated that he was "completely in favor of the conference," and offered suggestions for future conferences.

Advisers Distribute Grades Next Week

Distribution of first midterm grades, scheduled to take place on Wednesday, November 19, will be handled by advisers who are to be stationed in assigned rooms, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced today.

A tentative program was outlined in which the distribution is to be divided into two days, with a college hour schedule planned for both days, Miss Learnard added.

Mascot Guardian Is Kezar Casualty

A blow inflicted by a Kezar gateman with a "two by four plank," resulted in the immediate hospital treatment last Friday of a National Guard Sergeant who was trying to bring a truck containing the college ram into the stadium for the Runyon Memorial game.

The blow resulted after an argument over an entrance pass. The sergeant who was authorized to bring the ram into the game by his commanding officer had not been provided with the proper pass.

The sergeant then asked if his commanding officer who had issued the order could be called to the gate. The gateman declined this request, and after the exchange of tempers, the sergeant was struck.

High Frosh Start Speech Test Monday

Speech B tests, required of all students with two or more semesters at the college, will start Monday, November 17, in Building 19 on the west campus, Michael Griffin, English department instructor, announced yesterday.

Passing the test is required for graduation from the college and the Associate in Arts degree.

Tests will be given by various instructors in English, Griffin said.

Mu Iota Psi Holds Record Dance Tonight

Presenting November Nocturne, Mu Iota Psi, college music club, will sponsor a dance tonight in the student lounge, according to Helen Setulov, club president.

Prizes for dancing will be awarded.

Hotel Alumni Meet

A monthly informal gathering has been added to bind closer the alumni of the Hotel and Restaurant Division. The session, to be held at Director Hilda Watson's home, will enable former students to renew old friendships.

Improved West Campus Ready In Four Weeks

Improvements, in the shape of a bell system, adequate lighting, and sufficient blackboards in the west campus class rooms, a new stage for the auditorium and a wing of the library, which will be situated in Building 2, are due for completion in three or four weeks, Oscar Anderson, controller, announced today.

Council Squabbles Over News Policy

Debate over conceptions of The Guardsman's editorial policy brought forth violent discussion and little accomplishment at the Student Council meeting of Thursday, November 6.

The first bone of contention, voiced by council member Pat Pollack, questioned the appearance of American Veteran's Committee announcements on the front page of The Guardsman rather than in the club section. Later Pollack added that in his opinion the editorial policy of the paper is always directed against the activities of the Student Council.

Trev Burrow, Guardsman editor, stated in reply that the editorial policy of the paper is formed by the editorial staff, and that the opinions of the columnists are not necessarily those of the paper.

Burrow added that comment in praise as well as criticism of the council has appeared in the past and the paper will continue this policy in the future, when newsworthy action by the governing body occurs.

Two Five-Year-Olds Named Candlebearers

Tommy Porter and Carol Ripley will act as candlebearers for the processional, Adeste Fidelis, in the college music department's annual Christmas concert scheduled Thursday, December 4, in the Veterans Auditorium, Gertrude Norgard, co-director of the program, said Wednesday.

Young Porter is the five-year-old son of Thomas R. Porter, president of the Faculty Association, and little Miss Ripley, also five years old, is the daughter of James Ripley of the college physics faculty.

Bunks Still Available In West Campus Dorms

Authorities have never been forced to turn away any student from the west campus dormitories because of lack of room, according to Oscar Anderson, college controller.

There is a 20 per cent vacancy at present because most of the rooms have three occupants rather than four which could be accommodated, if necessary.

The rent is $11.50 per bunk, a month, reduced from the $15 charged at the beginning of the semester.

This charge includes weekly linen changes and laundry privileges.

AWS To Entertain Prep Seniors November 20

Plans for the traditional Associated Women Students tea, Thursday, November 20, honoring high school seniors, were revealed today by Margaret Dougherty, dean of women and sponsor of the organization.

The tea will be held from 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the student lounge.

All women students are urged to attend in order that they may become better acquainted with prospective students of the college, the dean added.

Is Education Blinding Us To Realities Of Life?

A GUARDSMAN columnist (not editorial writer) got to thinking out loud—in print—and it seems his thoughts displeased a number of readers who immediately hung the titles "yellow sheet" and "war-monger" on the paper.

This writer wasn't war-mongering—he went far past that stage and, theoretically, had Russia and the United States deep in the throes of World War III.

We might not always agree entirely with what a column writer may have to say within these pages, but we do believe in "giving him his head," that is, complete freedom of individual thought, providing he stays within the bounds of good taste.

This particular writer has been accused of poor taste in daring to suggest that a third world war is in the offing.

It is at this point we feel it necessary to go to bat for the columnist and disagree with those readers who feel they have been offended by such "war propaganda."

No, we do not take complete sides with our staff member, nor do we urge all eligible men in the college to take up a gun once more.

But we do think there is imminent danger of another war . . . we refuse to ignore the danger and believe that any person who does is a fool.

That hackneyed old phrase, "I can't see the forest because of the trees" would appropriately fit the college point of view on the world situation of today.

By the same token it would appear that many students can't find a liberal education because of all the books in the way.

Stop us if we're wrong, but by "liberal education" we assume not only knowledge in the fields of science, literature, the arts and so forth, and added to this an alive, alert approach to the problems that immediately face us . . . the very struggle of self-survival, if we must put it that way.

We do not intend to lose sight of today's problems within the maze of yesterday's textbooks nor hide ostrich-like behind a flimsy curtain of coming social events.

Charity Game A Success

FOR their part in making the charity football game last Friday at Kezar a success, we commend the Student Council, and the untiring efforts of Max Call and Arnold Wechter, college publicity directors.

In addition, we extend appreciation to Bill Leiser, Art Rosenbaum, Chronicle; Curley Grieve, Bob Brachman, Examiner; Bud Spencer, Joe Haughey, News; Tom Barca, Call-Bulletin; Carroll Hansen, KQW; Bob Fouts, KYA; and Dean Maddox, KFRC.

Needling Notations

By Del Pichon

"WARMONGER" is a serious stigma to attach to any man and it seems ironical that the very people who usually brand others with this title are in themselves more guilty than the accused.

To be named a warmonger in these times it is only necessary to mention anything in connection with militarism or to voice feebly the opinion that sometime in the future another war may occur. History and the faults in human personality seem to agree with this supposition.

However, these people are not real warmongers; on the contrary, it is the so-called "pacifists" who are guilty of causing war.

By the very fact that they do declaim it and accuse persons of their own and other nations of mongering war, they foment hatred and suspicion, the first two steps toward war.

Hatred and suspicion, which like malignant cancer grows and festers in the hearts of the people until it erupts in the stench of putrefying bodies, the gore and guts of the battlefield, and the screams of soldiers stretched on the rack of pain and fear, their entrails spewing from their dying carcasses.

It seems illogical in this supposed Age of Reason not to recognize the fact, even though we dislike to part with idealistic sentimentality, that in this world, unfortunately, might makes right in intersectional politics.

Those who are not honest enough to realize this, and denounce others for being realistic about the matter, are the warmongers!

Still, not satisfied with having actually laid the groundwork for war, these "pacifists" proceed to call for demilitarization and disarmament; emasculating and making impotent that power which alone can protect them from the juggernaut which they have set in motion.

Ah War, they name is Peace in the mouths of fools.

THE BULL PEN

By Bill Riley

AN INTERESTING point was brought to the attention of this columnist by Al Deutsch, council member. Christmas vacation runs from December 13 to January 5 with a three day interruption when classes are temporarily resumed, the 29th, 30th, and 31st of December.

Many students had hoped to visit families out of state over Christmas and New Year's, but the three day resumption of classes puts an end to any such plans. Would it be possible that when next year rolls around, students could enjoy a full vacation with no breaks?

A word of praise should be handed to the band on the fine show they put on during half-time at the Ram-Cub game. The improvised uniforms were highly original and amusing. It seems doubtful that any uniform could surpass those worn at the game.

Numbskull Rambles Campus

By Ann Land

IN THE preliminary study of campusology, a beginning student must always keep an ear glued to the ground. In this anchorage, the masters guarantee that even an ignoramus will get all the dirt.

As a warning, campusology authorities disclose that the learner's position is a perilous and wincing one; he can easily get kicked about, used as a step by social climbers, and some prominent individuals of high standing may well cause the student to feel quite low.

Taking the advice of the gray-heards, the spic-and-span novices proceeded to take the position suggested and to collect the dirt.

Something was up, no down, thought Rover Numbskull, campusology fledgling, when he saw a group of long skirts settling on the lawn. On closer observation, he recognized them to be the pixies of the Beta Getcha Guy Sorority, an established and exclusive society, all the members having belonged for at least the past ten semesters.

"All right," one of them cried, "all together girls, let's shout our slogan so that everybody on this campus will know that we still have plenty of spirit. Come on now, yell!"

"Eeny Meeny Miny Moe, We'll catch a Joe before we go," they screamed hysterically.

"Wish you luck," Numbskull shouted, "you golls won't he able to be here much longer."

In his flight from saddle shoes and old lunches, Numbskull was stumbled and stepped upon by a hungry-looking coed who dropped, in her haste, a curiously perverted love letter reading:

"Hamburger, I love you enough to eat. You're my sappy sip, sup and guzzle. Dine with me tonight, my wonderful Irish stew. Meet me at the 'Iron Pot.'

(Signed) Cannibal Cate."

Most unusual, thought Rover, licking his chops over the latest find. After a few more scoops he hurried back to Dean Herr Curley, a mellow, bald-headed gentleman, who was head of the Campusology department.

"Dean," he cried, "my campusology investigation has proved most satisfactory. I kept my ear glued to the ground, and I feel I have really gotten the dirt."

"I'll say," snapped Curley, "look at yourself, Numbskull, you're covered with it."

• B-B Guns Or Bombs

Editor, The Guardsman:

In my opinion Del Pichon should be awarded the Willie Hearst "Good Taste" journalist's award for 1947.

His pertinent and thought provoking column, which asked the question, "Shall We Fight Russia with B-B guns or Atomic Bombs?" was in the best tradition of yellow journalism.

War, talk of war, hate-mongering, in the daily press is not enough—now it enters the college and our own humble, but ever-vigilant Guardsman.

I'm sorry for biting one of my lesser tormentors.

"Scared" Larry Liberal.

• Willie's Boy (?)

Editor, The Guardsman:

This letter is in regards to an editorial by Del Pichon (who is this guy, a Hearst writer?).

As a rule the school paper has some very excellent editorials in it and they deserve the highest praise. But this editorial appearing in Tuesday's issue of the paper sounded like something out of the San Francisco Examincr or the News.

We see enough war mongering in the country's dailies without it appearing in the college newspaper.

Let's have a few more editorials on how we can preserve peace and not so many on what the weapons of the next war are going to be.

A Peace-Monger.

• Lecture Appreciated

Editor, The Guardsman:

Monday night, November 3rd, I was fortunate in being able to attend the lecture, "Shortcuts in Mathematics" presented by Dr. Milton Polissar to the members of the Pi Mu Gamma and other students of the school.

In my opinion it was one of the most outstanding and helpful lectures that I have heard for some time.

Lectures, such as this one, will benefit other students besides myself, who have to take courses in mathematics. Let's have more of this.

News To Nobody

By Herbert Levy

NEWS has finally been spread around town that old Ramland is larger than the other major colleges in S. F. combined, and that it is one of the ten largest colleges in the state . . . with this startling revelation, it seems the inevitable cry of "no stadium" is echoing over the windy hills. Carroll Hansen, KQW sportscaster (10:15 p.m. Mon.-Fri.) comes up with the excellent idea of a stadium seating 20,000 to be used by this college in conjunction with S. F. State on alternating weekends (when one team is out of town), to be constructed at State's Lake Merced field. . . Hansen has promised to plug the idea over his program, and reveals that his sponsors (Kaiscr-Frazer) may back the project monetarily!!!

Notes on the LACC tilt: Seems the best show of the game occurred at half time, when the college half a hundred musicians came trotting on the field dressed as only an outfit with no money to buy uniforms can look; however, their effect was varied—A Chronicle sportswriter, Art Rosenbaum, called it the "best band set we've seen on any turf in years." The band's purpose was obvious. There was a failure somewhere along the line to appropriate $1,000 for these non-Petrilloites, who can really play good music!! That live ram which stood by the bench nibbling grass, while his name-sake gridmen were out on the field biting the dust, was lent to this college by the Swift Meatpacking Co. . . . seems this outfit will lend us a ram any time there is need for one, providing it is brought back the same day, why? . . . by 6 p. m. our mascot turns into ram-chops! Chunky Lee Elsan, one of the last to leave the stands, was wearing a Mona Lisa smile . . . could it be because he coached the vaunted '46 champ foothailers, who took LA apart klieg light by klieg light down south last year, 21-6?

Notations on trivia: (more so) Last Friday's Freshman Dance bids had the word sponsors spelled "sponsers". (My, my!!!).

Gridders Must Stop Salinas 'T'

Rams Hit Comeback Trail At Balboa, Need Win Today For Chance At Playoff

Turning their grid thoughts back to the NCJCC title race, after last week's blistering Los Angeles intersectional tilt, the San Francisco "T" technicians remain in the Golden Gate city to welcome the Salinas Panther eleven this afternoon at 2:30 p.m. on the Balboa High School field.

As the two-year colleges begin to draw their football schedules to a conclusion, the Klemmer Ram men, if they desire any portion of the A division victory gathering, will have to outscore both this afternoon's Salinas invaders, and next week's final league opponent, the Modesto Pirates.

Getting back to today's battle of the T tantilizing teams, conference standings find the Salinas squad with two wins, Stockton (7-6), and San Mateo (12-7), while setbacks from Santa Rosa (0-16), Sacramento (27-32), and Modesto (14-32) place the Panther players in the No. 5 spot among the A group teams.

Under the teachings of new boss Coach Bob Robinett, the valley visitors possess a formidable machine, with a better than even chance to remove the Ram's crown hopes with such offensive leaders as quarterback Charles Monard, left half Doyle Burnett, right half Clarence Twitchell, and crushing fullback Russ Bohlke.

While the seven-day rest period has aided the recuperating campus carriers, Klemmer and his board of grid campaigners, have been making many changes, sparked by the return of starting left half Ray Stewart to lead the college's plays at the kick-off time.

Although the coaching staff remains mum on the subject, one gentleman, halfback Ken "Whizzer" White, missing from the team's scene because of an ankle operation, may soon don the Red and White suit.

RAMblings . .

By Sam Goldman

EVER since the military forces laid down their arms to promote the peace missions, a mighty arm of the collegiate press known as the sport writing department has led an offensive operation against the coaches.

Why the "press box strategists" have blasted with such a verbal battering can be explained in one of two ways. Either the sports writers of their respective institutions are sincerely interested in improving the athletic situation at their alma maters, or these columnists have hold of a new sheep, and are having a joyous time skinning the poor soul alive.

GREY HAIRS FOR COACH

The brains of the athletic division, the coaches, in most cases have been left by the press to their thankless tasks, but the constant threat that sooner or later one of the sportsmen will write "fire the bum," in bold face, has led to a sudden growth of grey hairs in the sweat-suit division.

Recently a highlight of the football scene, followers of the game have been told that certain renowned mentors of the better and bigger teams (as an example St. Mary's Moraga mansion and U.C.L.A.'s Westwood hut) should receive the "paycheck" call according to their respective school's writers.

Whether the coaches are hitting less than 1.000 in their teaching tactics will be left for colleges to decide; however, certain facts should be presented before this recent "retirement" epidemic gets out of control and becomes a national unemployment problem.

COACHES LIKE WINS

The sports writers are in most cases the biggest voices in their campus areas; therefore, they should begin to realize the position of their coaches. Most coaches are performing a "near perfect" task in producing good athletic squads. No coach wants to present a losing team to his school; every coach likes the victories and the conference championships.

A most disastrous situation can occur when the key ticking men and the "big bosses" of the athletic division break relations.

Fellow journalists might better sign the "Sports Writers Peace," and leave the turfmen and coaches to their job. The coach will know when he has become an old fashioned athletic stylist.

Los Angeles Trips Ram Team, 14-0

By Roy Paslnl

Before a crowd of 6,000 fans, the San Francisco Rams battled a highly favored Los Angeles Cub eleven to a scoreless half-time tie only to lose last Friday's intersectional tilt in the second half by a 14-0 count at Kezar Stadium.

The locals, playing their most spirited brand of ball all season, took control of proceedings immediately after Woodley Lewis, the Los Angeles version of Buddy Young, had brought the crowd to its feet with a couple of bursts of speed in the opening minutes of play.

The Rams displayed a ground attack which threatened to go all the way at any moment, but fell short of paydirt.

With four minutes gone in the third quarter, Lewis, highly touted as a deception artist, proved his true worth when he broke over right tackle and started off on a beautiful 76 yard touchdown gallop through a broken field. Wilson converted to give the Southern lads a hard earned 7-0 lead.

The final score of the clash came late in the fourth quarter with the locals deep in the shadow of their own goal post. John Dywer, L.A. scatback, grabbed a Jim Greene pass on the S.F. 30 and headed for paydirt only to be stopped short at the four yard marker.

Determined to pick up the unneeded six points, Ray Wirick tucked the leather under his arm and boomed into the end zone. Wilson made it an even fourteen points for the day with his conversion.

Joint Meetings, Dance On Block Society List

At a Block SF Society meeting held last week, the group tentatively scheduled joint meetings with the Kappa Phi and Delta Psi sororities, thereby taking the initial step in the society's effort to meet the members of other college organizations.

Also on the agenda of the meeting was a discussion of plans for the society's sport dance to be held Friday, November 21, in the auditorium. Tickets were distributed to the members and are now on sale at $1.50 per couple.

WAA Playday Set For Santa Rosa Next Sat.

Invitations for women's playdays from colleges in California have practically swamped the Women's Athletic Association mailbox, Gloria Swicegood, WAA adviser, said yesterday.

Presently appearing on the WAA schedule for the badminton and hockey clubs, is a playday event at, and with, Santa Rosa Junior College, scheduled Saturday, November 22.

HECKLED LI'L ABNER has nothing on handsome Bob Green, target of the romantic aspirations of pretty coeds Ann Domacus and Charlene Burgess, both inspired by the Sadie Hawkins Playday this afternoon at 1 o'clock. Ann is performing the leg art, while Charlene is either tickling or gripping Green in a powerful half-nelson.

Intra Hoop Play In Finale; Badminton Underway Today

With one half of the intra-mural basketball campaign gone by the boards, four teams remain on top in the overall picture with perfect records of four wins and no defeats.

The Pacific Coast League boasts a pair of these undefeated hoopsters in the Jefferson A.C. and the Ram Rod quintets. The Sugar Mountain Boys are setting the American Loop pace and Pag's Club is rolling along in front in the National League. The Bush League top spot is divided between the Happy Go Lucky, Whiz Kid, and Hotel and Restaurant Division fives, with three wins and one loss apiece.

Director Tom Wilson has announced the following deadline dates for the ping pong, tennis and badminton tournaments.

This afternoon has been set as the final day to complete play in the first round badminton singles and doubles competition.

The second round deadline for the ping pong doubles tournament has been listed for Tuesday, November 18. Also receiving the November 18 final mark was the quarter final round of the tennis doubles tourney.

All opponents are listed in the men's gymnasium, along with each competitor's phone number and gym class.

Wilson requested all those who have won medals from intra-mural play last season, but have not yet received them, to see him in the gym at their earliest convenience.

College Soccer Team In Final Fling At USF

Soccer at the college will come to an end tomorrow when the local squad will take to the field against the University of San Francisco Dons at the opponent's lair.

The Dons are rated as one of the top teams in the conference race, as they have a strong defense and fast plays. Since this is the last league game for the Rams this year, they will endeavor to how out of the season with a win in this last game.

The California Aggie soccer team defeated The San Francisco Rams last weekend, 1-0 in a conference tilt.

New organizations which have not yet filed proper forms, the CAB warned are Retail Merchandizing Society, Bridge Club, and Chess Club.

WORD has seeped out from the the Postoffice that the first Christmas card of the year plopped onto the "faceup" table and zipped through the canceling machine on its way; spreading joyous Yuletide cheer to one and all.

That Time of the Year when postoffice employees go on a benzedrine diet and suffer from stamps before the eyes until well into the new year.

When college boys give the brushoff to excess girls friends in an endeavor to cut down on the cash outlay for presents . . . and make up with them in time to get a New Year's Eve date.

Everything is in readiness, the downtown stores have their displays set up. All pseudo-Santa Clauses are under contract to leer at the kiddies, and a trail is cleared between Market Street and the Mint for all the merchants to toddle along, lugging their little socks filled with greenbacks.

Oh, happy, joyous postwar Christmas season! When the favorite Yule cards are the ones signed by W. A. Julian and John W. Snyder, embossed with a finely etched portrait of one G. Washington . . . and a Merry Christmas to you, Treasury Department!

Whatever happened to the good old San Francisco Christmas Eve when a cold rain pelted down on autos loaded with well-wishers traveling from open-house to open-house?

When wet, shivering guests were received into a brightly lit living room and seated before a hot, roaring fire. When the only present they expected, and got, was a "Merry Christmas!" and a tingling Tom and Jerry down the hatch.

Then everyone piled back into the crate and splashed down the block to another house for another T & J, and kids romped around a big tree while their fathers laid out the electric train and Erector set and rushed the junior set off to bed so they could play on uninterruptedly.

When children got the presents and grownups got true hospitality.

Ifospitality? Well, maybe there weren't enough chairs to go around and some had to flop down on a deep rug before the fireplace and get bits of broken ornament and tinsel in their hair.

But on one cared as long as punch bowls had no bottoms and it didn't cost a dime to gather around a piano and sing "The Man on the Flying Trapeze."

And long about dawn they reached the last house on the list; filled with cheer, beer and eggnog to settle down to a ham and egg breakfast.

Our Town Opens At 8:15 Tomorrow Night, Rm. 28

Former Pasadena Playhouse Actor Cast As Wilder Drama Stage Manager

By Bill Whitney

A fictive curtain rise marks the first night showing of Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer prize winning play, Our Town, tomorrow at 8:15 p.m. in Room 28, Lloyd Sisler, drama instructor, announced yesterday.

Act one gives a brief history of Grover's Corners, New Hampshire, and its citizens. The major part of this act takes place in the homes of the Gibbs and Webb families. The audience is introduced to these families at breakfast and shown a day in their lives.

The love affair between George Gibbs and Emily Webb in act two culminates in a moving wedding scene.

The final act takes the audience to the village cemetery. There, many of townspeople previously introduced are patiently waiting as Emily Webb joins them.

Five years in the Pasadena playhouse is a fitting background for Philip Onstott, who holds the important lead of Stage Manager in Our Town.

Double cast in the role as George Gibbs are Jack Hagan and Dave Huenergardt. Ruth Shephard and Regina Warchot will take the feminine lead role of Emily Webb.

STRETCHING IMAGINATIONS to the utmost (theirs and the audience's) Dave Huenergardt and Regina Warchot talk about the moonlight; while Norma Carlson acts the part of a typical sister in Our Town which opens here tomorrow.

Amori Says Vets Cinch Post Office Employment

Christmas jobs are a sure thing for veterans, but they are much in doubt for non-veterans. Joseph Amori, placement chief, said yesterday.

The post office, on orders from Washington, is hiring only vets unless the supply of ex-GIs runs out before the quota is filled.

Amori related that non-veterans will get a chance at post office work only if there aren't enough vets to handle the mail. Other jobs, department stores and offices are nearly filled, Amori said.

U. S. College News Roundup . . .

San Jose State College: Of 2,500 student veterans enrolled here at the semester's beginning, at least 87 have already quit thrpugh inability to meet financial responsibilities, because the non-materialization of the expected government checks, local VA counsellors reveal. More students are daily dropping their studies for the same reason; the general public has finally learned this on a large scale, through the medium of a local daily newssheet with a circulation much larger than the average college paper.

* * *

Stanford University: Thousands of students, ostensibly being financed by the GI Bill of Rights, are anxiously awaiting the postman and the long brown envelope with the subsistence check. Some checks have arrived, many are yet being resignedly awaited, students here report.

* * *

University of San Francisco: Veterans representative Joseph Sullivan has asserted that at the semester's beginning, students were warned that there would be a six week delay in issuing subsistence checks.

To date, the current semester is will past that mark, and large numbers of students are still awaiting the funds guaranteed them under Public Law 346.

* * *

University of California: The veterans information office at UC's Berkeley campus, where the largest single group of student veterans in the state are located, has expressed only calmness over the subsistence check situation, hardly acknowledging it to exist. The office reported that some students have received their checks on time, that there have been few complaints, that the situation is no worse than it ever was.

(Things can't get much worse!)

San Jose State College: According to the Spartan Daily, yesterday the missing manniklin of the Health Office had a homecoming day. Missing for two weeks, the dummy had been discovered in front of Stanford University's Freshman Women's Dormitory by a man who claimed to be an anatomy student. (We dare not comment.)

Registrar Is Grounded "Intact," Grades Late

All mid-term grades will be held up pending the return of Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, who has been attending the Registrars' Convention in Seattle.

This delay is due to the fact that word has just been received that the plane Miss Learnard was waiting for has been grounded with all passengers delayed. Students, therefore, cannot count their A's until they're received next week.

Flower Man Sets Date

Henry Nelson, floriculture department head, today set a tentative date, Monday, December 1, for the opening of the new greenhouse, located on the west slope above the men's gym.

Open Letter To Robinson; "Four Million Will Do . . ."

DEAR Mayor-elect Robinson:

First of all please accept our heartiest congratulations upon your recent victory in the hard-fought mayoralty campaign.

May we of San Francisco Junior College join all citizens in wishing your coming administration the greatest measure of success?

Now, forgive us for injecting a commercial note into this letter but there is a little matter out here at Balboa Park that has been giving us difficulty for some eight years and we'd like to toss in a reminder so that you might enter it in your memo pad for future reference.

It concerns the 87 million dollars that city voters recently presented to San Francisco to build it up to the greatest city in the West as it rightly should be.

Eight-seven million dollars is a tidy little sum, we well agree, and, frankly, we'd like to put the "bee" on the new administration for a paltry four million or so of it.

We don't feel we are out of line at this time in asking for the cash, as we've been twiddling our thumbs for eight long years up here on the hill, waiting for the rest of our college to be built.

As you know, we have a beautiful three story science building sitting high atop Balboa Hill . . . it's been sitting there since 1940 in fact.

But immediately surrounding the science building are a series of gaping holes that should contain, 1) a library, 2) a fine arts building, 3) a student union building, and, 4) a group of classroom buildings.

We're not doing so badly at this moment, however. While we have a science building designed for 3,000 jammed with a more than 5,000 enrollment, the Navy was nice enough to let us move in on the former Wave barracks across Phelan Avenue, so the situation isn't critical by any means.

Getting back to the subject though—that 87 million fascinates us—we'd like to see the project started before our science building gets too old for the rest of the college buildings.

We have no doubts whatever as to the success of your coming administration. According to our studies of economics, an 87 million dollar start should insure a rousing future for almost any kind of a venture.

We are aware that the voters gave you 87 million for projects other than a college, but we reason that if Mr. and Mrs. San Francisco will come across with that amount to save the Muni Railway and the city streets, they may be convinced to complete the college they began.

With that in mind, we close with the best of luck to you and, to borrow a campaign phrase of yours, "Let's Get Rolling!"

The Editors.

Needling Notations

By Del Pichon

DOWN in the land of the longhorn, Texas to the non-western reader, men are men and women are like Linda Darnell, Ann Sheridan and Rita Hayworth, or so the Texans say. But Texan women are also noted for their hardiness, according to their men, and now at last the Texans have a leg to stand on.

The leg was provided by a petite miss of sixteen summers who has a yen to play football, not with other girls, but with boys on the local prep squad. The payoff is that she is rating on the team while playing the rugged position of tackle.

Which brings to mind that women are really invading the domain of man, let's suppose that women eventually entered the field of professional football. . .

Bone Crusher Betsy is playing opposite Ham Hands Hanna. . . Signals on. . . Ball snapped. . . "Where did you get that darling shade of lipstick, Betsy?" asks Hanna as she viciously rip charges Bone Crusher.

"I got it at a bargain sale in Schmlop's Department Store," answers Bone Crusher as she belts Ham Hands in the choppers. "It's called Warm Blood, do you like it?"

"Why, yes. I think that it is adorable," Hanna replies as she gently places her cleated foot in Betsy's face. "And it matches the color of your blood, too."

"My, what a beautiful hairdo you have," gasps Bone Crusher upon kicking Ham Hands in the head and knocking her helmet off. "Where did you get it done?"

"Oh, I got it done at that little shop around the corner from the stadium," pants Hanna, as she gouges Bone Crusher's eye. "Well, see you next play, they're huddling again. . . Bye, Bone Crusher."

"Bye, Ham Hands. . . Toodle oo!"

If it ever comes to this man will lose faith in women. As far as we are concerned, we like our women the California way, dainty, demure, and beautiful.

Mike Callahan spent the last four years walking here from San Diego and has met more children and dogs than most people ever see.

Mike paints street numbers on curbs, for $425 a month yet. (Joseph Amori, please note.)

Every four years he starts out from San Diego, walking north via swank residential sections. Now in San Francisco, he is going to fly United back to Diego where he will start all over, repainting weather-worn numbers.

Meeting a potential customer at his front door, Mike offers to beautify and identify the curbing in front of said customer's house by painting the house number thereon.

Children and dogs immediately gather 'round when Mike stretches out on his stomach in the street to paint the curb. They often follow him for blocks on the door-to-door trek.

Pichon Fans Acclaim His Perspicuity

• Self-Interest Groups

Editor, The Guardsman:

Actions needed, not only words.

The present administration of the student government is the most self-interested group that has ever been voted into our college. These officials were elected by a small minority in last year's election. They seem to care more about the welfare of their small privileged group than the general welfare of the student body.

Let's place the blame where it belongs; it is the fault of last semester's students, not turning out the vote to get a more representative body. Another fault is that we should have more candidates of an independent group, not of special self-interest groups.

Make this year's election a truly democratic one by getting action of The Guardsman and other independent elements to get out the vote.

AS IN the past semesters, a month or so previous to the student elections at this college, a certain hush-hush "concordant" (representing several groups on the campus) have a little tete-a-tete and choose a candidate for student president, vice-pres., and naturally the student council. All members of these groups vote according to the "concordant" choices, as demonstrated in previous semesters, and their success has been tremendous! Out of a usual election around here, when some 600 students turn out to vote, these outfits rack up nearly 5/6 of the total vote . . . seems this trip their well oiled political machine slipped up somewhere and from all reports there will be TWO candidates seeking the support of this ordinarily solid block of votes!!

When Sam's boys are "well healed" with 65 dollars dispensed by the Vet Administration, the Zanzibar down on Ocean Ave. receives the play from the college vets for the early part of the month (before they slip back to the fold, i.e. ALS), which is unusual only because the Zanz is supposed to be of Polynesian atmosphere, serving Chinese food, with a Spanish singer, crooning Hill-billy tunes! (whew)

With the Rams running a hot & cold grid machine this season, it still cannot be compared with a few seasons ago, when Ramiand was administered its most humbie thrashing in the annals of the college football team —this institution was defeated by George Washington High School! The kicker is: This was at the height of the war, and we were using girls for water boys!!)

"Marryin' Sam" amusingly portrayed by John Campiglia, at the successful Tri-E Sadie Hawkins Dance last week, "hitched" couples for 10¢ whereby they were compelled to osculate with each other, to wit, a young Ramette stated, "This is rather an unusual way to START an evening."

Spectre Of College Spirit . . .

By Ed Roper

TO BE labelled a "rah-rah boy" around this campus seems to be the ultimate in degradation. These unfortunates may stand high in the esteem of their intimates but by the vast majority they are looked upon as being immature and not having grasped "The Purpose of College."

Rah-rah, as typified by bonfire rallies, Frosh-Soph Day, and crowded cheering sections has never gotten a firm foothold on this campus. The only evidence of the rah-rah spirit on the scene today is the 90 percent student backing of the college name change. The rest of the mutton-heads wouldn't object to the joint being called P.S. #12. An interested party could raise more enthusiasm from King Tut's mummy than can be raised from the dead heads around this college.

From hereon we speak of college spirit instead of the slang "rah-rah."

College spirit most definitely has always been and will always continue to be an essential part of a successful college. Such spirit as found at U.C.L.A., University of Nevada, Michigan, Notre Dame, and Texas A. & M., to mention a few, has never been known on this campus. This general lack of spirit has arisen through the years to the present deplorable condition where today any student who sincerely expresses a pride in this college and everything it stands for, is looked upon as a naive ninompoop.

The total absence of an esprit de corps in the student body is naturally reflected in the spirit of teams the college sends to the athletic field. A segment of the whole cannot be expected to possess attributes that the whole lacks.

The spirit displayed by our teams is a product of their own inspiration and invention. Under the existing conditions that spirit commands manifold respect, but the will to win, that does win games for a capable squad, is that spirit imbued by unflagging enthusiasm and appreciation on the part of the student body. Student support at this college fluctuates unpredictably.

Let's grant that infusing "the old school try" into the student body and consequently the athletic teams is a Herculean task. But for the betterment of the college it must be done.

NCJCC Title On Block As Rams, Pirates Meet

Locals In Home Town Swansong This Friday; Modesto Team Given Slight Edge To Cop Title

Final appearance of the 1947 San Francisco eleven in the NCJCC football scene this year places the Rams on the George Washington Stadium turf at 2:30 p.m. this Friday, when grid tutor Grover Klemmer sends the city bruisers against the current A division leaders, the Modesto Pirates, before an anticipated 5,000 home crowd audience.

This Friday's fussings will decide which "A" group eleven will be present on December 6 in the post season championship tilt with the "B" division leader to decide the Northern California Junior College king of the 14 teams.

If the Schuchard led squad topples the big, bad valley vanguard this weekend, then it's on to the road against the top B league club. However, if the visa of the versa occurs, Modesto takes its turn for a swing at the two year college crown, thus dethroning the 146 king, for a while until '48.

With the trophy resting comfortably on the San Francisco campus, Klemmer's rovers, blessed with three victories, one loss, and one tie in league play this season, have a watchful eye on the statue, and plan to have the trophy remain "in its rightful home, the city college for at least another year."

Meanwhile Modesto's headman Fred A. Earle Jr., is bringing with him the biggest-of-the-best-elevens in the college's history. Led by two 1946 All-Conferees, center John Dinublo and guard Dick Harding, the traveling squad presents the strongest grid group in the A division.

One individual well known to last season's veteran gridders who will don the Pirate suit is fullback Otris Williams, who parked at this campus last fall, will he on the playing field at "toe-time," for the city invading team.

Salinas Stops Ram's Crown Chances

Via perfect offensive downfield blocking and possessed with a determined hard-charging forward wall, the Salinas Panther slammed shut the 1947 championship gate in the faces of the San Francisco Rams, 27-7, on Balboa's turf, Friday.

Ripping through the Ram defenses, the Panther scoring came by the following fashions: (1) In the second quarter "T" man Charles Mornard led an 80 yard march into the end zone. Halfback Clarence Twitchell tallied on a Mornard 5 yard pass. Chester Garnero's conversion went wide. (2) Five minutes later, Mornard took the invaders another 80 yards for tally number two. Garnero's conversion was good. (3) Midway through the final period, Mornard (that name sounds familiar) guided the Panthermen 71 yards for another score. Wingman Arnold Hieserman's 19 yard end around concluded the drive. Garnero added the 20th point. (4) Jim Greene's intercepted pass by Bob Kerbs set up the last Lettuce Pickers' score on the Ram 6. Stan Miller scored over from the 1. Garnero again converted.

While the faus were leaving the stadium in the remaining seconds, third string Mike Reilly, who for first time this season left the Ram bench, grabbed an attempted Sailmas aerial on the Panther 32, and galloped 68 yards for the Rams' lone touchdown. Paul Hagan's one-pointer was good.

Block SF Men To Stage Gala Dance Next Week

With the date of their gala annual dance approaching, this Friday, November 21, members of the Block SF Society are at present formulating surprise entertainment plans for the affair to be held from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight in the west campus auditorium.

Tickets for the dance, a sport dress affair, are now on sale by society members at $1.50 per couple.

Soccer Season Finish Nears; Rams Winless

With the soccer season drawing to a close, the Ram eleven has not had a very successful season this far. The squad has a record of two games lost and two tied.

Their first game was against the whooping Indians of Stanford University on the Braves' territory. The whistle blew ending the game with a score of three for both teams.

Next came the Golden Bears of California, which was a hard fought contest from which the Bears emerged the victors with a score of 3 to 2.

San Francisco State College was definitely not the favorite when they played the Ram eleven but managed to hold the locals to a score of 1 to 1.

Last came the big upset when the then win-less California Aggies beat the locals 2 to 1.

RAMblings . .

IN AN attempt to enable more students to attend the 1947 basketball tilts, casaba mentor Ralph Hillsman is making an effort to get all weekday games played in the afternoon. Under the new plan, preliminaries will start at 3:30 p.m., with the feature event coming on the floor at 4:30.

Hillsman believes that more students will attend the games if they do no have to come back at night. However, Saturday tussles will still be kleig-light affairs.

Opposing coaches are also in favor of Hillsman's plan as it will be easier on their players. Instead of getting home in the wee small hours of the morning after a particularly strenuous game, the hoopsters will be able to rest after their tilt.

If Hillsman's plan carries through and is successful, undoubtedly many more conference schools will follow in the Rams' path.

• • •

Notes on the cuff from the L. A.-Ram tilt:

That fellow Woodley Lewis really lived up to expectations. His 78 yard dash was a brilliant bit of running. . . Howie Crouch played a great game both offensively and defensively for the Rams. . . The beauty of the T formation was somewhat marred by sloppy ball handling on the part of both quarterbacks. . . What happened to the Cubs' vaunted passing attack? They completed only one toss. We didn't do much better. . . A good reason for the Rams' downfall was the lack of downfield blocking. After a runner got past the line of scrimmage he was on his own.

Half time entertainment was as good as the game itself . . . if not better . . . The kickoff following the first L. A. score was one of the best seen in recent years. . . Ken Schuchard played a brilliant defensive game. . . Maybe we'll take Long Beach.

Wilson Requests Frats, Sororities To Sponsor Boxing Teams For AMS Show

Sororities and fraternities are being asked to sponsor teams of boxers for the Associated Men Student boxing show this year. The show will be held Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, December 8, 9, and 10, Tom Wilson, intramural director, said.

This year the boxing show will be open only to novice boxers (those who are inexperienced and have won no awards in boxing before).

Experienced boxers from last year's main event will act as manager for each team. They will train and develop each fighter in their own team and have them ready for the elimination trials on December 8 and 9 and the finals on December 10.

It will be the responsibility of the sororities and the fraternities to support the team they represent, show managers said.

The sorority or fraternity having a winning team and accumulating the greatest number of points will receive a trophy for their efforts.

Ram-Rods Set New Intra Scoring Record With 154; Socklov, White Top Scorers

By Art Paymiller

Spectators at the intra-mural basketball tournament were treated to a rare exhibition of shooting skill last Monday as the Ram Rods set a new intra scoring record by defeating the A. K.'s 154-19. Bob Sockolov and Ray White set the scoring pace as they tallied 39 and 32 digits respectively.

The previous high was 147, set by Jim Hughes and his Poly Lamb squad in November, 1946.

The Jefferson A. C. five was knocked from the undefeated list as Dolph Pippus led the Rattle-de-Bangs to a 21-19 upset win.

Only three teams remained unbeaten as the tourney swings into its final games. Pag's Club heads the National League with five wins and no losses, while the high-flying Ram Rods lead the P.C.L. with a 5-0 slate. The Sugar Mountain Boys are currently on top in the American Loop with a 4-0 record.

Results of other games played Monday, November 10:

O.A.L. Alumni 5, Brown Bombers 31.

Happy Go Lucky won on a forfeit from Beta Tau.

Pag's Club won on a forfeit from Ex-Lincolnites.

Ram Cagers Drill For Tip-Off Date

As the grid scene begins to fade from the Ramlight, the San Francisco varsity basketball fives under the teachings of Ralph Hillsman and assistant instructor Roy "boy" Diederichsen are perfecting the form of the 1947-48 group in anticipation for one of the college's big seasons.

With a strong turnout of 60 casaba hopefuls, Hillsman is still keeping open all the five starting posts, and asserts "that all the fellows are welcome to turnout for the sport and will be given a chance to show their court talents, before any decisions are made to set on the varsity and junior varsity groups."

At the present time, the Hillsman-Diedrichsen team are holding drill hours between 4-6 p.m.

Returning for their second chance in the starting berths are Captain Phil Burroughs, Bill Bahr, Larry Baldocchi, Ray Squeri, Bob Tomlinson, Neil Turner, Horace Aubertine, and Astorre Bucciarelli.

Four Club Charters To Be Investigated

Four of the 31 standing campus organizations requesting Student Council approval at the meeting of Thursday, November 13, were temporarily denied recognition pending further investigation of their last semester standing by the Club Advisory Board.

The groups in question, Cercle Francais (French Club), the Horticulture Society, the Lutheran Students' Association, and the Collegiate Christian Fellowship (formerly the Bible Study Club) were delayed because of uncertainty as to council recognition last semester. If these clubs were not recognized by the council last semester, they will have to be readmitted as new organizations.

Clubs approved were Alpha Lambda Chi, Alpha Gamma Sigma, Alpha Theta Epsilon, Beta Tau, Block S.F., Chinese Students Club, Delta Psi, Hotel and Restaurant Management Society, Kappa Phi, Mu Iota Psi, Newman Club, Phi Bet Rho, Epsilon Epsilon, XGI Society, Forum Club, American Veteran's Committee, Cosmopolitan Society, Radio Engineering Society, Latin American Club, Masonic Club, Omicron Phi Pi, Tau Chi Sigma, Tav Zadik Nun, Theta Tau, Beta Phi Beta and Pick and Hammer.

Gamma Phi Upsilon, Photographic Society, and Mikes and Men received council approval as new campus organizations.

Parking Tag Issue Is On A Steady Increase

Officer A. E. McDonald, on the San Francisco College beat, said today that the parking situation around the campus at present is bad.

The areas of complaint, according to McDonald, are in front of the main building and the vicinity of the Student Store. Parking any place in front of the main building is illegal, but there is an abundance of illegally parked cars there every day.

In front of the Student Store there are always a number of double-parked vehicles and occasionally one in the adjacent driveways.

The situation around the store is sometimes so bad that the operation of the corner service station is hampered.

The police give as many as ten tags a day to parking law breakers.

Competition Rough On Christmas Work

A realistic, uncompromising outlook on student hopes for Christmas employment was voiced by campus Placement Officer, Joseph A. Amori.

"I do not intend to discuss the rights and wrongs of the present employment practices," Amori said. "Many students will have difficulty obtaining work this Christmas. The post offices are definitely closed to all but veterans."

Amori continued to outline the Holiday situation.

"The job market is, at present, overcrowded in California. There is no reason to expect it to clear up. We are confronted with prospective employees from every other bay area school," Amori said.

Any information desired about employment may be obtained at the Placement Office, Building 2, top floor.

Hammer-Nail Majors Report Good Spirit Prevails At Work

Cheerful student and faculty acceptance of the inconveniences caused by heavy construction work in an overcrowded college in active session has materially lightened the tasks and worries of Job Superintendent John Entwistle, of the Dinwiddie Construction Co.

The contract calls for completion of the work by December 15. The job is now ahead of schedule by a comfortable margin.

Most of the 30 men on the job considered the auditorium repair work the "gravy train," as the embryonic college band supplied music other than the sound of continual sawing and hammering.

World Affairs Council Holds Initial Meeting

United Nations and the Marshall Plan will run the gamut of an informal student discussion at 2 p. m. today in Room 3B, according to Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to the president.

The discussion will be part of the first organizational meeting of a college world affairs council. All students who want to freely express opinions on current events and their social implications are eligible for membership.

Prominent Citizens Are Concert Patrons

Sixty-one prominent San Franciscans have accepted invitations to act as patrons for the annual Christmas concert to be given Thursday, December 4, in the Veterans Auditorium. They will be guests at a program whose motif of peace will be exemplified by selections from The Messiah by Handel as the underlying theme.

Serving as patrons will be Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Brady, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Breyer, Mrs. Mary Denman Cheatham, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Local Radio Group Airs Views On CBS

In keeping with the American tradition of public discussion, a student forum group has been chosen for the Columbia Broadcasting System's Opinion, Please program, Friday, December 19, at 1 o'clock, Marie Weller, radio instructor, declared yesterday.

Selected for voice and talent, Frank McCue, Vincent Levon, Leo Sack and Salvador Maraics will discuss the issues involved and exchange their views on the need for mass armies and the value of universal military training in peacetime.

Designed to provide a better comprehension of the changing world in which we live, Columbia's American School of the Air invites each week a different school or college to participate in the program.

Other programs in this series are: Liberty Road, Tales of Adventure, The March of Science and Gateway to Music.

Block SF Fall Frolic Curtain Up On Friday

Music for dancing from 9 to midnight will be furnished by Ben Watkin's and his orchestra.

Admission will be seventy-five cents per person, the affair being either stag or couples. Proceeds from the dance will be used for athletic dinners, which are open to all athletes whether Block SF members or not, and personal awards.

Background For Education: Polish Girls Relate German War Camp Experiences

By Dale Butterfield

The next time life gets too complacent and dull for you on an American college campus, read again this story of two Polish girls who risked their lives in escaping ruthless German concentration camps to get here.

You might have sipped coffee in the student lounge near Maria Marszalek Eurlings who was freed by Czechoslovakian partisans from a German work camp 30 kilometers from Prague.

Or perhaps sitting next to you in class is Helen Arnon who gained her freedom from a prison camp at Pruszkow, Poland.

Both from Poland

Maria Eurlings and Helen Arnon were born and educated in the grammar schools and "gymnasiums" of Poland. Miss Eurlings first lived in Przemysl and later moved to Krynica.

Miss Eurlings relates, "I was working as a dental assistant in Krynica during October, 1944, when the Germans arrived. Late in the evening while our family was all together at home a German Gestupo guard came to our door and told my father, sisters, and me that we were being taken away.

Miss Eurlings was made to work in German trenches twelve hours a day. Food was scarce and the long day's work made her very hungry, yet she had nothing to eat but brown bread and watery soup.

"The German Secret Service disregarded human feelings," she continued, "and our life was constantly at their mercy. At times we were very tired from working in the trenches and would drink small amounts of gasoline to arouse a fever for a short while, making it possible for us to stay in out of the trenches. If the Germans had ever found this out we would have been killed instantly."

Sees First Americans

The insurrection of Czechosiovakia took place, and she was able to gain freedom from the horrible work camp. The partisans had freed the area and the American and Russian troops had arrived, however, she did not see any American troops until arriving in Pilzen.

"It was here where I met the first American troops," she remembers, "and I was given an American cigarette. It gave me great pleasure to smoke an American cigarette, after having smoked potent Russian 'Machorkus' for almost six years."

Helen Arnon's story is comparable to that of Miss Eurling's.

She was born and educated in Warsaw, Poland and was living with her mother there at the time of the German occupation.

"When Germany marched over Poland in 1939 it kept me from coming to America as I had planned, so I volunteered my services to the hospital aid of the Polish Red Cross," she stated.

The Polish forces soon capitulated due to the German onslaught, and it was then that Warsaw was captured and dominated by German rule, and she was taken prisoner. Having been taken to a German prison camp at Pruszkow, Poland she later gained her freedom.

Conditions Horrible

"The conditions in and around the camp at Pruszkow were horrible," Miss Arnon continued. "The food, consisting of soup and brown bread was very hard to get. The German guards continually acted ruthless and without mercy. When I made my escape I was able to reach a home of my friends

It was not until the Russian offensive started in January, 1944 that she saw any hope of being freed from German bondage.

Both Miss Arnon and Miss Eurlings, who are capable of speaking a various number of languages, including French, Polish, Russian, and German are interested in joining the college's Foreign Student Club and French Club.

Vets Quitting College Not Due To Low Funds

Rumors that vets are dropping out of this college, because of failure to receive this month's subsistence checks were squelched today by Walter F. McCloud, director of Veteran Affairs on the campus.

McCloud stated that although quite a few veterans have discontinued their work on the campus, there is no evidence that indicates it was wholly due to a lack of funds for this month.

The Spectator

George Lajeunesse

SATURDAY night at Squirrelly Village, the single men's dorms, commences officially around 5 o'clock with the first shrill ring of the telephone in the little booth at the end of the hall.

After the tenth bell has tolled, and it looks as if no one will bother to answer, someone gets disentangled from a chemistry book and strolls nonchalantly down to the booth as the 'phone gives a last, dying gasp.

ZIBBY'S GAL CALLS

"Moe's Meat Market!" the answering voice booms, "go ahead it's your nickel!"

A bewildered, tiny feminine voice hesitantly queries; "May I speak to Stanislaus Zybysko, please?"

"ZYBYSKO!!!!" roars and reverberates down the long hall. A split second and 47 guys named Smith and Jones peer out from each room, attired in all stages of undress, to chorus, "Who????"

HANG UP!

"STANISLAUS ZYBYSKO . . . Telephone!"

The chorus chants discordantly, "He ain't here," "Won't I do?"

"Mmmmzorry . . . Stan isn't here now." . . . CLICK!

Brrrr . . . ing! goes the 'phone again and the night's festivities open.

From within a maze of little rooms the din of mixed male chatter pierces air thick with the scent of after-shave lotion.

Towel-wrapped figures flit in and out of each room carrying such varying articles as flaming, screaming neckties and skis with an alpenstock tucked under each arm.

SUIT GETS ONCE-OVER

"Lookit the skis I got for fifteen bucks!"

"Yaah, you're buyin' a broken leg with them things," comes the retort.

"THAT SUIT! . . . did the warden give you a whistle and baschall bat with it?"

From another room comes a confiding whisper that can be heard on the outskirts of Cucamonga. . . "She's a blonde, has a '42 Buick, radio 'n heater, but she won't lend me her credit card."

THE CAR AWAITS

Steam pours forth into the hall as a shower door swings open momentarily.

"Bongo bongo bongo, I don't wanna leave the Congo!" lilts out from inside one of the shower stalls.

A horn honks in the driveway around the building. Seven men, faultlessly dressed in Hart Schaffner's and Arrow shirts clatter out the door to pile into a jeep parked at the curb and it zips away into the night.

Rally Boosts Spirit Today

Edwards Promises Top Talent For College Hour Show

College hour today will be highlighted by a football rally to be held under the direction of Rally Commissioner Jim Edwards. The rally will be held to rouse the pre-game spirit for the game with Modesto Junior College.

Entertainment for the rally will be furnished by the Three Jays, entertainers from San Francisco State College, or by Jimmy Casanova, who is a featured entertainer at Coffee Dan's restaurant in San Francisco.

"I hope for a large turnout for these rallies in order to spark the college spirit to a new high," the rally commissioner said.

The program will be rounded out by a selection of college fight songs played by the college band, under direction of Mike Cahn, band instructor.

Lloyd Sisler, dramatic coach of the college, will lend his talents to the rally in the form of a preview of his latest production, Our Town, which is now being produced featuring student talent.

Block Dance Tonight

Held in conjunction with today's football game with Modesto Junior College, the Block SF Society stages its semi-annual dance tonight in the west campus auditorium. For details turn to Page 4.

Long Beach Expedition Needs Campus Recruits

Arrangements have been made for students wishing to attend the Thursday, November 27, Long Beach City College football game, Ed Gallemore, transportation committee chairman, announced yesterday.

Round trip rates on the Southern Pacific chartered trip will be $14.50 per person, and at least 150 students must sign up for the trip.

Gallemore stated that the deadline for trip signup will be today.

The train will leave the Third and Townsend station at 7 p.m. Wednesday and will arrive at Long Beach Thursday morning, November 27.

Returning students will entrain late Thursday night and arrive in San Francisco Friday afternoon.

Modesto Leads The NCJCC Grid Circuit

Today will mark the last home game for the college football men when they face the league leading Modesto Pirates at George Washington High School Field, Geary Boulevard and 32nd Avenue, 2:30 p.m.

The Rams take to the field this afternoon as the "under-dogs" with a past season of three games won, three lost, and one tied, while the Northern California league leaders have only lost two games.

Ram Coach Grover Klemmer hopes to produce an end to the touchdown draught that has seen the locals tally but three times in their last four outings.

However, the Pirate coach, Fred Earle, will bring his Modesto squad to town with eager determination to win over the bucking Rams.

Council Reconsiders, Recognizes New Clubs

Approval of four clubs, denied Student Council recognition on a minor technicality, was unanimously given by those present at the meeting of Tuesday, November 18.

Admitted as new clubs to terminate further delay on the question, the four groups, Cercle Francais (French Club), the Horticulture Society, the Lutheran Students' Association, and the Collegiate Christian Fellowship (formerly the Bible Study Club), now enjoy full council recognition.

Luckmann Returns From UN Session, Plans For Campus World Affairs Club

Utilizing most of his time attending daily sessions of the Ad Hoc committee on Palestine, Lloyd Luckmann, presidential assistant, recently returned from the U.N., witnesses discussions as to the ways and means of splitting Palestine. Luckmann attended this U.N. session under the auspices of the World Affairs Council of Northern California of which he is associate educational director.

Luckmann announced the formation of a World Affairs Club at the college open to all students who wish to discusss the activities of the UNO. The club held its first meeting last Tuesday afternoon, November 18, in Room 313.

While at Lake Success, Luckmann met Secretary-General Lie, George Marshall, secretary of state; Warren Austin, chief of the American mission to the assembly; and assistants to Secretary Lie, Adrian Pelt and Andrew Cordier.

In an exclusive report to The Guardsman, Luckmann quoted Cordier as saying that the 1948 meeting of the U.N. will undoubtedly be held in Europe.

Selection Of Design For Class Rings Due

Designs for planned class rings were presented to members of the Student Council, Frank Nelson, president, revealed yesterday.

The ring, its sides decorated with a ram's head and the main campus building, will have on its face a large ruby stone encircled by the college's name.

Should the name of the college be changed to "city," it will also be changed on the ring, Nelson added.

Dill Gives Comedy Act, Counsel To Thespians

The humor of a veteran stage and screen actor, in the form of Max Dill, one-half of the famous Kolb and Dill team, held the students in Lloyd Sisler's drama class in laughter last Friday.

Dill spoke to the students about the theater past and present. He gave out a bid of advice to the potential actors and actresses if and when they should enter the realms of the theater.

Weekends Detract From Cafeteria's Patronage

Cafeteria patronage for Friday dinners has not been enough to warrant the cafeteria's remaining open unless more business can be stimulated, Hilda Watson, cafeteria head, announced today.

The reason for this is that the cafeteria's patrons usually go home over the weekend.

Since the cafeteria's opening, it has not been able to make more than half of the hundred dollars required to operate free from loss, Mrs. Watson added.

Our Town Scheduled Today, Mon. and Tues.

Delay In Subsistence Pay Causes Vets Undue Care

WE DON'T want to run up Old Glory and scream, "everything for the boys," but merely desire a little clarification on why the subsistence checks due to veterans going to college under Public Law No. 346 are continually delayed.

This delay, we realize, is not universal; however the number of checks that do not arrive on time for veterans, who live from month to month on their sixty-five dollars, is inexcusable.

Many veterans are ejected from their living quarters because their rental payments are not prompt, because of the delay of checks.

Consequently, G.I. students are forced to withdraw from colleges, as recently witnessed in many bay area institutions, when checks failed to arrive on time.

We are only asking why, when Congress has appropriated money for student veterans, the simple matter of distributing checks to the vets should be delayed from one week to a month!

Perhaps the reason for this is the lack of personnel at the Veterans Administration.

Economy in government is a good thing, but when the appropriation of a comparatively small sum of money to employ more workers in distributing subsistence in accordance with the laws of Congress causes undue hardships for veterans, then economy is going too far.

Keep The Issue Hot

THE DRIVE to change the college name is gaining momentum each week—so much so that it is believed the change will be effected before the end of this semester.

However, if the supporters become uninterested or fail to keep the issue alive and hot, the college will continue to be called "junior."

In order to overcome this obstacle a suggestion has been made to have some of the experienced personnel on this campus conduct an objective cross sectional poll of opinion on the name change among the citizens of this city.

Such a poll, reflecting natural civic pride in city owned institutions can only be favorable and will have no little effect on squelching any back door opposition which wilts in the face of public opinion.

Augmenting the poll is the fact that 25 out of 55 two year colleges in this state have already changed their name from junior to city college or college.

This is the time for united action on the part of all organizations and present students of the college—who can, with the aid of their families and friends, make the name change an actuality now.

Femmes Only

By Dot Hayes

THE SHOE changes to the other foot. No longer do we girls have to listen to those lovely remarks the boys make about our clothes in silence. No longer do we have to defend everything that we wear. Paris has just come out with the startling fact that men's clothes are going to undergo a change in style. They're calling it the "new look." Sounds familiar.

The lads of Paris are already parading around in their "new looks." In fact, the male inhabitants back east are beginning to wear "the latest." The "new look" seems to be looking mostly in the trousers, which are shorter and tighter. Just like ski pants. The girls' skirts seem to be getting longer and the boys' pants seem to be getting up in the world.

They're probably very warm, especially around the ankles. After one gets into them I imagine that one has the nice feeling of having accomplished something. Of course, everyone would be able to notice how fine the boys polish their shoes, which is not evident now, the shoes that is. There must a be dozen more reasons, but we can't think of any more at the moment. Imagination they call it.

Imagine the poor boys dragging themselves across the campus in their heavy ski pants looking very healthy and ever so sporty. Too bad is doesn't snow. At least they would have some excuse.

It probably won't really be so bad. Of course, you can get accustomed to anything after awhile. They might even start to grow on you after a while, from the ankles, that is. What a grotesque thought.

Let us now turn our nimble minds to another new change on the horizon. It seems as though raccoon coats are due for a new revival. We remember hearing how some mellow, fellow remarked, after seeing one of the rah-rah boys appear in a long, loose, loppy coat: "When the cat has kittens, c'n I have one?"

THE BULL PEN

By Max Call

TOMORROW the nation's top football teams will find themselves fighting to save their positions in national standing. College colors will be the fashion note, and stories of past glory will be retold. Stadiums will be filled, and America will go to the football game.

Tomorrow night groups will gather in cafes, college dorms, and fraternity houses, where songs will he sung, some sad, some gay.

Couples will walk across the moonlit campus, and pausing at some solitary spot, will look at each other, smile, then walk on. Perhaps a lonely, elderly figure will pause beside the bench on Senior walk, then pass on into the night.

Echoes of the Whiffenpoof Song, Ramblin' Wreck, and The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi, will drift across the campus. As the night grows older the groups will get smaller, lights will begin to go out, and another Saturday will find its place in memory.

Letters to the Editor

Discussed By Guardsman Is Readers...

• Intelligentsia

Editor, The Guardsman:

I am an ardent admirer of your publication, but recently I have been wondering whether you people know what you are doing.

I was here last term when you had some different writers and although they were pretty good their subject matter ~~was rather~~ casual and easy to read. However, this term you seem to have lived up to your editorial policy and "grown up," the only trouble is that you have grown too far up. I don't think that the average student around here is capable of understanding some of the adult questions and problems which you pose in your articles.

I would suggest that you come down to the mental caliber of a four-teen year old, mebbe they will understand you then.

Student Card 40 42.

• Balance And Bouquets

Editor, The Guardsman:

This doesn't seem to be the thing to do around this joint, but I would like to offer my compliments to Mr. Lajeunesse for the excellent columns which he turns out each issue. All of his articles have balance and a pleasing style, and his subject matter appears to be the product of much thought.

A Fan.

• No Complaints

EDITOR, The Guardsman:

I am a student body card holder at this local institution. Now I am a vet, but I bought my card . . . $5.00. Now mind you, I am not complaining yet.

True I get no reduced rates, or for that matter very little else. But for heaven's sake, why can't I at least get a Guardsman?

Now before you get high-hatted thinking your rag is any good . . . 'Cause it STINKS.

However, I do like the sports page.

Please print enough so I can get one.

News To Nobody

By Herbert Levy

AUSTRALIA, the land of kangaroos and warm brew, in making the offer to U. S. veterans to come "down under" and make a fortune, has interested some of this college's vets to such an extent, that some of them have actually made applications for passports.

Affable Ted Thomas, local scholar, informs us in the land of the koala bear the prices have a heavy anchor on them compared to the Stateside balloon; college students can snare room & bored in the higher class jernts for 7 simolians a week and just average room & chow, it is merely $4 per seven days . . . seems the $65 that the good Uncle kicks out once a month is comparable to the average Aussie wage earners take for a month!

Nothing in particular: Ramette Jackie Miller, taking a shot on this script writing deal offered by the Columbia Broadcasting System got a huge pat on the back from bigwigs of the CBS.

Last Friday's grid debacle with Salinas (we lost 27-7) was interesting in that one of our backs driving into the line was stopped, he whipped around and tossed a perfect lateral pass, presumably to another Ram, however, the referee standing in the way made the best catch of the afternoon. (T'was amusing).

A local English prof., Robert Utter, agrees with Socrates (the Grecian Gent) in that this English tutor is all in favor of holding classes out doors, the idea sounds a little foggy!!

S. F. State is "barred" from the Cal campus . . . the guards supposedly don't allow Staters' cars to enter the campus!!

Mu Iota Psi, college music lovers (from jive to long-hair) snagged $100 at their highly successful "light fantastic" tripping session (a dance) over at the Auditorium last Friday, charging only 35 cents per Associated Student card . . . seems they saved 25 bucks, dimming the stage and keeping the lights low, instead of renting a curtain to hide the scaffolding!!

Lil Abner Aids Midtermer . . .

By Nell Sullivan

TODAY we enter a citadel of knowledge, a quiet philosophic cavern teeming with eager brain of youth in search of knowledge.' Row after row of industrious students bending fervently over open books, immense treatises on advanced subjects. The library, of course.

Sauntering casually down the aisle we run into an old friend of ours, Adolophus Greek, scanning a weighty treatise, titled "Li'l Abner," illustrated in the new color plates.

MIDTERMS WEEKS AWAY

In explanation, Adolophus said, "Li'l Abner keeps my mind keen and alive. Anybody who can keep a blonde like Daisy Mae on the run is good. And next midterm isn't until three weeks from now, so I haven't got any studying to do."

We left him with an expression of awful worship on his face as he gazed soulfully at his magazine.

MATH MAJOR PARLAYS ONE

A subdued muttering stopped us two tables later. Ah, ha, an eager student memorizing square root tables, no doubt. Further questioning of I. O. Ulysses, revealed "Square root tables, what's them? I got enough to do with figuring out who is going to come in first in the third. Got a straight tip from the guy at the next window, er . . . chair. This one will sure keep me till next month."

With that we departed. We didn't want to bother a student of advanced calculus, as he most certainly was.

THE MAN WITH THE BOOK

Sitting two steps from us, we finally saw our ideal. This mass of protoplasmic grey matter would surely be the man with The Book. See his intense absorption . . . the high brow wrinkles with effort. You can nearly see genius sprouting. A. E. Beaver, CSF, AGS, the student!

Creeping closer we peer over the exalted shoulder. Nothing must disturb that absorption. The title of the book is within our view. Just a little nearer . . . What's this? . . . "The Bobbsey Twins at Hackensack." We fold our notes and tiptoe silently away.

Pag's Club & Ram Rods Cinch Crown

By Art Paymiller

Intramural basketball competition will come to a close Monday afternoon when the final league games of the 1947 season are played in the men's gymnasium.

Only three clubs remain in the undefeated class, with two of them, Pag's Club and Ram Rods, virtually assured of the title in their respective leagues. These two quintets head the National and Pacific Coast Leagues with records of six wins and no defeats.

The Sugar Mountain Boys are currently topping the American loop with a 5-0 slate, but still in contention is the Buccaneer five, who have been defeated once in six titles.

The Block Society and Hotel and Restaurant Division teams are in a nip and tuck battle for Bush League honors with 4-1 records.

The playoffs between the league winners will start Monday, December 1, with the American League champion meeting the winner of the Pacific Coast League, and the National League title-holder playing the winner of the Bush loop.

Intramural touch-football will get under way Monday, November 24. The schedule of games will be posted in the gymnasium and on the main bulletin boards.

WAA Schedule Saddle Journey To Rockaway

Roughriders of the college riding club are planning an all day excursion from Mar Vista Stable to Rockaway Beach starting at 8:30 a. m., Friday, November 28, Shirley Grosswird, chairman of the Women's Athletic Association Riding Group, announced today.

The saddle jaunt, costing $6.50, is open to all riding enthusiasts not exceeding 28 students.

Signup sheets will be posted in the Men's and Women's Gym and on the bulletin board at the south end on the first floor.

Transportation to Mar Vista from the end of the L ear line will be provided for the event, Miss Grosswird assured.

The WAA, sponsoring the event, meets twice weekly at the St. Francis Riding aceademy; Monday at 3 p. m., and Tuesday at 4 p. m.

Cal Frosh In Season Opener For Basketmen

With the season's opener against the University of California frosh, scheduled for Friday, December 5, here at the men's gymnasium, Coach Ralph Hillsman today cut the varsity basketball squad to 30 men.

Hillsman, refusing to name a starting line-up, said "I haven't decided on the starting line-up, for every position is still open." Of the team's chances, he was reticent, but claimed "it is a better balanced outfit than that of last year."

Eighth Grid Tilt For Hapless Locals

By Samuel Goldman

Barring any sudden miracle on the part of the San Francisco Ram eleven, Fred A. Earle's league leading A division Modesto Pirates will score themselves to an easy victory over the Klemmer group today at 3 o'clock on George Washington field in the conference week seasonal finale.

After having been completely trampled by the Los Angeles Cubs and in view of the sudden licking from the Salinas Panthers within the last 14 days, it is a sad thought, to realize that the Modesto invaders will be able to tally TD's on the Rams at will.

But the picture in the minds of the city players who are bidding their farewell adieu to the 1947 league year and Grover Klemmer's first months as the city college's grid tutor in season play, is solely the image of victory.

As Captain Ken Schuchard, exclaims, "if the boys want to win, we will win today." Hard as this statement is to take, the San Francisco eleven has the potential goods to upset the valleymen from Modesto.

Lambs Battle To Tie

Battling against the wind, the rain, the mud, Jim Jensen's Lambs held the invading Santa Rosa Junior Varsity to a 0 to 0 tie last Thursday.

Note to Weather Man: Billy Fischer turned in another fine performance as referee for the UC-Montana tilt, but we thought he was getting a bit tired of wiping the pig-skin dry every time it was used.

We have seen many surprised faces in our time but none can equal the one gridder Mike Reily wore the instant a Salinas forward pass dropped into his hands. The incident put the Rams into the scoring column even though it didn't mean much . . .

Bob D'Grazi of the soccer gang gets the kick ball honors of the week for his recent grid work.

To the two gentlemen (one big and the other quite small) seen recently settling a little argument via boxing gloves, Tommy Wilson and Roy Diedricksen need boxers badly, fellas; sign up and oppose each other on the boxing teams. . . Mike's and Men, the new college radio organization, tried its hand at recording the Ram-LACC tilt. Peter Bogoshin and Peter Turdiel assisted this reporter in calling the plays. Turdiel, extemporizing during the half-time band activities, made a remark to the effect that one of the saxophone players in the band wearing a woman's negligee looked quite sweet and realistic. The rub? O. K. . . . What Turdiel did not know was the saxophone player was his own brother Ed Turdiel . . .

Rejuvenated Bucs Near NCJCC Title

By Joe Hunt, Sports Editor, Modesto Pirate

MODESTO, Cal., Nov. 20—It's a far different Pirate team that the San Francisco Rams will face this afternoon. It will be practically the same Pirate eleven that lost twice to last year's champs, but unlike the 1946 team, there is no dissension, but just a will to play, and play hard.

The Modesto backfield (there are nine men with very little difference in ability) is fast, light, and tricky.

The line headed by All conference center John Dinublo, is heavy and tough to crack.

In grid games this year, the Pirate line has yielded only 129 yards per game, while on the whole the group has shelled the opposition to a scant 154 yards in rushing and passing.

Meanwhile the Pirate offense has averaged 269 yards per game in the air and on the ground.

The Pirates have won five of the seven games played to date. Wins over four conference opponents include a whitewashing of Sacramento (18-0), Stockton (19-6), Salinas (32-14), and San Mateo (36-0). The only conference loss was to Vallejo 12-6, while non-league tilts are even with a 52-0 winning over Visalia and a defeat to Long Beach, 28-19.

Soccermen Conclude Post-War Era, Win Over Dons; Granadino Stars

Another year and another soccer season came to a close for the college squad last Saturday at Beach Chalet, when the Ram eleven beat the University of San Francisco Dons, 1 to 0.

The Ram squad ended the season with their first win in five games.

Teamwork was the chief factor that enabled the locals to emerge as the victorious team. Even though the college squad took to the field as the "under-dogs," they broke through the Don's defense to score.

Francis Granadino was the hero of the day by making the winning point for the locals. Ken Fitts was outstanding for his fine defensive play in keeping his goal free from being crossed by a Don score.

Ram cagers mix games with final examinations this season, when they play Menlo at Menlo February 4, and Modesto at Modesto February 6. Finals begin February 2, run to February 6.

Rams Win NCJCC Title In Cross Country Run

Speeding across the two and a half mile length of the Golden Gate Park distance, the San Francisco Ram cross country distance runners collected another NCJCC cross country crown by whizzing by a lone conference representative, the Modesto Pirates, here last Friday.

Coach Jim Jensen places the victory wreath upon such grindees as Garry Bowman, George Colsen, Seward Chapman, Jeff Dodson, Nick Gaudere, George Miller, Dave Rainos, Jim Wyatt, Bob Zarick, and Bett Giddings.

Athletes Present Fall Frolic

Block SF President Bill Bahr States Tonight's Proceeds Going For Athletic Benefits

Soaring to greater heights in the realm of society, the college's spirited Block SF organization presents its "piece de resistance" in the form of the Fall Frolic, dance extravaganza, tonight in the remodeled west campus auditorium. Society President Bill Bahr pictured at right) stated that dancing will be from 9 p. m. to midnight, sports attire prevailing, and admission is 50 cents per person with all proceeds going for athletic benefits.

Following the bonfire rally which was staged by this group, tonight's event, featuring the distinctive music of Benny Watkins and his orchestra, promises to be one of the social season's prominent affairs.

With a Victory dance theme, pending the outcome of today's game, Ralph Hillsman, Block SF Society sponsor (pictured with Bahr), has invited the Modesto Junior College students to attend the affair, rounding out an eventful and entertaining day.

'CONGRATULATIONS on a job well done.' could be the salutation Block SF society sponsor Ralph Hillsman is giving to the organization's President Bill Bahr. Bahr and the society have out done themselves again with the presentation of tonight's Fall Frolic.

Little Rosebowl Is OK'd By Committee

Participation by Northern California Junior College Association members at the annual "Little Rosebowl" game was forecast at the fall meeting of the State Junior College Athletic Committee of the California Junior College Association last week.

Adoption of the "Little Rosebowl" game, which was a thing of great controversy during the May 23 meeting, met with great approval among the association members of the November meeting.

Some of the suggested procedures in support of the annual game, which were presented at the meeting were:

(1) The non-eligibility of any Junior College for selection three years in succession.

(2) Eligibility of every member of the California Junior College Association to represent the West in the game.

(3) Organization of a state-wide committee for the purpose of selecting the eastern and western team, composed of one member from the Junior Rose Bowl Committee, one representative from each of the five Junior College Conferences, and the chairman of the State Athletic Committee.

Color Photography To Be Offered In Fall

Developing and printing color photography will be offered as an additional attraction to Physics-Photography 31 A during the next fall semester, according to Alfred Agosti, physics department head.

Lithography Classes Added To Schedule

The fascination and color of the art of lithography descended upon the college this semester in the form of six courses which present the whole process of lithography, by practice, to the student in the art, journalism, or publication fields.

The graphic arts section is situated in building 12, and houses recently installed equipment.

Students enrolled in the courses acquire a full working knowledge through projects that are actually utilized in college activities.

Registrar Urges Early Planning Of Programs

Students are urged to plan next semester's program with their advisers as soon as possible to avoid the maximum of program changes in the spring semester, Mary Jane Learnard, college registrar, announced yesterday.

With this new pre-semester program plan in effect, the students will be allowed a strict minimum of program changes, Miss Learnard added.

Choir, Choruses Appear In Christmas Concert Preview At SF Women's Guild

As a preview of the annual Christmas concert, set for Thursday, December 4, at the Veterans Memorial Building, the Music Department will appear Tuesday, December 2, for the San Francisco Women's Guild at Portalhurst Church in an hour-long program beginning at 2 p.m.

The A Cappella Choir, Men's and Women's Choruses and orchestra will present on both occasions a program of varied music with Roy Burt and Elmer Dickey as soloists. Candlebearers Carol Ripley and Tommy Porter will lead the processional.

Music from the "Messiah" will keynote both programs, with the combined groups joining in the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's famous oratorio.

Burt, a tenor, will sing Cantique de Noel, and Dickey, also a tenor, will sing Caesar Franck's Panis Angelicus with the chorus.

The program is under the direction of Gertrude Norgard, Women's Chorus director, and Harold Cunningham, choir director.

The Spectator

George Lajeunesse

AS SOON as the movie Down to Earth, starring Rita Hayworth and Larry Parks hits the neighborhood shows, we're going to see it again.

The first time we viewed it was downtown and, at the time, got as big a charge out of it as the next moviegoer.

Just a good musical, was all we thought of it. Nice, dancing, some clever lyrics and all done up real pretty in technicolor.

LET UP AND LIGHT UP

Good escape stuff. Nothing to learn, no particular moral to it, certainly no sinister, underlying propaganda to be twisted around in meaning.

Nothing like that at all. Just walk up to the balcony, sit down and light up a cigarette, relax and tap the feet in time to good music.

The plot is simple. Larry Parks is some kind of a producer putting on a musical.

TERPSICHORE COMES DOWN

Rita Hayworth is supposed to be Terpsichore, the goddess of dance, who looks down on the earth from a heavenly seat and doesn't like what is happening there on Broadway.

So she comes Down to Earth, gets a job in the show, tries to run it her way and gets everything balled up. But in the long run all is squared away.

She goes back up, and many years later Parks goes up too and they live on and on into eternity.

NOT JUST A PICTURE

But we stilll have to go and see it again all because Life Magazine tells us there is far, far more to it than merely being a good musical.

Life hired an expensive hack to review the film and write a review of it. It turned out to be quite a hit more than a review however.

To begin with Rita hit the front cover of the magazine for about the fourth or fifth time, tying the late President Roosevelt's record.

SHE'S AN INSTITUTION

Not only that but she got about a seven page spread inside the mag taking up huge spots that would otherwise be loaded with whole page ads.

". . . a profound sociological significance" was attached to our favorite screen dancer. The guy really went overboard in his descriptions.

WOMEN RULE THE LAND

He said, in effect, that the American scene is completely dominated by Hayworth and all the starlets in Hollywood.

That all males are guided in their destinies by the thought of beautiful women, always before them.

That such items as tractors and motor oils, completely void of any sex significance, are sold by clever use of femme charms in the ad copy.

LET'S TAKE ANOTHER LOOK

The war was evidently won, too, by the mere use of glossy five by eight photographs of seductive sirens, hanging in every quonset hut and hangar wherever troops were to be found.

And, in conclusion, he called our Rita, "The Goddess of Love in America."

Yep, we've got to check that one again. It should definitely prove our theory that Orson Welles has rocks in his head for ever leaving her.

Levy, Hulse Named To Handbook Staff

Herbert Levy, managing editor of The Guardsman, and publications board member, and John Hulse, Guardsman news editor, have been appointed as copy editor and assistant editor respectively of the Spring Semester College Handbook.

This was announced by Max Call, handbook editor, last week. Other appointees to the staff are Ed Gallemore, Pat Pollack, and Bob Reilly, all of whom are members of the Student Council.

Required Speech Exam Deadline On Jan. 15

With the deadline for Speech B tests in sight, Thursday, January 15, Michael Griffin, English instructor, advises students who have yet to take the exam to take it at once in Building 19.

The examination is required for an Associate in Arts degree, he warned.

All students who have two or more semesters at the college must fulfill the requirement on or before the January 15 deadline.

Cabinet Designated Aides By Council

Cabinet members were denied the right of placing and seconding motions at Student Council meetings with the passing of cabinet member Don Berger's motion to that effect at the meeting of Thursday, November 20.

Pat Pollack, the council member who brought up the question, based his argument on the constitution which states that cabinet members are not permitted to vote and that their duties consist of being aides to the president.

Previously cabinet members were allowed to put forward and second motions according to informal council agreement. With the new ruling in effect they will be able to suggest motions which actual council members will make.

Course Growth Caused By Engineering Influx

The current terminal two year semi-professional course in engineering will be enlarged next semester to accommodate 100 more students than at present, if plans now under way are successful, William Mayo, engineering instructor, revealed yesterday.

Complete two year courses are now being offered in the fields of electronics, mechanical technology, surveying, drafting and architecture.

Graduates of these courses are virtually assured of employment in their specialized fields. To date, assisted by the college placement bureau, all of the students who have received degrees in this course have been placed in positions with local firms, Mayo said.

Long Beach Grid Trip Off; Lack Of Signups

Lack of enough sign-ups was the reason given by Ed Gallemore, transportation chairman, for cancellation of reservations for the planned train trip south to view the Thursday, November 27 Ram grid contest with Long Beach City College.

Fall Supplies Now Available To Vets; Deadline On Dec. 1

Recently curtailed veterans' supplies are available again, according to an announcement yesterday by Walter McCloud, veterans' affairs officer, who outlined the procedure for getting supplies on the G. I. bill.

Veterans who have not received fall semester equipment under the bill must report to the Veterans' Affairs office, west campus, building 3, second floor, before Monday, December 1.

McCloud stressed the necessity of all requisitions being filled out and presented to the vendor before December 1, if any supplies are to be issued.

McCloud also urged all veterans and wartime merchant seamen who have not filled out personnel cards at registration to report to the Veterans' Affairs office at once.

Musicians Plan Beyond End Of Grid Campaign

Music for the coming basketball games is being planned by energetic members of the college band, Mike Cahn, band instructor, revealed today.

"Termination of the football season will not leave the band inactive," Cahn added, "for we intend to provide entertainment for the student body during the entire semester."

The size of the organization to appear at the basketball games has not been decided as yet, but it will be a complement of the regular band.

Mayor-Elect's Parents Guest-Star On Campus

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Robinson, parents of Mayor-Elect Judge Elmer Elmer E. Robinson, were present as special guests of Dr. A. J. Cloud, president of the college, at the semi-annual tea of the Associated Women Students Thursday.

Catholic Students To Sponsor Sport Dance

Plans for a sport dance Monday, December 1, to be held in St. Emydius Auditorium, Jules and De Montford Streets, and sponsored by the college Newman Club, were revealed yesterday by Francis McCarthy, publicity chairman for the club.

Admission will be free to all college students, and records will provide for dancing, from 8:30 p.m. to midnight.

Peace, Quiet Reign; Students Get The Bird

Don't go stomping for the exits right away, but Thursday, November 27, National Turkey Day, is a holiday and likewise is Friday, November 28.

In other words don't come around here this Thursday and Friday looking for education, it just won't be available.

The Brain Mill is shutting down for two days on official orders, and everybody is entitled to go out and get The Bird on Thanksgiving Day and sit back and relax the day after Thanksgiving.

Incidentally, you are looking at the last issue of The Guardsman until Thursday, December 4, when the staff will make a supreme effort to get the sheet out ONE day earlier than usual to present final details of the Christmas concert that night.

AWS Will Usher At Christmas Concert

Forty-two Associated Women Students will usher for the college's Christmas concert at the Veterans' Auditorium Thursday, December 4, according to Dean Margaret Dougherty.

Complementing the A Cappella Choir program, a tableau depicting the ancient Christmas story will be staged by the Drama department under the direction of Lloyd Sisler.

Those ushering for the event are Betty Jones, Marilee Zimmerman, Barbara Larson, Carol Schutt, Marie Upland, Barbara Burke, Vannie Myers, Marilyn Thompson, Betty Meadows, Marie Ravizzano, Dorothy Stoloroff, Jackie Faxon, Ruth Cristante, Phyllis Ryan, Gloria Wu, Tina Muzio, Anna Kanaday, Mary James, Teddy Deckert, Henrietta Hurley, Angela Cooke, Jane Haaklnson, Rosemary Mullen.

Record Dance Today Aids On-Campus Fraternization Plan

Inaugurating a get acquainted policy the Social Committee, headed by Jo Ellen Cain, Associated Student vice-president, is presenting a dance in the student lounge from 1 to 3 this afternoon.

Recordings will provide music which will feature sambas, congas, and popular waltzes, Miss Cain, said today.

The Social Committee is a branch of the Associated Student government, whose main objective is to promote amity and a feeling of sociability on the campus.

Committee members on this inaugural affair are Frank Grant, Associated Men Student president, and Jim Edwards, rally commissioner.

December 1 Sees Honor Students, Faculty Dine

H. Douglas Soule, chairman of the committee of faculty relations, announced today that the program, which will be attended by more than 100 of the scholastically outstanding tween the students and the faculty. students of the college, is designed to bring about a greater interest be-

The entertainment scheduled for the program has not been announced.

Cafeteria Open Friday Eves For Club Dinners

College organizations are invited to hold their meetings in the form of a dinner at the college cafeteria on Friday evenings, Hilda Watson, cafeteria head, announced last week.

Special menus and table service will be afforded upon request, providing college organizations respond, supplementing the need for additional patronage on Friday nights, Mrs. Watson added.

AMS Formulates Barn Dance Plans For West Campus On December, 5

The Associated Men Student barn dance is to get under way at 8 o'clock in the auditorium "barn" Friday night, December 5, Frank Grant, AMS president, said today. Admission to the affair is one Associated Student card per couple.

Plans for decorations were completed last week by Grant and his staff, Bob Reilly, vice-president, and Bob Selby, secretary-treasurer.

On the night of the gala affair the auditorium will look like a big, rambling barn in the country. Plans include fire-proof crepe paper hung from the center of the ceiling, simulated hay bales made from boxes, and an old wagon near the front steps of the "barn," Grant said.

Assisting with decorations are Ed Gallemore, Alf Uddenberg, Andy Ferrari, Ted Noble, Bill Riley, Chet Fong, Al Jones, Paul Yde.

Bachelor Veterans Instruct At College

By Dave Hansen

Floriculture instructor Raymond Peterson, who joined the college faculty this fall, admits to the age of 29, stands 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 160 pounds, and wears glasses.

The brown haired bachelor is a veteran with four years in the army artillery, one year of which was spent with the United States forces in Germany, Checkoslovakia, and France.

Peterson has both academic and practical experience in his field of instruction. He attended California Polytechnic's southern branch extension, San Dimas, where he majored in horticulture, as do all students there.

Graduation in 1942 coincided exactly with Peterson's entry into the army.

Following his discharge, Civilian Peterson worked for a time with Christensen's Nursery, first at San Francisco, later at Belmont.

In this, his first semester at the college, he expects to have classes start December 1, hopes to have things in full swing by Easter. In addition to his duties here, the new instructor finds time to act as secretary to San Francisco's Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, an organization composed of Bay Area gardeners and nurserymen.

Instructor of photography Charles L. Lamp also is 29, stands 5 feet 10 inches tall, has blue eyes, blonde hair, ruddy features, and tips the scales at 177 pounds. He broke into the photography trade in the winter of 1939-40, then he taught for two years at Commerce Adult High School in San Francisco, a night school.

The next five years saw bachelor Lamp calling the U. S. Army "home," during which time he considered himself fortunate to be working at his trade, photography. He saw duty first in connection with ground and aerial photography, later as a photo intelligence officer. Lamp received his discharge in December, 1945.

As a civilian, he taught for one year at Samuel Gompers, a San Francisco trade school. The current semester is his first at the college, following an invitation to instruct here. Lamp's first reflections of the college are pleasant ones.

"The cooperation of the faculty and interest of the students in connection with my work here are unexcelled," he said at the time of his interview.

Thanksgiving Should Not Be For Us Alone!

WITH the world cluttered with problems, and perhaps on the verge of a shattering future, it would do us well to pause for a few moments in a realistic feeling toward the national celebration of Thanksgiving Day.

Indeed, the origin of this day of prayer and thanksgiving came from the early pioneers of this nation for the food and shelter that this new nation had bestowed on them.

They were thankful for protection from the wild elements of a raw new continent, and protection of their rights to the dignity of man.

Yet, today some 300 years later, as this nation pauses in a prayer of thanks,—that, we are eating regularly and the rest of the world is starving.

With this woeful situation spreading throughout the world, comes the inevitable rise of discontent among peoples of the world, and with discontent may come actual conflict.

Thus in our day of Thanksgiving, we should be grateful for our heritage and our fortune in possessing the material things that go for making happiness.

Yet we must be generous, and hope someday, that all the people of the world, can have their THANKSGIVING-DAY.

Pay For Campus Cleanup

AN EXCELLENT suggestion has been brought to the attention of The Guardsman concerning the cleanliness of the West Campus.

This area looks as bad, if not worse, than it has all semester. Though the situation was temporarily remedied a short time ago, it has now fallen back into the previous state of disorder.

What to do? Issue the cry again? Wave the "do it for your college" banner?

There is an answer, a plausible answer. An answer that would be two fold in purpose.

Many veterans living in the barracks on the west campus are slightly better off than destitutes. It's the same old story. No check, no money, no living. Why not pay these needy veterans a nominal sum, say on an hourly basis, to clean up our campus on their leisure hours?

Possibly the powers that be of this college will see that the few dollars spent on this project will be multiplied many times over in added beauty of the college.

The amount of compensation need not be in excess of a dollar an hour, which in the long run would almost be a negligible expense in the finances of this college.

It's a suggestion well worth heeding.

Hack's Tale Of Woe

By Quentin Ogle

MRS. ALDRICH has her HEN-REEEEE to hunt for; Stanley, probably died flatfooted from his African search for the good Dr. Livingston. Weep not for them, however, for there is here, on this campus, a group of unfortunates who daily would trade with any of these so-called searchers.

We are the "assignment writers" on this paper. Our trials and sorrows will be remembered in song and story when this generation is but nameless dust swirling along Ocean Avenue.

An assignment writer is a person assigned by The Guardsman Diety to see some Very Important Person (VIP) each week and get his world shaking opinions safely down on paper. Sounds easy, huh?

When this semester began, we new journalists were given our assignments and happily considered what a "snap" this course would be. See how young and innocent we were?

Now let us take a hypothetical case and all go off together to find a VIP. Let us say this VIP is an instructor of shoe shining, so our first stop is the shine room. (All VIPs have their rooms on the fourth floor.) He has just left for his office on the first floor. We fight our way downstairs through the "Smoking Set" on the stairways, and find the office locked and deserted.

Tomorrow comes with more stair climbing, empty class rooms, goons blocking stairs to smoke, and dark, deserted offices, and take up a watch at VIP's office door. We successfully corner our victim in his lair, beat down his objections to being quoted, take out our pens and get down to cases. Will we get a story—? Of course not! Either the telephone will ring (VIPs surround themselves with telephones) or our pens will refuse to function until we get under water, or VIP has to go to class.

Five minutes before deadline we frantically dash into The Guardsman office and write, "According to Mr. VIP, instructor of shoe shining 23-3, most shoes require polish of the same color as the shoes."

The Bull Pen

Coffee costs too much. On campus students have to part with eight cents for a medium-filled cup of joe.

Off campus they are ramshackled into paying a dime. A real cup and saucer are included in this deal, so dishwashing expenses undoubtedly come in for a share of the extra two-cent fee.

Reason for the campus increase is that sugar and cream have mounted on the price scale, according to Hotel and Restaurant Division executives.

But those who like it straight, pay just as much even though water rates have not gone up.

Ed Medford at the College Book Shop explains his large assessment on Java fans by pointing out that he dispenses a superior brand.

Gone is the time when we were stationed in the Aleutians and made the stuff so thick and black that it bleached the deck when we spilled it. The weather is better here.

Pre-Medicos In Operation . . .

By Mary Erhart

The Fall semester of 1946 saw the re-birth of one of the college's largest pre-war organizations, Pi Mu Gamma. Under the sponsorship of John E. Hare, head of the Biological science department, it is once again gaining the great momentum that it had before the war—a membership list of over 3,000 names.

This semester the society is endeavoring to create a common interest in the biological science group by conducting a series of lectures and movies on various fields of medicine. This program should be helpful to those who are undecided as to what field of biosciences they wish to pursue in future life.

The able student leader of Pi Mu Gamma is Pete Isola, pictured with this story. His supporting officers are Val MacDonnell, vice-president; Doris Koswie, secretary; Carol Benson, corresponding secretary; Lary Tullius, treasurer; Ted Chambi, CAB representative, and Bill Kurz, head of publicity.

The social functions of this organization play strictly a minor role in its make-up. The "Scalpel Jockies" have put on several good dances since their revival, which have been terrific successes.

The only qualifications that are needed for membership are that the student be a bio-science major, and pay an initiation fee of $3.00, and 50 cents a month dues.

Pi Mu Gamma holds business meeting during college hours, in Room 204 in the main building.

• Brick-bats Coming

Editor, The Guardsman:

There are certain people in this school that have no consideration for other people's property. I am referring to the students who spend their time of leisure on the West Campus drinking coffee outside of the fountain. They don't seem to be able to distinguish an automobile from a garbage can.

I used to leave my car unlocked, but I stopped this practice since I found coffee spilled into it and empty cups and cigaret butts thrown in for good measure. When I started locking the car I found coffee spilled on the hood and other parts of the car's body smeared with every imaginable filth.

I want to point out that, if I ever catch a person that is practicing vandalism on my vehicle, I am going to hit him or her, regardless of sex, with something heavy, preferably a brick. Svlatoslav G. Yashnitsky.

• No Time For Spirit

Editor, The Guardsmnn:

In reply to Ed Roper's article concerning the "rah-rah boys," I would like to say that "too few are expecting too much." We have one of the best junior colleges in the United States, but it cannot be compared with UCLA, Michigan or Notre Dame.

By any other name it is still a two year junior college. As a rule students don't build "college spirit" for a J.C., but rather for a university. Most of the students here at J.C. are planning to continue their schooling at some university which will receive their sentimental alma mater spirit.

At the J.C. they are getting their educational foundation and haven't time for "rah-rah." I hold no grudge with those who want to participate in school activities, but I do resent the classification of "mutton-head" to those students who believe their studies to be more important than going to a dance or a football game. Harold.

News To Nobody

By Herbert Levy

PRESENTLY sweeping the campus is the cute phrase, "better than grapes," which means almost anything. However youngish Pat Crowley, personality in a coed personified, came jaunting into the office wondering what it meant.

Seems that this expression started with the music lovers about the campus (strictly jive men), so with clarification for the "squares" around the college, it means (hold your breath) something that is really terrific!

Thusly, a student can get his or her kicks merely by eating a bunch of muscats, and if something comes along that's better, hence the quaint saying, musically, "Hey, man that cat's got somethin' better than grapes."

Seeing how we use Balboa High School's field to play some of our home games, the last time we were over there, it appeared that there is a definite man shortage around their school yard . . . now the school's R.O.T.C. unit is using 5 girls in the soldier-boys band!!!

As an after-note on the mighty Golden Bear's expected defeat of the hapless Stanford Indian down on the farm, it seems that the week preceding the "Big Game," the Stanford Daily (college newspaper) used one whole page (could it be to appease the growling bear), complimenting like mad on how wonderful the Associated Student organizations on the Berkeley campus were, and how simply charming everything was pertaining to the Big "C". Which just goes to show, that every time we play an opposing eleven, their college should be really built up into something glorious! (And probably we would still be trampled!)

Plaudits to the Student Council for voting the price of iodine for the good college sawbones, Doc Jones . . . seems school authorities disap-

Reports have it that the mascot Ram at the L.A.C.C. game failed to return to the slaughter house, so the Swift Co. presented the caretakers of the ram a bill for $23!!!

Long Beach Vikings Set To Give Rams Trimming In Thanksgiving Day Game

Injuries May Dampen Local's Chances Of Copping Grid Final At Long Beach

Turkey Day dinner, victory style, is the menu for Grover Klemmer's elevn at Long Beach Thursday.

This is the prayer of the traveling San Francisco Rams as the city collegians conclude their current 1947 grid season on Polytechnic High School Field in Long Beach when they battle their intersectional rivals, the Long Beach Vikings, at 12 noon, November 27, Thanksgiving Day that is!

In their performances this year, the southerners, both in victory and defeat, have put forth a scoring barrage of two or more touchdowns, and two T.D.'s this era have been enough marginal value to crumble the once mighty Ram.

Whatever hopes Klemmer and his guidance corps of Jack Gaddy and Bill Fischer have to pull the Ram through to a win are slowly fading as the 31 players in Thursday's tidings will be made up of an injury group.

Doubters for the opening kickoff among the first eleven are Captain Ken Schuehard, Glenn Stern, and Chick Kelley. All injuries were incurred on the rock pile of the Balboa High Field.

Klemmer gathers his travelers at the Southern Pacific depot at 8 o'clock for the trip down to the Norsemen territory this Wednesday evening, and plans a hurried departure north again, leaving Friday noon.

10,000 Expected For Turkey Day Struggle

Long Beach, Calif., Nov. 25—Coach Ed Wagner ran his charges through a final scrimmage yesterday and began to taper his squad down for Thursday's "biggie" with San Francisco.

With a capacity crowd of 10,000 virtually assured, the city college Vikings will be out to give a repeat performance (with interest) of 1946, when the "Oles" whipped the Rams 13-6 in San Francisco.

This afternoon's grid competition will feature the Jolly Eight vs. The Boys at 3 o'clock, and The Golden Mt. Boys vs. the Vandals at four.

Soccermen Place 4th

Now that the soccer field is again quiet and the uniforms are hanging in the locker room, the Ram eleven has secured itself fourth place in the final league conference standings.

Spotlight Shifts To Intra Football

Touch football took over the top spot in the intramural spotlight yesterday as the first games of the season were played at Balboa Field.

Fifteen teams have signed up for competition, one of the largest fields to enter intra grid competition in recent years. Two games will be played each day, the first at 3 o'clock and the other at 4:10.

The games today will be played at Balboa Field, because of the inability of Intramural Director Tom Wilson to secure the football field, but action will move to the practice gridiron after Thanksgiving.

The tourney will be a one game elimination with a consolation round, enabling each team to play at least two games.

Teams entered in competition are the Jefferson A.C., McCoppin Dumpers, Hotel and Restaurant Division, Block Society, Rockets, 49ers, Sugar Mt. Boys, The Jolly Eight, The Boys, Jr. Rams, Beta Tau, Frisco Flyers, Ski Rams, Golden Mt. Boys, and the Vandals.

Leadership in the cage tourney remained unchanged on the whole, except for the Bush League, where the Hotel & Restaurant Division five climbed into the loop lead with a 5-1 record.

Buc Power Subdues Klemmermen 18-7

By Sam Goldman

Displaying their power offense tactics in full fashion, the Modesto Pirates clinched their A Division crown last Friday when they took apart a tired San Francisco eleven in the second half, 18-7, at George Washington Field in the Rams' NCJCC fray.

An upset victory over the Earlemen almost came true to Grover Klemmer and staff as the city eleven after having been scored upon in the first quarter came back in the second quarter, under the outstanding field generalship of all conference nominee left half Ray Stewart, marched 45 yards for the T. D. Paul Hagan's accurate toe gave the Rams a 7-6 lead at half-time.

The Bucs opened up their offense midway through the first period, when fullback Otris Williams, sweeping his own left end, bowled his way down the sidelines 62 yards for six points. The conversion attempt failed.

After Jim Bowman intercepted a Ram pass late in the third quarter and returned to the San Francisco 10, Left Half Louie Lacoste two plays later scored. The extra point attempt was no good.

RAMblings . . Soccer Men Don't Get Proper Credit

By Larry Baldocchi

SOCCER athletes at the college take to the field year after year against their opponents, and yet most of the students of the college do not know they are even playing.

Soccer players, like any other athletes, take pride and enjoyment in playing the game. They face their foes with hardly any protection, and soccer is by no means a sissy game.

While the college football and basketball teams get a fairly good crowd to witness their games, soccer squads face their opponents with few or no spectators at all. They practice arduously every day as do athletes in any other sports and have to be in top condition throughout the season.

The soccer athlete must have a hard head (no offense) because many times a good hard whack at the ball with the noggin comes in handy.

If a person talks with his hands he is automatically disqualified from playing soccer; the rules read that the ball can not come into contact with the player's hands or arms. The ball may be stopped or projected forward only with the feet, legs, torso or head.

The exception to this rule is the goalie, who may pick up the ball to throw or kick out of the danger zone. The only time play is suspended is when a foul is committed or the ball is knocked out of bounds.

WAA Horseback Jaunt Receives Cut On Time

Sponsored by the Riding Club, a four hour horseback ride will be given Friday, November 28, from 8:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., instead of the all-day jaunt formerly scheduled, Lorraine Bergin, club adviser, announced yesterday.

The group will meet on this date at the Rancho Mar Viesta where they will ride along the beach bridle path.

Transportation will be offered from Mac's Hitch Rack at the end of the "L" line at 8:15 a. m., club leaders said.

Sign up sheets are in the women's and men's gymnasium and on the main floor bulletin board, and for further information, students are advised to inquire at the women's gymnasium.

1938 Squad Tied For Title With Two Wins

With a record of three wins, three losses and one tied game, the 1947 college football squad finds itself in second place in the title race. The 1938 eleven, with a record of two wins and eight losses, managed to be in a three-way tie.

In the game that broke the tie, the Rams outgained the Pirate squad on the ground and in the air, and accumulated eight first downs against Modesto's six. Yet the Pirates proved a little too much for the trying but tiring Rams, and they lost that 1938 championship game 21 to 0.

It was a hit 'n' year for the college football squad in 1938 not only because it lost the championship, but also because the late Coach Russ Sauser was shifted from football to other sports.

Actors Score In Our Town With SRO At Every Show

Thornton Wilder Play Of New England Life Well Handled By Local Artists

By William Franklin

Playing to packed houses, the college drama group's skillful presentation under the direction of Lloyd Sisler, drama instructor, and Thornton Wilder's deft writing of Our Town transforms a bare stage into a relentless progress of life, love, and death in a commonplace New Hampshire village.

Top honors in this oustanding production must go to Phil Onstott for his part as narrator and town philosopher. Acting with calm New England reserve, Onstott creates a warm, tearless, emotional atmosphere which the conventional stage could not duplicate.

The gradual growth and maturity of Emily Webb and George Gibbs, the young lovers, is especially well done. These roles are double-cast with Regina Warehot and Ruth Shephard as Emily; while Jaek Hagen and Dave Huenergardt enact the part of George.

The pantomime used throughout this play is also good. It is neither over-acted nor self-conscious.

The plot centers in the bashful boy-girl romance, but the general theme includes the pelasures and problems of the town as a whole.

The playwright's opinion that the true essence of life is not found in the living, but in the dead is open to question, even though the entertainment is of the best quality.

Leadership Lunch Is Set December 2

Termination ceremonies of the Recreation and Club Leadership Course to be held Tuesday, December 2, will include a luncheon given in the west campus cafeteria, Arthur Furst, course chairman, announced today.

Accentuating techniques in both entertaining and constructive child recreation, the course, consisting of eight lectures, is being attended by adult volunteers from Campfire, Scout, and other girl reserve organizations in this community.

President A. J. Cloud will preside at the luncheon which follows the concluding lecture of the series.

Instructors for the course are faculty members Laurine Bergin, Madison Devlin, Jules Fraden, Phylis Haley, Patricia McCarthy, Ruth Somers, Gloria Swieegood, and Verrel Weber, whose lectures cover correlated subjects ranging from nature study to child psychology.

New Paint Formulation Classes Are Started

Under the direction of Frances K. Wilson, a new course in paint technology was started here Monday, November 17.

A daytime course in paint formulation is now being offered to college students, plus two night courses for men in the paint, varnish and lacquer industry only.

Wilson comes to the college faculty highly recommended by men in the paint and varnish industry, having had 20 years experience in this line.

He was selected by the educational committee of the local paint, varnish and lacquer associations, in cooperation with the college administration.

Students interested are invited to see Wilson in Room 223, or Room 229, Monday or Wednesday afternoons.

Our Town Ends Today

Last performance of Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer prize winning play, Our Town, will be presented today, November 25, in The College Theatre, Room 28. This three act production is free to all Associated Student card holders, or 60 cents admission to non-holders and the general public.

The Importance Of Being Ernest is scheduled for the week of January 12th.

KNBC To Broadcast Christmas Program

The National Broadcasting Company and radio station KNBC formerly KPO will air a special Christmas program from the college campus sometime before the Christmas holiday, Marie Weller, radio instructor who made the arrangements, said early this week.

The combined forces of the A Cappella Choir, directed by Haroid Cunningham, and the radio class will dramatize the birth of the "Christ Child."

Using a large Christmas tree which will be erected beside the silver pole on the first floor of the main building as a backdrop for the selling, the choir along with the radio class will air the program.

The cast list for the drama has not been announced. The choir however, will sing a group of Christmas Carols.

Time and date of the program will be announced later.

National Guard To Use Fort Funston

Battery A of the 21st A.A.A. Automatic Weapons Battalion, the "college's own" National Guard unit, has just acquired the largest part of Fort Funston for its own use, according to Walter E. McCloud, director of veterans affairs.

The battery now has three two and a half ton trucks as well as four half tracks to be used in its publicity program for the National Guard and other services required by the battery to use in its post war plannings for a bigger and better state National Guard.

A new addition to the campus' armed force is the formation of Battery C, and staff sergeant Bill Welch states "that many openings for rated men are awaiting new signees in Battery C company."

All interested men, both veterans and non-veterans, are invited to attend the meetings of the National Guard unit, at Fort Funston on Monday evenings, 8 o'clock.

Slush Pumpers Unsurpassed In College Spirit Show The Way For Campus Group Activities

By Bill Kinsley

Though contrary to some beliefs, college spirit of the caliber worthy of any college is being propelled here by a relatively small group of students inhabiting this campus.

Hitting an all- time high in esprit de college, these students, active members of the college band, donate numerous afternoon and evening hours for practice sessions, preparing for various appearances before the student body.

Far above the call of two units, they've worked diligently toward providing themselves with uniforms, transportation, and instruments all needed for their performances at the football games and rallys.

Totally unfamiliar with marching procedure, the band members gave forth prodigious efforts, and, accomplishing the near impossible, they perfected a stylish parade technique.

When future claims that college spirit is lacking here are made, and they will be, some may remember this, earnest organization, THE COLLEGE BAND, and be thankful that the college rates such a

Californians (In The Know) Go To Them Thar Snowhills

By Bill Rainey

November is the month when Californians turn their noses toward "them thar hills" to answer the call of the wild.

It is a moot question whether these mountain bound people are being athletic or stylish. The latter seems more feasible when one has observed the skierettes strut about in their spotless ski outfits. Many of the luxurious ski boots which thump about the ski lodge floor have never found their way to a pair of skis.

The ski carrier which is used to carry the skis to the lodges is the best means for the skier to advertise that he is a skier. The chrome plated carrier is much preferred to the dull metal ones.

Activities Varied

Activities at night in the lodges range from night skiing to bridge. Many who fear the brutal rays of the sun in the day time will ski under the cover of darkness. The bridge enables the skiers to gather together decked out in full ski costume, and discuss the next day's skiing.

Another important requirement for a skier is the ability to "yodel." Once this has been mastered, there will be no question in the minds of the skiers who do not possess such a talent, that the yodeler is a native of the Alps.

Tact must be used when addressing any returning skier. The first thing to say is, "that is a fine burn on your face, you must be a skier." The skier beams and you are from then on vast friends.

Rough For Gals

There are a few requirements that Slue Foot Mazy, the skier, must meet before she fastens her boots to a pair of the dangerous boards and slides gracefully down the hill.

Mazy first applies sun tan lotion to her face to prevent a bad burn on the perilous journey down the hill. Her binding must be tested ten or 15 times. She then coughs a few times to make sure that the eyes of all the men are upon her before she begins.

Once under way she is sure that all eyes are upon her, and as a result she exaggerates all the style she has learned from Alpine Jack, the ski instructor.

If she is able to maneuver 20 feet, her day is done and she is immediately classified as a skier.

Navy Invites Men To View Reserve Program

That money and many extra benefits are being offered by the Navy Organized Reserve to veterans or non-veterans who wish to sign up was announced by Walter E. McCloud, director of veteran affairs.

A special bus will be run either or both Friday morning, November 28th or Saturday morning the 29th for those interested, to view without obligation, the organization activities.

Poly Sci 26, Psych 25 Added For Next Term

New courses in Social Science are to be offered in the spring semester, 1948, William Goss, social science department chairman announced yesterday.

Political Science 26, one of the new courses, carries university credit.

Psychology 25, also carries university credit with prerequisite for this course, Math A or high school algebra.

This course will fulfill the statistics requirement for Psychology majors, Goss added.

CCF Offers Business View On Christianity

Arnold Grunigen, vice-president of the Christian Business Men of America, an organization which sponsors the furtherance of Christianity in Business, will address the students of the college on the subject: Christianity from a Business Man's Point of View, Wednesday, November 26, 3:30 p.m., Room 200.

Architectural Course Fills Upper Level Needs

The university parallel course in architecture that has been established this semester will enable any student who completes the requirements to continue with an upper division course at any university, according to the registrar's office here.

Ram Cagers Scrimmage With Cal's 145 Squad

Regular afternoon basketball practice session was highlighted last week with a two hour scrimmage against the University of California 145's, in the women's gymnasium.

Coach Ralph Hillsman, divided the college squad into seven quintets, and each five played only fifteen minutes of the game, so that the basketball mentor could pick out the best players in actual competition.

Outstanding in the scrimmage were Earl Malnick, Tom Burroughs, Dolph Pippus, and Stan Bacon.

The Guardsman

Official Twice Weekly Publication of the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College

Vol. XXV SAN FRANCISCO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1947 No. 17

The Spectator

George Lujeunesse

IN AN effort to save the college from vultures and seagulls a ban has been placed, for one week, on all parking on the west campus, except of those cars on official duties.

Starting this Monday every hack with four wheels, from hot-rods to Hupmobiles must look elsewhere for parking facilities.

The reason for the drastic action is obvious to anyone trying to wade through the debris of empty coffee cups and milk containers that have been strewn for weeks across the once clean west campus.

EATING LUNCH IN CARS

Despite numerous garbage cans sprinkled liberally about the place, students have been sitting in parked cars eating lunch and flipping the remains over the side, rather than walk a few feet to one of these cans.

No one can say that we haven't been asking for this. Repeated warnings have evidently failed to instill a grain of common sense and decency into the heads of some allegedly intellectual students, and the trash is still being thrown around.

SEAGULL PLAYGROUND

The seagulls have been having a field day out on the parking strips, raeing each other around cars for choice bits of bread. The pickings here have been considerably more inviting to them than anything they've seen on the waterfront.

Down along the piers the gulls have to run competition with wharf rats. The rats haven't shown up on the campus, yet but if the junk-epidemic were allowed to continue any longer they'd soon be moving in.

DANGER OF DISEASE

To anyone who has witnessed what a typhoid fever epidemic can cause, a parade of rats on the campus wouldn't exactly be cause for merriment.

Especially in a city situated as this one is, at the gateway to the Orient. If anyone doubts that it can happen here, let him call up the U.S. Public Health Service and find out the rigid blockade they have to enforce 24 hours a day on all shipping coming into the harbor.

All it takes is one rat, loaded with germs, coming down the gangplank of a freighter just in from China or India and a disease could spread like wildfire.

NOT SO FEW

The situation here on the west campus can't just be blamed on the old army game of punishing many for the actions of a few.

Look at the sidewalk around the fountain and in the parking area. All that filth couldn't have been deposited by a few people; it takes a small army to get one spot that dirty.

Autos Banned From West Campus Park; Sloppy Area Cited

By Arnold Wechter

Cars will be banned from the west campus from Monday, December 8 to Friday, December 12, it was announced today by Dean Edward E. Sandys. The action was taken to show students the seriousness of the clean-up problem on the college grounds.

In a statement to The Guardsman, Dean Sandys said, "Despite our request that students refrain from dropping luncheon refuse on the parking area, the practice has continued.

"We regret to announce that west campus parking privileges will be revoked for one week from December 8 to December 12.

"We hope that this action will not have to be repeated as a reminder to use ash cans."

Twice before Dean Sandys has warned students on this condition, saying that action would necessarily be taken if it continued.

Faculty members and residents of the college will be exempted from this order.

Sandys also warned that comparable action will be taken in the student lounge if students do not heed cleanup warnings.

Card Playing Banned In Student Lounge

Card playing is banned in the west campus student lounge between 9 a. m. to 2 p. m., Dean Edward E. Sandys announced yesterday. Violations of this will result in the confiscating of the cards, he warned.

All three of the deans will be there to enforce this rule. "We have to resort to this because of lack of student study space," Dean Sandys said.

College Ring Designs Shown For Two Weeks

Drawings of the planned class rings will be on display this week in one of the showcases on the first floor of the main building, Gloria Jean Wu, Associated Student secretary, announced yesterday.

Younger Set Leads Choir Tonight

Taking part (the "lead") in a full scale college musical production is quite an adventure, especially if you are 4 or 5 years old, like Carol Ripley and Tommy Porter, in photo at the left.

Carol and Tommy step off to the strains of Adeste Fideles as candle-bearers, leading the college A Cappella Choir to the stage of the War Memorial Auditorium tonight.

Carol Ripley, Tommy Porter

Tommy, the 4-year-old, is currently infatuated with a mature young lady of 8, while Carol's steady is a responsible 5-year-old sharpie from Sacramento.

Carol would like to see the college name unchanged, but Tommy attributes this to youthful female perverseness, thereby agreeing wholeheartedly with the college Faculty Association of which his father, Thomas H. Porter, is president.

Carol's dad, James H. Ripley of the physics department, approves her choice of career—that of housewife and mother—but Tommy's family is a little dubious about his desire to be a garbage man.

Veterans' Auditorium Program Stars Choir With Dickey, Burt As Soloists

By Leigh Rowe

Presentation of the college music department's 13th annual Christmas concert starts tonight at 8:15 in the Veterans' Auditorium, Van Ness Avenue and McAllister Street, officially ushering in the Yuletide season for the college.

Led by the A Cappella Choir and the men's and women's choruses, and assisted by the drama department, the annual event is one of the biggest of the year, and is jointly sponsored by Mu Iota Psi and Associated Women Students.

Choir and Story Featured

The choir, choruses and orchestra will participate in the program of varied Christmas music, with Roy Burt and Elmer Dickey as tenor soloists. Direction of the groups is under Gertrude Norgard and Harold Cunningham with Meyer Cahn conducting the orchestra.

A tableau of the traditional Christmas story also figures largely in the program, with Lloyd Sisler as director and Phil Onstott as narrator.

Sixty-one prominent San Franciscans will act as patrons for the occasion, and forty-two AWS women will be ushering.

The college art department also comes in for credit with the poster committee contributing aid to publicity. Fanchon Gary designed the state settings and the programs.

Children as Candlebearers

The concert will begin with the processional, with candlebearers Tommy Porter and Carol Ripley leading the choir and choruses down the aisles to the stage.

Besides the traditional Christmas carols to be sung, the groups will present selections from Handel's Messiah, the Hallelujah Chorus and Comfort Ye!

Also on the program is Cantique de Noel, with Roy Burt as soloist, Gloria Patri, sung by the choir, and Panis Angelicus sung by the women's Chorus and Dickey.

The orchestra will play the Cornelius Festival March by Mendelssohn.

ALWAYS A TRADITIONAL highlight of Christmas pageantry, the tableau of the Holy Family is pictured as it was presented at last year's Christmas Festival.

The tableau of the familiar Nativity Scene will be staged again this year by members of the drama department, directed by Lloyd Sisler, during tonight's performance of the Christmas concert.

Oscar Wilde's Comedy Being Produced Here

A college drama group under the direction of English instructor Paul Ellison, began rehearsals of Oscar Wilde's comedy, The Importance of Being Earnest, last Monday.

Sometimes referred to as "the funniest comedy in the language," the play will be presented on the week beginning January 12, 1948.

The masculine lead of Jack Worthing (Earnest) will be dually portrayed by Jack Jones and Eugene Carlson.

Santa Coming Loaded With Gifts For Kids

Tot-age sons and daughters of student veterans and faculty members will be the guests of the student body at a Christmas party to be given on the west campus, Friday, December 12, according to Richard V. Cormier, spokesman for the junior-junior set, who is nearly five years old.

Master Cormier states that Santa, bubbling over with the holiday spirit and laden with gifts for all, will be accompanied by a magician.

CAB To Discuss Band Recognition Tomorrow

Action for official recognition of the SFJC Band Club will be one of the main points of business at tomorrow's meeting of the Club Advisory Board, Les Holden, board president, said yesterday.

The board will meet in Room 2B during the college hour.

Long Beach City College:—Arguments have broken out on this usually quiet campus over the new partner recently purchased for 30 semester "Oscar," the anatomy-class skeleton. The anatomy supply catalog lists it as a "skeleton, human, female." Her tightly closed mouth gives the lie to that statement, according to the masculine students.

University of Michigan:—Football season here isn't complete without retelling a "Yost story." Yost was a famous turn-of-the-century coach and quite an orator. A typical story: His team was trailing at half time, so he worked his team up to sobbing rage for revenge, pointed to a door, and said, "Michigan is counting on YOU, GO!" The team savagely rushed through the door only to fall enmasse into the swimming pool. Wrong door!

Stanford University:—The famous Axe yell was lifted from the classical comedy, The Frogs, written 2,000 years ago by Aristophanes. The constant refrain of "Brekek-koax-koax" which runs through the play was Will Irwin's inspiration for the familiar "Give 'em the Axe, the Axe!" back in '96. The original axe was found in the foothills and later salvaged from a scrap iron dump. The handle is a fugitive from a pile of firewood.

Our Strongest Weapon In Peace Fight Is Education

IN THREE days, just six short years will have passed since the United States entered World War II.

Within those years, starting from an unarmed and weak nation, the United States rose to the greatest power in the world, and with that power aided to the utmost the defeat of Nazi Germany and Imperialistic Japan.

We did this through concentrated effort of all the people of this nation in a supreme effort to rid the world of forces detrimental to the well being of free people the world over.

The cost in money and lives used to win this conflict was prohibitive.

Yet, today, just a scant two years after World War II ended, a new peril in the form of conflicting ideologies seems to be sweeping the world.

We'd be fools to maintain a "head in the sand" attitude and rely on the goodness in man to prevent another major war, which certainly would make the last one appear diminutive by comparison.

In consequence, on this commemoration of the disastrous attack on Pearl Harbor, it would do us well as citizens of the United States to think clearly on the present issues at stake.

This nation does not want another war, yet to maintain the peace we fought so hard to gain, it is necessary for each one of us to work with equal vigor that we used in fighting the war, to fight for the PEACE.

Game Still Belongs To Us

IN DEFEAT as well as in victory this college is one of the few in the bay area that can well point with pride at its football team.

Handicapped from the outset by a lack of funds to buy enough equipment, no choice scholarships dangled before their eyes, no pay in any size, shape or form, the men played as pure unadulterated amateurs.

Just a bunch of guys who played football because they like the sport.

Liked it well enough to submit to bruising body contact every day in the week at practice session, then go out on weekends to take on any team willing to meet them.

They took a double-barreled beating this season. One from most of their opponents and one where it hurt the most, from their supporters who were much too few in number.

Win or lose, this paper goes on record as extending its thanks to the team for carrying the college name high by playing clean, spirited football and keeping the game where it belongs, in the hands of the students.

Are Vets Necessary?

By Quentin Ogle

VETERANS' rights! Veteran groups to sway public opinion! Veteran pressure groups in Congress! We are surrounded by the veteran on all sides.

It is strange that there are not clubs for persons who have never robbed a bank! It is just as much against the law to evade wartime military service as it is to rob a bank.

Is it fair to persons who, through no fault of their own were not in the military services, to be herded together under the obnoxious title of "non-veteran"? As a group, non-veterans are shortchanged on jobs, on entrance into colleges, and on most activities where they must compete with the mighty veteran.

In all out, total war, why should we continue to distinguish between the uniformed corporal operating a telephone switchboard 3,000 miles from the war, and a machinist in the same city turning out war material? Both are helping to win the war.

"Our-gallant-boys-at-the-front" has lost most of its significance since armies have been mechanized and have grown into hordes of technicians. If a king of a country still led his little army into combat personally, and each soldier without exception met the enemy in combat, then those veterans could reasonably hold out as a favored few.

In modern war, however, only a relatively small percentage of soldiers ever sees actual physical combat, and the success or failure of battles hangs in the balance until one side produces (with civilian labor) enough machines of war to win.

"We-fought-and-died-while-the-'civvies'-made-money" isn't true as it formerly was. American servicemen are paid higher wages than any other army in history.

Let us forget what the country "owes" us. Rather let us concentrate on preventing a new crop of veterans coming into the picture in 20 years. We have plenty now. . .

Student Card Holder Held UP At Gate

• Thanx From Block SF
Editor, The Guardsman:

The Block "SF" Society wishes to express its deep appreciation and thanks for the wonderful cooperation and help the students of the college and the faculty administration have given to our recent programs in helping promote new school spirit.

Both the bonfire rally and last week's dance could have never been the successful affair they were had not "you" the student and administrator cooperated in putting over the planned programs.

Thank you very much. . .

• Bring Card and Wallet
Editor, The Guardsman:

Here is the heart-rending tale of an ex-Rah Rah boy.

He had been mentally chastising himself for his lack of school spirit so he decided, on this fatal Friday, to turn over a new "leaf" and begin participating in some of the school activities by attending the football game.

All fired-up with the spirit of Rah-Rah, and split six for dear old J.C., he went over to Washington, pulled out his Associated Student Body card and started to walk through the gate giving the appearance of having a great burden lifted from his shoulders (he was afraid that he wouldn't be able to use his card this term) flashing his card at the gateman, he started through, but two gargantuan hands grasped him; he turned to look in a face that had "naughty, naughty" written all over it. The gateman informed our hero that he must pay to gain admittance. Too stunned to say anything he staggered off mumbling to himself: "school spirit—bah!"

The moral to my story is, "If you ever go to a J.C. game make sure that you have a worthless five-dollar student card supplemented by a full wallet."

News To Nobody

By Herbert Levy

A GOOD argument on why this college has definitely outgrown its "junior" stigma was shown by the excellent officiating of the Poly-Lowell classic on Turkey Day by Phy. Ed. department instructors, chunky Lee Eisan and Tom Wilson.

And just to think, last Sunday's U.S.F.-St. Mary's football bout was refereed by the same two gents from little ol' junior college. . . more students attend here than the Gaels and Dons combined!!

Talented Walter Wong, he's the scholar who designed the billboard out on Ocean Ave. advertising Ramland, now has designed the cover on a pamphlet ground out by the Graphic Arts Dept. entitled "Five Clippings," a series of articles run in the S. F. News some time back telling about the college's growing pains. . . seems the pamphlets are being distributed to S. F. citizens interested in this institution's welfare!!

The honest Salinas Panthers who took the Ram by the horns on the gridiron a couple of sessions ago, sent a letter to the Student Council asking if it was okay to keep the two megaphones their yell leaders accidentally carried back with them to the lettuce fields . . . seems they want to keep one as a trophy of the game (and pay for the other), the council happily agreed!

Attractive Lesile Adams, who works the swing shift out at the Parkwood (an eatery over on Irving St.) continually has a chance to practice her major around 2 in the morning while coping with young male college students, having their "after hrew chow" . . . her major is Psychology!!

Something new has been added over at S.F. State in that they are now giving tests to the students in educational, psychological, sociological, and vocational abilities in order to build their teaching methods around such needs . . . we wouldn't like to say that State is late, but Ramland has been doing just that since 1935!!!

Thirteen Years Of Music . . .

By Dot Hayes

ONE of the most informal and popular clubs on the campus is Mu Iota Psi, the music club. Together with Lambda Alpha, the music honor society, it is a strong anchor in the college music department.

Tonight's Christmas Festival at the Veterans' War Memorial Auditorium will mark the thirteenth year of outstanding presentations given by the music department and these organizations.

CHOIR FRONTS STAGE

The spotlight tonight will fall upon 46 members of the A Cappella choir and the men's and women's choruses. The A Cappella choir, in the absence of Flossita Badger, is under direction of Harold Cunningham, College of Pacific graduate and former music and physics instructor at Richmond High School. Cunningham also directs the men's chorus.

Gertrude Norgard, University of California graduate, directs the women's chorus and, in addition, is acting head of the music department while Miss Badger is on Sabbatical leave.

In addition to the choir and choruses is the 50-piece college orchestra under the baton of instructor Meyer "Mike" Cahn, recent arrival from Columbia University.

OPEN TO MUSIC LOVERS

Oldest of the two clubs, Mu Iota Psi's membership is open to those who have a capacity to enjoy and appreciate good music. The club plans details for college productions and gives opportunities for members to display their talents.

One of the best known students in music circles is Mu Iota Psi's president, Helen Setalov. Miss Setalov is a third semester student majoring in music. She paints professionally outside of college. At present she is studying voice and hopes to enter light opera.

LAMBDA ALPHA IS NEW

The latest addition to the music department, Lambda Alpha, has as its president Hal Harris, who also plays an important part in the Symphony Forum. Harris started his music career with his own hand in 1938 and hopes to continue his studies at the Juliard School of Music in New York.

Harris is assisted by Vice-president Grace Mayfield and Secretary Gloria Orzanco. Lambda Alpha is open to any music major who maintains a "B" average.

THE BULL PEN

By Max Call

GLOWING fireplaces, frosty windows, the sound of ski boots on a hardwood floor, all of these things remind the skier of his first night at the lodge.

The sensation of being on the snow and the ever-present feeling that the cold morning air belongs to you alone, reminders of the next day.

Some of the gang come in from a night run with fresh fallen snow covering their bright clothes, a smile, then the magic words, "Join you in a minute."

Laughter and the echo of the ski songs come from the tap room, it's the holiday and cares are forgotten.

The last ski run, a few hasty goodbyes, thoughts that range from snow capped mountains, the smell of burning pine, to that lost longing of reliving a wonderful time.

Mohr Hints SF To Nationals

NCJC Head Backs Ticket Sale Rule

By Arnold Wechter

A national junior college championship basketball tournament will be held in Kansas City, Mo., from March 24 through 27, 1948, according to an announcement today by Dr. J. Paul Mohr, athletic commissioner of the NCJCC.

This will be the first time in junior college athletic history that such an event will be staged.

Invitations to the tournament will be given on the basis of geographical elimination tournaments. San Francisco is classified in the Northwestern district, which also includes all of Northern California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Nevada.

Bowl Bid Acceptable

Dr. Mohr recently returned from the annual meeting of the California Junior College Association, Bakersfield, also revealed that the association not only approved of the basketball tournament, but also sanctioned the "Little Rose Bowl" football game. It is now possible for members of the NCJCC to accept a bid to play in the Pasadena classic.

Asked if San Francisco Junior College would accept a bid to the bowl game, Mohr replied, "I haven't spoken to Dr. Cloud on the matter, but I think we would." As an after thought, he added, smiling, "But, I doubt if we will receive the bid this year."

College Remains in League

When told of rumors that San Francisco Junior College may leave the NCJCC, Commissioner Mohr replied, "First I've heard of it, and besides the move would be impractical from a financial standpoint." He also reminded those who favor leaving the conference of Rule 11 of Intercollegiate Athletic Rules of the California Junior College Association, which states:

"Junior Colleges that are bonafide members of one of the recognized athletic conferences of the state may not compete in any sport with any junior college that has voluntarily withdrawn its membership from one of the conferences or has been temporarily suspended from membership in one of the conferences."

Admissions, Publicity Debate

When asked about the NCJCC rule which permits a home team to charge visiting students a higher price to sports events than that charged to local students, Mohr stated,

"There is such a rule, and in the long run it is a fair rule. I understand that at the present it is working a hardship on students of this college. But if they have a real grievance, they should have the Student Council advise Director of Athletics Jack Gaddy, who will represent the college, to bring the matter before the conference, when it meets in December."

Commissioner Mohr also stated that he is planning to bring before the conference the matter of publicity. He has no definite plan in mind, but believes there is a need of change in the conference's handling of public relations.

Commissioner J. Paul Mohr

Pasadena City College will be the only member of the Western States Conference to be represented in the Modesto State Championship Basketball tournament.

Gigantic Boxing Show Starts Monday; 73 Fighters To Tangle In 3 Day Meet

By Larry Baldocchi

Boxing at the college will step into the limelight when the bell rings sending the semi-annual Intramural Boxing Tournament into its first round of competition in the men's gymnasium Monday, December 8, at 3:30 p.m.

This year the boxing tournament met with much enthusiasm from the men students because a total of 73 fighters turned out to demonstrate the manly art of self defense.

The tournament will last for three days, December 8, 9, 11, with eleven different weight divisions assuring that the big and small alike will be well represented.

The different divisions are 120, 126, 132, 136, 140, 145, 150, 155, 165, 175, and the heavy weights.

This gala affair will be run on the basis of elimination matching gladiators of each division against one another until, after a flurry of flying fists, jabs, and hooks, there is only one fighter left in each division.

The victor of each division will then fight in the finals against last year's champions or students who have had previous experience in pugilistic rivalry. Among these will be such men as Vic Whitely, an outstanding boxer from Lincoln High School, Varthes Miroylan, Joe Hauion and John Fisher, all champs in their specific divisions last year.

The college fraternities and clubs are not going to be outdone by each other in this manly sport, so they will be more than represented when the men step into the square arena.

Ram Casabans Face CalFrosh Tomorrow

Making their initial appearance tomorrow, the San Francisco basketball squad faces the always tough University of California Frosh. Game time is 4 p. m. here at the men's gymnasium.

Ram Coach Ralph Hillman still isn't sure who will make up the varsity team, and said yesterday, "Competition is keen for all positions, and the lettermen from last season's Modesto Tournament winners have their work cut out for them if they expect to keep their positions."

The returning veterans include last year's captain, Phil Burroughs, Neil Turner, Bill Bahr, and Bob Tomlinson.

Coach George Thorne of the Bear Cubs stated yesterday in the Daily Californian, "We're coming along nicely, but we still have a long way to go." The Bears are made up of former high school stars, Bill Hagler, ex-Poly High all-city center, now holds down the pivot spot for the freshmen.

Director of Athletics Jack Gaddy announced that no charge will be made for the contest. All students are invited by Gaddy to get acquainted with the 1947-'48 Rambling Rams.

2 Tilts Feature Intra College Hour Slated

Intramural activity shifts to the football field this afternoon for the playing of two games in the touch football elimination tourney.

The Jr. Rams will take the field at 3:15 against the Beta Tau organization, while the Block SF gridmen tangle with the Rockets (from Chicago?) at 4 o'clock.

A single tilt will be played tomorrow. The Frisco Flyers are due to clash with the Ski Rams at 3:15.

Intramural Director Tom Wilson announced that the 49'ers, Sugar Mountain Boys, and Golden Mountain Boys have been dropped into the consolation round of the tournament, because of the failure of all three clubs to show up for their first round tilts.

The Jolly Eights won a 6-0 victory from The Boys in first round play, while the McCoppin Dumpers and the Vandals picked up default wins.

Individual league basketball honors went to the Sugar Mt. Boys, Pag's Club, Ram Rods, and Hotel & Restaurant Division. The first trio of teams finished the campaign with unblemished 7-0 records while the Restaurant squad copped their loop honfalion with a 6-1 slate.

Signups for intra volleyball competition will be accepted until Tuesday, January 6. Each team will be and two substitutes on their roster. allowed to have six regular players

Badminton, Volleyball And Swimming for WAA

A wide variety of team sports activities such as badminton, swimming, and volleyball are scheduled for Women's Athletic Association playdays during the next two weeks. Hermenia Ross, WAA president, announced yesterday.

Novelty races to be performed by the WAA aquatic group with the San Francisco State College waders is anticipated sometime within the next week, but the date has not yet been set.

Locals To Defend State Hoop Title At Modesto

The Ram basketball team probably won't face too much opposition in trying to retain the State Junior College Tournament title at Modesto this spring.

Most of California's southern junior colleges are going to participate in a Phoenix, Arizona tourney, which is being given at the same time as Modesto's.

A possible playoff between the champions of each tourney would determine the junior college basketball champion of California and Arizona.

Long Beach Vikings Destroy Klemmer T Gridmen In Seasonal Finale 34-0

By Sam Goldman

Long Beach Stadium, Long Beach, Calif., Nov. 27: Unwanted Thanksgiving Day greetings by the Long Beach Vikings were delivered to the San Francisco Rams in their concluding 1947 grid clash here today by a trouncing score of 34-0.

The Ed Wagner eleven, scoring five touchdowns and four conversions, gave the Grover Klemmer travelers the worse pigskin defeat in the city college's football history.

Opening their scoring barrage early in the first quarter, the southern hosts led at halftime 13-0, and continued to hammer touchdowns into the Ram end zone throughout the remaining two periods.

Late in the fourth quarter, Ram quarterback Jim Greene, in a desperation attempt for a San Francisco six pointer, marched the gridmen majestically 74 yards into the end zone.

However, with a last down and half a yard to enter the scoring arena, the Rams failed in their tally maneuver, when the officials claimed that Greene's quarterback sneak did not put the losers over for a T.D.

So devastating was the double-wing offense of the Norsemen, that Long Beach's first team rolled up a passing, rushing attack totaling 425 yards.

College First Again With Commerce Club

The college added another first to its list this week, this time with the formation of the first merchandising club in California colleges.

Under the sponsorship of Virginia Gohn, it is hoped that eventually other colleges will form similar clubs, thus forming a state organization.

Executives from local stores will give lectures on the various aspects of retail merchandising during these monthly meetings.

Walter Mattson has been elected club president for the present semester and will be assisted in his work by vice-president Shirley Driscoll, treasurer Muriel Armstrong, and secretary Evelyn Johnson.

Terrace Room Is Site Of Next ASSFJC Dance

Presenting their second social event of the fall season, the Associated Students will stage a dance, Friday, December 12, in the Terrace Room of the Fairmont Hotel, Jo Ellen Cain, Associated Student vice-president, announced today.

Committee members include, Ed Gallemore, Vale Tuska, Nick Dirtiman, and Dorothy Stalaroff.

Greenhouse Ready For Occupancy Now

After six months of hard labor and a year of careful planning, the greenhouse, situated by the men's gymnasium, is ready to be occupied by the floriculture unit, headed by Harry Nelson.

The greenhouse unit is composed of three smaller structures, the main house, the lathhouse, and the greenhouse, which are all enclosed within an area of 180 square feet.

The main house of the unit contains two rooms, office space, boiler, and class rooms, comprising half of the 40 by 100 foot space.

Ground beds and propagation unit constitute the small greenhouse, which is 29 feet wide and 100 feet long. Next to the greenhouse is the lathhouse which is used by the classes for storage beds, display beds, and bench space.

On the east side of the greenhouse is the ice plant which is used for soil erosion and material for plant study.

December Symphony Ushers Are Needed

Women students who desire to usher for the San Francisco Symphony performances during December, should apply to Margaret Dougherty, dean of women.

Miss Dougherty's office is located upstairs in Building 2 on the west campus.

AMS Barn Dance Features Evers' Band Tomorrow Night At 9 In Auditorium

Gary Evers' band will start playing at 9 o'clock tomorrow night for the AMS Barn Dance in the auditorium, Frank Grant, AMS president said today.

The music will be spotted with a number of hill-billy tunes to add to the barnyard atmosphere of the evening. The rest of the music will be the usual ballads, jigs, rumbas and sambas, Grant said.

The decorations are now nearly complete, and when the dance starts, it will include stuffed farm animals ranging from turkeys to dogs. There will be huge cartoons on the inside walls at the dance depicting different phases of farm life, Grant said.

A large turnout of levi and gingham clad dancers is expected. "A good dance is promised for all who attend," stated Grant.

Admission to the 9 to 12 dancing is one Associated Student card per couple.

Christmas Jobs Being Filled Very Rapidly

Christmas jobs are being filled rapidly, Joseph Armori, placement chief, said today.

The post-office jobs are being taken by male college students to capacity. There are enough men to handle the holiday mail, so the women have no chance to get post-office employment.

Amori said that he has sent more than a thousand workers to jobs at the post-office and department stores.

Remodeled Campus Ready For All Classes

Almost all remodeling that was scheduled for the college's west campus has been completed, and classes will be able to meet in their regularly scheduled classrooms by the end of this week, Controller Oscar Anderson announced today.

Any further plans for building or improvements of college facilities will have to be delayed until federal funds have been received, Anderson added.

Council Appoints Constitution Group

Correction, addition of new amendments, and removal of duplications will be the duty of the constitutional committee formed at the Student Council meeting of Tuesday, November 25.

Appointed as chairman of the group was Al Deutsch who will be assisted by council members Allen Broussard, John Noll, Max Call, Bill Riley, and Bob Reilly, and Trev Burrow, cabinet member.

The main task of the committee is one of clarification on some points in the document that are not clear, according to Frank Nelson, Associated Student president.

Students To Entertain Mothers At Party

Mothers of students of the hostess class here will be guests of honor at a Christmas party to be given by the class tomorrow afternoon in Room 108, from 2 to 3 o'clock, Frances Mount, home economics instructor, said today.

Jacqueline Papazian and Suzanne Imrie, co-hostesses for the occasion, have arranged a traditional Christmas setting which will include an old-fashioned decorated tree.

Vet Requisitions Still Available

All veterans who have not yet obtained their requisitions, should do so immediately in the second floor of building 3 on the west campus.

Walter McCloud, veterans affairs counsellor, said today that many G.I.'s are under the false impression the requisitions are no longer valid, and have failed to get their supplies. McCloud says the bookstores will continue accepting them for a short time, and it is advisable to take care of the matter as soon as possible.

A number of veterans are wondering if they will still receive the benefits of the G.I. Bill if they take a leave of absence from college, then enter school again at a later date.

McCloud states simply, the Veterans' Administration will give the veteran the benefits he is entitled to, as long as the college will accept him as a student.

New History Courses Added For Next Spring

Avid Book Collector Likes To Browse

Onstott Finds Famous Book's First Edition

By I. R. Lascola

"I'd rather browse through a second-hand bookstore than receive a first edition presentation copy of 'Forever Amber,'" Philip Onstott, student bibliophile, revealed yesterday.

Onstott, associated with the book business for 15 years, has been a collector and dealer in rare books through most of that period.

Recently, while thumbing through the bargain pile of a second-hand bookstore, Onstott picked up a first edition of The Man Who Knew Coolidge, by Sinclair Lewis, for 35 cents. This book is now valued at about five dollars.

Bargains like this are always possible for the observant collector, according to Onstott, who cited a classic example of a first edition of Poe's Murders in the Rue Morgue, purchased for about 25 cents and sold later at auction for $20,000.

Book collectors, according to Onstott, usually specialize in collecting a particular type of book, some collecting only cook books, gardening books, books on California or some other special type.

Onstott specializes in first editions of American authors, and his collection includes rare works by John Steinbeck, Thomas Wolfe, Booth Tarkington, Lafcadio Hearn, and Frank Norris.

"The novice should not expect huge profits from books bought at a low price," Onstott said, "Since cases like the first edition Poe, although always possible, are exceptional rather than common.

The novice, Onstott pointed out, should cover book auctions and the second-hand bookstores, constantly searching for bargains. Doing this, he will have a good hobby and may find a treasure.

REVEALING A DUAL PERSONALITY, Phil Onstott shows the serious aspect of his nature by surrounding himself with stacks of "first editions." Somewhat on a more spirited plane, Onstott has excelled in the recent Our Town production as stage manager and actor, and will be heard as narrator in tonight's Christmas concert.

Fairmont Yule Dance Ushers In Holidays

The Spectator

George Lujeunesse

THE QUAINT custom of mailing Christmas cards is a widespread practice that brings a little message of good cheer to one and all. But to mailmen and postal clerks alike it brings nothing but a pain in the arches.

Come with us today for a visit to Rincon Annex Postoffice where we will endeavor to find out whatever happened to that card you once mailed to Uncle Yashlaff in Oshkosh, Wisconsin.

If you are an average card-mailer, you first affixed a stamp upside down in the lower left-hand corner where it will completely escape the canceling machine and must be hand-stamped.

INTO THE MAIL BOX

Then you addressed the envelope with a borrowed Bank of America pen that had been dropped a few times on a marble floor.

Completely forgetting the return address, leaving the flap dangling open, you deposited the missive into a mailbox.

Soon the box was opened by a stalwart courier of the PO Department who revved up his Model T truck and whipped through hail, snow, sleet and fog (that motto was dreamed up in Washington—we had to add the fourth item to localize the matter) and he roared into the big yard at Spear and Mission Streets.

DOWN THE CHUTE

Up to the second floor goes the sack containing your well wishes to Uncle Yashlaff.

Down the chute it goes to spill onto a "faceup" table where a crew sits dropping letters on a conveyor belt with all the stamps facing one way.

But they don't drop your little gem because: 1) stamp in wrong corner, 2) oversized envelope, won't fit in canceling machine, 3) weighs more than one ounce—needs more postage, 4) requires translations by a native of Lower Slobbovia to figure out the address.

LETTER GETS "NIXIED"

So off we go to the "nixie" department where a battery of experts slug the misplaced stamp with a canceling hammer and rubberstamp it "Postage Due" and call the handwriting experts.

They decide, after a quick conference that it can only go to Etaoin Shrdlu, Wisconsin, of course. So back it goes through the mill and gets the old "sooner or later" system.

This is the famous Christmas time hit and miss system that means literally that sooner or later your letter will get out of Rincon and on to Wisconsin.

So if Uncle Yash wants his card tell him to contact the dead letter office at Etaoin Shrdlu, Wisconsin, and if he ponies up an additional cent and a half, it's his for the asking.

Prospector Milton Lewis Says Artists Are Scarce As Gold; Campus Resembles Fort Knox

"Talent is like gold . . . you never know where you'll find it!" This statement was made by Milton Lewis, talent scout for Paramount Studios in Hollywood, here last week.

Lewis, on a tour for talent in the northwest, stopped at this college first in his search.

No statement was forthcoming from Lewis after viewing performances, taken from Our Town, by Regina Warchot and Phil Onstott, students of Lloyd Sisler's drama class. However, he did say that he admired the "feel" of the drama class.

The objectives of the search was to "put out the feelers" for the studio so that further long and tedious watching would be restricted to a set pattern of watchfulness, Lewis said.

William Hayes, San Francisco voice teacher, was responsible for Lewis' appearance at the college.

"This performance was one of the best amateur productions I have seen," Hayes said.

PARAMOUNT STUDIOS' Milton Lewis, the fleshy cravatted, silent talent scout, applauded Regina Warchot's "Goodbye World" scene, taken from Our Town.

Final Pages Will Turn In Semester Datebook

Important dates on schedule for the coming weeks, in regard to the Christmas vacation dates, filing petitions of leave of absence and end of midterm period, were announced today by Mary Jane Learnard, registrar.

The Christmas vacation schedule will begin Friday, December 12, and will resume on Monday, December 29, with a one day holiday on January 1 for New Year's Day.

The last day to file petitions for leave of absence for this semester has been announced as Friday, January 9.

Friday, December 12 was fixed as the end of the second midterm period. Students will receive both first and second midterm grades from their advisers, after they return from Christmas vacation, near the first of the year.

Mistletoe Mingle Is Backed By All Frats

Campus fraternities have joined hands in order to sponsor the traditional Mistletoe Mingle during the Christmas vacation at the Edgewater, Monday, December 15.

The dance will feature the Edgewater band, and the presentation of the inter-fraternity athletic awards, according to Max Call, spokesman of Tri Epsilon.

Amori's Office Swamped By Holiday Job Applicants, But Few Openings

This is the greatest year in the history of the college for Christmas work, Joseph Amori, placement chief, said yesterday. There are three thousand applicants for holiday jobs.

While the post office has hired 1,600 men in the bay area; stores, warehouses, offices, and the post office have taken on about 2,500 students and faculty members in all. Because of the huge supply of men, this is the first year that no women have been employed in the post office.

Wages run from ninety cents to a dollar and a half per hour. The average wage is a dollar an hour, Amori said.

Employers are more selective at present. Many stores test and train their own employees.

There is still a chance for Christmas jobs, Amori added.

Successful Barn Dance Spurs Mardi Gras Deal

Fresh from their Barn Dance success, the Associated Men Students are making plans for the annual Mardi Gras, Frank Grant, AMS president said yesterday.

"The big affair will be one in which everyone arrives in costume," Grant said. "It is scheduled for the night of Friday, January 16, 1948."

The AMS plans to make the coming event one of the best affairs of the season, Grant added.

Choir, Radio Class Join For Program

The combined forces of the A Cappella Choir and Marie Weller's radio production class will present a special Christmas program, Friday, December 12, at 11:30 a.m., with Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to the president, acting as master of ceremonies.

To highlight the setting for the program, a huge Christmas tree has been erected beside the silver pole inside the front doors of the main building.

The radio production class will present a Christmas drama entitled The Story of Silent Night.

The A Cappella Choir will lend the necessary musical atmosphere for the story setting.

Student actor Frank McCue will act as narrator. Others in the drama are Peter Bogoshin, Don Landers, Carol Rebe, George Karas, Gerald Lustig, Al Usoz, and Barbara Murphy.

Christmas carols from the choir will conclude the program.

Friday Program To Be Aired Christmas Eve

Transcription of the Christmas production by the choir and radio classes of this college, Friday, December 12, at 11:30 a.m., will be rebroadcast over station KQW Christmas Eve, according to Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to the president.

The program, to be held at the silver pole of the main building, will include both music and drama in its repertoire.

Cosmopolitan Club, AVC Give Joint Dance

Working together, the American Veterans Committee and the Cosmopolitan Club will entertain Saturday night, December 13, in Druid's Hall at 44 Page Street near Market, according to Al Deutch, AVC president.

The dance, planned as an inter-club affair, will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Paul Law's band will furnish the music for the night's dancing.

Tickets are being sold on the basis of one dollar per couple with dress informal.

All students are invited to attend.

Dean Lifts Parking Ban On West Campus

Parking restriction on the west campus, the result of students refusal to comply with the clean-up campaign at the parking area, will be postponed until after Christmas, Dean Edward Sandys announced yesterday.

This is necessary because of the new housing units moving in to the Hurley Village.

The police department has no parking signs on East Phelan Avenue from Judson to Ocean Avenues through this week.

Veteran Office Open During Holidays

Louis Batmale, veteran's counsellor, announced today that the Veterans Counselling Center will remain open during Christmas vacation from 8:30 to 4:30 every day except Christmas Day, Saturday, and Sunday.

He will also evaluate military credits for stragglers Monday, December 29 to and including December 31.

Batmale requests the veterans to bring their discharge papers, army form 100 or navy form 553, and any college military transcripts.

Frost Fantasy Set For Terrace Room With Terry's Band

In accordance to the yuletide spirit that is sweeping across the campus, the Associated Students are presenting their second dance of the semester, the Frosh Fantasy, Friday, December 12, in the Terrace Room at the Fairmont Hotel, located atop Nob Hill.

To add to the atmosphere, Jack Terry and his orchestra will furnish some dreamy music from 9 to midnight, Jo Ellen Cain, Associated Student vice-president, announced today.

Admission will be one Associated Student card per couple. The dress will be informal, with the no corsage rule in effect.

Those responsible for making the night one which will long be remembered are committeemen Frank Grant, Vale Tuska, Dorothy Stolaroff, Alf Uddenberg, Marylee Zimmerman, Niek Detriman and William Broderson.

The following Friday, January 9, 10:40 a.m. will be a club period. Clubs will meet in their regular assigned rooms.

Class Rings On Display In Showcase, Main Building; Bank Will Take Orders

Prices for the class rings, now on display in a showcase on the main floor of the east campus building, were announced yesterday by Joseph Amori, placement officer.

Orders will be taken at the college bank.

Men's gold rings will cost $26.75; the sterling silver men's ring $16.75. Since the women's rings are smaller, their prices are lower, the 10K gold ring selling for $2.75 while the sterling silver sells for $16.25.

The inscription "San Francisco Junior College" appearing on the face of the ring encircling a large ruby stone can be altered to read "San Francisco City College" in the event that school authorities change the college name before the rings are ready to be delivered to eligible students, Amori added.

Council Gets Request For Traditional Keys

Key awards for the All American Award winning Guardsman editorial staff and members of the Block SF Society received approval in the case of the former and delay in the case of the latter, at the Student Council meeting of Thursday, December 4.

Trev Burrow, speaking for The Guardsman request, pointed out that past precedent had awarded keys, similar to those given council members, to editorial staff members who have worked on papers winning the All American honor, the highest a paper can receive.

Athletic Commissioner Paul Yde's request was for similar key awards for members of the Block SF Society.

Vets Without Checks Interviewed Thursday

A Veterans' Administration representative will be on the second floor, Building 3, all day Thursday, December 11, to interview veterans who have not yet received subsistence checks.

Presses Stop And Typewriters Cease As Christmas Vacation Calls A Halt

ONE advantage a college newspaper has over the professional daily is that it can fold up its typewriters and presses to dash off for a Christmas vacation.

Which is precisely what we intend to do, comes this Friday evening. Today is the last issue of The Guardsman until next year; Tuesday, January 13, 1948, to be more exacting about it.

Of course the metropolitan daily enjoys certain advantages over us, such as getting paid for the fruit of their labor.

But don't think it hasn't been fun! The Guardsman staff, as underpaid as it is, enjoys every minute of its labor of love to the college.

Oh yes, the rest of the college is entitled to the same vacation. The college will be nailed shut with this Friday as the last day of classes until Monday, December 29.

Then, following three days of brain fatigue, one and all are entitled to take New Year's Day (Thursday, January 1, 1948, for the unenlightened) off, BUT must return the following day, Friday, January 2, for a whole day's session of learning.

With that point neatly claried we also want to point out that despite today's absence of the Ram's Horn column because of lack of space, the VOICE OF THE PEOPLE will still be heard in future issues and all letters will be printed as received.

But what we've REALLY been trying to say all along: we of The Guardsman staff sincerely wish every individual connected with the college in all capacities the very merriest of Christmases!

News To Nobody . . .

By Herbert Levy

IN RESPONSE to o.. numerous amounts of fan mail (at least one wrinkled old postcard), a few parcels with snakes and tarantulas enclosed, we have yielded and have decided to rectify our errors for the semester.

This column is obviously original, not to be confused with a morning columnist, who was born before we were.

We, herewith, thank Club Cavalcade and its compiler Ralph Bergendorf for moving over a column or so, and wish that the staff box would quietly dissolve from the page . . . or what a way to earn three units!!

OLD NEWS OR HOW MANY ERRORS CAN YOU MAKE: We owe our very first blunder of the semester to jovial Don Cowderoy, over on the copy desk.

Seems about two months ago when we started grinding out this hash, we were stuck for some real hot news. When dimply Don whispered into our ear that he and a few members of the Block SF Society were going to steal a quart of red paint somewhere, and proceed to do a little bit of Titian on the Rangshead symbol on the west campus, we quickly dashed to a typewriter and ripped off about 12 lines on the subject claiming weirdly that the Ram would be in technicolor within a week.

As of now, the Ram is still standing on the west campus (we were correct about that), however, it is still covered with whitewash, and the only red on it is some lipstick smears by jubilant Ramettes.

One afternoon some weeks later, we were up throwing rocks at the main building when we ran across rotund Jim Edwards, able rally commish.

The opulent individual informed us that there was a slight possibility that the toothpaste hustler, Bob Hope, would show for a rally.

We must have been eating too many gum drops or something, for when we sat down at the Remington, out came some fantastic story about how Hope would be here, and the item inferred as much as to say that Crosby's sidekick was a house guest of Edwards.

In the same column, with the help of a linotype operator, we had some cute remark about Jo Ellen Cain, V.P.A.S.S.F.J.C. being sorry that only coke would be served at an Associated Student dance.

From the way the thing was worded, it appeared that little Jo Ellen was running a close second to Ray Milland in seeing who could find the bottle first. . . However, nothing could be further from the truth and Miss Cain is not a tippler!!

Too many college hours spent happily over at Al's caused this next series of blunders, but if anyone can make them, we can! Our first claim consisted of telling you that there would be some 20,000 patrons attending the Los Angeles City College game—running true to form 7,000 citizens put in an appearance.

We also, through blurred vision, caught a report from down in L.A. that 5,000 of their rooters were making the trip, which we naturally printed. When our bloodshot eyeballs got back into focus, we found that the number was 50! Please pass the snow. . .

We strolled into a Student Council meeting sometime back with the intent of comparing the meeting to a Republic or Monogram production, and to our amazement, we found that the meeting room had been changed to Room 3B, which is just large enough to hold only members of the council.

Seeing as it was moved from the student lounge recently, we jumped to the conclusion that the council was trying to keep out students from listening in on their earth shaking discussions; however, as it comes out, the administration assigns the rooms to each class, and the council is a class in political science! So we take it all back, with the request that they move back into the lounge so everyone can witness the sideshow.

Film Star Mitchum Meets Misses . . .

Screen Actor Favors Education For Girls

By Ann Land

While relaxing on an overstuffed sofa in the elaborate reception room of the Golden Gate theater last night, Robert Mitchum, looked wonderfully insolent, as he contemplated a number of questions this reporter had the courage to ask.

"Yes," Mr. M. answered, "sometimes I enjoy the love scenes I play on the screen, I like the new look. I don't have any favorite dishes, I like 'em all. Anything else?"

"What do you think of the average American college girl?" Mitchum was questioned.

He hacked his tongue loose from his cheek, and replied seriously, "College girls ought to have a little more purpose. If they don't have any future plans or ambitions, they are just taking up precious space on campus, and there is no point in that."

"What do you define as purpose," the querist asked meekly.

"Anything from learning a profession to getting a husband," C. D. (Charles Durman) informed, amusement apparent in his usually inscrutable hazel eyes. "College life is very conducive to romance."

C. D. admires intelligent, sincere women. The problem demanding, or excuse-making types are taboo with him.

"Talent," says Mitchum, "isn't essential for success in stardom, but it is necessary for a player to have conviction and versatility."

The vast personal experiences he encountered while working on a variety of odd jobs, and an absorbing interest in other people are largely responsible for the full development of these traits in his acting ability.

He's not the worrying type. "If you worry, you get ulcers, and if you get ulcers, you can't eat, and if you can't eat, what's the use of living?"

ROBERT MITCHUM, Out of the Past star, trades glances with Nell Sullivan, left, and Ann Land, right, in a backstage interview at the Golden Gate.

Instructor To Lecture On Study Aids At Columbia

By I. R. Lascola

Instructor of communications at Columbia University last summer after a Sabbatical leave from this college, Miriam Escher yesterday confirmed reports that she has been invited to speak on the Columbia course at the annual convention of the National Speech Association of America.

Stressing the fact that the course she taught shouldn't be confused with Communication Skills, Miss Escher explained Columbia's offering as an interpretive rather than a basic skills program.

Taught as a graduate course at the eastern university, communications deals with interpreting propaganda and ideas behind media of communication other than actual print.

NEW METHODS

The program is based on the fact that radio, cartoons, picture magazines, and the motion pictures have replaced the printed word as the primary method of imposing ideas.

Radio was cited as a major example by Mrs. Escher of one of the more powerful modes for influencing thought, its commentators and newscasters reaching far more people than the newspaper at its best ever did.

"Although the new communication program is rapidly gaining impetus, as yet no arrangements for including it in this college's curriculum have been made," Mrs. Escher stated.

INFLUENCE IDEAS

Research by Columbia students has revealed that picture magazines, such as Life, cartoons, and the cinema rank beside radio as primary forces in modern American thought.

Mrs. Escher's address to the National Speech Association's convention, scheduled December 29, 30, and 31 in Salt Lake City, will cover the work being done at Columbia University.

Hank The Five Returns At Reduced Rates, Too

By Ralph Bergendorf

William Shakespeare's Henry V is back in town taking up a residence at the Stage Door Theatre, Mason at Geary. It seems the famous English King, under the pen of Shakespeare, always stays there when he comes to San Francisco. Hank almost took up permanent residence there before and now is taking over the lease again.

Students now struggling with Shakespeare will again have a chance of seeing the "Elizabethans" in action and in technicolor and at popular prices.

Ruth Somers, who teaches Shakespeare with supreme delight, says, "this production," starring Laurence Olivier, "is a must for students of English classes."

Student Association card holders will have an opportunity to reap a benefit in lower rates at matinees.

Intra Boxers Seek Finals Today

Fighters Must Win This Afternoon To Get Shot At Champs

By Larry Baldocchi

Intramural boxing is in full swing at the college as the tournament enters its second day of competition today at the men's gymnasium, 3:30 p. m.

Yesterday, amidst a flurry of flying gloves and shouts of excitement from the student spectators, the gladiators of each weight division fought to keep their names on the winning list in order to secure themselves a place in the finals. Today the victors of yesterday's bouts will again step into the arena to continue to prove their ability.

The winners of today's encounters will face each other on Thursday, December 11, to decide who will fight for the gold belt buckles, which are the awards given to the fighter who emerges victorious in the finals. The finals are set for a later date this semester.

Roy Diedrickson, who is in charge of the tournament, is trying to encourage more women students to witness these battles. Last year there were hardly any representatives from the female sex. This year Diedrickson would like to have the women make more of a showing. Women's clubs, especially, are urged to attend.

There will be roped off areas for all clubs and sororities that would like to keep together as a group.

The attendance of such organizations will be greatly appreciated by Diedrickson. After all, he points out, if women are present at these affairs it will give the fighters that extra surge of energy behind every punch.

● TONIGHT IS the night for boxing filberts, when the curtain comes up on the 1947 Intramural boxing tournament. Jommie Wilson and Don Becker are shown here squaring off in preparation for their battle royal, which is one of the many fine bouts scheduled for tonight.

Ram Rods Whip Pags For Intra Hoop Crown

What was to be a tight, well-played game turned out to be a complete rout, as the Ram Rods defeated the Pag's Club five for the intramural basketball championship, 52-27, last Tuesday.

Ray White led the scoring parade for the winners with 12 digits, followed closely by teammate Bob Payne, who tallied 11.

Semi-final games found the eventual tournament kingpins tackling a 38-26 loss on the Golden Mountain Boys, while the Hotel and Restaurant Dickson quintet went down before Pag's Club, 46-14.

Ram Basketeers Face Gaels Tomorrow, Cal Frosh Friday

Taking to the local hardwood for their second start of the current casaba season, the Ram hoopsters will meet the St. Mary's College frosh five tomorrow afternoon at 4 p.m. in the men's gymnasium.

The Gaels, led by Lowell High's accomplished mentor Ben Neff, are an untested squad with this being their first tussle of the season. Leading the Moragans' attack will be Don Cramm, prep sensation at Acalanes High last season, at the center post.

Supporting Cramm will be forwards Joe Flahaven and Mike Cimino, with Bob Miller and Al Andriss handling the guard spots.

First String Not Set

As yet Ram Coach Ralph Hillsman does not have a definite first string, but the starting five will be picked from the following cagers who are all slated for plenty of action.

At the foward [illegible] shooters Ray Schwerin, Adolph Pippus, and Jim Caldwell. Bob Greenwood seems to have the pivot post well in hand, while the Paine boys, Bob, and Don, and Earl will cavort at the guard positions.

Rams to Face Blues

Following a day of rest, the locals travel to Berkeley Friday evening to meet the California Blues in their final contest in preparation for the Modesto Tournament, January 7 to 10. The game will serve as a preliminary to the California-Oakland-Bittner battle with the tipoff scheduled for 7 p. m.

The Blues are definitely a potent outfit which should never be sold short, and this season they are out to run up a record comparable to that of last year.

Golden Bears Dumped By Ram Quintet, 43-28

San Francisco opened its 1947-1948 cage season on a note of success last Friday at the men's gymnasium, when they dumped a sluggish University of California Frosh team, 43 to 28.

The Rams took an early lead in a slow first half and led at the half time by a score of 15 to 10. They never relinquished that lead.

Bill Hagler, Golden Bear center and former Poly III star, was high point man with 9 points. Tom Tomlinson, Ram center, was second with 8 points.

West Campus Buildings Get Final Touchup

Begun the first day of this semester, the transformation of the WAVE barracks into the west campus of the college will be completed this week, according to Dr. J. Paul Mohr, college vice president.

Offices in Building 2 are being painted and the last few "touch-up" paint jobs are being done in the classrooms.

Recordings Used To Teach College Band

Recordings for instructional purposes are now being used by the college concert band, Mike Cahn, band instructor, revealed today.

The records are of the band's rehearsals, and by hearing them, the band members are able to analyze the over-all product.

This practice would enable both individual players to hear the part he plays and the entire organization to hear themselves as an audience would, Cahn added. The records will be cut by Marie Weller, radio instructor.

Page Cavanaugh Trio Is Big Campus Hit

Playing to a highly appreciative audience, the Page Cavanaugh Trio, nationally known recording artists, presented an impromptu musical program last Tuesday morning in the west campus auditorium.

Rounding out a sparkling performance which featured their best-sellers, the group previewed some of their future record releases.

The trio, consisting of Cavanaugh, piano; Al Viola, guitar; Lloyd Pratt, bass, formed in the service, became an instantaneous hit upon discharge.

Pratt, who attended Everett Junior High here, remarked that in view of Petrillo's record ban, the group has waxed approximately half a hundred sides for future distribution.

Immediately following their appearance here the trio, which was obtained by Jim Edwards, rally commissioner, left for the east.

Students Urged Again To Prepare Schedules

All students are urged to complete their schedule plan for their proposed next semester's classes, as the time schedule for the coming semester will be issued in January, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, warned today.

"Students should meet with their advisers some time before the beginning of the year," Miss Learnard added.

"Ram Cam" Photograph Contest In Lounge

The college photographic society, Ram Cam, will hold its first semester photo competition in the student lounge tomorrow night beginning at 7 p.m., according to Jim Davis, society spokesman.

The competition is open to all students. Further information may be obtained in Building 9E, west campus, Davis said.

Honorary Scholarships Offered Top Students

The University of California has recently announced a new honorary who have maintained an exceptional scholarship program for students scholastic record while in high school or junior college.

In the past, students have refused offers of cash scholarships because they already had sufficient financial resources. Under the new program, a number of honorary scholarships will be awarded without monetary remuneration to those who merit recognition for splendid scholastic records. Cash scholarships, however, will also be offered.

Information concerning scholarships may be obtained from Edwin Cranston, Alpha Gamma Sigma adviser, in Room 170, or by writing to the Committee on Undergraduate Scholarships and Prizes, 202 Administration Building, University of California, Los Angeles, 24.

The Spectator

George Lajeunesse

THE BIGGEST gun in the Navy, Fleet Admiral Chester Nimitz, pulled into town the other day to set up his headquarters as an assistant to the Secretary of the Navy.

He immediately called a conference to give the word to the press as to the nature of his new job; which still appears a little vague to the interested spectator.

Of course everyone is a little vague as to the future of our Navy. On such little matters as to the feasibility of keeping huge fleets of slow moving targets, such as the aircraft carrier and battleship, represent.

NIMITZ "SEES" AIR POWER

It is interesting to note that Nimitz has acknowledged that the airplane is here to stay when he revealed the Navy found the carrier the most effective combat ship in the last war.

This is a startling confession for an old sailor to make, but Nimitz wasn't stepping on any toes that haven't been trodden on before.

He's an old submarine man, and, in the Navy, a sub man doesn't talk to a battleship man, and the battleship fraternity simply won't rub elbows with anyone tainted with an aroma of aviation gasoline.

WHERE'S THE ARKANSAS?

There were a lot of questions that went unanswered during the press conference, and we'd like to have asked the Admiral some, only we weren't invited to the meet to begin with, and he probably wouldn't or couldn't answer them anyhow.

One question that intrigues us no end is, "What ever happened to the USS Arkansas?" Here was the case of a 29,000 ton battleship completely vanishing in Bikini Lagoon when they set off the second test atom bomb.

Then we might follow that with, "Why are they continuing construction on battleships like the USS Kentucky if they are scheduled for the same type of fate that befell the Arkansas?"

CARRIER, PLANE RACE

We'd like to chime in right about here with another query, "Has the Navy increased the speed of carriers lately? If not, what would happen when a 400 mile an hour enemy airplane caught up with a 45 mile an hour aircraft carrier, pardon us, Admiral, we mean 45 knots?"

One more question we'd put forth, at the last minute and with our hand on the doorknob, "Are you more interested right now in preserving the Navy or the United States of America?"

'Junior' Stigma To Be Replaced By New Name, CCSF, Starting In Spring

By I. R. Lascola

In response to long term student and faculty wishes, San Francisco Junior College was renamed City College of San Francisco, at the Board of Education meeting of Wednesday, December 10, on recommendation of Dr. Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of Schools.

Dr. Clish announced that the new name will officially go into effect on Thursday, February 12.

This name change represents the reward of the efforts of student leaders working with Dr. Archibald J. Cloud, President of the college; Thomas Porter, faculty association president, and the faculty as a whole.

"Junior" Outmoded

These groups based their requests for the change on several points, one of them being the fact that the name "junior" in the official college name carried with it a certain stigma of adolescence.

They pointed out that this name was responsible for the college being confused with junior high schools and having a rather uncertain rank as to educational level with the general public.

Further argument in favor of a new name noted that the college is the largest in the city despite its two year status and that the general trend in similar two-year college names throughout the country is to refer to them as "city" in preference to "junior" colleges.

Clish, Board Concur

Name change campaigners didn't stop with merely expressing their thoughts orally, but they put their wishes in written requests addressed to the Board of Education.

Dr. Clish, after giving due consideration to the matter, presented it to the board. The board's response was favorable, and the college will start its next semester as City College of San Francisco.

Entries In ASSFJC Race End Thursday

Deadline for candidate petitions in the coming Associated Student elections will be Thursday, January 15, Trev Burrow, election committee chairman, announced yesterday, with a candidate's rally scheduled for the college hour, Friday, January 16.

Adding that presidential candidates must have pictures of themselves in at the same date, Burrow named the Dean of Men's or Women's offices as the places where candidates may pick up petitions and complete election rules. Petitions should be returned to these agents by the deadline date.

Poster regulation sets the date for poster hanging today. Number of posters is limited to five on the campus and one in each of the five stores about the campus. Size of posters has been limited to 22 by 28 inches.

Campaign expenditures have been limited to $15.

Elections will be held in the cafeteria and the student lounge on Wednesday, January 21, from 9:30 to 5, and on Thursday, January 22, from 9:30 to 3 o'clock.

Plans For Revamp Project On Phelan Avenue Promised

Designs for a project that would widen Phelan Avenue to a four lane artery were promised yesterday by T. A. Brooks, San Francisco's Chief Administrative Officer.

Brooks, in a letter to Thomas R. Porter, faculty association president, concurred with the association's request, that Phelan Avenue definitely needs widening.

The plan calls for two ten foot sidewalks, two 7 foot parking lanes, four 11 foot traffic lanes and a 4 foot medial divider strip, running from Ocean to Judson Avenues.

Difficulties in widening the west side of Phelan Avenue up to Flood Avenue were explained by Brooks in that ownership of the property is divided.

In addition, from Judson to Flood Avenues, the property is in small holdings and in a generally improved condition.

Porter pointed out that this project is only in the formulative stage and would probably take at least a year to start the actual work necessary.

"Perhaps once the actual work begins, there is a possibility that an overpass can be constructed from the main building site to the west campus for the safety of the students," Porter added.

Porter was elected president of the association last June with the term of office running for one year.

Advisees Advised By Advisers—Get Advice

Students planning to attend this college next semester were urged to meet with their advisers to formulate spring semester programs, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced yesterday.

"Time schedules have been made available to advisers to distribute to advisees. This opportunity has been made available to the student that he may carefully consider his program, since it will be very difficult to change a permanent study list after it has been once filed," she pointed out.

Schedule for the forthcoming spring semester registration program was also outlined yesterday by the registrar.

This will include alphabetical student registration beginning with the letter "a." The program also calls for an extra day of registration not listed in the college catalogue.

Fifteen Sophs Seek Royal Recognition In Two Day Election

Fifteen contestants are in the running for the Sophomore King and Queen mantle and will be voted upon next Thursday and Friday during the college day at the main building and the west campus, according to Wayne Zenger, Sophomore class president.

Associated Men Students will vote for one of eight queen contestants, while the Associated Women Students will choose one of seven male contestants.

Trophies for Winners

The selected queen and king will be announced and presented at the Sophomore formal to be held at the Oakland Scottish Rite Auditorium on Saturday night, January 24.

The queen will be presented with a perpetual trophy by the president of Beta Tau, while the king will receive a perpetual trophy from the president of Theta Tau. Both the regal winners will also receive personal gold loving cups.

Each candidate is allowed three posters, 22 inches by 28 inches, although no posters will be allowed in the main building as the official photographs will be on display there.

Beverly Hmddleson, Associated Women Student president, is election committee chairman.

Other Sophomore class officers are Colin Tooley, vice president; Jackie Faxon, corresponding secretary; Phylis Ryan, recording secretary; and Vale Tuska, historian.

Contestants Backed

Those running and the organizations they represent are as follows: for queen, Myra Coffman, Zeta Chi; Marilyn Gray, Alpha Lambda Chi; Jane Haakensen, Theta Tau; Jeanette Harshaw, Kappa Phi; Dorothy Stoloroff, Phi Beta Rho; Margie Swanman, Delta Psi; Regina Warchot, Gamma Phi Ypsilon; and Marilee Zimmerman, the Masonic Club.

King contestants are as follows: Roy Barnett, Tau Chi Sigma; Bill Choulos, Independent; Nick Dirtiman, Epsilon Epsilon Epsilon; Frank Grant, Beta Tau; Les Holden, Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Dick Fetherstone, Beta Phi Beta; and Jim Wyatt, Block SF Society.

College Name Change Was The Result Of Cooperation By Administrators

ON FEBRUARY 12, 1948, the name of this institution will officially become the City College of San Francisco.

The name change, even though constructive and needed, was not accomplished overnight and it cannot be credited to any single individual or organization.

However the efforts of those most directly responsible for the change should not go unrecognized.

Certainly the support received from the new superintendent of schools, Dr. Herbert C. Clish, was the greatest contributory factor and we wish to thank him and his associates.

The Board of Education, which actually made the change, receives our sincere commendation for their realization of the worthwhileness of "City" as compared to "junior" for a college name.

Dr. A. J. Cloud, college president, has of course led the fight from here, ably assisted by the faculty president, Dr. Thomas R. Porter. They have never let the desire for the new name expire because of a lack of official support.

To the student leaders, past and present, who have, semester after semester, given of their time to what once seemed a hopeless cause, may we extend the gratitude of the Associated Students.

Finally, to every student, faculty member, and friend of the college, who helped to make this City College of San Francisco—thank you!

While we are extending praise it is a good time to commend all those connected with the Registrar's office, headed by Mary Jane Learnard, who gave up their holiday vacations so that the newly instituted and highly improved system of grade distribution could be readied in time for the good (or bad) news at the end of the second mid-term period.

News To Nobody . . .

By Herbert Levy

CHANGING a college name doesn't happen very often, but when word was flashed some three weeks ago that this institution was officially City College of San Francisco (legally going into effect Feb. 12), old blabs and old grads (the oldest about 30) came pouring into the west campus offices for a little impromptu celebration, which included footballers from the mid-1930's, etc. . . .

That same evening posters were run off telling all "to forget the junior, it's City College." . . . seems the wording just didn't quite get on the paper straight.

One small difficulty that must be overcome is to educate the citizenry to call this place City College . . . seems 10 years ago S. F. State dropped the "teachers" out of their title yet a great many persons including a couple downtown papers still call it State Teachers College.

It boils down that San Francisco now has a City College good for 2 years, a State College on Buchanan St. good for 4 years, and a Federal College over on Alcatraz, good for life!!

The basketball season that got underway recently had at least a couple new innovations plus an oldy . . . cheers to somebody, who had that really "cent" time clock installed down at the men's gym . . . besides having all the necessary info clearly visible, the whole thing turns red (not to be confused with Moscow) when there are 2 minutes to go in the halves. . . . Lou Batmale, Chief Vet vocational adviser at the college and former Commerce Hi coach, had the honor of refereeing the first casaba game at the successful Cow Palace venture.

Denny's Dairy out on West Portal has come through again by handing out free 'shakes and 'burgers, etc. to the Ram quintet for their first game and first victory over the Cal Frosh . . . seems Deparies, as in previous years, is giving out free victuals to the high scoring basketeer for each game and the top man for the season!!

The prevailing prediction around here is that the Rams will win the conference championship, mainly based on their performance against the red hot California Blues (Cal's 2nd string)!!

Ramland's Block SF Athletic Society has been putting on dances for years with great success, now for the first time in ages the Block S Athletic Society over at S. F. State, headed by Ken Shelley former Ram, is giving one on their campus, Saturday, Jan. 17, at 9 p.m. . . seems they figure if we can do it, then a 4-yr. college can do it!!!

College Almost Made The Local Bastille

By Mel Hanson

"Hello Cosmos. Where you going?"
"Hello Jake. To class.
"Which cell?"
"21, if the turnkey is there to let me in."

Students attending the local institution find it hard to imagine such a conversation between two "worthies" of San Francisco City College. However, except for a negative vote by the city Board of Education on October 15, 1935, the above mentioned conversation may have been multiplied many times.

On that date a plan was proposed to requisition the old Ingleside jail site for use as classrooms for the "homeless" San Francisco Junior College.

Imagine this touching scene enacted on the front porch of many San Francisco homes.

Mother hands Junior his lunch at the same time kissing him gently on the cheek, squares her shoulders courageously and as an uncontrolled tear slips down her cheek she waves farewell. Junior is off to jail, and all for a crime he didn't commit!

Multi-Handed Camera Bug Hopes To Steal Show In Ram Cam Contest

By Ignatius Lascola

Joe Geraci

Completely equipped with trusty box camera, flash gun, birdie and extra hands to carry those accessories, student Joe Geraci plans not to leave a stone unturned in his effort to steal a place in the coming Ram Cam snapshot contest.

Geraci is fully cognizant of the rules limiting the size of prints entered to a minimum of 2¼x3¼ inches and a maximum of 5 by 7 inches. He is also fully aware of the fact that advanced photo majors are not eligible for the contest.

Slyly revealing that his extra appendages were supplied by the Colt Small Arms factory, Geraci said, "I can hardly wait to bring my entry to building 9, room E on the west campus by Monday, March 1, and I feel sure that by Friday, March 5, the day of final print judging, my genius will be rewarded."

Geraci disclosed that he isn't going to do the developing and printing on his masterpieces since the rules for the contest accept commercial photo finishing, and by asking for a jumbo print he will get a print well within the size limitations set down by the competition rules.

Jim Smith, Ram Cam publicity chairman, confessing that he expects a very close battle in view of the vast number of students who have already expressed their interest in the event, stated that Geraci will have to match his elaborate equipment with equal talent if he wishes to gain recognition.

Louis Luna, Ram Cam president, urging all eligible "snapshooters" to join in the contest said that prizes for winning prints will be announced at a later date.

Veterans Sad About Ogle's Views On Vets

• Smoe Is Low

Editor, The Guardsman:

A story was published in a recent issue under the title "Are Vets Necessary?" The idea of the story was fine—but, when I finished reading it I was feeling mi-i-ghty low. You see, it seems that I was not a member of "The Benevolent Order Of-them-what-has-been-shot-at."

Being a white hat I put my hitch in aboard ship. So, I only heard about the war. That makes me a slacker? If the author of that story would ask himself "How many of the more than a quarter of a million that didn't come back were killed in combat? Does the fact that they were not behind a bayonet make them slackers?

But, I didn't get nary a scratch so I must be a cad and a bounder—not to mention a smoe, but I know that my laments rate only a sympathy chit so all that I can do is feel—

Mighty Low.

• A Breach Created (?)

Editor, The Guardsman:

In regard to your article by Quentin Ogle in the December 4 issue entitled, "Are Vets Necessary?"

We of the XGI Society feel that this article was unwarranted. It was not constructive for the non-veterans.

We feel that this article, if it has accomplished anything, has simply created a breach between veteran and non-veteran groups that did not previously exist.

As veterans we do not consider ourselves as being any different than other citizens. As many of us were delayed several years in our education, we are most appreciative of government assistance in the completion of our education at this time.

Les Holden
President, XGI Society

Editor's Note: The Ram's Horn column will be published whenever legitimate letters are received in The Guardsman office, Building 12, west campus.

Biologist Taming Medical Monstrosities

By Leslie Simonsen

Scalpel jockeys are baffled by gastro - hepato - duodenal ligaments and other scientific contortions of the English language. The worst of it is, lingual monstrosities as these are seldom found in the dictionary. Reading a textbook concerning chordate anatomy is comparable to Ivanhoe written in Sanskrit.

John Hare

John Hare, zoology instructor here always ready to rally to the student's cause, came to the rescue by introducing a course in biological terminology in hopes of clarifying this jargon. Hare stated frankly the course was merely an experiment, and its continuance would depend upon the reaction of students.

The course, now under the heading of biology 14, consisting of word analysis and classification of plant and animal life, proved exceedingly useful to students in the field of biology.

Hare inaugurated a course still in its infancy, and when he searched for adequate textbooks he came to the conclusion none was in existence. He then assumed the colossal task of preparing one himself.

During the spring semester, Hare experimented with mimeographed sheets giving the Greek and Latin roots of terms in common use. For example, "cephalo" means "head" in Greek. Thus any term containing "cephalo" usually pertains to the head or brain. By combining the various roots, it is possible to decipher the context of words.

After making changes in his original outline, Hare commenced the text. He claims the task is appalling in its immensity.

It is like writing a dictionary. Hare says all night long he sees a steady stream of words in his dreams. The situation has reached the stage where he doesn't dare eat a bowl of alphabet soup.

In its final form, the book will consist of about a thousand of the most common Greek and Latin roots, and a comprehensive section reviewing the techniques of word analysis and word building which have proven useful to students in the field of biological science.

Visalia Stops Ram Rally, 58-53

Locals Fail In Quest For Second Modesto State Championship Title

MODESTO, Jan. 9—San Francisco City College, defending champions of the Modesto State Junior College Basketball Tournament, went down to defeat tonight, before a fast breaking, sharp shooting Visalia J. C. quintet, 58-53.

After a dismal first half which saw the Rams leave the floor thoroughly beaten, with the score 36-23, they returned to put on a rally, which was paced by the offensive and defensive rebounding of Bob Payne and Tommy Tomlinson. With seven minutes to go the Rams went ahead on Tomlinson's foul shot, 42-41.

The final seven minutes saw the lead see-sawed back and forth with Visalia finally pulling out on three successive buckets by Bob Pounds.

High point honors were taken by Frank Starnes, flashy Tarter forward, with 19 points, while Bob Payne was high for the Rams with 17 points.

In the first game of the tournament East Los Angeles Junior College fell before the Rams, 42-37.

Marin Opens Cage Season Tomorrow

Official Northern California Junior College basketball play swings into the spotlight tomorrow afternoon when Coach Red Diamond brings his Marin Mariners across the Golden Gate to do battle on the local hardwood at 4 p.m. in the season's curtain raiser.

The Mariners have suffered two defeats in their abbreviated practice season, to San Mateo by one bucket, and to California frosh by a lone digit, but consider tomorrow's tilt their first real test.

Led by Herb Jotter, East Bay prep sensation from '41 through '43, at a forward spot, and Walt Marino, '42 All-Conference guard, the visitors present a formidable five.

Coach Ralph Hillsman looks for an impressive victory to begin his conference slate.

Hillsman will probably give the starting assignments to Jack Marcus, a new face on the varsity, and Jim Caldwell or Oliver Bascom at forwards.

Intra Football Title Game This Afternoon

Barring any sudden downpour from the heavens, the Rockets and the winner of the Boys-Vandal tilt will meet on the football field behind the men's gymnasium this afternoon at 4:15 o'clock to determine the winner of the 1947 intramural touch football campaign.

Rapidly approaching the end of the semester, activity in other individual sports has reached the final stages in most cases. First place honors in the badminton singles tourney went to Bill Burgess, who defeated Herb Blake 15-5, 15-7, in the final match.

Burgess, teamed with Don Huber, will meet the doubles combination of Rose & Remmy in the badminton doubles final.

All contestants with games to play in the ping pong and tennis tournaments are urged to contact Tom Wilson in the men's gymnasium as soon as possible.

Wilson announced that because of the small signup for volleyball, no competition will be held this semester.

Jayvees Fade Mariners In Cage Prelim Wed.

Sporting an unblemished record of five straight victories, Coach Ralph Hillsman's junior varsity basketball team enters its next cage encounter with the Marin frosh tomorrow at 3:15 in the local gymnasium.

The Lambs have successfully vanquished, in order, the Borlo A.C. Jrs., Galileo, Washington, Lowell, and Lincoln High Schools.

Mardi Gras Takes Social Spotlight This Friday

Costume Ball Invades Concession Lined Auditorium For Big Event

Mardi Gras, sponsored by the Associated Men Students, will take over the college social spotlight Friday evening, January 16, Frank Grant, AMS president said today.

With the traditional event just three days away, preparations for the carnival-dance are being made in the west campus auditorium.

The doors will open at 8 o'clock on the gala evening, and inside, a "little Coney Island" will be operating. Booth concessions ranging from candied apples to record-breaking, will provide entertainment for the ball throwers, penny pitchers, and dart shooters, Grant added.

Modeled after the New Orleans yearly affair, Mardi Gras is a costume ball, and dancing will be to the music of Gary Evers' band.

Grant, commenting on the intended success of the night, stated "Mardi Gras is one of the big events on the social calendar and a college tradition. This Mardi Gras is expected to exceed events in the past."

Handling the job of decorating are the committee members, Jim Edwards, Alf Uddenberg, Andy Ferrari, Bill Riley, Bob Stratton, Dick Willet, Chet Fong, Ted Noble, George DeUriosite, and Colin Tooley.

Oscar Wilde Play Opens Tomorrow

College thespians directed by Paul Ellison, drama instructor, rehearse for the last time today, and tomorrow evening go on stage for their first performance of Oscar Wilde's great comedy, The Importance of Being Earnest. The curtain will rise at 8:15 p.m. in Room 28.

Set in the England of the Nineties, the play is a swiftly-moving sequence of ludicrous events and outrageous situations. It can be best described as a comedy of errors, in which the two feminine leads mistakingly believe themselves to be engaged to the same man.

Included in the cast are Norma Carlson, Evelyn Hickey, Jariath McMahon, Carolyn Reiss, Jack Jones, Roy Barnett, and Charles Hulse. Stage and student managers for the production will be Bill Riley and George Wesendunk. Production is by Ellison.

Student card holders who wish to attend an evening presentation must obtain a reservation and student ticket by presenting their card to an official who will be stationed on the first floor of the main building today.

Admission will be 60 cents to others, with friends of the college and of the students invited, Ellison emphasized.

Matinee performances will be held at 1 p.m. on Thursday, January 15, and Monday, January 19.

Evening performances will be held at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday and Friday, January 14 and 16, and Monday, January 19.

Clubs Urged To Apply

All organizations which have not as yet reserved space for a booth in the Mardi Gras carnival, are urged to sign up with Frank Grant, AMS president, today.

CAB Approves Four New Campus Clubs

The Club Advisory Board approved four new organizations, the Merchandizing Club, Ski Rams, Hui 'o Hawaii, and SFJC Band Club, last December, sending the names on to the Student Council for final approval.

The board also approved a revised constitution submitted by the XGI Society.

One new fraternity, Phi Beta Delta, was referred to the board's interfraternity-sorority committee for further discussion.

Restrictive Motion Fails Council Test

Proposing that completion of one semester in Political Science 2A be imposed as a qualification on all future Associated Student presidential candidates, a motion by council member Barbara Larsen was defeated at the meeting of Thursday, January 8.

Miss Larsen's motion was supported by council member Ed Gallemore, who expressed the view that the best type of president should have previous experience in the council.

Opposing Miss Larsen's motion, Trev Burrow, cabinet member, with the support of cabinet member John Noll, pointed out that such a qualification had been removed previously when found impractical, by student vote and that such a measure would be restrictive to free candidacy.

In his argument against the motion, Burrow added that, although Political Science 2A is open to all students, the average candidate does not always have political ambitions a semester in advance.

Music Program Set For Listening Hour

Impressionistic music will be the theme of the program scheduled for the Listening Hour today and Thursday, with Debussy's Nocturne, Afternoon of a Faun, and the Sunken Cathedral as the chief works. Other music also listed is Respighi's Fountains of Rome and Griffith's White Peacock.

Meetings are held in Room 200 at 1 o'clock each Tuesday and Thursday.

Graphic Arts Dept. Plans Dedication

The college will be the hosts in the dedication of the Graphic Arts Department next Thursday. Representatives of many downtown concerns and of the local Lithography Union will be present.

Harold H. Alldis, graphic arts instructor, announced that Ivan Brandenburg, president, and Clyde Carr, recording secretary, of Lithography Union Local 17 together with Lou Ireland, secretary of Employing Lithographers, Carl Schmidt, of Schmidt Bros., Clifford Doan, Schwabacher-Frey Co., and Gordon Wiley, foreman plate maker, will be present for the dedication.

George Mullany said that a lunch and a brief ceremony is planned for the occasion.

Walter Winchell Gives Recognition For College's Runyon Contribution

Walter Winchell, noted journalist, expressed his thanks last week to the Associated Students here for their outstanding contribution to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

His thanks was in the form of a letter to Max Call, college publicity director, who has had it recorded in the minutes of the Student Council.

Frank Nelson, student president, stated at the meeting that this is one of the first times the college has received public thanks for its benefit work.

The money which was presented to the Cancer Fund was raised from the proceeds of the Damon Runyon Memorial Football game last November. Call hopes that this game will become a tradition.

Twinning Is Topic Of Pi Mu Gamma Talk

Another in a series of Pi Mu Gamma lectures will be delivered on Thursday, January 15, in Room 204 at 7:30 p.m., with Marjorie Fox, biological science instructor, discussing Twinning and the Causes of Twinning.

Mrs. Fox, who has taught at City College for two years, will soon receive her Ph.D. degree from the University of California.

Club Presidents Will Write Social Calendar Thursday

A stormy session of the Presidents' Meeting is expected next Thursday night when the group meets in building two at 7:30 o'clock. The purpose of the meeting, as stated by Frank Nelson, student president, will be to set up the social calendar for next semester.

Social chairman Joe Ellen Cain requests that all organization presidents be present to stop current rumors that the social calendar will be abandoned.

President Nelson is expecting a stormy session concerning the acceptance of dates on the calendar.

He stated, "I have been approached by several students asking that the calendar be dropped because during the past semester the dates of several college dances have overlapped athletic contests. This caused a split in student support of both activities."

Speech B Tests Slated For All Next Week

Students required to take the Speech B test in Building 19 are urged to note the following time schedule to take the test: Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 9 a.m.; Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, 9 a.m. to 10 a.m., and daily 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Deadline for this Speech B test is Thursday, January 15.

'Junior' Comes Of Age; Event Hailed Friday 13

Tentative plans for a ceremony concerning the college name change are being made to include a faculty dinner at the Palace Hotel, and a "grad" homecoming on the campus set for Thursday, February 12, according to Max Call in a publicity chairman's statement yesterday.

Friday, February 13, will mark the termination of the name change celebration with a basketball game with Vallejo Junior College and if possible, Call has planned a record dance in the college auditorium.

An interesting sidelight on the name change date was disclosed when instructor George Mullany revealed that the date almost coincides with the date of the college charter, February 15.

Indicating a possibility of connecting the two events, Call stated that in view of the tentative character of ceremony plans, other activities may be added to the present list.

The Spectator

BEING labeled a Communist, or at least as straying to the left of center, OR even daring to think the working stiff has some rights left in this country is a sure sign of notoriety and a certain measure of dubious success.

At that rate our favorite comic strip character, "Gordo," is rapidly approaching fame throughout the land; a sort of left-handed kind of fame, however.

It is now being whispered about that the little Mexican farmer whose greatest claim to posterity is his fabulous culinary touch in whipping up a pot of beans and cheese, is definitely showing leftist tendencies.

GORDO AND COMPANY

And all the time we've been thinking Gordo was just being outright comical and one of the few cartoon strips adhering to the philosophy of humor and not carrying a banner of any kind, other than showing up the foibles of human nature, such as it is the world over.

The central character in the strip is, of course, Gordo Lopez, a fat, roly-poly tenant farmer of old Mexico whose love of life and hatred of work, other than cooking beans and cheese, knows no bounds.

Gordo lists among his closest friends one string bean tall individual known as "The Poet" who spouts philosophy at every turn and addresses Gordo as "My Tween."

GRAPEJUICE FANCIERS

The third member of the group is Juan Pablo Jones, an innocent little runt who takes the butt of all the gags and idolizes Gordo as the self-styled "Gay Dog" among the senoritas of the local village.

This motley crew accomplishes little more than sleeping all morning, being awakened by Gordo's nephew Pepito at lunchtime so they won't miss the siesta period immediately following, and gathering 'til the wee hours of morn in the establishment of barkeeper Pelon who dispenses only one type of beverage; rather vaguely referred to as "grapejuice."

Recently the whole gang took a trip to Acapulco, a famous Mexican resort, to help Gordo celebrate his year's vacation and go through his thick "checkbook."

THE PLOT REDDENS

Here they meet "A.P.," Gordo's "feeithy reech" brother who is blessed with the biggest ulcers in all "Maheeco" and has "money-bags onder hees eyes."

The developing feud between "Fat Boy" (Gordo) and "Rich Boy" (A.P.) is the bone of contention and the old maids of the country who see Commies under every bed have this episode under fire as un-American in its alleged attack on free enterprise.

Proving more and more that the funnies are beginning to take over the front page too, in addition to their coveted place next to the want-ads.

Election Committee Releases Official Campaign Rules

Renewing his promise of a fair and open contest, Trev Burrow, election committee chairman, released yesterday the following official rules for the coming Associated Student elections.

1. Publicity stunts will be allowed in the form of handbills, minor parades and speeches, with approval from the office of the Dean of Men or Women, and in the case of printed material, with the added approval of the Publications Board.

2. Campaigning of any sort will be prohibited in the vinicity of the old cafeteria during the election; that is, about the portals in front of the old cafeteria, the foyer, and the stairway leading to the cafeteria.

3. Elections will take place in the old cafeteria and the student lounge on the west campus on Wednesday, January 21, from 9:30 to 5 and Thursday, January 22, from 9:30 to 3 o'clock.

4. Campaign expenditure by or for each candidate cannot exceed 15 dollars ($15).

Spring Politics Opens Advisory Board Meet

New officers for the spring semester were elected at the Club Advisory Board meeting last Friday. President-elect is Melvin Dykman, representative of Omicron Phi Pi fraternity. Second in command as vice-president is Bill Hartmann, Pi Mu Gamma, pre-med society. Delta Psi sorority representative Rose Abbot will read minutes next semester as the new board secretary.

At this last meeting of the semester, the board, on the recommendation of the inter-fraternity-sorority committee, approved of two new fraternities, Phi Beta Delta and Alpha Sigma Delta.

Executive Power Left To Student Body Vote

Future Associated Student presidents will have a tie breaking vote if the constitutional amendment, approved by the council at the meeting of Tuesday, January 13, is passed at the coming election.

Believing presidents should have some voting power but undecided as to limiting that power, the constitutional committee presented the matter to the council, where the tie vote compromise was effected.

Fun, Frolic Aim Of Mardi Gras On West Campus Tonight

Prizes To Be Given At Costume Carnival; Food, Drink, Dart-Throwing Are Featured

Fun and frolic will prevail tonight when the Associated Men Students' Mardi Gras gets under way at 8 o'clock in the west campus auditorium, according to Frank Grant, AMS president.

Admission is by Associated Student Card, Grant said.

The Mardi Gras, costume carnival, features concessions opening at 8 and dancing from 9 to 12 to the music of Gary Evers' band, according to plans revealed by Grant.

In the vein of a carnival, costumes are expected to be worn by everyone. Those who fail to dress for the occasion will be punished by a Student Council run Kangaroo Court. The proceeds from the court will go to CARE.

For the best costumes, a dinner dance at the St. Francis Hotel, money orders from Roos Bros., City of Paris, I. Magnin and Macy's, and two tickets to the sophomore prom on January 24, will be given. Costumes will be judged at 10:30, Grant said.

The concessions will offer entertainment of all kinds, including penny arcades, photographs, ball-throwing and dart games. Food and drink will be served by various booths.

Red Gold! Rich Veins On Campus Worth $25

Sign-ups of students wishing to sell blood will be taken Tuesday, January 20, in the student lounge on the west campus between the hours of 11 and 2, according to an announcement from the office of Dean Edward E. Sandys.

A fee of $25 will be paid to each student giving a pint of blood.

Supervising the proceedings will be a representative of the clinical laboratory of Fort Miley.

Wilde's Play To Close Monday

By Bill Whitney

A satire of the exalted strata of English society adds a type of silent British humor to the college players' current production, Oscar Wilde's, The Importance of Being Earnest, directed by Paul Ellison.

The play opens in the London home of Algernon Moncrieff. Earnest (Jack) Worthing, Cicely, and Lady Bracknell receive their introductions in this act, and Earnest and Cicely are soon engaged.

In his country home in Act II Earnest is known as Jack. He appears in mourning and announces the death of his errant brother, Earnest. Algernon appears, introduces himself as Earnest, and with no waste of time becomes engaged to Gwendolyn, Jack's ward.

Two women are now engaged to Earnest, only Earnest is not Earnest in both cases!

Worthing's grieving scene in Act II is by far the most humorous sequence in the play.

Remaining performances are this evening at 8:15 p.m. and Monday at 1 p.m. and 8:15 p.m.

Jan. 23 Deadline For Eligibility Letters

Warning veterans attending college here that letters of eligibility must be filed with him, W. E. McCloud, veterans affairs head, listed Friday, January 23, as the final deadline.

McCloud added that veterans under the bill who do not plan to continue at this college in the spring should file interruption notices with the Veteran's Affairs office.

Phi Beta Rho Coffers Open For Dimes March

Approval has been given by the Superintendent of Schools' office for Phi Beta Rho sorority to take over the March of Dimes campaign, Dean Margaret Dougherty announced today.

Miss Dougherty urged all sororities and clubs to follow the commendable example set by Beta Tau and direct their activities toward a worthy cause.

Band's Punch Adds To Evening Of Fisticuffs

Music with a punch, apropos to the occasion, will be played by the college band during the fight program in the men's gymnasium, Monday night, 7:30 p.m., January 19. Mike Cahn, band instructor, announced earlier this week.

Voters, Candidates To Meet At Rally

Candidates for Associated Student offices will be introduced to students who assemble at the election rally today during the college hour in the west campus auditorium according to a release yesterday by Jack Brady, assistant dean of men.

"The large number of candidates makes speeches from each one an impossibility at this rally," Brady added, "but as many as possible, without showing partiality, will be permitted to address those assembled."

Among those who will probably have opportunity to speak, Brady listed prospective Associated Student president and vice-presidents, Associated Women and Associated Men Student presidents, freshman and sophomore presidents. Others will be heard, time permitting.

Local Politicos On Prowl, Trading Charm For Votes

By I. R. Lascola

It's election time and everybody loves you.

Yes, my boy, Betsy Rahrah, who just a short week ago passed you like a ship in a fog, has come to port. It's that time when all the Betsys on the campus roll their big blue vote getters and speak to you in endearing terms.

Men Too

It works with the men too. Sam, who used your head as a target for spitballs, your mouth for an ash tray, and your feet for stepping stones, now recognizes you as the man of the hour.

Nothing is too good for you. This is your day; you have friends galore. They light your cigarettes and buy you cokes.

It's Unbelievable

Indeed, you're king, but don't value your position too highly; it's a temporary thing, this sudden warmth and affection. Like summer, it's seasonal and will soon be replaced by hard, cold winter.

Yes, my boy, in a few short days Betsy Rahrah, now at your beck and call, will leave you and return to her clan where she will receive adulation for conspicuous sacrifice under electoral fire. You were her sacrifice.

Brrrrrr!

Sam, Sam, your lovable buddy Sam, how grand he treats you now. Enjoy him now while you can, because soon the ballots will be cast, and again your head will feel the resounding thwack of a well-aimed spitball.

Winter will set in and you will be a mere frozen asset until the electoral thaw opens the polls again.

U. S. College News Roundup . . .

Student Chances Of Survival Will Widen If Phelan Avenue Is Widened

IN RESPONSE to the faculty association's request, City Administrator Thomas Brooks has revealed tentative plans for the widening of Phelan Avenue.

However, it seems that it will take at least a year for the plans to be put into operation. We have been lucky thus far in that there have been no deaths or crippling injuries as a result of the inadequacy of the present street, but no one can predict what might happen within a year.

With the present flow of traffic, the street now stands as a potential death trap. It is estimated that more than 2,000 students cross the street in the ten minute period between classes. Obviously, with vision obstructed by parked cars and with the relatively heavy incidence of traffic, a serious accident is almost inevitable.

A few students have already been slightly injured, and many more have had narrow escapes.

Brooks' plan calls for a four lane artery with parking space on both sides, which, if supplemented with crosswalks and stop signs, should greatly increase the safety factor in going from one campus to the other.

That will be a fine thing for those students in attendance here in the future, but what about the ones here now?

Surely the citizens of San Francisco and their representatives do not need the tragic impact of a student death to start rectifying this traffic situation.

We hope not. Let's join forces with those who have been pleading for a remedy to this menace to student safety. Now is the time for action—before it's too late!

News To Nobody . . .

By Herbert Levy

HANDSOME JACK BRADY, the industrious dean and popular administrator about the campus, was mistaken for a sawbones late last week . . . seems a somewhat bewildered student carted an injured seagull up to his office explaining that the gull had a broken wing.

"I can see his wing is broken," said Brady.

"Well, aren't you going to fix it?" the student said.

"Me? Fix it?" the dean said, somewhat confused.

"You're a doctor, aren't you?" said the persistent student.

"No. What gives you that idea?" Brady said. The student then took Brady out in front of his office and showed him a somewhat dulled sign painted over the dean's office that reads, "Assistant to the Medical Officer." As it comes out, the sign is a holdover from the days that the WAVES occupied the west campus . . . and who got the bird? It ended up in the City Pound!!!

The rapid building project going on over in Hurley Village has now removed the last vestiges of another tuition free institution that occupied Balboa Park previous to the advent of the "Old Junior College" . . . namely the old County Jail . . . seems the material stacked next to the Women's Gym has obliterated the last portion of concrete floor and the remnants of one of the walls. In case anyone is interested, the S. F. County Jail is now in San Mateo County!!

The coke machines which were recently given the OK by the Student Council and the Administration into a snag recently . . . seems the City janitors around here are moaning about the proposed coke dispensers because of the inevitably messy condition that will occur. So as it stands there will be no coke machines, for the time being!!!

Last edition we ran an item about the S. F. State Athletic Society throwing a dance over on its campus at 9 o'clock tomorrow night, and stated that the president of the society was a former Ram . . . in a late communique from State, it appears that no less than 60 per cent of the organization are ex-Rams!!!

As a side-light of the inauguration of "Let's Get Rolling" Robinson as mayor of S. F., the mayor's mother, Mrs. Ralph Robinson, upon spotting a delegation of one student from this college attending the ceremonies, said of her recent tour of City College as a guest of an AWS tea, that she had a great deal of interest in the college, "especially the new cafeteria and all its facilities."

Leprechauns Cavort 'Round Peggy

Margaret Ensign

By Neli Sullivan

The shillelaghs are on hand, the wee folk frolic, and the shamrock sprout, when Margaret Ensign, five feet, pert, and dark-haired, strides briskly down the halls of this college in pursuit of her many and varied duties as janitress.

Through the manless years of the war, to the veteran swamped halls of postwar days, Miss Ensign has officiated in her particular capacity of having one of the kindest ears in this college.

PEGGY ALWAYS HELPS

Miss Ensign, better known as Peggy, or even more usually as Irish, is always available to fix a stubborn braid, or to give welcome advice. This capacity is, as she explains, "due to being born and raised in County West Meath, Ireland, where the pastures are always green, and the boys always full of blarney."

Through the five years that Peggy has spent in this college, she has come to the conclusion that students have not radically changed since the first days of her arrival, except perhaps, that there are more men students to complicate the situation. (Note: That's from the man's point of view.)

TIME TURNS BACKWARD

Also, the instructors whom she has known grow to look younger every day. This last bit of information should revive all those instructors who are firmly convinced that they have spent their last year on this or any campus.

Although Peggy proudly boasts a record of many, many semesters spent here, she is still enthusiastic about the buildings on the hill, the new arrivals on the west campus, the slogan over the portal of the college entrance, and the new faces every semester. That is a record to be proud of.

Inventor Recognizes Merits Of "Calibered" Instructors

By Florence Ames

High praise for the college and its instructors was given by Rebecca Nalpantian, special student, who is attending the college to gain a technical understanding and background to aid her in her inventions.

She is at present, a student in Donald Bryant's Engineering A class and has found her instructor to be "most kind, patient and encouraging," in her search for further knowledge.

This student-inventor already has a patent (both in the United States and Canada), granted to her, which is for a manicuring implement (all-in-one instrument.) This article promises to be both a money and time saver and is practical for home as well as a professional use.

Her latest invention is a hospital supply, on which patent is now pending.

Although this inventor, who was born in Abraham's city—the oldest in the world—Ur, Armenia (Turkey), is by profession a well-known piano teacher in the West Portal District for the past 20 years, she is a modest person and takes little credit for her amazing and varied accomplishments. She stresses only the many fine opportunities offered at the college (for she has been a student here since 1940—off and on—once having taken a business course with Helen Reveal.)

She emphasizes her good fortune to be able to avail herself of such high calibered instructors as are members of the City College faculty.

Women Calculate To Captivate Men During Leap Year

By Ann Land

Come 1948, leap year's batch of bachelors are going to find it rough when every budding campus queen will launch her campaign for matrimonial social security.

June weddings will be popping out all over the campus, judging from the way conscious femmes are decidedly changing their casual grins to church-door smiles.

HAPPY HUNTING GROUNDS

According to those who know women best, (women) the college, just as soon as the new year rolls in, will become a hunting ground for diligent co-eds, who are planning to be taking, along with Math 51, Men 1A.

Behind the radiant warmth and sweetness of local dreamgirls' faces are flickering cruel and sadistic thoughts of a form of male torture which is the sport of all quéens—that of knocking out the eyes of their male admirers.

One way of accomplishing this feat is through the medium of differential calculus.

MATH ONE DEVICE

Knowing that all college man have a bend for figures, campus sprites can take to either adding or subtracting on theirs, 'cause when males focus their eyes on numbers, they claim they appreciate them well rounded.

Sometimes a girl's measurements appeal so to the intelligence of a collegian, his eyes become permanently riveted on her proportions until it is necessary for an optic surgeon to be called to perform the delicate task of inserting the scholar's goggles back in their sockets.

A fore-sighted curlicue announced that though streamlined figures will be the eye-catchers next year, she will still continue her meat-ball and spaghetti diet as to "cushion" the coming depression.

LAST DITCHERS IN HIDING

Already looking for dim corners in which to escape when the wolverines come whistling are a few cynical liberty sticks (hamburgers). But for the most part, interviewed Rams are mad about the idea of prospective proposals, and those believing variety is the spice of life, intend to flavor theirs by accepting as many as they get.

Heartening to chic chick's world of fashion is the prediction that though men may or may not adopt that "new look" themselves in the new year, they will continue wearing that old gleam.

Granny Acquitted In "Stolen" Silver Case

By Mel Hansen

The judge glared over the bench at the sweet little old lady standing before him, cleared his throat and said, "What is the matter with you? My men tell me that they found you grubbing through the garbage cans out at the City College. Were you that hungry?"

"Honest your honor, I wasn't looking for food. I'm not hungry. I work at the fountain at the college. I didn't mean any harm.

"You see your honor, this is what happened. The fountain serves pie and cake to the students and with each piece of pie or cake goes a fork. With each cup of coffee we give the purchaser a spoon. Contrary to popular opinion, the college is not made of money. We need those pieces of silverware back.

"When your men found me grubbing through the can it wasn't for food, but for the knives and spoons that the students so carelessly leave there. I'm not hungry and I promise not to go through the cans again."

With a sad sniffle the judge dismissed and closed the books on the case of little lady grubbing through the waste cans at the City College.

She was just trying to retrieve the silverware that the students nonchalantly placed there rather than take the time to return them to the fountain.

Cagers Face Tough Redskins In Nocturnal Tilt At Vallejo

Indians Have Slight Advantage In Height

Tomorrow night marks the Ram cagers' conference debut under lights as they travel to Vallejo to meet the hometown Redskins at 8 p. m., in their second NCJCC tilt of the current campaign.

In Coach Glenn Odale's quintet, the locals will encounter a starting five with an average height of 6 feet 3 inches and one which is considered a top contender for first place billing this year.

The loss of All-Conference center Stan McWilliams has been felt by the Redskins, but Coach Adale seems to have found an able replacement in Lyle Wright, who scales in at 6 feet 4 inches.

Holding down the guard spots are George Souza, All-Conference last season, and George Holzworth, another 6 feet 4 inch giant, while John Cooper and Barney Russell are expected to handle the bulk of the Vallejo scoring chores from their forward slots.

Ram Coach Ralph Hillaman will probably open up his attack on the Redmen with Jim Caldwell and Jack Marcus at forwards; Bob Greenwood at the pivot post; and Bob Payne and Earl Malnick as the guards.

Both squads were early victims in tournament play at Modesto last week—Vallejo was dropped by Grant in its outing and the Rams bowed to Visalia after defeating East Los Angeles.

In the preliminary game, the San Francisco Lambs and the Vallejo Papooses tipoff at 6:30 p. m.

FLASHY FORWARD Jim Caldwell, who is now a mainstay of the Ram squad, he formerly starred at Poly Hi, and with the Bolo A. C. The City college squad faces the Vallejo Redskins there, Saturday night at 8:00 p. m.

Mariners Trip Rams In Overtime Period

Despite a teriffic comeback staged late in the final five minutes of play, the local cagers bowed to an inspired Marin five last Wednesday on their home court, 55-51, in a thrill packed overtime period.

With the Mariners leading by a 17-15 count and but two seconds of play remaining; Tommy Tomlinson tied things up forcing the tilt into an extra period. The game was then iced for the visitors by Leroy Rlee and Don Feidler, each contributing a field goal to erase a beautiful two pointer by Earl Mainick of the locals.

Inability to hit from the floor in the first half left the Rams trailing 27-17 at halftime. Although the locals began to hit from the floor in the second stanza, it was foul shots which kept them in the running.

High point men for the tilt were Tomlinson and Bob Greenwood of the locals with 13 digits each, followed by Ray Snyder of Marin with eleven.

Marin Jayvees Trim College Lambs, 39-30

Fighting off a determined bid by the college JV basketball team in the closing minutes, the Mariners coasted to victory Wednesday afternoon 39-30 in the college gymnasium.

Led by the scoring efforts of Bob McCune, who tanked 18 points, the Tars from Marin were completely in control until the last ten minutes of the second half.

When Walt James' set-up put the Lambs ahead 26-25, the visitors had to put on the pressure to pull away in the final three minutes.

Leading scorer for the Lambs was Oliver Bascom with ten.

22 Boxers Vie For Champ Crowns In AMS Night Show

Student boxers at the college continue training this week to be in shape for the All-College Golden Gloves Boxing Championship, sponsored by the Associated Men Students.

It will take place on January 19, at 7:30 p. m. in the men's gymnasium.

This spectacular event will be in charge of boxing instructor Roy Diederichsen and is a contest between the winners of the intramural boxing tournament which was held last December 11, and last year's champs and experienced fighters of the college.

There will be eleven bouts starting at the 118-lb. division up to the heavy weights.

Referee for the bouts is Dewill Portal, varsity coach at San Jose State College. The judges will be Supervisor Chester MacPhee and George Canrinus. Acting as time keeper will be Jack Brady. Announcer for each bout will be AMS President, Frank Grant.

The city college band, directed by Mike Kahn, will also be on hand to provide more color to this already colorful event.

WAA Sets Tourney Week, Elections

Election of new officers for the Women's Athletic Association will be held during Tourney Week, January 19 to 22. Ballots will be provided in the women's gymnasium, enabling all WAA members to vote for the candidates, President Hermenia Ross announced.

Miss Ross explained that after the election, the new officers will be introduced at a banquet scheduled for Thursday, January 22, 6:30 p. m., with the new president receiving the gavel.

As a prelude to the Tourney Week and elections, the students of this college, under the sponsorship of the WAA, displayed their skillful horsemanship, as the female equestrians outrode the students from San Mateo Junior College at the recent horse show held at the St. Francis Riding Academy.

My Gosh! A Scholar Is Using An Ash Can

By Thermon Jones

"Will wonders never cease" was the exclamation of Dean Sandys when he observed an action of a student of the college recently.

The act of picking up and depositing in an ashcan, a piece of carelessly thrown paper that littered the ground of the west campus, warmed the dean's heart.

Then, after a more extensive survey, it was found that strewn paper is in much less abundance throughout the areas of the west campus parking lot than in earlier days of a few weeks ago.

Therefore, the ominous threat of no parking in the west campus is no longer imminent because of the care shown by the student whose thoughtfulness Dean Sandys witnessed.

With the park ground so much cleaner, the dean has decided not to impose a week's restriction on cars entering that area that was previously announced by him.

"I guess it began when I was just a kid, making non-stop flights around the dining-room table. Later on, the town got an airport. I got to know every plane, right down to the smallest bolts and screws.

"During the war I took off with the Aviation Cadets. The folks were all for it. They figured—correctly—that it was the best way to get me into the air where I belonged.

"I made it all right. Trained in the best planes the Air Force has, and now I'm heading for transition work in jets. The pay? Now that I'm a pilot, $336 a month, plus $500 for each year of active duty. And there's plenty of room for promotions.

"But that's not the real point. Some men belong in the air. They were born wanting wings—with the action, the pride, the freedom that go with them. There's no better way to have all that, along with the world's finest flying training, than to join the Aviation Cadets. And the future—in civilian aviation or in the Air Force—is as wide open as the horizon. If you want the fast-moving life, why not drop around to the Recruiting Station in your community or the nearest Air Force installation."

The Spectator

FIRMLY believing in rigid self-discipline we made our annual New Year's resolution an extra tough one to abide by. Sixteen days of 1948 have gone by and we're still on the straight and narrow—haven't thrown a rock at a single whale as yet.

A conversation we had with a campus visitor from Fisherman's Wharf has forced us to add another resolution to the list; to quit talking to seagulls.

This bird had a real argument the day he flew in an open window of The Guardsman office and landed near our typewriter.

"We've taken a lot of guff from the car owners here at the college," the gull began, "but let me give you a birds-eye view of what I saw happen the other day while buzzing the west campus.

"This guy came wheeling into the gate driving a brand new '47 Studebaker with a 'fresh from Detroit' look stamped all over it and a proud gleam in his eyes that indicated he put every dime he had into it.

"His first mistake was in parking it too close to the student lounge. He put it in gear, set the brake and locked all the doors, but made one more mistake; he left the front window wide open.

"Now don't get me wrong," the Wharf visitor continued, "I have nothing against that gang that hangs around the lounge. They toss away some pretty tasty lunches, and a bird can get sick of a steady diet of fish.

"But what they did to this guy's new crate shouldn't happen to a freight car parked alongside a hobo jungle.

"When the driver returned from his classes later in the day, this is the sight that greeted his eyes:

"On the broad, shiny hood of the car was a cigarette butt, actually ground into the paintwork and left lying there. One of the fenders had an overturned milk carton lying on it, the contents still dripping down over the tire.

"When he cleaned up that damage, he got into the car, and if that wasn't enough, on the inside seat cushions were more cigarette butts and papers where someone had tossed them over his shoulder to land in any old direction."

With that the seagull flexed his wings a few times and took off again through the open window, flinging back a parting epithet: "People, HAH! That's strictly for the the humans!"

Listening Hour Turns To Chopin And Handel

A program of favorite classic concertos has been scheduled for the Listening Hour today and Thursday. The A Minor Concerto by Grieg, Handel's Concerto Grosso, Bach's Double Violin Concerto, Chopin's E Minor Concerto, and the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto are on the list.

Meetings are in Room 200 Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1 o'clock.

Interclass Competition Precedes Flower Show

In preparation for the spring flower show to be held in Oakland, the landscape designing class, headed by Harry Nelson, is engaged in an interclass competition for a winning design to be used in this April show.

In order to continue their blue ribbon exhibits, the floriculture and flower shop students will combine their various talents.

Students have already proceeded to plant the lawns on the show grounds which will form the base of their exhibit.

"It is necessary to have these names so the Handbook can be brought up to date, and to make it possible to include the new organizations," Levy said.

Choir Director Returns In Spring Following Sabbatical Leave In NY

After completion of six months Sabbatical leave of absence, Flossita Badger will return to this college next semester to resume her duties as music department director, according to Gertrude Norgard, music instructor.

While visiting the eastern states, Miss Badger studied at the Julliard School of Music, and Columbia University.

As an accomplished singer, Miss Badger has been a member of opera companies in Naples and the San Francisco Opera Company. Miss Badger has also spent two summers as assistant opera director at summer music camp, College of Pacific.

Miss Badger will resume her place as director of the A Cappella Choir and will start a new three unit course in music interpretation.

NSA Meets Student Council Crossfire

Opinions pro and con on the virtue of the National Student Association came from the Student Council upon hearing a report on that group by Bob Reiley at the meeting of Thursday, January 15.

A reading of the Student's Bill of Rights, part of the NSA's constitution by Bill Riley caused anti-NSA views to be expressed by Jack Brady, assistant dean of men, and council members Ed Gallemore and Max Call.

Brady and Call pointed out that although the group is supposed to be calculated to further education, most of its policies seem to be of a political nature.

Gallemore stated that he feels that the group is using democracy as a guise for views opposed to the American form of government.

Spit And Polish Drive Urged By College Head

President Archibald J. Cloud of the college today gave encouragement to students who are cooperating with the cleanup of the college grounds.

The west campus has been improved greatly with more respect and pride in the appearance of the college grounds, he observed.

A note from the Board of Education offered any necessary equipment or facilities to aid the littered situation, President Cloud added.

Will Student Officers Be Elected By A Minority? All Should Vote!

TOMORROW and Thursday the students of this college will have an opportunity to have their say in student government, but if history repeats itself there will be few doing any talking.

The polls for the current election will be situated in easily accessible spots, and there should be enough of them so that students do not have to waste more than two or three minutes of precious time in order to vote.

Will they?

We hope we are mistaken, but in the light of past elections it seems unlikely.

For one thing, many have an idea that student government is a farce, and for them it probably is. Others will forget to vote or will be too immersed in their studies to break away. Some might find the election machines "too complicated" to operate, and some will never realize that an election is taking place.

This is probably the most serious defect in democratic government. The people concerned simply do not take the time or interest to participate in their government. This lack of interest is not just found in student elections but seems widespread throughout all levels of our government.

Thus, minority groups, call them what you will—communists, fascists, radicals, reactionaries—have been able, by around-the-clock-hard-work, to subvert democratic ideals by exploiting democratic methods.

The irony in the situation is that the people who take the least interest in elections are the first ones to cry out indignantly when those elected fail to provide a government they deem desirable.

Being the only official campus publication, The Guardsman does not support candidates in student elections.

We can and do, however, urge all the students to vote and remind them that student government here will be good or bad in direct ratio to those who participate in it.

What will it be? Students elected by and representing a minority viewpoint or elected by and devoted to the best interests of the Associated Students at large?

News To Nobody . . .

By Herbert Levy

COMES Feb. 12 (also honest Abe's birthday) and the new Spring '48 semester begins. With it come a few new innovations, primarily, of course, a new name for the cell block, and then the launching of a College Police Force.

Under the able tutoring of Instructor Fred Fitzgerald, ex-San Francisco Police Academy head who for 6 years ground out "San Francisco's Finest," City College will spring forth with an initial 12 men in blue.

The student officers, all members of Fitzgerald's police training program here on the campus, will maintain order about the campus and provide the necessary decorum at athletic events . . . seems these lads will also be endowed with the power of issuing citations to drivers who do not know the rules! Another small feature of this program is to have one of these student officers stationed at the crossing of Phelan Avenue during the ten minutes between classes. . . "Hot Rods" beware!!

And speaking of autos, a quick check of the parking lot in the west campus revealed that a total of only two (2) model "A's" were present, which all goes to indicate that either Henry Ford's greatest invention is slowly falling apart, or that students just have more money to buy better cars. (In a quick check taken in 1940 of the parking areas around the college, there were exactly 33 proud owners of the Model A vintage.)

Sport Notes: The dissatisfaction from many campus quarters in reference to the Northern California Junior College Conference seems to stem from the unique rules and time schedules that the conference puts forth. (City College is a charter member.) A few of their minor edicts seems to be that from now on there will be no "spring practice" for colleges in this league. (Every other school in the nation does it, including high schools:)

The NCJCC Ski meet is to take place in early February, which is all right, except it's in the middle of finals week.

The Conference has ok'd Monterey Peninsula College for membership and will play CCSF here Sept. 25. (The idea is excellent, but Monterey doesn't know if they're going to field a football team this year.)

Feathers Will Fly Twixt Girls And Guys

By Quentin J. Ogle

The aging Nineteenth Amendment has finally made itself known to that sterling masculine organization, the Northern California Junior College Association.

The boys had a meeting last month to set the football schedule for the 1948 season, and the topic of women came up (h'm), that NCJCA was masculine, and the lads decided to let the Junior College lasses get in on association sponsored events. City Colleges also may participate, fortunately.

A tournament will be held in March, and women may partielpate—in badminton. However, to add spice to a rather dull day (and to get the gals interested, perchance?) mixed doubles will also be played.

Women must meet the same eligibility rules as the men in order to play in association sponsored events. This step is heralded as good sense and will probably do much to make City College badminton popular—especially on windy March afternoons.

Governor's (Of Teheran, Persia) Son Vs. Cop

Masoud Mousavizadeh Impressed By Americans' Interest In Politics

Masoud Mousavizadeh

By I. R. Lascola

Crossing a busy metropolitan intersection against the traffic signal, the visitor from Persia was stopped by a burly minion of the law who proceeded to write out a ticket.

"Here's a ticket for that," said the cop.

"Ticket?" answered the Persian, searching his meager English vocabulary for the proper words. "Thank you, but I must go soon and I won't have time to attend your show."

The cop insisted, but the Persian stood pat. Finally, the desperate policeman threw out the common phrase:

"Wassamatter, don't you understand English?"

"No," answered the Persian, and the understanding officer let him go on his way.

All this actually happened to student Masoud Mousavizadeh during his first days in the United States two years ago.

Since that time Mousavizadeh, now a student at this college, has learned to speak English fluently and understands well what type of a "show" police tickets are for.

Mousavizadeh, a native of Teheran, where his father is governor, is now studying Political Science in preparation for a career in government in his native country.

After completing his studies here he will go to Columbia University. After this he plans to attend the foreign service school at either Georgetown University or Harvard.

Questioned with the usual, "How do you like America?" Mousavizadeh replied, "Fine," confessing that one of the things he likes about America is the political mindedness of the people. This is one thing he would like to bring to the people of Teheran.

Captain From Castile

Hollywood Goes Historical

By Mel Hansen

With a blare of ancient brass horns and more than the usual fan-fare, Tyrone Power and Company blew in from the land of "Smog" to give our fair city the dark glasses and loud shirts version of Samuel Shellabarger's fine book Captain from Castile.

To Mr. Shellabarger's credit, a great many San Franciscans have read his book. To Mr. Shellabarger's credit a greater number of San Franciscans looked forward to seeing the movie, hopefully anticipating the scenes of Aztec splendor, the beautiful Catana and the free-letting of good Spanish blood.

GARCIA GARROTES MATTER

The opus opens in Spain, where Pedro de Vargas (Power) is leading the carefree life of a young Spanish caballero. He meets Juan Garcia, who eventually strangles his own mother to keep the Inquisition from torturing her to death, and Catana (Jean Peters), the "light of lights."

Pedro's family is captured, his sister killed, by the Inquisition. He vows revenge against de Silva, the lily-livered leader, and proceeds to escape.

HEROES SIGN WITH CORTEZ

Pedro and Juan join a stalwart band of cut-throats led by Cortez (Romero) leaving to conquer the new world.

During this part of the movie Pedro is constantly facing death with a smile on his lips.

They sail for Mexico and in no time at all Pedro is elevated to rank of Captain, to no one's surprise.

TYRONE'S HOOFING FLOPS

The highlight of the picture for our dough was the dance involving Miss Peters and Power. Peters was stirring. Power proved conclusively that Fred Astaire is good for another 20 years.

Power recuperated from too many knife wounds to suit the average fan. He repaid the female portion of the audience partly by making mad, passionate love to Miss Peters on occasions.

The music was loud, the color nice, the plot nil, the impression had. Once again a good book died of "Hollywooditis."

COBB ESTABLISHED

One of the few redeeming factors of this technicolor "titanic" is the excellent portrayal of Juan Garcia by Lee Cobb. Although Cobb seems to be typed as a detective (Boomerang) in true Hollywood style, his versatility as a wandering Spanish second story man has definitely established him as a leading feature player.

In addition to making Cortez a loveable Iberian conquistador (history has shown him to be one of the most notorious cut throats), this picture has hero Power run a sword through the villain's heart at a distance of six inches, he lives, only to be strangled two reels later.

Look Here, Girls! Men Folks Possess Own Styles; Khakis Three Times a Week

By Dave Hansen

Girls! Are you going to stand by while the masterful males deride and declaim your New Look? These same overbearing beings who criticize your progressive hair styles, your longer and more practical skirts, and who would deny your torsos a bit of strategic punctuation here and there, are themselves Slaves to Fashion.

On any given Monday you will invariably find the masculine members of City College clad in almost white shirts and fashionably clean, starched khaki trousers. On Tuesday the same individuals can be seen sporting T shirts, and fashionably comfortable trousers, service, summer.

Most of these scholars will arrive on Wednesday uniformly in sweaters, shirts, or topcoats, and khaki trousers, with cuffs fashionably rolled up.

Thursday usually finds everyone who is anyone, my dear, contributing to the effect of a beachhead by donning field jackets and fashionably dirty khaki trousers. Friday finds most of this institution's male populace in a festive week-end mood, and slacks or suits to match.

There you have it, Women of the New Look. In closing, however, there is one thing to be said in defense of the men—they still look human! So there, too.

Palestinian Student Frowns On "New Look"

By Florence Grant

Manuel Dudum, 19-year-old first semester pre-medical student at this college is one person who takes more than a passing interest in the current Jewish-Arab conflict in the Far East.

Dudum, whose home is in Ramallah, Palestine, arrived in this country in September with 170 other students, two of whom accompanied him to this campus.

Dudum speaks three languages, Arabic, his native tongue, French and English. The later he admits he finds a little difficult to understand at times.

According to Dudum, prices in his country are higher than they are here and luxury items are at a minimum.

About Americans, Dudum is most enthusiastic over their friendly attitude and least enthusiastic over the women's acceptance of the "New Look."

Ram Hoopsters Will Meet USF Frosh Here

Hilltoppers Feature Two Unit Attack Against Locals; Hillsman Not Sure On Starting Five

Taking a breather in conference play tomorrow, the Ram cagers tackle the cross city University of San Francisco frosh five in the local gymnasium with tip-off time scheduled for 4 p. m.

Boasting a seasonal record of 11 wins against 3 setbacks, the Hilltoppers employ the two unit system, enabling Coach Bill Gibson to keep an equally potent quintet on the floor at all times.

Starting at forwards on the first unit are Frank Luizzi and Frank Sobeck; at center is Bob Gardner; while the guard positions are held down by Milan Mettikosh and Lawrence Rebholtz.

The second and speedier five is composed of Ward Healy and Bud Gardner at forwards; Mettikosh as a center this time; and Nick Kuser and Dave Ahern at the guards.

To combat this outfit, Ram Coach Ralph Hillsman will probably depend upon his old reliable starters, Jack Marcus and Jim Caldwell at forwards; lanky Bob Greenwood at the pivot spot; and Bob Payne and Earl Malnick cavorting at the guard slots.

Hillsman hopes to be able to give his reserves at least a partial workout during the afternoon in order to prepare them for the strenuous conference slate to come.

Cage Coach Ralph Hillsman

Cage Mentor Becoming Area's Top Official

Not only is Ram Coach Hillsman a competent mentor, but he also knows how to handle himself on the court in the capacity of an official as well.

A trait of Hillsman's which should bring him acclaim from the fans is the manner in which he clearly counts the seconds being consumed while the ball is being brought in bounds or across the center line. Ralph accomplishes this by plainly raising and lowering his arm for each count.

We don't know where he picked up the practice but we do hope he passes it on to less efficient arbitrators of which there are many.

Fischer To Hold First Baseball Signup Wed.

Are you a potential Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams or Bob Feller? If so, baseball coach Bill Fischer would like to meet you in the men's gymnasium at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Fischer will lead the Ram diamond men in their quest for a third consecutive conference crown this year and is in desperate need of replacements for his depleted staff.

Loss of seven regulars from last season's pennant winning nine, three of them saw the advantages of possessing a professional contract, has weakened the squad considerably, leaving a wide open race for positions on the 1948 team.

WAA To Honor Leaders At A Banquet, Jan. 22

As a completion to an active semester of Women's Athletic Association activities, the society will sponsor their annual banquet, at which awards will be presented to outstanding leaders of WAA, Hermenia Ross, president of the organization, announced yesterday.

The theme of the lecture, given by Verrell Weber, women's athletic instructor, will discuss the pros and cons of coeducational activities.

Scheduled for Thursday, January 22, at 6:30 p. m., those members attending the banquet will be introduced to the new president as she is given the gavel, and the officers who will automatically take over for the rest of the evening.

MAYOR Elmer E. Robinson's recent proposal to furnish San Francisco with a new modern stadium may, in the future, benefit the college to a great extent. If, and when, the stadium is constructed, bay area college and pro teams would be more eager to play in the modern arena than at aging Kezar.

Kezar Stadium would then be left for the preps and smaller colleges, and the Rams would have a chance to schedule a few choice football dates, instead of having to play at small high school fields like Balboa and Washington, like last year.

A stadium on the local campus is on the city budget for the future, we hear, but until something is done the Rams are, as at the present, without a home playing field for football.

Coach Roy Dieterlehsen has been giving his former Lincoln basketball protege, Bob Trieber, some advice lately on how to coach the Lincoln High 130-lb. cagers. The high school team has been practicing in the college's women's gymnasium.

A film for all football enthusiasts to see is the colored Warner-Pathe Newsreel on the Rose Bowl. These are the first colored pictures ever to be taken of the Rose Bowl and pageant, and the films are really outstanding. The newsreel is now at the Orpheum Theatre in San Francisco.

Roos Bros. Sporting Shop really had an overflow crowd at the recent showings of the Stanford-California Big Game pictures at the Roos Bowl. Spectators sat on the floor or stood for over an hour just to see the thrilling slow motion football films, which were shown in color.

Vice President Jim Wyatt announced at the recent Block S. F. Society meeting that the annual election of officers will not be held until next semester, when membership is up to date, and the spring athletic program set.

Net Outlook For 1948 Good; Face Big Sched.

Varsity Tennis Coach Tom Wilson has had a gleam in his eye for the last few weeks. The reason—simply that a promising influx of Bay Area netters to the hilltop institution has cast a bright future over the Rams' chances next semester.

Wilson is busying himself at present compiling a schedule that will probably include Cal, Stanford, St. Mary's, Santa Clara, San Jose and U.S.F. in addition to approximately 10 NCJCC opponents.

Once again the Rams will compete in the All Northern California Junior College Championship tourney late in May.

Chances that the Varsity will take a three or four day trip southward to meet LACC, Pasadena, Compton, and Long Beach, are excellent, the ex-COP grid great revealed.

Although he would not name individuals, Wilson said the college has gotten more than its share of netters from Lowell, Poly and even more so from the East Bay Highs in addition to two or three returning lettermen from last year's team.

Bob Payne of the varsity cage squad has averaged twelve points per game this season. In two games he has scored more than 15 points. Second highest scorer for the Rams is tall, Bob Greenwood, who has averaged 10 points in each contest.

Brown Vs. Coker Bout Top Event As Ram Boxers Split Series Against Stanford

By Larry Baldocchi

Intercollegiate boxing was off to a successful start for City College last Friday when the varsity boxing squad battled its way through nine bouts to a total of four wins and one draw against the best fighters that Stanford University had to offer at the Indian gymnasium.

Highlight of the afternoon was the bout R. Johnny Brown lost to Stanford's Art Coker.

Brown Outweighed

Even though Brown was outweighed 35 pounds, the heavyweight fight lasted for the full three rounds.

In the third and final round Brown withstood a terrific onslaught of punches, but he was able to make the fight last until the bell rang ending the bout.

When the men returned to their respective corners after the end of the last round, they could not lift their arms from their sides because of exhaustion.

The other bouts were almost as exciting, even though none of them ended in knockouts.

Fisher Wins

In the 120 lb. division, Johnny Fisher of City College won by a decision over E. O'Neil, while Vic Whitely, 136 lbs., won over S. Isnel of Stanford.

Roy Damal, 140 lbs., won over Alton of Stanford, but City College's Jim Wilson lost to L. Stanton in the 155 lb. division.

Hiram Short, 170 lbs., lost to Ten Eyck of Stanford, and Vic Spargo took the decision over Stanford's D. Savage in the 130 lb. division.

Fleishmann Fights To Draw

Bob Fleishmann, 145 lb. fought to a draw with Stanford's O'Rush; Hank Williams, 175 lbs., lost to J. Krammer of Stanford.

Jensen Lists Twelve Meets For Thinclads

An even dozen track meets are scheduled for this year's Ram cindermen, according to the schedule released yesterday by track mentor Jim Jensen.

Starting with San Mateo on March 13, what Jensen hopes will be a successful season will come to a close on May 22, with the running of the California Relays. In between will come such important events as the meet with S. F. State on March 20, the conference meet at Santa Rosa on May 1, the National A. C. meet at Phoenix, Arizona on May 7 and 8, and the Fresno Relays on May 15.

Jensen issued an invitation to all men who are interested in trying out for berths on the team to see him in the men's gymnasium at their earliest convenience.

Following is the partial track schedule for the 1948 season:

Mar. 13—San Mateo—there.
Mar. 20—S. F. State—there.
Mar. 27—St. Mary's—there.
Apr. 3—Stanford and Marin—Stanford.
Apr. 10—Stocklon, Vallejo and Marin—Stockton.
Apr. 13—San Jose State frosh—S. J. State.

"Yelling Fool" Bolsters City College Spirit, Advocates Shakeup In New Appointment System

By Ann Land

Meet the "man in motion," hep Haig Harrison, who leads the yells, while coeds sigh.

Harrison, who calls himself the yelling fool, has had a lot of experience in the field of buzzaing. Ever since his infant days of leading the whole maternity section, which consisted of 13 babies, Harrison knew he was destined to be a yelp leader.

EX-PARROT

A former Poly man, he spent one and a half years bolstering Parrot spirit.

This year, Harrison's first semester of leading the Rams, was a challenge to him and his assistants, Jean Dibbill, Juanita Hicks, and Betsy Davis, who felt, at first, a certain lack of cooperation among students.

"If a yell-leader were elected by the Associated Students as is the president, instead of appointed by the Rally Commission it would certainly improve college spirit. As it is now, some joker just gets out leading the crowd, not backed by the students, and he finds it hard to get their confidence. A vote in the Student Council should also be given to the cheer leader," Harrison believes.

MIX-UPS

Though the yell leaders practiced 12 hours since the beginning of the semester, a few mix-ups occurred while cheering the team on to victory.

"Once the worser half of the sex was undecided on which way it was supposed to move, went the wrong way and had a head-on collision. These freak accidents are very rare, though," says Harrison, "because most of the time the girls know their way around."

Oscar Wilde's Play Termed Hit After Four Day Showing

By Bill Whitney

Another excellent production performed by the Little Theater Group ended a four day run last night with the final college performance of Oscar Wilde's scintillating comedy, The Importance of Being Earnest, produced by Paul Ellison.

Although all the actors performed like veterans, highest honors for the play's success belong to Jack Jones, who portrayed Earnest Worthing, and Evelyn Hickey, the victorian Lady Bracknell.

Jones' complete command of facial expressions added greatly to the humor already contained in the dialogue. His tragic lamentations for the decease of his non-existent brother was particularly noteworthy.

Miss Hickey, as the class-conscious Lady Bracknell, gives a realistic portrayal of that type of socialite, who although she would not think of allowing a non-blue blood to marry into her family is willing to make an occasional exception, provided the financial aspect is agreeable.

Feminine frivolity is apparent in the actions of both Gwendolyn, Jarlath McMahon, and Cicely, Norma Carlson, when they both admit to being in love with the name Earnest, rather than the man connected with that name.

If there must be adverse criticism, it can be found only in the inadequate facilities under which the drama department is forced to perform.

Honor Society Changes Membership Procedure

Alpha Gamma Sigma, college scholastic honor society, recently revised its membership procedure, according to Edwin Cranston, club adviser.

Previously, the grades of enrolling students were checked at the beginning of the semester. If their scholastic records proved them honor students, they were so informed by the Alpha Gamma Sigma. This process entailed a great deal of work on the part of the club adviser and other members of the organization.

Under the new program, which will be in full swing next semester, students who think their grades merit membership in the society, must take the initiative to apply to Alphn Gamma Sigma. Cards, however, will be mailed to present members who intend to attend the college during the Spring semester.

Cranston hopes the new procedure will save unnecessary work and stimulate the general interest of potential members.

Renewed Appeal For Radio Scripts Made By Mikes And Men Today

Battling to keep its head above a drought that has seen the local writing talent virtually go dry, Mikes and Men, local radio organization, today renewed its appeal for more radio scripts.

President Tanios Habeeb, in a special writers' meeting held Tuesday, disclosed that scripts are needed badly and that the groups now in production will soon run short of script material.

"We cannot take to the air waves unless we have at least 15 or 20 dramas from which to choose," he said. "At present we have hardly enough good shows to schedule the series. This is a chnnce for all local writers to try their skill at the art of radio writing," Habeeb added, "and we are extending an invitation to all visitors and potentinl writers to come to our meetings."

The club was organized for the purpose of writing and producing its own radio dramas over the facilities of radio station KQW.

Stories dealing with little incidents on San Francisco or any other town or city throughout California are the type needed, Habeeb said.

Five Join Engineering Staff

New Men Represent London To Berkeley

By Dave Hansen

Following a policy of acquainting local students with the host of new instructors currently affiliitated with the college, The Guardsman this week offers its readers a brief glimpse of the Engineering Department.

Glenn H. Hurd admits to 47 years, stands five feet, ten inches tall, is an engineering and drafting instructor at the college. The hazel grey eyed 145 pounder has grey fringed dark hair, a wife and an eight year old daughter.

Hurd left overcrowded University of Michigan to attend the University of Wyoming, eventually graduated from Berkeley's UC. The first semester, the former Balboa High School instructor worked his way through college as a Wyoming railroad man, an Oakland Tribune copyreader, and a California Blind and Deaf School's instructor. Hurd reads intensively, especially engineering works, doesn't neglect "whodunnits."

Blond, ruddy featured Frank Fermer is a brown eyed, 170 pound former navy lieutennnt who nursed submarine gear in the Pacific throughout the war. Married, he is the father of a very blonde, four year old boy.

After graduating from high school, he worked in a sugar refinery as an engineer. He started attending San Jose State College ten years later, graduated in 1941. Fermer taught at a UC extension for one year before moving to City College, about which he is genuinely enthusiastic.

He attends Stanford on a part time basis, will attain his master's degree next summer.

LESTER TARNOPOL, College radio and electronics instructor, was awarded the annual prize for experimental work by the Lincoln Electric Arc Welding Foundation.

London born Edward Gardner is modest about his age, but admits to 160 pounds and five feet, six inches of height. He is a University of London graduate, obtained his master's degree at UC.

The personable widower is a naturalized citizen, worked for the US in Pimama early in the war. He has taught at UC, was an associate professor at College of Pacific.

Leroy Briggs is young (25), on the brilliant side (a Dartmouth graduate), a former lieutenant (jg.) in the Seabees, where he did duty in Bermuda and on Okinawn.

He was born and raised in Springfield, Mass. Previous to his present employment, Briggs instructed for a year at Tufts College, in Medford. He and Mrs. Briggs like California, are making their permanent home in San Carlos.

He attends Stanford on a part time basis, will attain his master's degree next summer.

Consisting of professional and student talent, the program is designed to start the new semester with a flourish. Old students have offered their services, which will be combined with featured surprise professionals to add to this sparkling affair.

Call Features College

City College of San Francisco will be the subject of a full page story in tomorrow's Call-Bulletin, Tommy Thompson, feature writer for that paper, announced yesterday while visiting the college.

Thompson added that the college will be the only two-year college appearing in the series on four-year colleges.

Tarnopol Awarded Foundation Prize

By Vivienne Smith

For his brilliant experimental work in aeronautical welding during the early part of 1947, Lester Tarnopol, radio and electronics instructor, was awarded the yearly prize of the Lincoln Electric Arc Welding Foundation in November.

Tarnopol worked on the problem of welding aircraft landing gear while employed at the Douglas Aircraft Corporation Research laboratories, and submitted his prize winning manuscript to the Foundation in June.

The work consisted of welding heavy tubing with an experimental welding rod, followed by heat treatment to the required tensile strength. His work developed specimens having the tensile strength of 225,000 pounds per square inch after welding.

At the request of the secretary of of the Indian Institute of Metals at New Delhi, Tarnopol has submitted a paper for publication entitled The Damping Capacities of Certain Metals.

Written in collaboration with a student working for a master's degree in metallurgy at the University of Kentucky, this paper recently won the first prize in a contest sponsored by the Central Appalachian Section of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

Summer Workers Will Need Training-Amori

Summer workers will need experience in 1948, Joseph Amori, placement chief, announced today.

Jobs such as counselling at camps, work at resorts, and forestry will require experience on the job, or need a certified training in the line.

Amori suggests that students planning to work during summer get jobs that will give them the needed experience or take the desired study next semester for the training.

The recreational - counselling department of the college will train students for all kinds of summer camp jobs dealing with children. The Hotel and Restaurant Division trains waiters, cooks, busboys, and any other phase of serving food.

Lifeguards should start early, too, Amori said, because to be a lifeguard a senior life saving certificate is needed.

Luckmann Forms Club For Foreign Students

To assist 150 foreign-born students feel at home and part of the college, a new "international" society will be launched by Lloyd Luckmann, assistant to the president, it was disclosed recently.

The new society will be open to all students so its benefits may be shared by native Americans also. Discussions of the culture, traditions, history and current problems of foreign nations with recent residents of those countries will be both entertaining and educational.

The need of such a society has been recognized in most Californian colleges and there are many UNSCO groups (United Nations Scientific and Cultural Organizations) on other campi, Luckmann said.

All students who are interested are urged to see Luckmann or to leave their names at The Guardsman office.

Veterans Warned About Eligibility

W. E. McCloud, veterans affairs counsellor, issued a warning today that veterans attending the college under the G. I. Bill, must file letters of eligibility, if they have not done so already, no later than Friday, January 23, at the Veterans Affairs office in Building 3.

Veterans failing to comply with the order will be personally billed for books and other supplies obtained under the G. I. Bill. There are 2,324 students attending the college under the bill, which makes it impossible to notify each student personally of this negligence.

This request should be attended to immediately, or the Veterans Administration will be informed, McCloud warned.

Charges Will Be Made For Campus Posters

Lloyd Luckmann, fine arts department head, announced today that because of the demand for posters on the part of campus organizations it is now necessary for the art student to do this work on his own time.

In addition, a reasonable rate will be charged to cover his labor and the cost of materials.

The students to see for posters, signs, programs, or any other type of art are Walter Wong and Richard Walls. They can be given requests through William E. Eckert, advertising art instructor.

The rates for posters are as follows: $1.00 for the largest size, $.75 for medium size, and $.50 for the smallest size.

Art Work Displayed

Water color landscapes, produced by members of art department instructor Richard Allman's classes, compose the exhibit of students' work which is on display in Room 160 in the main building.

Black and white figure drawings can also be seen in room 160, and are exhibited in display cases throughout the main building. They are the work of Carl Reynolds' art classes.

Veteran Card Refunds Further Delayed

Refunds to veterans who purchased Associated Student cards this semester will be further delayed, Kevin Ryan of the college bank, said earlier this week.

Payments to individual institutions by the Veteran's Administration have been impeded because of a nationwide college enrollment increase, Ryan added, asking the veterans to have patience.

Ushering Jobs Open

Students interested in ushering at concerts of the Opera House or Civic Auditorium are requested to report to Dean Margaret Dougherty's office in Building 2, west campus, immediately so as to usher for the remaining concerts of the season.

The Spectator

George Lajeunesse

THERE'LL be no hoop rolling and bicycling down the main streets of the USA this year of 1948. Not unless the kiddies of the nation want their spoke wheels clogged with mud already gutter deep in streets.

By November the mud slung in the political campaign will be lapping over the fire hydrants.

For this is one of those years divisible by four in which the good Constitution says the voters of the "several states" will gather together to choose a President of these United States.

DIRTIEST FIGHT YET

This first national election since the war's end promises to be the dirtiest, crummiest fight the nation will ever have the displeasure of witnessing.

There will be no war to temper the opinions of opposing candidates. The spirit of unity has disappeared within all parties ranks so the green light is showing for all participants to haul out the time-tested tricks of the political trade and again outdo each other in insulting the intelligence of the voter.

How all this is accomplished will never be found within the cut and dried wording of the Constitution as studied by the Poly Sci. 36 student. The Constitution merely states a Chief Executive will be chosen by the voters. Human nature has devised the present system for going about the unpleasant job.

"TALENT" THAT IS USED

Politics, as "she is played" today, calls for numerous prerequisites for the potential officeholder. He needs certain standout qualities if he is going to really enter the field up to, and over, his ears. If he's going to be any kind of a success at the game.

A necessary ability must be developed in the technique of what they used to politely call in grammar school, "apple polishing." Later usage described this in even more kinder terms, that of would-be office holders going about kissing babies.

A BIG BAZOO NEEDED

The recent war gave birth in the services to even choicer and riper descriptions of this practice, but as this publication doesn't have the broader mind of a "Yank" Magazine, further elaboration is out of the question.

Along with this peculiar talent, the politico would do well to have a king-sized mouth, for the louder and longer he blows his bazoo, the more his lack of real ability is screened from careful analysis.

Or, as Fibber McGee once coined it, "The guy who blows his horn gets the curb service."

WHO LIVES ALONE?

Mastery of these essentials calls for certain sacrifices. Life being as it is, one doesn't get something for nothing.

The biggest sacrifice is self-respect, but, in a campaign year such as this one will be, respect will be a cheap commodity at its best.

The housing shortage being what it is throughout the land, no one is asked to live with himself anyway.

College To Aid In The March Of Dimes

In order that victims of infantile paralysis may be given the assurance of adequate medical and hospital care without regard to race, color or creed, Dean Margaret Dougherty today urged all students to contribute to the March of Dimes.

For the past ten years San Francisco children stricken with infantile paralysis have been given their chance to run and play again through this worthy organization.

They have received the best possible care and their families spared from financial disaster or severe hardship.

An average polio case costs $1200 and some go as high as $9000. Few families can meet this tremendous cost.

In such cases aid is given through this fund.

Alumni Invite Extended For Name Change

Each college organization is requested to inform its alumni groups of the college name change before Thursday, February 12, and invite them to attend the basketball game on February 13, according to Max Call, publicity director.

This will be a "test case" concerning the number of active alumni in the respective groups, and will form the basis of an organized Alumni Association.

Call stated that the different college organizations will be expected to report on the number of "Alums" representing their group at the game. These reports are to be made in written form and turned in at the Dean's Office together with a complete mailing list of their alumni before Friday, March 5.

Call suggested that correspondence with alumni should request an answer.

Final Decision On College Radio Club Shows Due; Mike-Men Need Scripts

Awaiting final word from the Columbia Broadcasting System on the outcome of the 13 week series written by members of Mikes and Men, President Tanios Habeeb yesterday announced that more radio scripts will be accepted.

The series, written on unfamiliar incidents in California history, has been completed. "More scripts will be accepted to fill in on scripts that will undoubtedly be rejected by CBS," Habeeb said.

Several shows already have been accepted by CBS.

Mikes and Men, completing its first full term as a college organization, has proved a valuable aid to students wishing practical aid in the art of radio broadcasting, according to Habeeb.

Although the scripts have been written, a great deal of work remains in the production of the individual shows. The series will allow the members of the club practical experience via the air waves.

Mu Iota Psi Dance Proceeds Go To CARE

By Leigh Rowe

To coin an old cliche, 'everyone talks about conditions' in Europe but rarely does anyone do anything about it.

A recent exception to this rule was disclosed by Gertrude Norgard, adviser to Mu Iota Psi, college music club, which decided on its own initiative to "do" something.

With unanimous approval the club voted to send the entire proceeds from its November Nocturne dance to the organization CARE to make up two packages for a special family in the German town of Friedberg in the U.S. zone of occupation.

Mrs. Norgard said that a twenty-dollar check was already in the mails for this family, whose impoverished condition is indicntive of conditions everywhere in Europe today.

1000 Books Per Day Taken From Library

An average of 1000 books, with an unreported total of volumes from its branch, are borrowed from the library by City College students every day, Eleanor Blinn, assistant librarian, reported today.

The most popular section is general books, which include sociology, chemistry and physics.

New Curriculum Meets All Architectural Needs

Because of the increased demand for architectural training, the college has planned to expand the present courses to include a separate curriculum in the field of architectural drafting, engineering instructor William Mayo revealed yesterday.

Students interested are advised to get in touch with George Hutchenson in Room 142.

The current technical two year program has turned out many fine graduates who have been placed in well paying positions through the efforts of the engineering staff, Mayo added.

Students To Advise In Forming Time Schedule

Coming summer and fall time schedules will be made with the aid of a committee of five students appointed at the Associated Student meeting of Thursday, January 20.

Members of the student committee who will attend a meeting today in the office of J. Paul Mohr, college vice-president, include Al Deutsch, Max Call, George Kapanis, Allen Brussard, and Barhara Larsen.

The group's work will be that of suggesting holiday and registration day dates in keeping with student opinion.

U. S. College News Roundup . . .

San Jose State: Everyone who gets close to this institution of learning usually is wiser for the experience. A wire fence ends at the women's gym with never a gate in sight. Last week two well dressed, brief case totin' businessmen learned, in one short course, that their highjump days are stowed in the limbo of things gone by.

University of Chicago: In an exclusive interview in Varsity, the young man's magazine, Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins gave this view of higher education: "Most American colleges do as much harm as good, waste as much time as they use well and turn out as many failures as successes." He gave over specialization, overlapping courses and teaching so small a segment of a topic nothing is learned, as prominent weaknesses.

Bakersfield College: Photographers had smooth sailing taking pictures for their yearbook until they had to photograph the large and active campus Photographers Club. The lens fanatics offered voluminous advice to the perspiring photographers but were finally lined up and "shot," each holding his own camera at what he considered better form than the professional photographer snapping the picture was holding his camera.

Royalty To Be Crowned At Coronation Ball; New ASCCSF Officers Will Be Revealed

One of the highlights of the college's social season will be presented tomorrow night by the Sophomore Class when the Oakland Scottish Rite auditorium will be the scene of the Coronation Ball in Waltz Time, according to Wayne Zenger, class president.
